WORLD COURT PROTOCOL IS SUBMITTED TO THE SENATE

President Hoover Asks Consideration of the Measure as Soon as Emergency Relief and Appropriation Legislation Has Been Enacted—Friends and Foes See Little Hope For Action on the Matter at This Session

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(AP)— The protocols for American adherence to the world court were sent to the senate today by President Hoover with a message asking consideration as soon as the emergency relief and appropriation legislation has been enacted.

Friend and foe in the senate immediately expressed the view there was little hope for consideration at this session and Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, proposed that it be put aside completely lest it cause an extra session in the spring.

The subject reached the senate in the midst of a bitter speech against Mr. Hoover for his criticism of those seeking relief legislation above that recommended by him and as it went to the foreign relations committee the ranking republican of that organization, Senator Johnson, of California, denounced the injection of the issue at this time.

Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee announced he would call it up at the next regular meeting a week from today. He believed the committee would report the question to the senate shortly after the holidays.

Mr. Hoover took the opportunity in his message to the senate to endorse the revised protocols which were modified to meet one of the senate's reservations which never was accepted by the other powers.

"The provisions of the protocols free us from any entanglement in the diplomacy of other nations," he said. "We can not be summoned before this court. We can from time to time seek its services by agreement with other nations. These protocols permit our withdrawal from the court at any time without reproach or ill-will.

"The movement for establishment of such a court originated with our country. It has been supported by Presidents Wilson, Harding and Coolidge; by Secretaries of State Hughes, Kellogg and Stimson; it springs from the earnest seeking of our people for justice in international relations and to strengthen the foundations of peace."

Senator Johnson, in a statement later, asked "What kind of a 'court' is this thus characterized by the president?"

"If ever we have the misfortune to join," he continued, "an attempted withdrawal would be met by such an avalanche of abuse abroad and such a storm of criticism from our internationalists at home, that withdrawal would be well nigh impossible.

"One thing has been accomplished by sending at this particular time the League of Nations court to the senate. Some people may be distracted by it and public attention may be diverted from our pressing domestic problems and our lack of leadership in solving them. We have unfortunately in this country some whose thoughts are ever abroad, whose hearts throb with sympathy for the distress of other nations, and who are blind to the suffering of our own people."

Johnson said he was opposed to giving the "slightest heed" to the court at this session. Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, another member of the foreign relations committee, urged that it not be considered at this time.

Senator Swanson, of Virginia, the ranking democrat on the committee, has advocated that it be taken up next session but he is disposed to have the committee report it favorably now.

This is the second time the world court issue has been before the senate. American adherence was voted by a margin well over the necessary two-thirds five years ago.

The senate reservation which was never accepted by the other powers stipulated the world court should render no advisory opinion in which this country has, or claims to have, an interest without the consent of this nation.

After their refusal to accept this reservation, a committee of international jurists, including Elihu Root, former secretary of state, revised the court rules in an attempt to reach this reservation on a basis acceptable to all parties. The revised rules are now before the senate.

Foes of the court claim at least 20 votes but there is no prediction from their ranks that they can defeat American adherence.

COLD FOG SHROUDS THE ENGLISH CHANNEL

LONDON, Dec. 10—(AP)—Shipping in the English channel moved at a snail's pace when it moved at all tonight, sending the bleating of sirens through thickest, coldest fog this part of the country has experienced this year.

Fog horns hooted all along the coast where vessels had anchored because navigation was impossible. Ashore even highway traffic was dangerous, for the mist extended as far north as Scotland.

All incoming air service to Croydon was cancelled and two machines which started flights to Paris were obliged to come back.

The port of Hull was freezing as well as fog ridden and the fleet of trawlers lay outside not daring to come up the channel.

There were many automobile accidents and ice covered roads added to the danger of the impenetrable fog.

GERMANY TO BAN MOVIE "ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT

BERLIN, Dec. 10.— (AP) — Snakes were found crawling about among the audience for tonight's performance of "All Quiet on the Western Front" at the Nollendorf Platz picture house.

At the same time it was learned from an authoritative source that the movie, which has been violently protested by fascists, probably will be forbidden throughout Germany tomorrow by the supreme film censorship board.

A panic which began to take form at discovery of the snakes subsided when it was found they were of the harmless garden variety.

One girl was horror-stricken when she discovered a reptile curling round the leg of her chair. A policeman in a nearby seat grabbed it and assured her it wasn't the kind that would bite a human being.

"ANGEL OF FRANCE" TO WED GIRARD VAN B. HALE

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Mrs Kathleen Burke McLean, known along the war-torn fronts of Europe as "The Angel of France," and Girard Van Barkaloo Hale, Santa Barbara, Cal., artist, filed notice today of intention to marry.

It was announced the wedding would be next Tuesday. Mrs. McLean's age was given as 43 and Hale's as 44.

For the British war nurse, it will be the third marriage since her heroic work among the wounded of the World war gained her fame and decorations by many governments.

In 1927 Frederick Peabody, whom she married in 1920, died at Santa Barbara. On March 3, 1929, she married Colonel John McLean, mining engineer. He was killed in a motor car accident nine days later.

R. I. PUPILS WINNERS IN SAFETY ESSAY CONTEST

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10. — (AP) — Frank Young of Cranston, Rhode Island, a pupil of St. Paul's school Edgewood, was announced today as the winner for that state in the annual safety essay contest conducted by the highway education board of Washington.

He will receive $15, a gold medal and his essay will be entered in a national contest.

Second place went to Anastasia Kentroti, a pupil of Samuel Slater junior high school of Pawtucket, who will receive $10 and a silver medal. Louis Hanley, a pupil of St. Paul's school, Edgewood, was awarded third prize of $5 and a bronze medal.

FAVORS CASH PAYMENTS TO WORLD WAR VETERANS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Immediate cash payments to World war veterans of one-fourth the face value of their compensation certificates was urged today by Representative Fish, republican, New York, in a letter to Secretary Mellon.

Fish estimated one-fourth the value of the certificates at $800,000,000. Mellon has opposed payment of the certificates in full as of doubtful benefit to veterans.

"Would not your objections be complied with by the payment, in cash or negotiable government bonds with 3 per cent interest, of one-fourth of the face value of the certificates without deductions for loans already made which would continue to constitute a debt against the remaining amount of the service certificates," Fish wrote.

The New Yorker asked if the treasury would not have a reserve fund of $750,000,000 on January 1, to retire the certificates which he said was an "ample" amount to pay one fourth the face value.

WRIGLEY CO. TO BUY 1,000,000 BUSHELS CANADIAN WHEAT

TORONTO, Dec. 10.—(AP)— William Wrigley, Jr., compayn, limited, has decided all money owing it in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta from Dec. 12, 1930, to May 1, 1931, is to be accumulated to purchase wheat for delivery in May 1931, F. A. Ross, president of the company, stated tonight.

Col. Ross said the purposes were:

The company rather than take cash out of western Canada will leave its money there in western Canada's own coin—wheat.

The company believes wheat at 65c a bushel is cheap and the company will make money by holding it indefinitely if necessary.

The firm believes the plan will relieve to some extent a carrying strain on farmers, pools, western business and banks.

Announcing the formation of the "Wrigley wheat investment fund to buy and hold one million bushels of Canadian wheat," Mr. Ross said the offer was "in no sense a gamble, nor is it an advertising stunt."

BRAKEMAN LOSES LIFE IN REAR-END COLLISION

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—The rear end of a freight train bringing Christmas trees to the city caught fire in a rear-end collision today, burning a brakeman to death and causing slight injuries to two other trainmen.

The train carrying the three men had slowed down near the New York Central West Side yards at Riverside Central west side yards at Riverside Drive and 120th street near Grant's Tomb, when a second train crashed into it, derailing and upsetting the caboose of the first train and the three cars ahead of it.

The dead man, John Woodward of Albany, N. Y., was alone in the caboose when the trains bumped. He fell against the coal stove which fell on its side, setting fire to his clothes and to the caboose.

SEVERAL DISORDERS REPORTED IN RUMANIA

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Dec. 10—(AP)—Several disorders were reported in Rumania today, the anniversary of the establishment of an anti-semitic movement by students.

In the town of Cluj, thirty persons broke into the local synagogue, smashing the furniture and removing the sacred rolls. Six were arrested.

Anti-semitic crowds in Bucharest smashed the windows of numerous Jewish stores.

JURY AWARDS HOTEL CLERK $1,800 IN SUIT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 10.—In rendering his verdict this forenoon in the case of Joseph Kishazy, 70, of Ashford, charged with poisoning cattle owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Varga, also of Ashford, Judge Newell S. Jennings of the Windham county superior court imposed a sentence of 30 days in the county jail at Brooklyn. The case was tried Tuesday, the verdict being held over until today. Kishazy was taken to the jail this afternoon.

The case occupying the attention of the court and jury today was the appeal of Mrs. Jennie L. Farnum of Worcester, Mass., administratrix of the George L. Wheeler estate, on the award of the commissioners to Paul Locrasto, day clerk at the Hotel Hooker, for services rendered. In the case Locrasto was named as plaintiff and the appellant as defendant. Locrasto rendered an account amounting to $1,800 for care rendered the deceased from November 30, 1926 to April 18, 1928, representing 72 weeks at the rate of $25 per week. The commissioners awarded Locrasto $1,700 on his claim and Mrs. Farnum subsequently filed the appeal and as defendant sought to show that Mr. Wheeler was not of sound mind when he entered upon the contract with Locrasto.

After a 35-minute deliberation, the jury returned a verdict at 4:20 o'clock this afternoon awarding Locrasto the full amount of his claim, $1,800. Locrasto was represented by Attorney Samuel B. Harvey and the administratrix of the estate by Attorney Richards of Worcester and Attorney W. A. King.

Witnesses for the plaintiff (Locrasto) were: Paul Locrasto, Dr. Edward J. Ottenheimer who gave testimony for both sides and testified that Mr. Wheeler was "mentally confused"; Mary Kirby, G. Dwight Chaffee, Gertrude L. Crane, John H. Bradford and rebuttal witnesses Mayor Walter R. King, Charles Leonard, Elmer Moffitt, Otto B. Robinson, former judge of probate; William J. Miller and Ernest P. Chesbro. These witnesses said in effect that Mr. Wheeler was sound of mind at the time the contract with Locrasto was made.

Defense witnesses were: George H. Syphers, First Selectman Albert W. French and ex-Mayor George W. Hickey. Oral depositions of the testimony of Myra Comins and Elizabeth F. Dwyer, who were absent, were given by Attorney Richards.

At the conclusion of this case Judge Jennings ordered court adjourned until next Tuesday morning in Putnam. The jury was excused for the term unless jury cases should develop. The jury empaneled for the appeal case comprised Godias Rivard of Putnam, Clarence H. Barlow of Ashford, Howard A. Rix of Canterbury, who acted as foreman; Charles B. Russ of Chaplin, Frank M. Smith of Eastford, Arthur J. Herbert of Plainfield, A. D. Briggs of Pomfret, Byron P. Young of Sterling, William L. Arnold of Thompson, Albert Hammond of Woodstock, Alfred B. Handfield of Windham and Clinton C. Oliver of Hampton.

Welfare Bureau Report

In her quarterly report to the directors of the Welfare bureau, Miss Elizabeth P. Anderson, secretary, states that the bureau received 461 office calls, made 381 telephone calls and 205 outside visits. There were 77 persons to whom relief was given and 15 letters were written. Material relief were given in many of the cases. The bureau is to dispense with the Christmas tree party this year and expend the money in providing toys, candy, oranges and useful gifts to be given in the home so that more individual needs and desires may be met. The report states that a generous response to the financial appeal has been received. The Elks' lodge is supporting five children at the Newington Home for Crippled Childrend and also one child in a foster home. The monthly donation of $10 by the Rotary club has been used entirely for boys' benefits, filling very definite needs. The Ladies' society of the Congregational church sewed for the bureau during the past months and the annual gift of new articles from the Needlework guild was received. The support from the schools, churches and individuals at Thanksgiving time was most gratifying.

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO NEW WINDHAM HOSPITAL PASS $400,000 MARK

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 10 — With only about $84,000 to go to reach the $500,000 fund for the new Windham Community Memorial hospital and to retain thereby the gift of $100,000 conditional upon the attainment of the $400,000 mark the several hundred workers of the city and allied towns in the campaign unanimously voted tonight to continue the drive until next Monday evening. Charles D. Folsom, director of the drive, stated that several large subscriptions from industries and individuals, several of which were coming from out of town, had not been received in time for tonight's report and that there was no question as to the outcome of the postponed final meeting.

Director Folsom tonight made known the donor of the $100,000 subscription, which will be applied to the fund provided that $400,000 is raised in addition to that amount. Tonight's grand total of $415,728 includes this $100,000 gift. The donor is Mrs. Camilla J. Porter of Hartford, who gives it in memory of her grandfather, Asa Jillson, her grandmother, Ann Sabin Jillson, her father, Asa Windham Jillson and her mother, Hannah Cranston Jillson. The subscription was secured by Dr. Fred M. Smith.

A total of $106,382 secured in 964 subscriptions was reported as the amount raised since the large report meeting Monday evening, bringing the grand total of subscriptions to 2,562 and of money, $415,728, leaving $84,272 to be secured by next Monday night. The allied towns which have been making a splendid showing reported tonight the sum of $39,606, secured in 495 subscriptions. The men's teams of Willimantic led the women's teams in the number of subscriptions by 63, but fell short of the monetary total by about $4,000.

A total of 26 memorials were reported tonight, all but two being represented in the reports of the team captains. The memorials: Team No. 1, Louis H. Arnold, captain, $1,500, for a ward bed, by L. H. Arnold, in memory of Ansel Maria P. and Edith Collins Arnold; team No. 3, Harry S. Gaucher, captain, $1,500, ward bed by the Jordan Hardware Co.; team No. 4, James H. Hurley, captain, $1,500, by Dr. Charles A. Jenkins, for ward bed; team No. 6, Harry J. Kaufman, captain, $1,200, by the faculty of the Willimantic State Trade school, portions of the amount being secured by teams 3, 5 and 10; team No. 7, Raymond A. Welsh, captain, $1,800, for nurses rest room by W. P. Jordan, in memory of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Jordan.

Nine memorials were reported by the allied towns, one of them by the townspeople of Scotland being accompanied by an announcement that the present hospital team planned to remain organized to perpetuate the support and maintenance of a bed in the new hospital. The memorials: Coventry committee, Louis A. Kingsbury, captain, $6,000, by and for the town of Coventry; Hampton, Charles E. Burnham, captain, $6,000, by J. L. Goodwin, subscription secured with the assistance of team No. 1, Willimantic; Scotland, Mrs. Franklin P. Lombard, captain, $1,500 by the townspeople; Windham, Dr. Frank E. Guild, captain, Windham Center, Isaac H. Johnson, vice-captain, $3,000, by Dr. Frank E. Guild for room 208; $1,500, for a ward bed by Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Lathrop, in memory of Charlotte Gray Lathrop; South Windham, Rev. Joseph F. Cobb, vice captain, $1,500, for a ward bed by Mrs. Mary Woodworth, in memory of Charles Smith; $1,500 for a ward bed by Charles Woodworth, in memory of Dr. Asa Woodworth; $1,500 for a ward bed, by Mr. and Mrs. George Stiles and Richard J. Holmes, in memory of Holmes memorial; $1,500, for a ward bed, by E. C. Winchester, in memory of Winchester memorial.

The two memorials announced by the memorial committee were James J. Shea post, No. 13, American Legion, $2,400, for a single bed in flexible room in memory of the World war dead of Willimantic; the funeral directors of Willimantic, $3,000 for the hospital morgue, contributed by Avery and VanZandt, Killourey Bros., the Hurteau corporation, Martineau Bacon Co., Eugene E. Hickey, and Lincoln and Potter.

Several special subscriptions were announced including $100 each from the Woodstock League of Women Voters, the Windham League of Women Voters and the Daughters of the American Revolution; $300 from the Ladies' society of the First Congregational church; $600 from the W. C. T. U. and $116 from the students of the Connecticut Agricultural college.

In a review of the drive made by Director Folsom it was indicated that the per capita donation out of a population of about 25,000 persons was fast reaching a figure that would set a new per capita record for hospital drives in New England. Director Folsom said that if and when the full amount is announced Monday night this new record will have been established. He based his figures on many similar drives directed by him in this section of the country.

COLCHESTER

Rebearsals are being held in preparation for the presentation of the Christmas cantata, "The Holy Child," at Colchester Congregational church Sunday, Dec. 28. The cantata chorus will comprise 50 voices, from Congregational churches in Columbia, Hebron, Westchester, Hartford, Gilead, Colchester and Marlborough. George Curtis Munson, director of the Hartford County Choral and Orchestral society, is directing the cantata. Colchester singers taking part are Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Stebbins, their sons, Edwin and Arthur, William E. Adams, Miss Doris Riley, Mrs. Cyrus E. Pendleton, William O. Seyms and Mrs. George B. Boson. Mrs. W. O. Seyms will be at the organ.

Cold a Year Ago

A year ago today (Dec. 11, 1929), the mercury stood at 14 degrees below zero at Shailor's garage on Chamberlin's flats, on the Hartford road. Various borough residents reported 8 below zero.

Gilbert J. Murray, Harold Clark, Harold Brown, Nelson Stern, Arthur L. Stebbins, Jr., Mrs. William O. Seyms and Mrs. George B. Boson were among local people in attendance Tuesday evening at the presentation of the rollicking three-act comedy, "Aunt Lucia," under the auspices of R. O. Fletcher post, American Legion, at the Masonic temple, Norwich.

Colchester town basketball team has been having daily practice in preparation for the game to be played Friday evening in Moodus with the Moodus town team. The local quintet will play the fast Willimantic West Ends in Colchester Saturday evening. The Colchester team has been raising funds for the purchase of new suits. Manager Slavkin has his men in fine shape and some exciting games are expected.

Nominated Officers

At a well-attended meeting of Hattie Jackson temple, Pythian Sisters, in Pythian hall, Tuesday evening, the following officers for the ensuing term were nominated: Installing officer, Miss Sara B. Cutler; past chief, Mrs. Joseph Agranovitch; M. E. C., Miss Sarah Berman; E. S., Mrs. Jack Lazinsk; E. J., Mrs. Samuel Mintz; managers, Miss Ruth Mintz and Miss Nettie Cohen; master of records and correspondence, Miss Sara B. Cutler; master of finance, Mrs. A. T. Van Cleve; protectors, Mrs. Anna Cohen and Mrs. Morris Kamins; outer guard, Miss Ruth Mintz; grand representative, Mrs. Jack Rosen; alternate, Mrs. Joseph Agranovitch; trustee for three years, Mrs. Dora Cutler; press correspondent, Mrs. Jack Lazinsk; pianist, Mrs. A. T. Van Cleve; degree staff master, Miss Sara B. Cutler. Plans were made for the tenth anniversary celebration of the lodge to be held in January.

HEBRON

Miss Ruth Raymond and Miss Marion Tennant led the C. E. meeting Sunday evening.

Miss Stella Johnson, Miss Marion Tennant, Miss Ruth Raymond and Miss Rose Motz were voted upon and will be admitted December 14 as active members, Miss Olga Stanek and Miss Barbara Tennant, as associate members. Miss J. Edna Latham, Mrs. Annie Smith and Mrs. Cummings will meet some night this week and make out the C. E. topics for the year 1931.

Violin Selections

Robert Fletcher of Willimantic played fifteenth and sixteenth century music also Humoresque, Minuet in G and others on his violin Friday night in Hebron town hall. He was accompanied at the piano by his son. Operatic selections were played between the acts of the play, "Light-House Nan." $53 was taken in at the door at this entertainment. The C. E. society will have about $40 toward new seat-covers for the Congregational church.

This play will be repeated in Andover town hall, Andover. A share of the proceeds will also be given for the C. E. society.

Sunday afternoon the Tri-County C. E. union members, under the leadership of George C. Munson, of Hartford, met in the chapel of the Congregational church, Hebron, and rehearsed the Christmas cantata for Dec. 28.

Winthrop S. Porter and family were callers Sunday on Mr. and Mrs. Jules Rebillard and children, of New Britain.

DANIELSON

LEON V. BROWN DIES SUDDENLY AT DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 10—Having worked until after 9 o'clock last night taking stock in the A. and P. store of which he was manager on the West Side, Leon V. Brown went to his home just off Broad street, apparently in good health, but was dead at 2 o'clock this morning. An attack of angina pectoris brought his life an end so suddenly.

Mr. Brown suffered an attack last Sunday that he regarded as caused by indigestion and two other attacks during the early part of this week. Not regarding them as serious he did not seek medical treatment.

The attack of this morning that was to prove fatal assumed such a serious aspect that Dr. Robert F. Souther was summoned. The physician was preparing some medicine for Mr. Brown to take when the latter suddenly passed away.

Mr. Brown was born in Norwich April 20, 1880, a son of Rev. Henry N. and the late Julia E. Daniels Brown. He came to Danielson with his family about 12 years ago as manager of the A. and P. store at the corner of Main and Union streets, and had been in charge of the grocery department there until recently, when he was transferred to the West Side store. He was a member of the Danielson Nazarene church, where his father, now retired, was pastor for several years. Mr. Brown leaves his wife, four children, H. Elizabeth, David S., Eunice V., Virginia C., his father, resident here, a brother, Edgar L., of Danielson, and a sister, Mrs. Robert Clougher, of Providence.

Keech Buys Hyde Farm

Jerome Keech, who has conducted the business of the Quinebaug Lake Ice company here for several years has purchased the J. T. Hyde farm, sawmill, cider mill and grist mill at Bigelow pond in Hampton, and is to locate there in the immediate future, disposing of his business interests here.

The Quinebaug Lake Ice company was established by Mr. Keech's father, the late Herbert C. Keech and long has served this community. After the death of Mr. Keech the business was carried on for a term of years by his sons, Jerome and Stanley, the latter retiring from the business about two years ago when he purchased an ice business of his own at Moosup.

Jerome Keech has had an ice route in Hampton for several seasons past and will continue to serve it.

In these days of lessened activities along their regular lines of work state officers of the Danielson barracks are putting in some of their spare time in doing interior painting at the barracks and making other improvements tending to add to the spic and span appearance of the building.

Believing all that one hears about the matter, it is probably safe to assert that at least a regiment of people in Danielson and surrounding towns will spend some hours next Saturday and Sunday afternoons hovering about radio sets while the broadcasts of the Army-Navy and the Pro Giants-Notre Dame football games come through. It seems that there is an amazing amount of local interest in the outcome of these contests.

A group of officers and non-commissioned officers assigned to that particular duty came here last evening and made a periodical inspection of the Service battery and the equipment of that organization at the state armory.

There is fine optimism and a continued display of good judgment on the part of those who already have signed up for the 1931 Christmas clubs that are being formed by Danielson's banks. These banks paid off on the 1930 memberships the first of the week. Scores of those who received checks are now members of the 1931 clubs.

Those who watch such things noted that today the sun went down at 4.18 p. m., the earliest it will set this fall. On Saturday it will set a minute later, and then the afternoons gradually will grow longer, though the sun will be rising later in the morning for days to come until the shortest day of the year is reached.

Plans are being formulated to have singers of carols go about the borough on the eve of Christmas, maintaining a custom of a number of years past in Danielson, that melody and good cheer may be brought to folks who cannot share in the full joy of the season. More detailed announcement relative to the plans as to the carol singing will be made within a few days.

Assessors of the town of Killingly are continuing with the arduous task of assembling material from tax lists submitted to them by property owners during the months of October for the compilation of the grand list of the town. Several weeks of work is required to complete the task, which likely will be finished toward the end of the month.

During the course of the coming week stores will begin the annual practice of keeping open for several nights in succession to accommodate shoppers who cannot come to the stores during the day, especially shoppers who come here from nearby towns.

All Christmas club checks deposited in our savings department during the month of December will draw interest from the first of December. The Windham County National bank.—Adv.

Miss Katherine D. Aylward was in New London today attending a meeting of chief operators of telephone exchanges in the eastern district of the state.

Augustus Higgins was reported today as confined by illness to his home at the corner of Cottage and Furnace streets.

Hunters are making note of the fact that the present open season for taking rabbits will come to an end next Monday, Dec. 15. The season opened Nov. 1.

In the town court this morning Judge W. Fenner Woodward imposed a fine of $10 and costs for keeping a disorderly house and a fine of $15 for keeping with intent to sell upon George LeTendre, Central Falls man who was arrested when a squad of state officers raided a home near Elmville during the early hours of last Sunday morning.

The lobby of the postoffice has a poster urging persons to mail their Christmas packages early. Other suggestions are that the packages be securely wrapped, plainly addressed and that the name of the sender appear with a return address.

Night by night there is an increasing display of holiday illuminations in the business and residential sections of Danielson, and Christmas greens are beginning to make their appearance in windows and on doors of homes

The school of the Methodist Episcopal church was in charge of the program this evening when the church school council of the Danielson Federation of Churches carried out a program following a supper at the Westfield Congregational church.

KILLING OF LUCIANO BRINGS TO MIND DIAMOND'S ACTIVITIES HERE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 10—The killing of Nicholas (Cheeks) Luciano by gangsters in New York this week in an almost forgotten feud growing out of West End bank messenger murder in 1923, recalls that Morris Diamond, one of those executed for the murder referred to, was in Brooklyn jail for a time prior to getting into the holdup that was to cost him his life in the electric chair.

Diamond first came into the picture in this territory when he and some companions were come upon by a farmer up in Woodstock when they were stealing his apples. Luciano was one of those companions. Diamond flourished a gun that day and then made off, in the direction of Willimantic and was held at Brooklyn jail for a considerable time before his case came to trial in the superior court in Putnam. Diamond's sister made a scene at that time, but her wailing and weeping did not prevent her brother being sentenced to jail.

Luciano turned informer after the West End bank messenger murder, and as a result the state was able to convict Morris Diamond and his brother, Joseph, and also John Farina, another member of the gang mixed up in the holdup. The Diamonds and Farina were later electrocuted. Luciano served a term in Sing Sing for perjury growing out of his often changed testimony in the Diamond trial. Since his release from prison, two years ago, he has been living almost in hiding at the home of his parents in Bayonne, N. J. He knew his life was in danger, and that the deadly avengers of gangland would get him if given the slightest opportunity. A squealer usually pays with his life in gangland.

Despite the protests of his parents, he insisted on going to New York Sunday night. He said he wished to visit with his sister in that city. During the early hours of Monday morning while seated with some companions in a speakeasy sipping wine and waiting for some food to be served two men walked in and drilled him with bullets. An autopsy that followed showed that he had been shot 25 times. Eleven of the bullets remained in the body.

PUTNAM

BOSWORTH DIVORCE SUIT TO BE HEARD AGAIN

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 10—The divorce action of Daisy D. Bosworth of New London, formerly of Pomfret, against her husband, Burton D. Bosworth, of East Woodstock, which has failed on two occasions to bring about desired legal results, has bobbed up again in the superior court of New London county, according to a list of motions contained in a recently published short calendar notice.

The original action was instituted by Mrs. Bosworth in the superior court of Windham county a year ago, when she filed suit for divorce on grounds of infidelity. Mrs. Bosworth in her Windham county complaint sought custody of her child, Robert Bosworth, and petitioned for alimony.

Shortly after papers were served on the defendant, he contested his wife's action and fought a strenuous legal battle in court when the case was tried. Judge Edward M. Yeomans who presided over the hearing at length denied Mrs. Bosworth's petition and subsequently ordered a new trial.

Mrs. Bosworth instituted new proceedings in New London county superior court some months afterward. The case was opened but no settlement was reached and since then it has been pending. According to the short calendar notice, the case is to be heard by Judge Christopher L. Avery and it further specifies "that the defendant (Bosworth) be adjudged in contempt of court."

During a period in which the divorce action was pending under an original order in the New London court, Bosworth became involved in additional legal entanglement when it was alleged that he abducted his minor child from the care of a guardian appointed by Mrs Bosworth while she was residing in the vicinity of New London. These phases were adjusted by the defendant's counsel after several justice court continuances with the result that no action was ever taken against the Woodstock man in connection with his alleged abduction of his son.

PUTNAM MAN DEFENDANT IN $30,000 DAMAGE SUIT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 10—The report first published in this column a few days ago that Dr. George E. Bitgood and Dorothy Parkhurst, both of New London, who are joint defendants in a $5,000 damage suit recently instituted in superior court by Fremont S. Bruce, Putnam trucking service owner, were planning to file huge counter claims against Mr. Bruce, was confirmed last night. It was said that the suit of the New London residents is the result of an accident occurring on Sept. 29, 1930 on the New London-Hartford turnpike near the intersection of the Middletown-Willimantic road, in which Fremont S. Bruce is made defendant in two suits in which $30,000 damages are claimed in the aggregate. Miss Parkhurst sues for $20,000 damages while Bitgood seeks a $10,000 settlement.

In the Parkhurst suit it is alleged that the plaintiff was seriously injured and confined to St. Francis hospital, Hartford, for a long period. Two valuable dogs said to have been in the car at the time, were injured and damages are claimed for bills incurred in treatment of their injuries.

Bitgood also alleges serious hurts and confinement in St. Francis' hospital, and further alleges that he was as the result of the accident, rendered unable to engage in his profession as a veterinary surgeon for a great period of time.

The dual action against the Putnam man is filed with the clerk of courts in New London county.

Slight improvement was reported in the condition of Joseph Long, Leominster, Mass., contractor, who is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital suffering from injuries sustained Friday evening when struck by an automobile driven by Edward Lowry of this city.

Miss Marjorie C. Bradford, assistant clerk of courts was in Willimantic today attending a short calendar session of superior court.

Miss Alice Caron, staff nurse at the Day Kimball hospital is visiting with friends in Providence.

About 25 candidates for berths on the Putnam high school basketball team responded to Coach L. F. Noyes call posted at the school Monday morning. Among the squad were but two lettermen and veterans of the 1930 campaign who were Captain Reynolds Deberadinis and Mimi Caccioputi. Coach Noyes said today that notwithstanding the fact that the prospective netmen are inexperienced, the early demonstrations of agilness and ability are incentive for his expression of belief that the court team this year will be one well worth the support of the local fans.

CONNECTICUT FORESTRY

No one has reason to expect that Connecticut has unlimited possibilities for the production of timber, and yet it is thoroughly understood that it has considerable area which might profitably be devoted to the growing of trees. Under existing conditions such land produces no revenue. It is virtually waste land because no attempt is made to use it. The uses to which it could be put may be few but instead of allowing it to go as abandoned area it might be devoted to raising timber and serve to some degree in meeting the lumber requirements of the state, which are now being heavily supplied from distant points.

Through well-directed efforts much attention has been and is being directed toward this matter. Model plots have been set out to trees, town forests and state forests have been established and interest has been whetted in the direction of raising trees as one of the sidelines for the man on a farm which requires but little effort and attention but pays good dividends in the long run.

It will be a long time before the waste and unused land of the state is thus employed but encouragement to such utilization of land, fit for little else than forestry work, is given by the Connecticut Forest and Park association through just such conferences as it has planned for Friday of this week at Hartford, when foresters of this and other states, as well as others much concerned in forestry, will talk about such things as planting trees, the value of such plantings, and experimental work in connection with the protection from insects and disease.

Forestry is getting increased and deserved attention from states throughout the country and much legislation has been adopted with the idea of encouraging it and for the purpose of establishing and developing state forests. Likewise, the problems of taxation, fire protection and posting of such lands have received the sympathetic attention of legislatures.

Recognition is given to the desirability of such use of waste land and to the opportunity of getting some return from land which now produces nothing. The effort is well directed and Connecticut has a chance to profit thereby.

UNDESIRABLE MAIL

Every postmaster knows what a raft of mail matter accumulates because of the inability to decipher the intentions of the sender. Placing return addresses in the upper left hand corner does much to overcome this but even that precaution is neglected by large numbers.

We are right on the borderline of the usual heavy Christmas mailing It is a time when everyone is busy when there is much to be done and only short days to do it in. Haste makes waste and experience teaches the wisdom of taking sufficient time to do things right. It means the saving of time, expense and loss in the long run. Thus, when appeal is made for the putting of return addresses on all letters and parcels and for the affixing of carefully written and complete mailing addresses, it not only means aid for the postal clerks and greater speed and certainty in the handling but it gives an assurance to the sender that his letter or package will be delivered if delivery is possible.

Ask any postmaster and he will tell you that while many comply with such requests there are plenty who do not. The superintendent of mails in Philadelphia makes the statement that in the two weeks before last Christmas there were 1,500 packages which could not be delivered because of carelessness on the part of the sender. By the 14th of January the number had increased to 5,000 and in that same period there were nearly 10,500 letters which were delayed in handling because they lacked stamps.

Big offices experience no more trouble in proportion to the amount of business handled than do the small offices. Carelessness is a habit that is confined to no particular area. It is a contagious habit and it increases in many instances because those who yield to the practice think they can get away with it.

When letters are delayed, sent to the dead letter office, as 22,685,940 of them were last year, or when packages are found to be undeliverable, as 256,238 were last year, it must offer some enlightenment to users of the mail that carelessness is not only unsatisfactory but expensive. In addition to the warnings of postmasters, it should serve as additional evidence that time to see that letters and packages are properly addressed, in clear handwriting, with a return address affixed and, in case of packages, securely wrapped and tied, is well spent.

FAIRS

Not much effort is being concentrated upon outdoor fairs at this time of the year and yet it 's a season when thought is being given in some instances to the determination of what will be done another fall or whether anything will be done to try to keep alive these attractions.

The statement about keeping them alive may be questioned in some instances, for there are still vigorous fair associations, but it is, nevertheless, a serious problem ahead of some of them.

Last year, while others were falling by the wayside, there was a question whether the New England fair conducted by the Worcester Agricultural society for the past 112 years would be continued. Enough interest was aroused in it and its abandonment was prevented. The fair was held and it is now determined that it met expenses but showed a profit of but $2,400. Now again arises the question as to whether it is advisable to try to continue. A committee will study the situation and a decision will be reached next week. Even Worcester, with its large population and that of surrounding towns to draw upon, is feeling the same lack of interest that has been experienced in other and smaller places.

Fairs have been showing a backward tendency for a number of years There has been an inclination to favor the very large ones or else the smaller ones, such as community fairs, and, before the old-time agricultural exhibitions experience any revival, it is probable that the number will continue to decrease as is threatened in Worcester. The people who developed and were interested in maintaining many of the fairs are gone and the present generation is seeking entertainment in other ways and directions, and even those on the farms who used to get ideas from a fair are having them brought right to their doors these days.

WESTERLY PARKING

Chief of Police Brown of Westerly has served notice that the parking laws will be strictly enforced during the holidays. The purpose is to give the shoppers a chance to park their cars while shopping.

This order means, of course, if it means anything, that in the past the parking regulations have not been enforced. There are regulations but, evidently, little attention is paid to them. If this is like it is in some places it means that a few times during the year the fellow who does just the same as the rest have been doing finds that he is suddenly pounced upon, brought into court and made to pay a fine. This continues for a day or two and then it is all over. Others resume doing just what he was penalized for and nothing is said to them. Possibly the fellow fined and warned and given a court record will try to comply strictly with parking regulations thereafter but he and a few others are the only ones, for they come to realize, as is apparently the situation in Westerly, that parking regulations are not enforced, and immediately brand them as not meaning anything.

But Westerly is going to have enforcement during the holidays. Does that mean that after the holidays there is going to be more winking at the regulations and those who want to park do not need to pay any attention to the rules or the signs relating thereto? Somehow, that seems to be the inference from the Westerly chief's orders, and yet it might not be wise to act under any such inference.

One trouble with the parking situation in Westerly seems to be that the merchants are inclined to drive their machines into the much-used streets, park them there all day and thus deny those from whom they expect trade a chance to park and shop. It is an improper use of parking area. It is a condition which is by no means confined to Westerly and it represents a situation which ought to be recognized by the merchants themselves without making it necessary for the police to warn them to do something for their own advantage. On the other hand, it becomes evident that if parking regulations meant what they say, and if they were enforced, there would be no such situation as the Westerly chief complains about. But getting enforcement is much different than ordering it.

NO AID FROM DRYS

When the statement was made a few days ago by Dr. Clarence True Wilson that he would welcome a national referendum on the dry question, it was thought that he represented the sentiment of the drys and that the efforts of those who believe in prohibition would be allied with those who do not believe in it for a much-desired expression of the people of the country upon that much-discussed question. Ever since prohibition has prevailed there has been the claim that even though it was constitutionally obtained it did not represent the wish of a majority of the people and that the people had never been given a chance to declare themselves upon it.

There are not many instances where the people have a chance to declare themselves upon any such big question directly. Provisions under our government are for taking care of them otherwise through representation. But that doesn't eliminate the oft-expressed desire to know how the majority of the people of the country feel in regard to prohibition, the conditions which exist under it, their views as to whether they believe it can ever be any better enforced and in view of the experiences, what should be done to meet the situation and improve it.

Even a referendum might be made so complicated that it would fail to hit the mark, but the National Temperance council has voiced its opposition to a country-wide referendum on prohibition. That means that the drys are opposed to it in spite of Dr Wilson's expressed sentiment. It means that they will give no aid to it and will endeavor to prevent it. This may not necessarily mean that they believe they would lose, but rather that they are content to let matters rest as they are. Thus further efforts for a referendum, with plenty of difficulties in the way, rest with the wets.

LATE REV. E. A. WALDO WAS MEMBER OF FAMILY LONG PROMINENT HEREABOUT

The Bulletin's Danielson correspondent yesterday reported the death at South Pasadena, Calif., of the Rev. Edwin A. Waldo, for many years a Danielson resident. In connection with this news, old-timers are recalling the subjoined item which appeared in The Bulletin of Friday, July 23, 1897:

Edwin A. Waldo Missing.

Traces of Edwin A. Waldo, formerly of Danielson, who disappeared from Lake Geneva, Wisc., on Tuesday, have been found in Clinton and Beloit, Wisc., two places about two or three miles distant from where he was last seen. He was positively identified in the latter place where he was inquiring the way to Savanna, Ill., 40 miles from Lake Geneva. Detectives have been employed to prosecute the search, and no expense will be spared to find the missing man.

Mr. Waldo was first assistant to James B. Reynolds of the university settlement at 26 Delancey street, New York. Mr Reynolds is quoted as saying that Waldo was one of the most wonderfully intellectual men he had ever met. He was such a proficient musician that, after hearing a tune whistled or hummed once, he could sit down and write the notes on paper and then play it on a piano with wonderful perfection.

Waldo was also an artist, both in oils and pencil sketches and an all-round genius. In addition to his regular work at the settlement he found time to act as an organizer of good government clubs and as a promoter of the movement of the Citizens' union.

Waldo is described as being of medium build, with flashing black eyes, smooth face and black hair. He wore gold rimmed spectacles. His brother lives in Nutley, N. J.

Waldo's first disappearance was something over 10 years ago, when he was studying at Andover seminary. He went south with a friend, and coming north alone he went to Lake George instead of returning to his home. He had no recollection of how he got to Lake George and remembered nothing beyond being on the cars in a southern state. He was not missed at that time, and came to his senses without any medical assistance.

He is a brother of George B. Waldo, who painted a picture of Modjeska, which hung at the Players club in New York.

Danielson Man is Noted Artist.

The painting of Modjeska by George Waldo, who died at Danielson years ago, is thus noticed in The Bulletin of Monday, April 12, 1897:

George Burdette Waldo's portrait of Mme. Helena Modjeska, the actress, is now on exhibition at the galleries of Mr. Frederick A. Chapman, 391 Fifth avenue, New York. He has been negotiating with parties in New York who are anxious to have it added to the collection of the Shakespeare museum, at Stratford, England.

Mr. Waldo is a native of Danielson. After studying art in this country he went abroad and studied for several years to perfect himself in portraiture.

The Waldo family has long been prominent in the annals of eastern Connecticut. Thus The Bulletin of Aug. 4, 1864, chronicles the death and career of the Rev Daniel Waldo, a native of Windham, who lived to be 102 and served as chaplain of congress:

Centenarian: Chaplain of Congress.

Rev. Daniel Waldo was born in Windham, Sept. 10th, 1762. In 1778, at the age of 16, he was drafted to serve as a soldier in the war of the Revolution, was subsequently arrested and captured by the tories at Horseneck and taken to New York, where he was confined in the sugarhouse for two months and then exchanged.

At the age of 20 he began to prepare for college, was graduated at Yale in 1788, studied theology under Dr. Hart of Preston and was ordained pastor of the Congregational church in West Suffolk on the 24th of May, 1792. From this time until 1809 he divided his labors between the people of his charge and the states of New York and Pennsylvania, in which he acted as a missionary.

He resigned his pastoral charge in 1809, preached at Cambridgeport, Mass., in 1810-11, after which he served as a missionary in Rhode Island till 1820. He then preached a while at Harvard, Mass., was subsequently settled 12 years at Exeter and has since resided in the state of New York, principally at Onondaga, without any stated charge.

He served two years as chaplain of congress after he was 96 years old, having been elected to that position in 1856, on the nomination of Gen. Amos P. Granger. He retained his fine bodily and mental powers in almost their full vigor to the last.

An affection of the throat, with which he had been for some days afflicted, resulted in his death, at Syracuse, N. Y., on Saturday, the 30th ultimo, at the age of 102. During the past year he has preached repeatedly, sometimes twice on one Sabbath, and apparently with as much acceptance as in the days of his prime. Thus another of the few citizens who witnessed the birth, and have watched the growth of the republic has passed away. But 11 pensioners of the Revolution are now left.

Won Fame as Pedestrian.

The Bulletin of Wednesday, Oct. 21, 1874, tells of a Norwich Waldo who achieved fame as a pedestrian:

Norwich seems destined to have her name associated with great things in the line of pedestrians. The latest indication of this is found in the attempt of a former Norwich man to walk across the continent. It seems that E. B. Waldo, now of Syracuse, N. Y., but said to be of old Norwich ancestry, started from Plymouth Rock at sunrise last Thursday, intending to continue his journey to the shores of the Pacific at San Francisco. He is 74 years old and is the son of the Rev. Daniel Waldo, who was twice elected chaplain of the house of representatives and died a few years ago at the age of 102.

Mr. Waldo's attempt is a bold one, being in fact for a man of his years rather more of an undertaking than the velocipede ride last year from London to John o'Groat's house on the northern point of Scotland. May he live long enough to accomplish his heart's desire.

Scotland Man Was Cotton Broker.

Another Waldo, this one a native Waldo (now Scotland) station won prominence as a cotton broker. From The Bulletin of Friday, April 15, 1898:

Roger W. Waldo, who died in Brooklyn, N. Y., recently, was a son of Zacheus Waldo 3d of Scotland, Conn., and was born at the old house at Scotland (formerly Waldo) station in the town of Scotland, and lived there until his marriage to Charlotte B. Gager of Morrisania, N. Y. For the last 33 years Mr. Waldo was a member of the New York cotton exchange and for 31 years past resided at 1,103 Bergen street, Brooklyn.

He left surviving him his widow, Charlotte B. Waldo, and his children, D. Ralph Waldo of New York city, Roger Howard Waldo of Fort Worth, Tex., Robert B. Waldo of Plainfield, N. J., and Anne W. Waldo, who resided with her father and mother in Brooklyn, but at the time of her father's death was in Florida, where she had spent the winter endeavoring to recover her health.

A Waldo's Golden Wedding.

From The Bulletin of Thursday, Nov. 4, 1926:

Mr. and Mrs. Francis G. Waldo celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home in Hebron Tuesday afternoon, by an informal reception to their friends and neighbors. An original poem was read by their cousin, Alonzo Latham of Columbia. A solo by Ruth Raymond, recitation by Mrs. Della Porter, and an instrumental duet by Mrs. Lucius Robinson and Mrs. Howard Champe, completed the entertainment program.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—Look him up in the army books and you find that Patrick J. Hurley, war secretary, rendered staff services in Luxemburg after the war that disclosed his "sound judgment, marked zeal and keen perception."

He got a medal for that. And if the war had lasted just a few hours longer he might have received a valor decoration.

Despite his job as army lawyer and inspector, Hurley saw a bit of front line war. He hunted it, determined not to go home without a close-up view.

It was November 11, the first Armistice day. About three hours or less before hostilities ended Hurley found himself riding through a German barrage and was well cussed out for doing it.

Up to Hurley

The Bystander heard the story from an ex-colonel of artillery in whose care Hurley had been placed when he came sight-seeing up from the rear.

The presence of the staff "brass-hat" added greatly to the many worries of the gunner officer. But when he found himself without messengers and the hovering of a German plane over an exposed battery foretelling a barrage he accepted Hurley's offer to ride to the guns and order the men to cover.

The gunner-colonel knew he ought not to let Hurley do such a job. What might happen to his men forced his hand, however, and he let Hurley go.

But first he directed the lawyer-colonel to flop off his horse and hunt a shell hole if the barrage fell before he reached the guns.

That is just what happened. Down came the German fire between Hurley and the battery.

"I looked and saw him hesitating as that mess rolled along in front of him," said the gunner-colonel. "Then he rode right into it, and I began cussing: I saw myself trying to account for a dead 'brass hat' back at headquarters."

He Gets Through

Hurley got through somehow, and the German fire missed the battery. So presently the gunner-colonel repeated his cussing to Hurley himself.

"How did he take it?" the gunner was asked.

"Well, I rate him now as among my few best friends," he grinned.

And the gunner got to liking Hurley right then and recommended him for a valor citation for the very performance he had previously cussed out. C'est le guerre.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Response to Whitie

Mr. Editor: Replying in part to Whitie, it might be in order to suggest a course in economics, to such an inquiring mind, which course can be secured from the home study department of Columbia university, New York city, or from the Institute of Credits, New York city. Statistical information can be secured from the department of commerce reports, Washington. From the course in economics he would learn the reason for the importation and exportation of gold, as the means of paying trade balances. We are operating on the gold standard, hence all payments with foreign trade must be made in this specie; it being necessary to stipulate in all trade agreements, "payable in gold." Gold is stabilized at $20.67 per troy ounce. There is no stabilized value to silver. We all recall William Jennings Bryan's aspirations to stabilize that on the basis of 16 ounces of silver to one ounce of gold, or a value of about $1.33 per ounce. Present value is but about 33 cents; it is suffering a decline with all other commodities, hence countries operating on the silver standard are subject to the rise and fall of the mineral, purchases made on a 90 cent market, would cost double if bullion value declined to 30 cents, as is about the case. Very naturally in those countries which have changed to the gold standard, politically speaking, there will be found a remnant of the "Old Guard" still contending for the silver standard and using the unfavorable conditions to support their contention. Eliminate politics from national and universal issues and the pot will soon simmer down to common sense, free from strife and the ever-apparent fear.

Whitie's desire to get the people to think, is rather presumptuous and due to possible lack of contact. Never in our history were the common people thinking so much of both national events as well as world-wide conditions, for they who read may learn, and the press is the one agent from which so much to think about can be obtained. The younger generation, particularly, due to the more liberal education measures, are learning to think and in broader terms than the generation preceding. The apparent lack of interest in local issues, I feel is chargeable to the paid politicians, who fail to recognize the human qualities of their constituents. They should learn from the churches and societies that no gathering taxing the patience, required to listen to some dry financial reports (not the dry and wet contention), can be successful in numbers, without a supper or vaudeville show.

Stories That Recall Others

STORIES THAT RECALL—

Antique

Billy was paying an afternoon call on his next door neighbor, and he was arrayed in all his glory in honor of the occasion, including his first suit with wool pants, and a small gold ring.

"See my ring?" was his introductory query. "My daddy had this ring when he was a little boy. My daddy's had it a hundred years!"

Wrong End of the Knife

May, growing impatient for someone to peel an apple for her—one of her favorites—decided to take the matter into her own hands. Suddenly she began calling for her grandmother and her grandfather.

"I've done it this time," she screamed. Both grandparents ran to the kitchen to find blood dripping on her dress. Grandmother said sternly: "Now what has happened?"

May answered: "I took hold of the wrong end of the knife and cut my finger."

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Jerry Muskrat Explains

No matter how you may explain
Some things you never can make plain.
—Jerry Muskrat.

"I don't see what there is to chuckle about," declared Stumpy, the crippled young muskrat, in an aggrieved tone of voice.

"It stuck me as funny, that was all," replied Jerry Muskrat.

"What struck you as funny?" demanded Stumpy.

"That you should think that the Smiling pool has a roof," replied Jerry.

"Well, it has. Come out and see for yourself. I guess when I bump my nose I'm likely to know it," asserted Stumpy. "Besides you admit that there is one, for you said that Jack Frost made it."

"That is true," replied Jerry, and stopped chuckling. "It is a sort of roof after all. I never happened to think of it that way. It really is a roof for the Smiling pool."

"What is it made of?" demanded Stumpy.

"Of the Smiling pool itself," replied Jerry, his eyes beginning to twinkle.

Stumpy looked at him suspiciously. "What do you mean?" he demanded.

"What makes the Smiling pool?" asked Jerry in his turn.

"Water," reported Stumpy promptly. "Every one knows that."

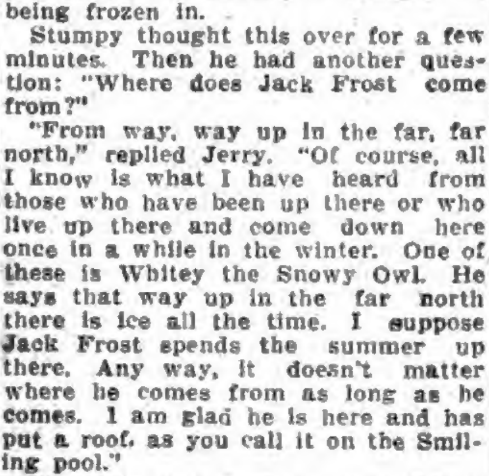
"Well," explained Jerry, "that roof, as you call it, is made of water, too."

"It can't be," retorted Stumpy very promptly. "Water isn't hard and that roof is the hardest thing I ever bumped against."

"It is made of water just the same," declared Jerry. "It is called ice, but ice is nothing but water made hard by cold and Jack Frost is the one who has done this thing. I thought last night that he would be busy while we were sleeping, so I am not surprised at the news."

"How does Jack Frost do it?" Stumpy asked, for he wasn't yet quite sure that Jerry wasn't teasing him.

"That I don't know," replied Jerry frankly. "He does a little at a time. He begins along the shore. First, there is the thinnest kind of a covering on the surface of the water. It is clear like water, because, you see, it is water. Jack Frost carries it out and out until finally the whole of the Smiling pool is covered. Then he begins to make that covering, which is called ice, thicker. All the time he is at work it grows thicker and thicker until sometimes most of the water in the Smiling pool has been turned to ice. That is why the entrance tunnel to this house is in the mud at the bottom of the Smiling pool. As you know, the entrance to this tunnel is in the deepest part of the Smiling pool. The water is so deep there that Jack Frost never does make ice of all of it and so we are never in danger of being frozen in.



"I don't see what there is to chuckle about," declared Stumpy

Stumpy thought this over for a few minutes. Then he had another question: "Where does Jack Frost come from?"

"From way, way up in the far, far north," replied Jerry. "Of course, all I know is what I have heard from those who have been up there or who live up there and come down here once in a while in the winter. One of these is Whitey the Snowy Owl. He says that way up in the far north there is ice all the time. I suppose Jack Frost spends the summer up there. Any way, it doesn't matter where he comes from as long as he comes. I am glad he is here and has put a roof, as you call it on the Smiling pool."

Stumpy's eyes opened very wide. "I don't see anything to be glad about," said he. "I seems to me something to be sorry about. How are we to go swimming when we can't even put our noses above water to get a breath of fresh air?"

"We can always swim under the ice and part of the Laughing brook is always open. You see, where water is moving fast Jack Frost cannot very well make ice of it. It is because the water of the Smiling pool is still that he can put that roof of ice on it," explained Jerry.

YOUR HEALTH

Security And Mental Health

By Horatio M. Pollock, M. D., State Department of Mental Hygiene, Albany.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Mental health is characterized by sense of well-being, keenness of observation, clearness of thought, soundness of judgment, accuracy of memory, control of emotions, stability of will, continuity of purpose, friendliness of attitude and freedom of expression. The mentally-healthy individual meets the varying situations of life with confidence and courage and, using his reason as his guide, determines the line of action to be pursued. He may be misinformed; he may make mistakes; he may suffer misfortune; but his equanimity will not be seriously disturbed. He accepts full responsibility for his conduct and acknowledges error freely. He rises above adverse circumstances and gains wisdom from his failures as well as from his successes.

Underlying the reactions of the healthy-minded person is a philosophy of life, or a general attitude of mind that gives assurance that the world as a whole is well-ordered; that people in general are striving to be considerate, just and honest; that regardless of the evils and imperfections of human society, truth and right will ultimately prevail.

With such a view of life, however, he will recognize that it is incumbent on him to do his part, that his continued well-being is largely dependent upon his own acts, and he will use every means within his power to safeguard his position. He will promote and maintain his physical health by observing hygienic laws. He will manage his business affairs with prudence and without assuming excessive obligations; he will live within his means and will make provision for emergencies and for unproductive periods. He will not become involved in social or legal entanglements; he will avoid unfriendly disputes and useless controversies. Above all, by promptly meeting every obligation, by lending a hand to others in need, by generous service in the promotion of social welfare, and by the development of mind and character he will establish himself securely in the esteem of his fellowmen. Thus fortified, he will in large measure be freed from the fears that have troubled man throughout the ages; namely, the fear of disease, the fear of poverty, the fear of conflict and the fear of social disapproval.

Instead of being haunted by impending disaster, instead of being troubled by petty annoyances, instead of being worried by trifling difficulties, he will fulfill the duties and responsibilities of life with calmness and composure, feeling certain that the present as it moves on into the future carries with it adequate guarantees of continued security.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Bryant Electric Company, Bridgeport.

The incandescent lamp was perfected by Edison in 1879. The first generating plant to provide electric current commercially was put in operation, in New York, in 1882. It was not, however, until the late 80's that this new industry began to come into its own, and its development has since been so rapid that, today, with over $30,000,000,000.00 invested, the electrical industry is second only to the railroads, with a capital investment of about $25,000,000,000.00.

The Bryant Electric company was one of the pioneers in this great industry. Founded in 1888, by the late Waldo C. Bryant, in 1890, it employed eight people and made eight wiring devices, consisting of lamp sockets, rosettes and switches, some of the latter which are still in satisfactory operation.

In 1890, moving from small quarters in a building on John street, Bridgeport to a former school building, purchased from P. T. Barnum, at the corner of State and Organ streets, the growth of the company has been such that its buildings, at the same location, now occupy practically the entire block and portions of two adjoining blocks, aggregating more than five acres, with a total floor area in excess of twelve acres. Employment is normally afforded to about 1700 skilled workers.

Producing more than 2,000 items, the plant today is the largest in the world devoted exclusively to the manufacture of wiring devices, and its products are favorably known and used wherever electric current for lighting is available.

The company has been granted more than 500 patents, notable among which was that on "New Wrinkle" sockets, which provided such flexibility in combining parts that from a stock of 57 items, 680 different complete socket devices, each with a particular application, can be assembled.

The processes involved in the manufacture of wiring devices are many. For instance, a purchaser or user of a pull socket, retailing at from 25 to 30 cents, would find it difficult to realize that this device is made up of 49 individual parts involving 212 actual factory operations.

In 1928, the company purchased the plant, patents, trade marks and processes of the Hemco Electric Manufacturing company, manufacturers of molded sockets, flush plates and other devices. This separate plant, also in Bridgeport, has a floor area of several acres and is still used for manufacturing the well known "Hemco" line, and is also engaged in molding Bakelite parts for many Bryant devices.

The officers of the company are: Walter Cary, president; E. M. Herr vice president; R. M. Eames, general manager; A. E. Frost, treasurer and assistant secretary; Warren H. Jones secretary; O. C. Topning, auditor; H E. Seim, assistant auditor.

The rapid and continued growth and development of the Bryant Electric company has added much to the prosperity and development of Bridgeport and the state of Connecticut.

PLANES USE PHONES AS AID TO FLYING

NEW YORK—(AP)—The entire fleet of planes on the air line carrying mail and passengers between New York and Boston has been equipped with two-way radio telephone communication.

Telephones are operated by remote control, the sets being located in the tails of the planes. The entire cockpit equipment consists of a tuning dial, earphones and a microphone.

Through the two-way system, ships may be checked in flight at any time and pilots may be notified of weather conditions.

MOBILE LIGHTS TO GUIDE PILOTS ON EMPIRE ROUTES

LONDON—(AP)—Mobile floodlights are Great Britain's answer to the problem of illuminating the "air paths of the empire."

Landing fields along air routes to India and Africa are to be equipped with modern lights for guiding aviators to airports and illuminating field surfaces.

Lights ordered by the air ministry will serve all purposes, being tilted upwards to serve as beacons or moved across a field and directed downward into the wind to give at the same time a landing beam and wind indicator.

Florida's Honey Crop Large

GAINESVILLE, Fla.—(AP)—Florida produces approximately five million pounds of honey annually. More than 5,000 beekeepers own about 100,000 colonies of bees and the average production is about 50 pounds a colony, according to A. E. Foster, state apiary inspector.

In 1735, the Swedish naturalist, Linnaeus, recognized that the red man, or American Indian, was a human species separate from the yellow, white and black races.

RIOTING BETWEEN STUDENTS AND POLICE IN CUBA SPREADS

HAVANA, Dec. 10— (AP) —Fresh rioting between students and police broke out in several parts of Cuba late today, resulting in the death of one youth and the wounding of an undetermined number.

The Spanish language newspaper El Pais received reports that Felix Berez, 18, of Sagua La Grande in Santa Clara province, had been killed and six others injured in a clash at that town.

The fighting developed as the police were taking 14 young men, arrested last night, to a railroad station for transportation to Havana.

El Pais also reported several students wounded in a clash between youths enrolled at the Camaguey Normal school and the rural guard, a branch of the army.

Another battle occurred at the railroad terminal here tonight while police were unloading several students, arrested during the past few days in the interior, to police patrols for transfer to Havana jails.

Some apprehension was felt here tonight that Havana would see further disturbances and reserves of police were ordered stationed at precinct stations.

GIRL CONFESSES KILLING OF JEWELRY AUCTIONEER

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Detectives announced tonight Jean Dayle had confessed she killed Sam Frank, 65-year-old jewelry auctioneer of Memphis, Tenn., in his hotel room here last Saturday morning.

The girl's confession, the police said, followed a four-hour grilling. She declared she alone was responsible for the slaying and robbery of the auctioneer.

"There was nobody with me—it's the truth, there wasn't," Miss Dayle, 21, was quoted by the officers. "I killed him. I didn't think I could hit him that hard. I didn't know he was dead. There was nobody with me."

WOODCOCK GIVES VIEWS ON DRY EUFORCEMENT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—(AP)—A picture of prohibition successfully enforced was unfolded today by Prohibition Director Woodcock before the representatives of a majority of the nation's dry organization, meeting in executive session.

HOW ECZEMA IS CONQUERED

You can banish every trace of annoying Eczema and banish it in an astonishingly short time—this time next week your skin will be nearly healed and well on the road to enchanting loveliness and beauty—but you must use Peterson's Ointment.

Peterson's possesses such remarkable healing and soothing qualities that minor pimples and blackheads go like magic—that obstinate cases of burning Eczema ae gone after a few days' treatment. First application takes out itching and burning.

Virgie Hawkins of Wallace, Va., writes: "I had a very bad case of Eczema. The eruptions on one of my arms were so bad I couldn't use it. I had the trouble for over a year. I got a box of Peterson's Ointment and in 2 weeks my Eczema had disappeared."

Eczema and itching skin can't withstand the powerfully healing influence of Peterson's Ointment and one 35c box will prove it. All drugstores.

THREE CROPS INCREASE ON TOLLAND COUNTY FARMS

In 1930 census statistics for Tolland county on several selected crops, which are compared for the years 1924 and 1929, there was an increase in acreage and production in corn cut for silage, white potatoes and tobacco.

In silage corn there were 1,960 acres planted in 1929, which was practically 200 acres more than in 1924, and the crop was 21,251 tons as compared with 19,291 tons. White potatoes made a crop of 196,061 bushels in 1929 when 1,276 acres were planted, but in 1924 the crop was 116,154 bushels from 977 acres. Tobacco showed something of a gain too, as there was a crop of 2,458,541 pounds in 1929 as compared with 2,437,180 pounds in 1924, and the acreage planted was 1,676 and 1,671 in the two years.

Oats threshed for grain dropped from a crop of 2,205 bushels to 1,634 bushels on very little change in acreage. Hay was a declining crop, falling from 28,493 tons to 25,100 tons, with an 8,000 acreage decrease. The acreage in 1929 was 20,225 acres for this crop. Corn harvested for grain dropped in acreage from 1,328 to 980, and the crop from 62,551 to 40,984 bushels.

PROMINENT BOY SCOUT HEADS TO DISCUSS PLANS FOR YEAR

Leading scout men of the Eastern Connecticut council, including representatives from this city, Stafford Springs, Willimantic, Putnam and Danielson, are to meet at a dinner at 6:30 this (Thursday) evening at Nathan Hale hotel, Willimantic, to discuss with Deputy Regional Chief George Felker of Boston the best plan of carrying on the work of scouting in this eastern part of Connecticut for the coming year. A year has elapsed since the eastern part of the state, by action of the national council, was made into one large area council with district committees in Stafford Springs, Willimantic, Putnam and Danielson, carrying on the work of supervision of scouting in their respective communities. Since the adoption of the area council program many contacts have been made between the scouters of the communities which were never made before. Though the growth has been gradual, from a long range perspective it is evident that more big men in eastern Connecticut are interested in the Boy Scout program and its possibilities to afford a boys' program for institutions than were ever before so interested.

Many problems have come to the fore, such as the establishment of district courts of honor, the establishment of merit badge counselors for the scouts to become encouraged to explore the whole merit badge field of vocational subjects, etc. As a result of the area expansion, scoutmasters are less self-satisfied with their efforts. They have become more interested in finding out better methods in handling boys' problems and meeting boys' needs.

From Norwich will go H. D. Larrabee, president of the Eastern Connecticut council; State's Attorney Arthur Brown, J. L. Sellman, and other members of the executive board. A delegation of five men have made reservations from Putnam and include Rev. Joseph Casey of St. Mary's Roman Catholic church and Walter King, editor of the Windham County Observer. Many representative men will be present from Willimantic and W. O. Ladish, acting chairman of the Stafford Springs group, expects several to attend from that city. Danielson will also be represented.

In a talk given Monday before the Ministers' Union of Willimantic, Scout Executive John Sellman left the question, "What can we intelligently expect will be the future of our social agencies and in particular of Boy Scouting in this country and in this state?" As a result of the meeting this evening it is expected that this question will be partly answered and that some definite plan of action will be adopted for the good of the whole eastern part of the state through scouting.

GIRL DEBATERS TO MEET SCOTCH TEAM

The members of the debating club at Connecticut college at New London are to debate this (Thursday) evening at college with the Scottish team, representing the Student's Representative councils of Scotland, on the subject, Resolved: That this meeting affirms its belief in the principles and practices of democracy. This is the same subject which the Scottish team debated with the Yale team last week. It will be a split debate; one Connecticut college student and one Scottish speaker composing a team. Miss Marjory C. Smith, '31, of White Plains, N. Y., will debate with Norman A. B. Wilson of St. Andrews' university and Miss Achsah Roberts, '31, of Meriden, chairman of the debating club, will debate with John MacCormack of Glasgow university.

Th edebate, which is open to the public will be presided over by Miss Caroline Bradley, '31 of Cleveland, Ohio, president of the student government. President Katharine Blunt will welcome the visitors.

When the Scottish team recently debated with Bates college on the subject of thrift, the debate was broadcast over a national hook-up. Brown university, Boston university and Smith college have figured on the program of the Scottish team. This is the first split debate at Connecticut college and much interest is aroused over the coming event.

BOGUS TRAVELERS' CHECKS APPEARING IN CITY

A bogus travelers' check of the denomination of $10 appeared at one of the Norwich banks Wednesday, having been cashed outside the city and brought into the bank. The signature on it was in the name of a woman and it is reported that similar bogus checks for $10 and $20 have been passed in New London and Groton.

A bank official said Wednesday that the bogus paper may be detected by looking in the lower left hand corner where a pointed line states that the check is issued by the New York Bank and Trust company. There is no such company in New York, although there is a bank of a name somewhat similar.

MANY WANT PLACES ON BARBER COMMISSION

So far as rush of candidates is concerned, the most popular state commission seems to be the board of examiners of barbers. The terms of the three incumbents will expire July 1, 1931. Reports are that from every section of the state have come applications for the commission. State senators, representatives from the various towns, leaders in politics in the various cities of the state, have all been asked to "use their influence" with Governor-elect Cross to obtain the place for some particular aspirant. It is said one senator-elect from Hartford has already received calls from 12 applicants. The job pays $5 a day for actual service.

FINDS NO CRIMINAL BLAME AGAINST FELICETTI

Coroner Edward G. McKay, in a finding announced Friday, has exonerated Dominic Felicetti, 22, of Westerly, from criminal blame in causing the death of John Pessy, 36, of Trading Cove. Pessy was struck and fatally injured at Trading Cove hill, Nov. 15th, by a machine driven by Felicetti. The coroner says in part in his finding:

That John Pessy died in the town of Norwich, Conn., on the 15th day of November, 1930, from a fractured base of the skull, which injury was received at about 10 p. m. November 15th on the Norwich-New London highway in the town of Montville when he was struck and knocked to the ground by a Buick sedan owned by Frank Felicetti and operated by Dominic Felicetti of Westerly, R. I.

This accident occurred on the Norwich-New London highway about half way up the hill, known as Trading Cove hill. The highway at this point runs up a long grade generally in a northerly and southerly direction with the grade running up towards the south. The traveled portion of the highway is 20 feet wide and surfaced with concrete. On the west side of the road there is a macadam shoulder of over 6 feet and west of this the tracks of the Connecticut company for its trolley cars run parallel to the road. A lane-way or driveway intersects the highway from the east. There is a pole standing off the westerly edge of the highway which has a small electric light on it. At the time of the accident it was raining and the highway surface was wet.

The deceased, John Pessy had been in Norwich during the evening of November 15th with Michael Pizzo. He started for his home in Trading Cove at 9:45 and boarded a trolley car which goes from Norwich to New London. This trolley car arrived at Trading Cove hill shortly after 10 o'clock p. m. There is a stop for the trolley cars at the foot of the hill. However, the deceased did not get off at this place but was taken to a point opposite the above mentioned lane-way. The car stopped at that point and Mr. Pizzo and Mr. Pessy left the car. They were standing on the westerly side of the highway and the trolley car moved on. While they were standing there Mr. Pizzo opened his umbrella. At about the time the umbrella was opened they were struck by the Felicetti automobile.

After the automobile came to a stop Mr. Pizzo was found near the right front wheel and partly under the body of the car. Mr. Pessy was lying on the highway to the left of the car and about 26 feet in back of the left front wheel. Mr. Pizzo was rendered unconscious and was assisted to his feet. He regained consciousness and was taken to the hospital. Mr. Pessy was rendered unconscious and remained unconscious until he arrived at the hospital. When he arrived there it was found that he was dead.

Dominic Felicetti left Westerly on the night of the accident between 9 and 9:15. He was accompanied by two young men, and this party of three were on the way to a dance in Montville.

They came to Norwich from Westerly and continued on through toward Montville. As they came on to the Trading Cove hill the driver noticed a trolley car about half way up the hill. It was raining somewhat at the time and his windshield wiper was operating. As he approached the scene of the accident an automobile approached from the south with its headlights lighted. Just before this latter car passed the Felicetti car, Dominic Felicetti saw a form in front of his car and immediately felt a bump. The approaching car passed immediately after the contact. The north bound car continued on about 100 feet slowing down and stopped. It immediately started again and passed on.

The Felicetti car was stopped after going about 20 feet. When it stopped it was on the Westerly half of the highway with the right front wheel about 3 feet 4 inches from the westerly edge thereof.

Examination made of the vicinity shortly after the accident disclosed that there was glass on the highway on the easterly half thereof and also the westerly half. The Felicetti car was damaged at the front and consisted of a broken right headlight, a twisted left headlight and a bent radiator. The headlights both, were turned towards the left. The right top of the radiator was pushed back so that the right part of the radiator pressed against the fan. The right mudguard was dented on the top and the left mudguard was dented on the back part thereof near the running board. The left headlight was still burning but the bulb on the right headlight was broken. In reviewing the testimony and evidence it appears that Pizzo was struck by the right front of the car. When the car stopped he found in this place. In considering the extent of injuries to Mr. Pessy and the position in which he was found, a strong inference might be drawn that the northbound car contributed to the accident. The Felicetti car was not going at a very rapid rate of speed. Ther is no evidence that would indicate that it was going more than a moderate rate of speed. It stopped pretty quickly after the accident. There was little damage to the left side of the car, other than a bent headlight. At the time of the contact the northbound car had not then passed the Felicetti car. This was established by the weight of the testimony. Considering this fact that the fact that Mr. Pessy, was lying on the easterly half of the highway with a serious head injury it might reasonably be the fact that the Felicetti car may have brushed him and thrown him into the path of the northbound car.

There is no basis to find criminal negligence in this case. The weather conditions at the time were very poor and visibility was poor. The accident did not occur at a place where pedestrians were expected to be crossing the highway. At that time the trolley car had proceeded on its way about 100 feet and traffic was moving as ordinary on a main highway. The driver of the Felicetti car had little opportunity to see the deceased who apparently was either standing on the highway or passing immediately in front of the car. He was not driving at an excessive rate of speed under the circumstances but was going more or less moderately.

I am satisfied and find that the death of John Pessy was not caused by the criminal act, omission or carelessness of any other person or persons.

LINCOLN PICTURE FOR ELKS' MIDNIGHT SHOW

That great Griffiths picture, Abraham Lincoln, is to be the production at the Palace theatre for the midnight showing Friday night under the auspices of Norwich lodge of Elks and the proceeds will go to the fund with which the Elks do their charity work.

The picture will go on about 11 o'clock and there promises to be a big house to enjoy the high class production which the Elks lodge is fortunate to secure through the courtesy of Warner Bros. and Manager R. B. Hamilton of the Palace theatre.

REV. DR. HOWE'S FORMER CH. NEARLY 150 YEARS OLD

Washington, D. C., papers have had a great deal to say of late regarding the coming 150th anniversary of Georgetown Presbyterian church which has had an interesting history.

In its day many of the most celebrated men in the nation have either been pew-holders there, or have worshiped there. It is recorded that once George Washington and Dame Martha drove up in a coach and four and sat through the service. It is surmised that they had come in to dine with John Peter, one of the original trustees of the church who married Father George's sister and that they spent the day in good old Virginia fashion by going to worship in the church of the Peter family.

Thomas Jefferson, when president of the United States and Albert Gallatin his secretary of the treasury, contributed to the building fund raised during the former's term; and Andrew Jackson, while a senator from Tennessee had a pew there.

For the first two or three decades of the existence of the federal city this old church was the leading church of Washington and for several years it was the only church in Georgetown. In a very definite sense it might be called the mother church of that ancient city.

What makes its history of interest in Norwich is the fact that the late Rev. Dr. Samuel H. Howe, for nearly half a century pastor of Park Congregational church, Norwich, served as pastor of the Georgetown church for eleven years. Its distinguished list of ministers included Dr. Stephen Bloomer Balch, 52 years; Rev. John C. Smith, 3 years; Rev. R. T. Berry, 10 years; Rev. John M. P. Atkinson, 7 years; Rev. John H. Bocock, 6 years; Rev. Fred T. Brown, 4 years; Rev. A. A. E. Taylor, 5 years; Rev. David W. Moffitt, 2 years; Rev. Samuel H. Howe, 11 years; Rev. J. Thomas Fullerton, 9 years; Rev. Wm. C. Alexander, 16 years; Rev. James C. Marshall, 22 years; Rev. Frank S. Niles, 1930. The present minister is a native of Nebraska, a graduate of Princeton and for sixteen years was a missionary to China. His father, grandfather and great-grandfather were Presbyterian ministers. Because of his wife's health he returned to this country.

It was while Rev. Dr. Howe was pastor at Georgetown that the wife of United States Senator Lafayette S. Foster, whose home was 315 Broadway, Norwich, happened to go from Washington and hear him preach. Mrs. Foster's pleasure in his sermon led to negotiations which eventually resulted in Rev. Dr. Howe coming to Park church to preach, making a most favorable impression on the local congregation and receiving his call to the pastorate which he filled with such conspicuous ability for 45 years or more. He was pastor emeritus of the Norwich church at the time of his death.

The crop value per farm worker in North Carolina is $1,053.

THE ERIE CANAL IN 1830

As the country expanded westward between the years 1820-30 better means of communication were needed; there was a growing demand for new roads and canals. The first canal, the Erie, was finished in 1826 and the effects were great and immediate. Soon a great movement of population to the west was stimulated and N. Y. became the most populated state in the Union.

Personal supervision of all details assures our patrons freedom from all unnecessary responsibilities at a particularly trying time.

PLAINFIELD PROS CLASH WITH DETROIT CLOWNS THIS EVENING

Tonight's Line-ups

Plainfield Pros.	Detroit Clowns
Marchinak, rf	rf, Patrick
Karlon, lf	lf, Tyrril
Conway, c	c, Wilson
Bernot, rg	rg, Sawyer
Missinger, lg	lg, Martin
Nadler, utl	utl, Kenney
Kasper, utl	utl, A. Martin
Williams, utl	utl, Johnson

When these two teams clash at the Plainfield Community house court this evening fans of eastern Connecticut will not only see a bang-up good game but will also be treated to many novelty features that will be put on by the Clowns who have proven to be real entertainers. The Detroit Clowns are one of the snappiest and most unique outfits touring the country today. They play in clown regalia and play a brilliant game, having gained their experience against the fast clubs in the midwest and east.

It will be of interest to know that in the line-up of the Clowns is a Westerly boy, Eddie Sawyer, who starred in athletics while a Westerly high a number of years ago. Sawyer, together with Pepper Martin, Buster Kenney and Kenneth Patrick played baseball with the famous House of David team last summer. A word of introduction about the players of the Detroit club will not be amiss at this time. Kenneth Patrick, who plays one of the forward positions, has played two seasons with the Clowns and was an all-state forward before joining the club; Tip Tyrril, the other forward, is a former Northwestern star and all-state player; Wilson, who has played with the Clowns for two seasons, is one of the best centers in the game today; Eddie Sawyer, former Westerly, R. I. boy, comes to the Clowns this season after having played in the Michigan State league last season; Pepper Martin is well known in basketball circles as he was a member of the famous Holly Majors and the Bay City Grays. Kenney and Ad. Martin are well known, Kenney being a brilliant player as well as an entertainer. This team gives a performance between the halves, their entertainment featuring singing and musical selections as well as clownish antics.

The Plainfield Pros have strengthened the past week in an effort to break into the win column after two straight defeats. Karlon, Kasper and Nadler have been added to the roster and will undoubtedly see action this evening. The line-up given above is by no means certain to start in tonight's game and there is every indication that the entire squad will get into action.

For the preliminary the Buddies play the Battery E team of Westerly. Dancing follows the game.

NAVY IS IMPRESSIVE IN PRACTICE SESSION

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 10—(AP)—Belying their coaches' pessimistic outlook, the Navy regulars tore off consistent gains against the "B" squad equipped with Army formations today in the final hard scrimmage session in preparation for the charity meeting with the Cadets in New York on Saturday.

Bill Ingram, the Navy coach, professed to hold little hope for a Middie victory against the big Army team, but went ahead with his preparations in the 45-minute scrimmage session and laid plans for the final workout tomorrow.

Navy backs had success with several new plays designed to pierce the Cadet defensive formations, but the "B" squad members had their turn when, using Army attack methods, they plunged for gains through the regular line.

Ingram fears the light weight of his backs will be the deciding factor against the Navy, even if his line, which he is counting on, plays on even terms with the West Point forward wall.

His best backfield, which he plans to start against the Army, consisting of Dale Blauer at quarter, Johnny Gannon and Lou Kirn at the halves, and Oscar Hagberg at fullback, will average not much more than 163 pounds, with Hagberg the only member who goes over 165. His second backfield is just about the same in weight. In addition Kirn and Hagberg are suffering from injuries.

The final practice session here will be held early tomorrow afternoon and the team will leave immediately afterward at four o'clock by train for New York. A final limbering up drill is scheduled for the Yankee stadium, scene of the battle, Friday afternoon.

Admiral Samuel S. Robsion, superintendent of the academy, and members of his official party also will leave for New York tomorrow. The Midshipmen regiment of 1,900 members is to leave Annapolis early Saturday.

MONTVILLE OPENS SEASON WITH WIN OVER MARINES

The Montville Aces basketball team opened the season by defeating the fast U. S. Marines five of the submarine base by a score of 37 to 16 Wednesday evening at the Montville Community house. The local boys held a safe lead throughout the game. At the end of the first half the score was 23 to 10 in favor of the Aces. Morosky and McDermott were the star players for the winners, Morosky getting five field goals and one foul for a total of 11 points and McDermott contributing five baskets for 10 points. O'Malley featured for the Marines, making four field goals. The summary:

IRISH RETURN HOME AMID GREAT OVATION

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 10—(AP)—Knute Rockne and his famous Notre Dame troupe of raiders came back to their home stamping grounds again today to receive probably the noisiest double-barrelled ovation ever boomed for an athletic team.

Thousands of people fought and stormed to greet and get a glimpse of the national football champs as they paraded through Chicago's streets; the entire citizenry of South Bend, and the entire student body of Notre Dame shouted themselves hoarse as they ended their epic odyssey here.

Notre Dame and Chicago have held ovations for explorers, celebrities of every sort and for mighty teams of yesteryear but few compared with the one given the "Fighting Irish" today.

Hundreds of police were powerless to stop the surging throngs, fighting to get to the team that forged its nineteenth straight victory in two years at the University of Southern California's expense Saturday.

It was as the tired Rockne remarked when it was all over:

"We thought we had been through some great lines on the football field this year, but the lines we and the police had to fight today had 'em all beat."

The crowd overwhelmed the victory procession. Frank Carideo, the ingenious Notre Dame field general, got lost in the crush and escaped to safety only by pulling his overcoat over his head and playing 'possum.

The South Bend station was packed around for a radius of six blocks as the Notre Dame conquerors came home. And the whole crowd marched to the Notre Dame gymnasium.

There Rockne, worn out and almost on the verge of collapse, gave one of his witty talks.

"You were a great team" he told his players, "yet I'm not going to say you were greater than the teams of 1924, '25 and '29. They all ask me to compare you with the 'Four Horsemen.' But I can't. They as ka comparison of Harry Stuhldreher and Frank Carideo. But it's like asking a comparison between Caesar and Napoleon. You can't do it except to say that one of them wore his hat sideways."

Captain Walsh paid tribute to the 1930 team as a greater team even than his own "Four Horsemen" of 1924. "We may have been good" he said, "but you fellows were marvelous. We take our hats off to you."

Coach Rockne said he would go through with his plan to coach the all-star Notre Dame team in the charity game with the New York Giants at New York Sunday and then go to the Mayo Brothers hospital at Rochester, Minn., for a thorough overhauling.

"I'm almost ready to break," he said. "My two legs are swollen again and the old pains are shooting through them. You know I sometime find myself wishing that we would lose four or more games next year so we can all get a rest from the so-called over-emphasis on football here at Notre Dame."

ARMY DRILLS BEFORE ENTHUSIASTIC BACKERS

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 10—(AP)—With the entire corps of Cadets, officers of the post and their wives massed around the practice field, the Army football team ran through another snappy drill today in preparation for the charity game with the Navy in New York Saturday.

King and Messinger, capable ends who have been on the injured list, were back in the lineup and Major Ralph I. Sasse, head coach, appeared encouraged at the condition of his squad.

The plebe team again put on its version of the Navy attack, scrimmaging at full speed with Sasse's three varsity teams. The secondary defense of the Army regulars was kept busy and had considerable difficulty in stopping the Middie aerial attack. A long pass defense drill for the varsity backs followed the scrimmage.

When the Cadets shifted the attack to test their new plays against the scrubs, each successful thrust was greeted with cheers from the enthusiastic spectators. Most of the plays were directed at the tackles.

Kicking came in for considerable attention under the direction of Sasse and Lieut. "Red" Reeder. Broshouse concentrated on drop kicking. Herb and Glattly on placement booting and Frenzel on fields and Elliott on punting. A large part of the kicking was done under the pressure of a charging scrub line.

After the practice the commissioned personnel of the post headed by Major General William R. Smith, superintendent, marched to Washington hall to have dinner with the corps. In a brief rally which followed dinner, short talks were given by General Smith, Major Sasse and "Polly" Humber, team captain.

Like to Challenge

The St. Joseph's school football team would like to challenge any grammar school football team. They would like to challenge the Greeneville grammar school and the Broadway grammar school football teams. If accepted come up to the St. Joseph's school about 12:30 in the afternoon or 3:30 after school.

Chocolate—The Next Champion

That the featherweight crown will rest on the kinky haired head of Keed Chocolate after his bout with Bat Battaline of Hartford on Friday night is our prediction. That is, it will unless Battalino fights better than he has in previous bouts or unless the ebony Keed has an attack of lumbago or neuritis. From what we ever saw of Battalino it's just a bet as to how long the Hartford boy will stay in an upright position in the ring with Chocolate. Battalino never impressed us as being possessed of qualities that go to make up a champion. He is fairly good at long range but his infighting is a total loss and he has practically no defense for his stomach which is his weak point. He is not fast on his feet and is slightly awkward in the ring.

When Battalino won the title he took it from old Andre Routis who was all washed up as a boxer and even at that he didn't win by any overwhelming margin. That bout never did look good to us and we've always been under the impression that Battalino got a mighty fine break in the bout when the possibly over-anxious referee broke the boxers as soon as Routis got in close. And another thing was the fact that Pete Reilly who was manager of Routis became manager of Battalino after the bout. Then along came a succession of set-ups for the new champ but he steered clear of the powerful hitters until the newspaper boys began to poke fun at him and call him the cheese champion. With Keed Chocolate taking a licking from Fidel LaBarba it looked as though the Keed had hit the toboggan and here was a chance to get the boys to lay-off the rassberries. So the championship bout was signed. Now Chocolate didn't take such a lacing as some think and the decision was even questioned by sport authorities which would show that Chocolate has not slipped as would seem.

Battalino must be in good shape must hit hard and often and most of all must have a defense for his body which is a vital point. The odds in New York have decreased from 8 to 5 to 6 to 5 with Battalino on the short end, largely because he is an unknown quantity. Never has he boxed in Madison Square Garden and the fight faithful do not know just what he is capable of.

SHEA SURPRISES FISTIANA BY BEATING LABARBA

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Eddie Shea, rough-and-ready Italian youngster from Chicago, bounded into the front ranks of featherweight challeners tonight when he was awarded a 10-round decision over Fidel LaBarba of Los Angeles.

Patsy Haley of New York, the referee, unhesitatingly raised Shea's right hand in victory after the 10 rounds of ripping and tearing fighting. The decision seemed to surprise the 12,000 spectators who first greeted it with booes and then broke into cheering.

LaBarba, rated as an outstanding challenger for the title, appeared to be stunned by the decision. The Pacific coast boy fought a rough and aggressive opponent in Shea, who continually bored in, ripping his arms to the body like pistons. He rushed LaBarba to the ropes a half dozen times under a heavy body punishing attack.

Shea's big offensive was in the fifth round when he opened up in a flashy spurt to drive LaBarba to the ropes. He scored repeatedly with short body punches and left hooks to the head. From then on to the finish he kept crowding LaBarba, who appeared to tire under the heavy pace.

The battle was one of three ten-rounders sponsored by the Cleveland News to raise funds for Christmas charity. The match, attracting the largest crowd that ever saw a boxing show in Cleveland, drew $48,360, of which a profit of $19,000 will be used to buy clothing, toys, and food for needy children.

Shea weighed 128 pounds with LaBarba coming in at 124 3-4.

BUDDIES WIN FROM THREAD CITY QUINTET

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 10. — The Plainfield Buddies stopped the West Ends here tonight 15 to 6, before a large crowd. As the score indicates, the work of the defenses stood out. The home boys made but one field goal during the game, that by Nichols in the first period.

Plainfield had a 6 to 3 lead at halftime. The scoring on the Buddies was evenly divided with Mette at the top, totaling five points.

TWO EASTERN CONN. BOYS ON ALL-SCHOLASTIC ELEVEN

Two eastern Connecticut boys recently have received mention on All-teams picked by state writers. Pat Hallfteras, Bulkeley quarterback, shares the honors for this position with Repass of Hartford Bulkeley on the All-Opponent team picked by the coaches of New Haven high schools while Twerdy, Windham guard, was listed as all-state material in a New Haven paper.

The Westerly Sun, in announcing its all-conference team included Ernie Stevens, Academy captain, at one of the guard positions. The remainder of the first team was: Trumpetto, Westerly, and Rockwell, Bulkeley, ends; Dolan, Westerly, and Misewoth, Windham, tackles; Twerdy, Windham, guard; Johnsen, Bulkeley, center; Stenhouse, Westerly, quarterback; Mudge, Westerly, and Goyette, Stonington, halfbacks, and Hewitt, Chapman Tech, fullback. Zietorac, N. F. A., was at halfback on the second team.

SEVERAL PLAYER DEALS ARE MADE AT MEETING OF MAJOR LEAGUES

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—Activity among players reached a new high today in the major league meetings, a promise of peace appeared in the complicated draft controversy with the minors, and the era of prosperity, brought in by the lively ball and short fences, was guaranteed a future as rosy as its past.

For hours and hours, the magnates of the National and American leagues sat in conclave, first in a committee meeting with nine representatives of the International and Pacific Coast leagues, and the American association to discuss the draft, then in regular business sessions of the leagues. Down in the lobby of the hotel fading stars and old time heroes talked with managers here and managers there about jobs—and accomplished more in an hour than the magnates did all day.

Veterans Land Jobs

Wally Schang and Cy Perkins, veteran catchers added to the unemployment situation by Connie Mack, of the Athletics, talked themselves into jobs, Wally with the Detroit Tigers and Perkins with the New York Yankees. Joe Dugan, once the third base ace of baseball and the Yankees, came to a tentative agreement with the Tigers as a utility man.

John McGraw, of the New York Giants, reached back into the past and found old Chief Bender, once a pitching star on Connie Mack's great teams of another era, and dickered with the Indian, offering him a job as a scout. At the same time McGraw reached an agreement with George Burns, once a Giant outfielder, to replace "Irish" Meusel, as a coach here. Jack Quinn, one of the last of the spitballers, was around seeking pitching work with the Brooklyn Robins but accomplished little.

Two first basemen, George Sisler, of the Boston Braves, and Lou Blue of the Browns, seem to have been given opportunities by their managements to better themselves if possible. Sisler discussed a coaching job with the Tigers, but Blue wound up the day talking salary differences with his own club.

The trade winds failed to stir but there were rumors aplenty. The Red Sox were reported to have offered First Baseman Phil Todt to Cleveland for Johnny Hodapp and Bill Evans laughed and laughed. The Washington Senators would take Outfielder Reynolds from the White Sox and give them a choice of two of the following players: Joe Kuhel, rookie first baseman, Buddy Meyer, infielder, and Bump Hadley. Donie Bush would be more inclined to talk business if Hadley and an outfielder were joined in the offer. Cleveland offered the White Sox First Baseman Fonseca for Third Baseman Willie Kamm but no deals were closed.

Lively Ball Is Discussed

The uproar over the lively ball and the prodigious home run clouting died to a whisper in the league meetings. Both the National and American magnates discussed the ball, and the zoning of parks, and the raising of screens before the stands but no action was taken. National league players making the trip to Japan after the coming season will be permitted to barnstorm until December 1 instead of October 31. Cincinnati's request for $4,000, the waiver price, from Chicago because George Kelly came back to the Cubs within two months after being let go to Minneapolis in the American association was refused by League President John A. Heydler.

Draft Holds Center of Stage

Both leagues discussed the draft for hours as well as "chain store" baseball and other moot points close to the hearts of club owners. Following the meeting Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals and the largest owner of minor league clubs in the majors, said he expected no further differences with Commissioner K. M. Landis on the chain store subject. Landis has been a severe critic of this system of developing major league talent.

In the draft conference this morning the major league committee listened to the proposition of the minors and laid the situation before a joint league meeting tonight. There seems to be little trouble over the price of drafted players but the majors want to have 15 men out on option for three years instead of the eight now allowed them for two years. The minors want the right to draft from leagues below them in standing.

BATTALINO AND CHOCOLATE CALL HALT ON TRAINING

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—Bat Battalino, the champion, and Kid Chocolate, the challenger, had the same idea today about their preparations for their title bout on the annual Christmas fund program at Madison Square Garden Friday night and both declared that training for the battle was over.

Both declared that they had reached the required weight of 126 pounds and were in fine condition and that they did not want to take any chances on causing trouble although it was a day earlier than the customary time of stopping work.

Chocolate, who plans to go into the ring packing the full poundage, which is more than he usually weighs, did not want to take a chance of going below the 126 pound mark while Battalino nursed a slight cut on his nose which might be opened if he did any more boxing.

The prospects for the meeting still had the fans in a huddle of deep thought as they tried to pick the winner. The odds, which first favored the Cuban flash at 8 to 5, had dropped to 7-5 or 6-5 and showed signs of going even lower. Battalino, who never has fought in New York, remained something of an unknown quantity to the fight faithful despite his impressive showing in training while the memory of the Keed's defeat by Fidel Labarba still remained.

Ernest Guhring, German heavyweight who was to meet Marty Fox of Brooklyn in one of the preliminaries has withdrawn from the card and Roberto Roberti, big Italian, has been given his place.

FOGARTY ACCEPTS TO PLAY WITH ALL-EAST

PROVIDENCE, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Captain Lincoln Fogarty of the Brown football team today here accepted an invitation extended to him by Andy Kerr of Colgate to be a member of the all-east eleven that will meet the all-west team in the New Year's day contest at San Francisco for the benefit of the Shrine home for crippled children. According to present plans Fogarty will join the rest of the players selected by Kerr to make up the eastern team next Tuesday in Chicago.

Forty men answered the call for indoor track at Manhattan college, New York. This is the largest turnout Coach Peter Waters has had since 1924.

NAVY DEPT. WILL BE OUT EN MASSE SATURDAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(AP)— It looked for a while today as though a lieutenant might be in charge of the navy department on Saturday with almost everybody going to the Army-Navy game.

Secretary Adams and his aide, and Assistant Secretary Ernest Lee Jahncke and his aide are going. Assistant Secretary for Aeronautics Ingalls wasn't sure he would be in town. Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, and his aide will be at the game.

Rear Admiral Frank B. Upham, chief of the bureau of navigation, decided, however, to stay in Washington and "stand the watch" as acting secretary.

Those left behind will hear the broadcast report which will be combined with a transparent field diagram upon which an illuminated football will be moved.

The diagram will be set up in the navy cafeteria.

GRIFFITHS IN FINE SHAPE FOR BOUT WITH STRIBLING

CHICAGO, Dec. 10—(AP)—Tuffy Griffiths, young Sioux City, Ia., heavyweight, today decided he was as ready as he ever will be for his 10 round bout with W. L. (Young) Stribling in the Chicago stadium Friday night, and suspended training operations.

The tough one weighed 186 pounds and figured to climb into the ring at that figure, which probably will leave the Georgian with a three or four pound advantage.

Stribling, seeking more speed, worked two rounds with Tom Jones, Negro light heavyweight, and another pair with a middleweight, Mickey Patrick, clubbing both about effectively. Neither will do more than limber up tomorrow.

The attraction has caught on to the extent that stadium officials are looking for a gate in excess of $100,000, a part of which will be for unemployment relief.

YALE ATHLETIC DIRECTOR IS ILL AT HOSPITAL

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 10—(AP)—John M. Cates, director of athletics of Yale university, was today taken to New Haven hospital suffering from a severe attack of indigestion.

The illness of Cates, one of the three members of the body preparing to appoint the new graduate advisory committee of athletics, will, it was reported, considerably delay the appointments. Announcement of the names of the new committee was expected within a short time, before Cates' forced inactivity became known.

He is reported to have been indisposed for some time, but today his condition became acute. Tonight he was said to be resting comfortably.

WESLEYAN OPENS WITH YALE ON FRIDAY

MIDDLETOWN, Dec. 10— (AP) — The Wesleyan university basketball team will open its season Friday with Yale at New Haven. A veteran team will be on the floor for Wesleyan and Coach Lash plans to use Bill Streibinger or Glee Nye at center; Co-Captain Tom Howard at one forward post, and Bill H. Johnstone at the other, and Co-Captain Buck Owen and Jack Wells as guards.

Ed Johns, captain and defense man on last year's frosh outfit may break into the game at guard in place of Owen who will be moved to forward as running mate to Howard.

CHRISTMAS BOWLING TOURNEY PLANNED AT AETNA ALLEYS

The management of the Aetna bowling alleys is planning another of the annual Christmas one-ball tournaments which is to be rolled on Saturday, Dec. 20, during the afternoon. The tournament limits the contestants to one ball to each frame and the one having the highest score will win the tournament. There are three of these tournaments to be rolled off during the afternoon, one each hour, starting at 3 o'clock. The prizes are in keeping with Christmas, they being chickens.

Sons Accept Challenge

The Sons of Rest accept the challenge of the I. H. Gang for a return game Sunday at Mohegan park. After the wonderful game that was played last Sunday, the Sons management feel that the Ice House Gang deserves another game. Sunday's game was a game between a good fast little team and a good big team, both teams acquitting themselves in wonderful fashion. The Sons of Rest claim that they issued no statement that Stockwell's injury was intentional, but thank the Ice House boys for their sympathy that they offered when he got hurt. It was just one of the breaks of the game. On account of the closeness of last Sunday's game a large crowd is expected.

Cochran Sets High Run

CHICAGO, Dec. 10—(AP)—Setting a high run mark of 198, Welker Cochran took the fifth block of his six-block 18.2 balkline billiards match with Willie Hoppe today, 300 to 108 in six innings. The victory gave Cochran a 3 to 2 edge in blocks, with the final set for tonight. They will open a six block match at 18.1 tomorrow.

Y SENIORS READY FOR BATTLE WITH WESTERLY

The Y Seniors are ready for the Battery E team of Westerly Saturday evening at the Y gym with the same lineup that faced the Willimantic Y last Saturday, and dropped such a heart-breaking game.

Coach Demarest was pleased with the work of his boys and figures them to hold their own with the best of them this season. He also believes that their play will improve as the season goes along as experience seems to be the only thing needed for the quintet.

Saturday's lineup will find Tommy Lynch and Zeke Leffingwell going to the forwards, Cecil Henschel at center and Red Armstrong and Captain Howie Ludlow at guards. Armstrong's play, in particular, was a bright light of last week's game with the Thread City athletes.

SPORT BRIEFS

HANOVER, N. H., Dec. 10—(AP)—Dartmouth opened its basketball season tonight by nosing out a strong Providence college quintet, 33 to 26.

WORCESTER—Holy Cross opened its basketball season tonight by burying Arnold college of New Haven under an avalanche of baskets, the final count being Holy Cross 59, Arnold 32. Luke Driscoll, Crusader center, led the scorers with 31 points.

ST. LOUIS—Art (The Great) Shires, former Chicago White Sox first baseman, whom Washington recently sold to the Milwaukee club of the American association, a farm of the St. Louis Browns, has not been ordered to report to the St. Louis American league club.

WATERBURY—The ten-round return bout between Al Gainer of New Haven and Jack Kelly of this city, scheduled here tomorrow night at the Field street armory, will draw a capacity crowd, according to the report of local promoters tonight.

MADISON, Wis.—Sophomore members of the 1930 Wisconsin football squad, who today issued an ultimatum that they would withdraw from the sport if Glenn Thistlethwaite was released as coach, were asked by Thistlethwaite tonight to remain loyal to the university.

ITHACA, N. Y.—Cris Martinez-Zorilla of Mexico City was unanimously chosen captain of the 1931 Cornell football team tonight.

LONDON—The Prince of Wales won the final of the squash racquets handicap tournament at the well-known Bath club tonight, beating E. A. Bennett, 9-5, 9-6, 10-8. The prince has contested in three previous finals but never before won the event.

PHILADELPHIA—Thomas S. Gates, president of the University of Pennsylvania, today took official cognizance of the football controversy at the university and announced that the institution would adopt "a progressive, constructive policy covering competitive athletics along with the related activities."

CHICAGO—Willie Hoppe reached the peak of his game tonight to win the final block of his six-block 18.2 balkline billiards match with Welker Cochran, 300 to 88, in three innings. Hoppe had an unfinished run of 247, the best run of the match. They finished all even at three blocks, and tomorrow will start a six-block match at 18.1.

CHICAGO—The Arlington classic, a gallop at a mile and a quarter, will be the richest three-year-old race of the 1931 turf season as a result of a decision reached today to increase the added money value to $70,000, a boost of $10,000.

HAMILTON, N. Y.—Leonard Macaluso, Colgate's mighty line bucker, the football season's greatest individual scorer, hopes to enter the diplomatic service after graduation. Last summer he trained for football by swinging a sledge hammer in road construction. Now he is learning the pothooks of stenography as part of his preparation for diplomacy.

OTTAWA—Leo Bourgeault, high scoring defense man of the New York Rangers of the National Hockey league, has been purchased by the Ottawa Senators in a straight cash deal, it was announced today by William Foran, president of the Ottawa club. The purchase price was not announced.

NOTRE DAME HEADS TEAMS NEITHER DEFEATED NOR TIED

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—The Rough Riders of Notre Dame head the nation's little band of undefeated and untied football teams. With the season practically over, only nine elevens have been able to tour through the campaign without encountering either defeat or tie.

Among these teams, Utah had the best offensive record with 340 points scored. Alabama permitted only 13 opposition points to lead defensively.

The undefeated and untied list follows:

	W.	Pts.	Opp. Pts.
Notre Dame	10	265	74
Mt. Morris (Ills.)	9	249	25

BULLETIN GIVES CUP FOR JUNIOR LEAGUE

The Bulletin has donated a silver loving cup for the new Norwich Junior basketball league, it was announced Wednesday evening. The cup will become the permanent possession of a school when it has been won three years. Each season's champion, however, will have temporary possession of it for the ensuing year.

Activity has been noted in the six schools that will enter teams, all intent on being at their best for the opening a week from Friday. At St Patrick's school a meeting of those interested was called for Tuesday and 20 boys from the three highest grades were present.

CITIZENS HAVE TOUGH GAME FOR FRIDAY

A game that will bring together two of the strongest junior teams in the city has been lined up for the preliminary Friday evening at Pulaski hall when the Polish Citizens meet the Westerly Collegians in the main game. The prelim brings together the Citizen Jrs. and the Y Jrs. In these line-ups are named some of the coming court stars of the city. The Cits team which will be playing its first contest, has Pete and Sammy Raymond, Pete Bunk, Chip Dugas, Jr., Georgie Durr, Titi Peltier.

An application of Boston to rejoin the American Soccer league will be considered at the next meeting of the league, December 15, in New York.

FOUR DAMAGE SUITS BEING TRIED AS ONE IN SUPERIOR COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 10.—For the remainder of this week in Washington county superior court at its Westerly adjournment, with Associate Justice Jeremiah E. O'Connell, of Providence, on the bench, four cases are being tried as one. These actions at law, trespass on the case for negligence, are brought by the plaintiffs for damages alleged to have been sustained as the result of an automobile accident. The cases are Greta Smith, Cecelia Smith, Hannah Sullivan and James McMillan vs. Edwin H. Tompkins, the plaintiffs being summer residents of Narragansett, R. I., and the defendant a resident of Providence. The testimony in the case will begin Thursday morning at 10:45 before a jury which was selected Wednesday afternoon, following the noontime court recess.

The members of the jury were the first chosen, there being no challenges, and are as follows:

Andrew N. Tefft, clerk, South Kingstown; Howard C. Woodmansee, ice business, Hopkinton; William J. Kenyon, garage owner, North Kingstown; Francis M. Johnson, manager Westerly; William A. Kelley, farmer, South Kingstown; George W. Hoxie, clerk, Charlestown, later named foreman; Edward E. Coggeshall, salesman, Narragansett; Frank E. Dutemple, blacksmith, Exeter; Edwin H. Blackler, undertaker, Westerly; Frank M. Weinreich, conductor, North Kingstown; Willis C. Albee, weaver, Richmond, and Harry G. Clancy, taxi business, Westerly.

With the empanelling of this jury Judge O'Connell directed that all spare jurymen, not on this panel, report to Deputy Court Clerk Mrs. Edna H. Treat, to be paid off for their services and discharged for the remainder of this term, as a new set of jurymen will be summoned for court duty to report next Monday morning.

With the convening of superior court on Wednesday morning the consideration of the trial calendar was taken up to be disposed of as follows:

Mathilda M. S. Swenson vs. Horace E. Litchfield. The case was defaulted and Sheriff Fred W. Bull called the defendant to appear in court and on his failure Judge O'Connell directed on proof of claim and a record of a previous court case a judgment of $5,168.39 and costs of $31.95, totaling with costs of present suit, $5,200.34.

The case of Conrad Andrekson vs. Peter Kemppi, on agreement of Counsel Dunn and Ferguson, was re-assigned to the February superior court term at Westerly.

In the case of Isaac T. Prosser vs. Effie Simmons, alias, Attorney John F. Gallagher stated that two important witnesses were in California, and although Judge Watts was entered for the respondent, the case was passed temporarily.

The case of Wilfred A. Maine vs. Murry G. Penn, Attorney Roche said might be ready Friday, requiring three or four days' hearing, and as the terms of present jurymen would expire on Friday Judge O'Connell directed that it be set down as the first jury case to be tried next Monday with new jury.

John S. Fenner vs. Harry H. Crandall, adm., was set down to be ready for trial next Wednesday.

In the case of Mary Dotolo vs. Westerly hospital, Attorney M. Walter Flynn informed the court that there were important witnesses which both sides of the suit were anxious to get, but as yet unable to reach them, and the case might go over to the next term of court.

TWO DRUGGISTS VICTIMIZED BY WOMAN CHECK PASSER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 10.—A middle-aged woman, signing what were supposed to be travelers checks "Clara Adams" on Sunday night, victimized two Westerly drug stores and as a result mulcted a store in Westerly $20 and in Pawcatuck for $10. Visiting the Barbour Pharmacy on Broad street about 8 p. m., she made a purchase of a pair of auto glasses. For the payment she tendered two 50-cent pieces and then taking out a book of blank checks signed one in the presence of Proprietor Timothy J. Connors, secured the $20 in currency and left the store. In Pawcatuck the Higgins Pharmacy, on West Broad street, C. Leo Higgins, proprietor, was visited and $10 secured. From the Washington Trust Co., the checks were returned from the Bankers' Trust Co., New York, "no funds." Investigation by the bankers' agency is now being made.

J. J. Joyce Dies Suddenly

The sudden death of John Joseph Joyce occurred on Wednesday at his home, 7 Chestnut street, when he was found dead in bed. Mr. Joyce had been suffering from a severe cold for the past two weeks but his illness was not thought serious. It is thought that his death was caused by a heart attack.

He was born in Westerly, being the son of John and Katherine Flaherty Joyce. All of his life was spent here and for 28 years he was employed as a cutter at the Smith Granite Co. He worked up until about a week ago.

He was a member of Granite City camp, No. 9159, Modern Woodmen of America, and of the Stonecutters' union.

In June, 1902, he was united in marriage with Katherine Keenan, who survives him. He also leaves a son, John Joyce, a daughter, Miss Katherine Joyce, both of Westerly; three brothers, Arthur Joyce of Albany, N. Y., William Joyce of Cleveland, O., and Walter Joyce of Providence; and three sisters, Mrs. John Wilcox of Providence, and Misses Mary and Agnes Joyce, both of Cleveland, O.

Real Estate Transfers

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk appear the followinng transfers:

Dec. 9. Clara Elizabeth Perry and Phebe F. Perry (unmarried), to Rollin T. Read and wife, Gertrude M. B. Read, a certain lot or tract of land located on the southerly side of Beach street.

Dec. 9. Biaggio Moscoratolo to Milan Moscoratolo, a certain tract or parcel of land on the southerly side of Cross street, being all of Lot No. 191 and a part of Lot No. 190, Plan of Section of Melrose Heights.

LEDYARD

Ledyard grange held its meeting in Grange hall Friday evening Dec. 5 with Carl Holdridge, master, in the chair. The first and second degrees were worked on a class of four candidates. Sandwiches, cake, apples and coffee were served.

Mrs. Edward P. Kelly was the leader of the C. E. meeting Sunday evening. "Best Gifts" was the topic discussed.

The Laymour Poultry club met at the home of its leader, Paul Holdridge Saturday evening. Election of officers for the year resulted in the following choice: President, Karl Wieman, Jr.; vice president, Gilbert Hayen; secretary, Albert Mitnic. It was voted to hold meetings the first Saturday in each month. The January meeting will be held at the home of Ellsworth Bennett.

Mrs. Ursula E. Avery has returned home after an enjoyable visit with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Avery, of Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y.

Farmers Cut Wood For Fuel

MONTGOMERY, Ala. —(AP)— Alabama farmers are cutting the fuel bill this winter by chopping wood. The state forestry commission has advised caution in cutting posts, poles and ties, to prevent flooding the market, but many farmers are cutting lumber and utilizing lower grades of wood for fuel.

Raise Cattle On Poor Land

COLUMBIA, S. C. —(AP)— Many South Carolina farmers have turned to cattle breeding as a means of utilizing potential pastures that have been idle for years.

MARKET CLOSED WITH AN AVERAGE DECLINE OF TWO POINTS IN PRICES

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Just a month from the date of the November lows, the stock market today suffered a setback that sent a large number of prominent shares through their old minimums.

A flurry of short covering in the last ten minutes reduced the losses considerably and the average net decline was about 2 points, but the total turnover of 3,146,950 shares—the largest since mid-November—measured the extent to which business had increased on the down side.

The composite for 90 leading stocks closed at 124.9 against the year's low of 123.4. However, early in the afternoon, it stood only half a point above that minimum, and since the heaviest selling came thereafter it was assumed that before the technical recovery the market had been in new low ground. Trading in the final hour was very active, nearly a million shares changing hands.

Bonds found supporting orders limited and lost rather sharply, although on a reduced volume. Weakness of bonds recently is said in some quarters to reflect selling by banks which invested heavily a few months ago but now desire to maintain positions of liquidity and are therefore partially disposing of their holdings.

The first hour was the best in the share market. Steel stocks and some of the rails picked up a point or two when the weekly trade reviews reported continued improvement in sentiment. "Iron Age" said the week's events had been "preponderantly favorable," pointing to a gradual gain in demand for forward deliveries, to the recent advance in prices and to immediate prospects of rail orders. Production during the past week declined one per cent., a trend which may well carry later into the month.

U. S. Steel corporation's unfilled order report disclosed an advance of 157,878 tons in November, which was not only better than had been expected, but also the best November gain since 1926 and the second successive monthly upturn. However, the market declined to follow this favorable lead, and seemed to be more impressed by the decline in car loadings and the reduction of a cent a pound by copper producers. The latter development was not unexpected, for it was pointed out that the rise in price after the curtailment had been reached was rapid; furthermore, producers were said to have satisfied requirements of consumers for some time.

Rail stocks were active in the decline. New York Central rallied rather mechanically when the directors declared the regular quarterly dividend, but then fell back. Pennsylvania, Illinois Central, Southern Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio, Northern Pacific, Frisco and Chicago Northwestern, made new lows.

This time, however, the carriers had plenty of company, for stocks like Westinghouse, Bethlehem Steel, Johns Manville, Eastman Kodak, American Water Works, American and Foreign Power, Timken, United Fruit and Case, were also sold to 1930 minimums on extreme losses of 2 to 5 points. U. S. Steel dropped to 138 1-2, within half a point of its low, and General Electric to 44 5-8, but closed only a point lower. American Telephone, Westinghouse, DuPont, American Can, Allied Chemical, National Biscuit, Consolidated Gas and Sears Roebuck likewise reduced maximum declines of almost the same size to losses of 1 to 2. Few issues were down as much as 4 net.

Late improvement in silver prices failed to help the Far Eastern exchanges, but European rates were firm, reflecting Christmas demands for funds.

Bank liquidation has been very apparent in railroad bonds where some of the issues legal for savings banks have new lows along with a wide list of second grade issues sold by holders, whose confidence had been impaired by decreased earnings of the carriers.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—(AP)—Treasury receipts for Dec. 8 were $9,730,335.17; expenditures $22,335,-319.81; balance $339,720,802.76.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Trading swelled to the largest volume in nearly a month in today's curb market, as the list continued to move down grade.

A long list of issues penetrated further into new low ground, although few wide breaks occurred save in the comparatively inactive specialties having a thin market, and there was some recovery in the final hour.

The day's transactions aggregated 704,800 shares.

In the utilities, Associated Gas "A" dropped nearly 3 points, to within a fraction of the year's low, then reduced its loss to 2 1-4 net. Electric Bond & Share dipped 2 points, and closed off 1-4. United Light "A" sagged a point to a new low, but closed only 1-2 lower. Duke Power, frequently a wide mover, dropped 12 1-2 points to 125, its previous low, in a few odd lot transactions.

Gulf was a conspicuous soft spot in the oils, declining nearly 4 points to a new minimum at 66 5-8, but recovering to 68 at the finish. Standard of Ohio lost 3 points. Cities Service touched 16 5-8, but closed at 17 1-2, off only 3-8 of a point. Humble and Standards of Kentucky and Indiana actually closed fractionally higher. Reduction of the copper export price by one cent to 11.30 cents a pound caused some selling of the copper issues, Newmont losing 4 points, and Roan Antelope sagging more than a point to a new low.

A few industrials closed higher, but the general trend was downward. Cooper Bessemer gained 1 1-2, and Dresser B, 3 1-2. Deere, however, dropped nearly 5 to another new low. Among the erratic, lightly traded issues, A. O. Smith dropped 5, and Standard Screw 12. Columbia Pictures declined 3 to another new bottom.

Investment company issues also sagged. United Founders touched a new low at 7, off 3-4, and closed at 7 3-8. American Founders sagged 3-4 to 4, and closed at 4 1-2.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—Bonds continued their decline today. Offerings were not as large as in the previous session, but buying interest was lacking except at prices considerably below the market and all classes of domestic obligations were reactionary, with losses in some gilt edged bonds exceeding a point.

The market made an effort to steady at the start of the session when price recovery narrowed but few bids were made above the previous close and the liquidation proved sufficient to carry many issues to new lows for the year. Rails lost a full point in the averages and the composite average for 30 bonds was revised at 34.4, representing a drop of 7-10ths for the day and 1 1-2 points for the week.

About the only persons getting much comfort out of the bond market of late have been the old time bargain hunters, who appear at these times but in insufficient numbers to change the trend quickly. They recall the handsome profits made 10 years ago when they were able to purchase some rare bargains as Liberty bonds in the low 80s.

It was said at one of the older investment houses today that a careful canvass of bond houses had brought out a general feeling that much of the liquidation has been due to nothing but blind fear. Of course, there has also been selling by banks which rushed to place their funds into bonds several months ago when it appeared that commercial demands would be light, and now wish to place themselves in a strong cash position to meet year end and other requirements. Some observers have been puzzled by the willingness of these institutions to sell their investment in a declining market, rather than borrowing at the federal reserve.

There have been varied rumors about Wall street that a strong pool was being formed to support the bond market, but this was not credited general lead dividends.

Bank liquidation has been very apparent in railroad bonds where some of the issues legal for savings banks have sagged to new lows along with a wide list of second grade issues sold by holders whose confidence had been impaired by decreased earnings of the carriers.

In the rail group the largest losses were in Burlington general 4s, Milwaukee 4 1-2s F, Chicago and Western Indiana 4s, Erie 5s of 1975, Illinois Central 4s, International Great Northern first 6s, Kansas City Southern 5s, Missouri Pacific 5s, G, Pennsylvania gold 5s, Frisco 4 1-2s, all off 2 points.

Liquidation in the utility group was more widespread than any time this week. As a whole obligations of electric companies have ben the steadiest class of domestic bonds. American Water Works 6s, Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania 5s C, Northern States Power 5s A, and West Chester Light 5s, were among the high priced issues that turned soft. American and Foreign Power 5s, and issues of International Telephone and its subsidiary, the Postal Telegraph again established new lows for the year.

Industrials were weak. Oils were under pressure. United States governments were mixed. Liberty bonds were firm but short term treasury issues lost several points each. Most of the changes in the foreign group were on the downside.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Corn broke 3 cents a bushel today from an early advance that accompanied an increase of speculative buying of future deliveries. Buying was based on unexpected smallness of receipts and on prospects of rainy weather over the corn belt. However, selling out by early buyers disclosed that the market was minus adequate support, and a transient upturn in wheat also wiped out.

Corn closed heavy, 1 5-8a2 1-4c lower than yesterday; wheat irregular at 1-4c decline to an equal gain, oats 3-8a3-4c down, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 30c.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Production of standard cotton cloths during November totaled 206,623,000 yards, or at the rate of 51,658,000 yards per week for the four weeks, the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants reported today.

The Associated Gas & Electric Co has terminated its offer of Nov. 17 whereby holders of its class "A" stock could exchange their shares for new cumulative preference stock.

Directors of Airway Electric Appliance Corp. have voted to retire $60,000 of its 7 per cent preferred stock. After this retirement, the company will have $1,940,000 of preferred outstanding.

NEW TENANTS WERE BOLD BUT OWNERS SOFT-HEARTED

A summer cottage which has been closed since last September was visited by the owner the other day with a view to making things tight for the winter. When the occupants left last summer a window in each room was dropped to the space of a hand's breadth.

During the owner's absence a pair of gray squirrels had entered and had started housekeeping, of all places, in the oven of the stove in the kitchen. Upon the discovery of the new tenants, and the coming upon a fine store of walnuts in the back part of the oven under the fire box, the household members of the cottage owners were straightway divided in opinion. Pa was for copping the winter's stor eand fastening up the window; Ma wouldn't listen to such a thing as evicting the poor little things with cold winter coming on, and they having worked so hard to gather the nuts away up in the tall trees, where there was danger of falling and breaking their necks. Ma won, as the female of the species is quite apt to do; Pa didn't even get beyond the 25-yard line, with a touchdown never threatened. There is a sequel to this story which became known Saturday. Pa went up to take a final look at things and somehow or another he says a bag of doughnuts and a box of English walnuts had gotten into that stove oven. Somehow, also, Pa left a peck of apples in the wood box when he came away.

MT. VERNON LODGE VISITED BY RT. W. DEPUTY M. B. PAYNE

One hundred and twenty-six Masons were present Tuesday evening to witness the work in the master Mason's degree in Mt. Vernon lodge, No. 75, F. and A. M. The special program was in honor of the official visitation of Rt. Worthy Deputy Morris B. Payne of New London, who represents the grand master in the eighth Masonic district. In the assemblage were delegations from St. James lodge, No. 23 and Somerset, No. 34, of Norwich; Quinebaug, No 106, Putnam, and Moriah, No. 15, Danielson. The floor work of the evening was carried out by the crack degree team in full regalia. Honoring Worthy Lawrence G. Dresher, of Baltic, Worshipful Master Walter Field turned the gavel over to him for a section of the exemplification. Visiting Deputy Payne, in addition to his expression of satisfaction in the gilt-edged work of the evening, gave especial commendation to Worthy Norman B. Parkhurst for the splendid rendition of the second lecture of this degree, which included a 35-minute recitation from memory of ancient craft history, all without error or hesitation. During the evening Worthy Brother Dresher presented the newly admitted candidate a white gold Masonic emblem from Baltic friends. Lunch was served under the direction of Howard Davis, the junior warden, assisted by the stewards, Ralph Kingsley and Leslie Hyde.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Arthur Edmond

The death of Mrs. Effie Richardson Edmond, wife of Arthur Edmond, in Cheshire, is of interest to Griswold, Preston and Norwich relatives and friends. Mrs. Edmond was born in the southern part of this town, the daughter of Herbert and Effie Lamb Richardson. She attended school in Jewett City, when the late Earl M. Swift was the principal of the public schools, living at the home of her aunt, Mrs. C. D. Babcock. She leaves her husband and three daughters, two of whom are twins, also leaves a son. She is survived by a sister, Mrs. Minnie Richmond in Florida and a brother, Herbert Richardson of Norwich and by two half-sisters, Mrs. Fern Savage of Preston and Mrs. Hazel Murray of New London turnpike, and a half-brother, Calvin Richmond of Waterbury. Mrs. C. N. Sweetser of Lisbon is her aunt and Mrs. A. C. Burdick, Mrs. M. H. Bartlett and Miss Juliette Richmond of Griswold are cousins. Her husband is a nephew of Fred Edmond of Pachaug and is employed in a Waterbury bank. Mrs. Edmond's body is to be brought to Pachaug cemetery for burial.

Pachaug grange whist club met Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Chesbro. Prizes went to Mrs. Jane Lester, Mrs. Arthur Park, Mrs. Chesbro, Frank Morgan, George Beaulieu and Everett Whipple. The door prize was awarded George Beaulieu. Sandwiches, salads, cookies and coffee were served.

The World Wide Guild girls held their meeting and Christmas party in the Baptist vestry Tuesday evening with thirteen present. The vice president, Ruby Gray, presided. The subject discussed was Doctors and Nurses. The theme was Christ's value of human life, showing the cheapness of human life in non-Christian religions. Each member gave information on the subject. A Christmas tree, gaily lighted and decorated held a gift from each girl to another member. Potato and cabbage salads, Saratoga chips, sandwiches, relishes, cocoa, cookies and stuffed dates were served.

A Christmas social is to follow the meeting of Faith chapter, O. E. S., tonight (Thursday).

Officers Re-elected

Dorcas circle of the King's Daughters met with Mrs. Walter Marsh on Tuesday evening. Reports from the sick committee, of the Thanksgiving baskets and other remembrances, and of the tuberculosis fund were given. Mrs. E. H. Hiscox was appointed to have charge of the disbursement of this fund. Committees were appointed by the leader, Miss Burdick, for the celebration of this circle's twenty-fifth birthday. The officers re-elected were: Leader, Miss M. A. Burdick; vice leader, Mrs. F. E. Robinson; secretary, Mrs. Alice Anthony, and treasurer, Miss Bertha Davis. Picture books were made to be sent to a children's hospital. Miss Christine Marshall served tea, cheese crackers and cookies.

Delinquent borough taxes must be paid before Jan. 1, 1931.—adv.

WINDHAM

The Second church night supper and social was held Friday night with about 100 in attendance. A fine supper of beans, sliced corn beef, cabbage salad, relishes, rolls, cake and coffee, served at 6:30, was in charge of Mrs. H. C. Lathrop and was followed by a program in which violin and piano solos by Mr. O'Brien and Mr. Shippee of Vaus orchestra of Willimantic were enjoyed. Three sets of movie pictures were shown. The remainder of the program was given by Jack Holland of Plainfield who came highly recommended by Rev. William C. Prentiss of the Plainfield Congregational church. Mr. Holland's ventriloquist act with the talking dolls was good, but his other numbers were better suited for the vaudeville stage than a church entertainment.

Miss Sara Johnson and Isaac H. Johnson were guests of Mrs. Oliver Johnson of Norwich from Friday to Sunday and attended the Meader concert in Slater hall Friday evening.

About 35 were present at St. Paul's church Sunday afternoon including Allan Can in charge of the Hebron church and a party of his young people.

The December meeting of the South Windham and Windham's Community club was held in South Windham Monday night. The H. B.'s met with Mrs. F. E. Guild and enjoyed a creamed chicken supper.

At the Congregational church Sunday, Rev. E. F. Smiley observed extension Sunday by speaking of missionary work in Africa. Miss Margaret Bixby sang during the offertory "Thy Will Be Done." There were about 50 present. The C. E. meeting was led by the president of Willimantic C. E. union, George Nelson, of Andover, who gave an interesting talk on the topic for the evening, "The Best Christmas Gifts." A carol was sung by Mrs. Homer L. Wood, Margaret Bixby, Margaret Barstow and Lucille Griggs with Gertrude Arnold at the piano. At the business meeting which followed in charge of the president, Mrs. DeWitt Lathrop, it was voted to give $15 to the Willimantic Welfare bureau for its Christmas work and to pay the $20 dues to the state union. There is $62 in the treasury.

Miss Sara Johnson motored to Boston Monday with Mrs. Franklin P. Lombard and visited her nephew, Wallace Kelley and family in Winthrop, Mass., until Wednesday.

George Fuller of New York was the week end guest of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Woods.

The December meeting of Windham Home Economics group, Mrs. J. Raymond Smith, president, will meet Friday at 10:30 to consider seating chairs and refinishing furniture.

The meeting of the League of Women Voters for December will be held with Miss Dorothy Brown this (Thursday) afternoon. Miss Sally Fanny Gleaton of Hartford, state field secretary, will be present and each member may bring a guest. Tea will be served.

FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE SERUM TESTED IN BRITAIN

STOCKTON, England—(AP)—A new serum, with which it is hoped to eliminate wholesale slaughter of cattle affected with foot and mouth disease, is being tested by the ministry of agriculture. The serum was developed by continental livestock authorities.

Through development of the vaccination methods the authorities hope to save farmers the heavy loss caused by the killing of animals infected by the disease.

It is said the serum, made from the blood of a live animal which has suffered from the disease, possesses definite preventive qualities. Healthy cattle will be inoculated and watched to see whether the disease spreads.

Plant Pastures in Louisiana

BATON ROUGE, La.—(AP)—A large acreage planted in pasture crops in Louisiana this year is reported by J. R. Ricks of the United States department of agriculture. The drought is seen as the cause of the large acreage.

Shipments of dairy products from Duluth, Minn., to lower lake ports have increased 700 per cent in the last decade.

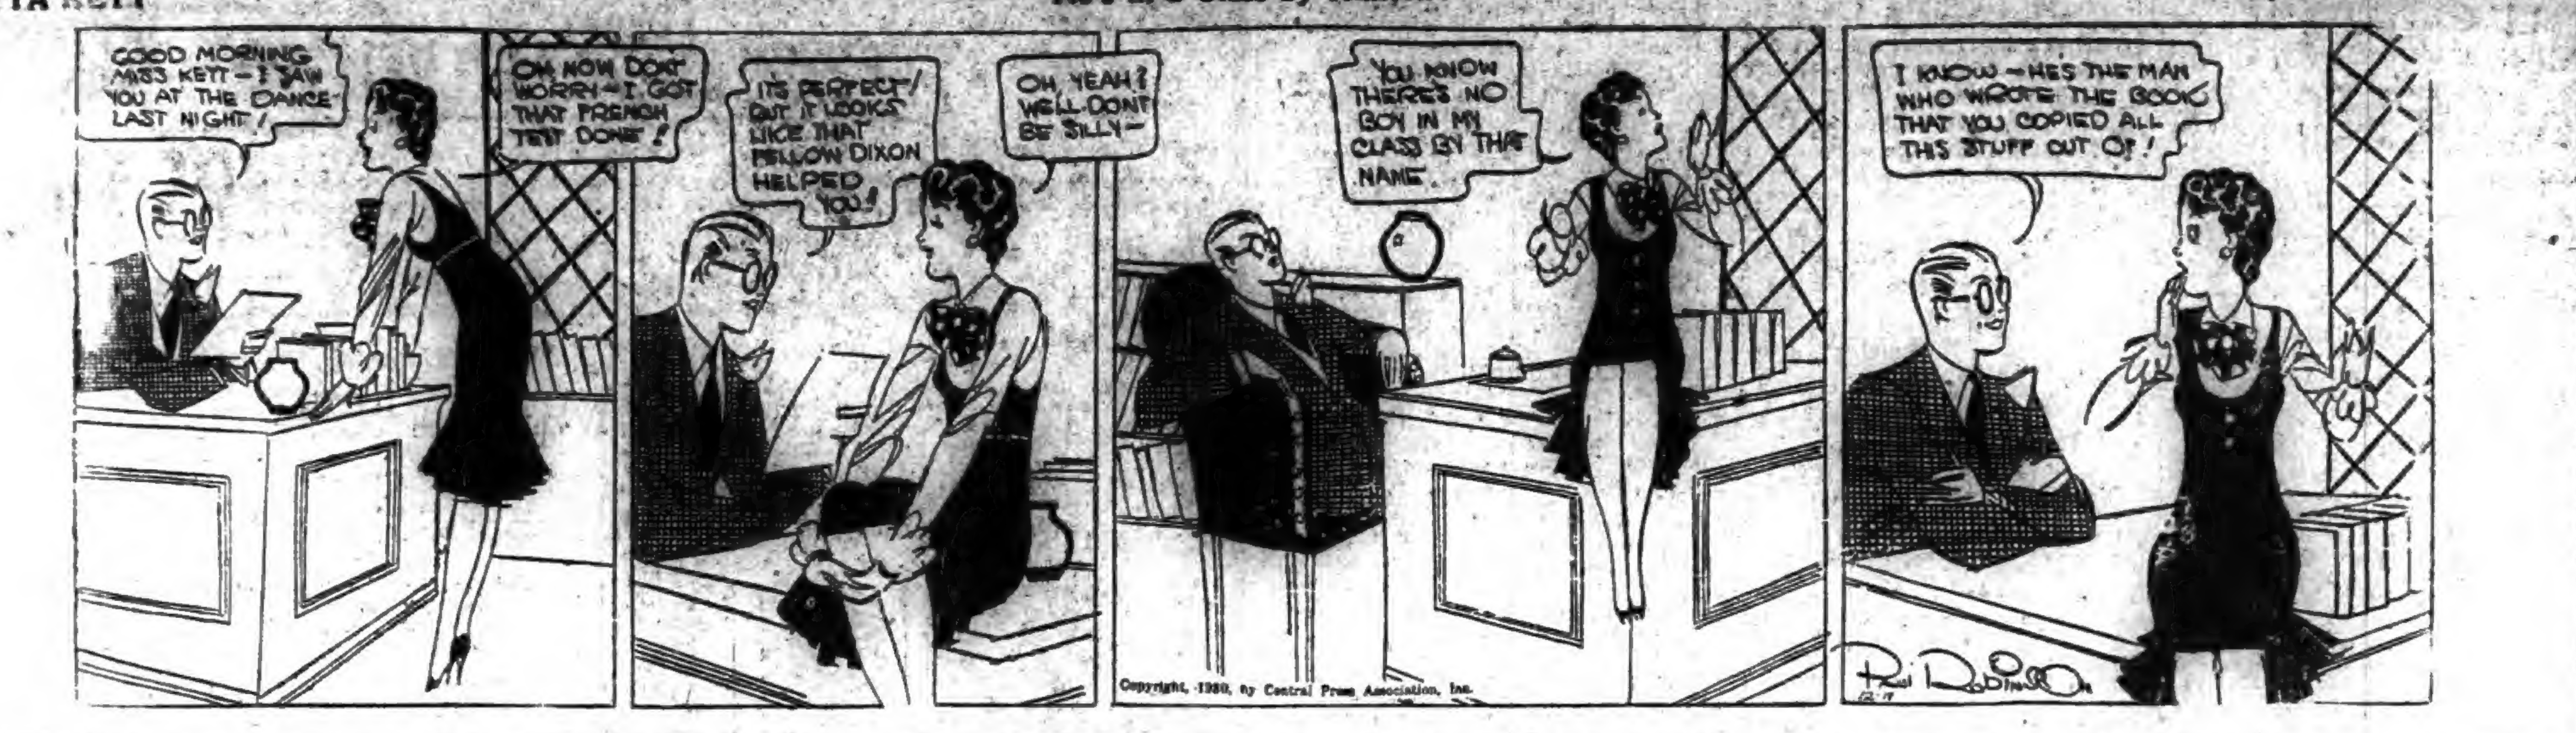
ETTA KETT He's in a Class by Himself! —By PAUL ROBINSON



GOOD MORNING MISS KETT—I SAW YOU AT THE DANCE LAST NIGHT!
OH NOW DON'T WORRY—I GOT THAT FRENCH TEST DONE!
IT'S PERFECT! BUT IT LOOKS LIKE THAT FELLOW DIXON HELPED YOU!
OH, YEAH? WELL DON'T BE SILLY—
YOU KNOW THERE'S NO BOY IN MY CLASS BY THAT NAME.
I KNOW—HE'S THE MAN WHO WROTE THE BOOK THAT YOU COPIED ALL THIS STUFF OUT OF!

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Military Ball at Armory.

Word has arrived at Captain Meredith Lee's headquarters in the local state armory, that Colonel M. J. Mongensen will positively be able to attend the formal military ball, at the armory Friday evening as guest of honor

A welcoming committee is being formed headed by Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert to meet the famous soldier. A buffet supper will be tendered the colonel at Mrs. Gilbert's home from which the party will proceed to the armory for the ball. Those in attendance at the supper will be Mr. and Mrs. Briggs, Mr. and Mrs. Aurin E. Payson, Mr. and Mrs. Perkins and Capt. Meredith Lee.

The mayor and first selectman and their wives together with Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert head the list of patrons and patronesses of the ball. Reserved tables are being placed around the dance floor to enable better and more comfortable viewing of the floor show

There follows a partial list of those who will grace the ball with their presence: Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Robbins, Mr. and Mrs. William Murray, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert, Major Schroeder of New London, Captain Rice of New London, Mr. and Mrs. Lee of New London, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Perkins, Mr. and Mrs. Ricketson, Mr. and Mrs. Atwood, Mr. and Mrs. Briggs, Mr. and Mrs. Snow, Mr. MacGreagory and Miss Johnson and party, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Camp, Mr. and Mrs. B. Ferguson, Mr. Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Jewett, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Parker, Miss Bundy and Mr. and Mrs. Storer.

There are still a few table reservations left that may be had by calling Sergeant Malcolm at the armory, 2771 or 2790.

Palace Theatre

Now playing at the Palace theatre one of the strongest double bills yet offered to the patrons of this theatre headed by the great Joe Cook in Rain or Shine.

Joe Cook is an amazing personality. He is something distinctly different and altogether refreshing. He is an aggregation of stars. When single-handed he attempts to replace the entire personnel of a three-ring circus, and does it successfully, too, the spectators' emotions were a complication of hilarity and amazement.

Louise Fazenda plays one of those exaggerated comedy roles for which she is famous. It is a masterpiece in caricature. Teamed with the ridiculous antics of Tom Howard, it is a delight to behold. On the same bill, James Oliver Curwood's greatest story of the great northwest is brought to the living screen in River's End. River's End is the story of a man falsely accused of murder who takes another man's name and position and eventually his romance, and then learns that the man he impersonates is a scoundrel. Powerless to prove himself decent without laying himself open to the charge of murder, this man finds himself in as strange a predicament as a man ever faced.

Out of this unusual situation Curwood has woven a spectacular story that will never be forgotten by those who see it at the Palace theatre.

Broadway Theatre

Definitely cataloging herself as a most versatile actress, Lupe Velez was seen yesterday in her latest role, that of Ming Toy, a Chinese girl, in "East Is West," which opened at the Broadway theatre for a three days' stay.

In the past Lupe has been seen as a Mexican, a Spaniard, a South American, a French girl and a Canadian, but this latest role definitely proves her ability as a delineator of difficult and decidedly varied types.

Based on the Fay Bainter stage success of the same name in which that famous actress played for three years "East Is West" proves a charming story of a little Chinese girl who is purchased from a love boat in China by an American youth and set free in the United States. Here she falls in love with her benefactor and he with her. The natural complications and prejudices against an inter-racial marriage are brought up by the boy's wealthy family but they, too, are won over by the genuine sweetness and charm of Ming Toy.

Lewis Ayres, the boy who leaped to fame overnight as Paul Baumer in "All Quiet on the Western Front," plays the role of Bull Benson, the American youth, with modest grace and real sincerity. This is his first romantic lead and he scores a great hit.

The third principal in this story of China and San Francisco, the menacing Oriental, is furnished by that sterling character actor, Edward G. Robinson, who, as Charlie Yong, rules Chinatown but cannot manage Ming Toy. Robinson gives a wonderful performance.

MANSFIELD DEPOT

Climax chapter, O. E. S., is to have its annual Christmas tree Dec. 17 in the Masonic hall, Merrow.

On Hospital Committee

Rev. and Mrs. F. N. Howell and Miss Margaret Jacobson of Merrow are canvassing this part of the town for contributions for the Windham Community Memorial hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Hansen, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hansen attended the funeral of Mr. Hansen's brother-in-law, Anthony Jacobson, in Stafford Wednesday afternoon.

Harvey Gergler has returned to his work at the Mansfield State hospital and training school, after several weeks' illness.

Mrs. E. B. Thompson was in Palmer Friday on business.

Nineteen members of Climax chapter, O. E. S., attended the meeting in Manchester at the Masonic hall Saturday evening, when the grand officers put on the initiation works.

Mrs. Grace Perkins, Miss Eva Perkins and Mrs. Brown of Mystic spent the week end at the Corbitt home.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Baggs and son, John, of New Haven, were at their home here over the week end.

"John," exclaimed the nervous woman, "there's a burglar trying to get into the flat."

"I'll get up and give him the fight of his life."

"Aren't you afraid?"

"Not a bit. Any burglar who thinks this flat can hold all three of us must be a little bit of a fellow"—Exchange.

MRS. SHANKEL'S BOOZE SUIT-CASE GETS HER INTO JAIL AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 10.—The arrest at Fort Wright, Fishers Island, yesterday, of Mrs. Edna Marie Shankel colored, of 62 Scott street, Norwich, charged with violation of the liquor law, has resulted in two additional arrests. Private Irving Benwal, stationed at Fort Wright, is locked up at the guard house there, charged with violation of the liquor law, and Vincenzo Decrescenzo, 17 Cottage street, is also under arrest, charged on three counts of liquor law violation, possession, reputation and transportation. Benwal will be given a court martial. Mrs. Shankel, estranged wife of James Shankel, of 669 Main street, this city, and Decrescenzo were presented in the police court this morning and their cases were continued until tomorrow. Decrescenzo obtained a surety on his bond of $1,000, but Mrs. Shankel, who is but 28, was unable to obtain a bondsman and went to jail. Decrescenzo was arrested this morning at the store of Joseph Littin, Colt street, by Sergeant John Courtney as a result of statements made by Mrs. Shankel. The woman, who said that she had been employed from time to time by Decrescenzo doing housework, was requested yesterday to deliver a suitcase to a soldier at Fort Wright. The soldier, known as "Blondy," was Benwal. Mrs. Shankel said that she was given $4 to perform the errand and carried the suitcase, which contained 21 pints of alcohol, to the government pier, where she boarded a transport. After arriving at Fort Wright and walking along the highway a short distance she met Benwal, who was in an automobile. She entered the car and was driven to the military field, where Benwal alighted and carried the grip and its contents to one of the buildings. Benwal had been suspected for some time of bootlegging at the post and yesterday, when he was overheard to remark that he anticipated a visitor from New London he was shadowed. As soon as Benwal placed the grip in the building, an officer examined its contents and the existence of the alcohol was revealed. Benwal was arrested, as was Mrs. Shankel. The latter was brought to New London by Lieutenant Schwackenberg and was locked up at police headquarters. It was intended that Mrs. Shankel should be taken to New York for trial, as Fishers Island is in New York state jurisdiction. When the state police of New York were requested to take charge of the woman they refused to do so because of that department not handling liquor cases. Mrs. Shankel was rearrested, as was Decrescenzo. The alcohol delivered by Mrs. Shankel at Fort Wright was returned to New London today and will be used as evidence against the woman and the bootlegger.

Israel Heskt, of Norwich, and Libby C. Glick, of Worcester, Mass., have filed marriage intentions at the office of the city clerk.

Brainard lodge, No. 102, A. F. & A. M., held its meeting last night and elected the following officers: Master, Roger N. Daboll; senior warden, Bertram F. Bruce; junior warden, Edmund H. Chidsey; treasurer, Malcolm M. Scott; secretary, Frederick W. Edgerton; trustees, Carey Congdon, Francis Allanach, Charles F. Potter. The following officers were appointed: Senior deacon, John A. Harvey; junior deacon, Lloyd E. Gallup; senior steward, Frank S. DuBois; chaplain, Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth; associate chaplain, William E. Greene; tyler, David Conner. The elective and appointive officers were installed by Worshipful Colin S. Buell, with Worshipful Henry R. Tisdale officiating as grand marshal. Mr. Daboll was presented a past master's jewel and a life button and certificate.

Mrs. Bernard Hendel and infant son, 87 Garfield avenue; Mrs. Albert Hauschild and infant daughter, 343 Broad street, Groton; Mrs. Russell Stanton and infant daughter, 25 Prospect street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Mary E. Fox

Mrs. Mary E. Fox, about 76, died this morning at her residence, Clark lane, Waterford. She had been ill for many weeks. Mrs. Fox is survived by three brothers, James and Stephen Miner, of this city, and John Miner, of Waterford. She was born in East Lyme, but had resided in Waterford many years. Mrs. Fox was a member of the Woman's Relief corps of this city.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of three more licenses of automobile drivers. The drivers are Perley Lubrey, 109 Golden street; Samuel Violette, 66 Lewis street, and Hubert Shattuck, Submarine base.

Knocked Down by Car

An automobile driven by James E. Bliven, of the Golden Spur, East Lyme, hit and painfully injured James McTough, 55, of 55 Prest street, this morning when the pedestrian was attempting to cross the highway at the junction of Jefferson and Garfield avenues. McTough was knocked down and when taken to the office of a physician it was ascertained that he had received numerous bruises and scratches. He was given medical treatment and then was taken to his home.

Smoker Blamed for Fire

A wooden storehouse of the Onandaga Mills, Inc., 82 Trumbull street, was damaged by fire, as were machinery and stock, this morning. The loss is estimated at more than $3,000. How the fire originated is not known, but it is believed it was caused by a careless smoker dropping a lighted match or cigarette butt among the inflammable stock. The fire was discovered about 11:30 o'clock when the entire interior of the building was a mass of flame. An alarm was sent in from Box 521, corner of Smith and Trumbull streets. Chief Thomas Shipman and four pieces of apparatus responded. When the firemen arrived the flames had made their way through the roof and, fanned by a strong wind, it was believed that the structure and its contents would be destroyed. Two streams of water were emptied into the building and after a half hour's work the fire was subdued.

GERWATOSKI BOUND OVER— WIFE FREED OF ARSON CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 10.—Anthony and Anna Gerwatoski, husband and wife, residing at 45 Terrace avenue, were in the police court this morning charged with arson. Gerwatoski pleaded not guilty, but probable cause was found and he was held for trial at the next term of the superior court in bail of $2,500. His wife was given a nolle. Fire Marshal Calvin D. Edmunds and the officers who arrested Gerwatoski were the principal witnesses. Edmunds testified to responding to a still alarm for a fire at the Gerwatoski residence at 2 o'clock in the morning of Dec. 4 and to finding rugs saturated with kerosene in the room where the fire originated. He also testified to finding a gallon can partially filled with the liquid in a closet adjoining the room. The fire caused damage of about $1,200. Gerwatoski's only explanation of how the fire was caused was that a kerosene stove exploded. The stove, which Edmunds claimed had not been used in a long time, as well as the rugs, are held as evidence against Gerwatoski. The fire broke out about 2 o'clock in the morning. Gerwatoski claims to have discovered the fire when he was aroused by his room being filled with smoke. He arose and then aroused the other occupants of the sleeping rooms, then traveling several blocks to the fire house of Thomas Hose company to summon assistance, although he failed to use a telephone which was on the same floor where the fire raged. Arriving at the hose house, Gerwatoski was unable to make his alarm at the entrance heard and he sought and found Patrolman John Clifford a block away. The officer went to the hose house and had an alarm given, also causing the company to respond. When the firemen arrived one room in the house was a mass of flames. In the meantime a neighbor of Gerwatoski's had telephoned to fire headquarters, Fire Marshal Edmunds responding. When that official entered the house he declares that he detected a strong odor of kerosene and after the fire was extinguished it was evident that the rugs had been drenched with the liquid.

EDWARD NEFF HELD IN JAIL IN WALSH THEFT CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 10—Eight men, practically all of the bum type, rounded up in connection with the theft of $325, jewelry and negotiable stocks and bonds from the home of Mrs. Richard Walsh, 29 Golden street, were in the police court this morning, but as the crime was fastened upon one of the outfit, the others were charged with intoxication or vagrancy. Edward Neff, who describes himself as a fisherman and who was specifically charged with the theft, pleaded not guilty; but the testimony was of such a convincing nature, that Judge Daniel M. Cronin found probable cause and held Neff for trial at the next term of the superior court. He was unable to provide a surety on his bond of $2,500 and was committed to jail, from where he was released only last Saturday, after having served a sentence for theft. He had been arrested 12 times. One of the gang, Edward Foley, a laborer, who has been arrested six times, was charged with intoxication. He was sentenced to 30 days in jail. Foley informed the court that he had employment to go to in Norwich, where he was one of 16 to report for work today. His utterance was considered a wilful falsehood and Foley was informed that his employment for the next month would not be in Norwich, but at the county jail. The others, practically all of the type who refuse to work and spend the greater part of their time loitering and drinking, were given suspension of judgment. Daniel Reddy, arrested 14 times; George Hapeney, arrested 10 times; Martin Healy, Joseph King, Charles Grossley and James McArdle were the men to obtain their freedom.

Mrs. Walsh testified to the ownership of the money, jewelry, stocks and bonds. The local officers testified to the round-up of the gang, more particularly the arrest of Neff and the finding of $182 and jewelry, which was identified by Mrs. Walsh as a part of the stolen cash and valuables, on the person of the accused, also to recovering about $100, which Neff had given Isaac Katz, proprietor of a 25-cent lodging house on John street.

Neff obtained knowledge of the money, jewelry and papers being in a grip in a closet off a living room in the Walsh apartment and yesterday went there. During the absence of members of the household from the room, Neff succeeded in finding the key to the closet on a sideboard, unlocked the door and removed the grip. After leaving the house he went to 75 Union street, where he entered the garage of Charles Serafin and there removed all the cash, excepting $50, which Neff evidently overlooked in his haste, and fled. He was seen departing by Mrs. Serafin, who investigated and then informed the police. Mrs. Serafin provided the police with an excellent description of the thief and a round-up of the North Bank street gang was made. George Branch, employed by the Corticelli Silk company, had informed the police that he had observed two men counting a large sum of money on North Bank street, corner of John street and officers ascertained that the men were Neff and Hapeney. They were arrested at the Katz rooming house.

John Wawrishuk charged with intoxication and breach of the peace was fined $25 and costs. Wawrishuk went to the home of Helen Ustch, 37 John street, last evening and created such a disturbance and abused Mrs. Utsch to such an extent that the woman sought and obtained the man's arrest.

A man, charged with intoxication, was fined $5 and costs. He was arrested on State street last night by Patrolmen Harold Goldberg and Braxton Hill.

FISHING BOAT ESTELLE LOOTED BY HARBOR THIEVES

River pirates have renewed their activities in the local harbor and last night, between 6 and 7, the pirates operated a boat to the wharf of the Central Coal company, where they boarded the fishing boat, "Estelle," which was moored at the pier. Entrance to the cabin was forced and a pair of blankets and a compass valued at $40 was stolen. When Capt. Warren Maynard, 14 Braemer place, returned to the boat he discovered the theft and reported it at police headquarters. An investigation revealed that the thieves also stole a quantity of coal for about a half peck of the fuel was found scattered on the deck of the fishing boat, it having been dropped there as the pirates carted the coal to their own boat. Last night Carmelio Grillo, 33 Orchard street, made complaint to the police that his sloop, which is moored at the Chappell Lumber dock had been broken into twice since Saturday, the last theft from the boat having been committed about 6 o'clock Tuesday evening when the cabin was forced and articles of apparel were stolen.

GREAT RUSH FOR WOOD FROM NINE LIGHTERS

The deserving needy of the city were given fuel today for the cargo of timber of nine lighters of the Merritt-Chapman-Scott company, were distributed to men, women and children. The wood, the remains of dismantled piers at Fire Island and piling, was brought into port and unloaded at the Thames River line pier, where the wood was taken away by men, women and children. In some instances fuel was provided families that will provide heat for the remainder of the winter. Several additional barges will be brought into port again tomorrow and this means the distribution of several more tons of fuel to the needy families. So great was the throng of men and women at the pier that police were kept on duty there the entire day.

But one prisoner was locked up at police headquarters tonight. He went to police headquarters seeking lodging and as he was drunk he was locked up by Desk Sergeant Frank Howard.

Frank DiMaggio is confined to his home on Montauk avenue by illness.

A year ago, Dec. 11, the ground was covered with snow and the weather was very different from that prevailing today. Snow just now would mean work for many, since idle men could earn a few dollars with shovels.

There was a greater number of barges, light and laden, in the harbor today than have been seen here in many days. The former were coming from the eastward and the heavy coal carriers were bound to ports east of New London. Towboat men have complained of late that so much coal was carried by the colliers that there was slack business for the barges. Coal-carrying schooners have almost disappeared from the trade.

Notwithstanding the season of the raccoon is here, there have been no captures noted among the hunters. In former years the markets made a display of coons that was very attractive.

The police of Springfield, Mass., this evening requested the New London police to be on the lookout for a Dodge roadster stolen in the former city earlier in the night.

NOANK

Wednesday was donation day for the Home Service committee. A house-to-house canvass of the village was made by the workers. Clothing, food and canned goods were donated. These articles will be placed in a vacant store on Main street and will be distributed to needy families in the village during the winter. The workers were: Miss Annie Daboll, Mrs. Lars Thorsen, Mrs. O. W. Hendrickson, Mrs. Jessie Smith, Mrs. Josephine Tourjee, Mrs. Alice Chester, Mrs. Charles Jenssen, Miss Charlotte Morgan, Mrs. George C. Lane, Mrs. Charles Cox, Mrs. E. P. Fitch, Mrs. William I. Spicer, Mrs. Jens Jenssen, Mrs. Peter J. Shandeor and Mrs. Moses W. Rathbun.

Miss Annie C. Spicer has returned, after spending several days at Atlantic City.

John Lane, of New London, was here Wednesday.

Work is progressing on the new highway and bridge which will span the railroad tracks and eliminate the two grade railroad crossings at Main street and Spicer avenue. Carpenters are being engaged in making forms for the cement to be used on the bridge.

John Loftus, of New London, was a caller here Wednesday.

The meeting and Christmas party of Mizpah class of the Baptist church will be held with Mrs. Ada Fitch, of Smith court, Friday afternoon at 5:30. There will be a covered dish supper. Each member is to bring a gift and the gifts will be exchanged among the members.

Miss Sara Ellis has returned to East Greenwich.

The True Blue Sewing society will hold an all-day session today (Thursday). Following dinner, the afternoon will be spent in tying quilts.

Henry Lemay, of Providence, has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Camille Benoit.

Mrs. Raymond Fowler and daughter have returned, after a lengthy visit with relatives at Boston.

Past Councilors' Visit

When Washington council, Junior O. U. A. M., met Tuesday evening, guests were present from New London and Stonington. The past councilors' association was entertained at this meeting. At the close of the business session a smoker and pinochle was enjoyed.

Mrs. John Palin and Mrs. Lester Derrick, of Providence, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Park.

The Bridge club will meet at the home of Miss Rose Brothers Friday evening.

Jerry Bacon Returns

Jerry Bacon has returned, after spending several months' vacation in Havana, Cuba.

Mrs. Lois B. Shandeor has returned from Providence.

POETRY

Hymn Of The Earth

My highway is unfeatured air,
My consorts are the sleepless stars,
And men my giant arms upbear—
My arms unstained and free from scare.

I rest forever on my way,
Boiling around the happy sun;
My children love the sunny day,
But noon and night to me are one.

My heart has pulses like their own,
I am their mother, and my veins,
Though built of the enduring stone,
Thrill as do theirs with godlike pains

The forests and the mountains high
The foaming ocean and the springs,
The plains—O pleasant company,
My voice through all your anthem rings.

Ye are so cheerful in your minds,
Content to smile, content to share,
My being in your chorus finds
The echo of the spheral air.

No leaf may fall, no pebble roll,
No drop of water lose the road;
The issues of the general soul
Are mirrored in its round abode.

—WILLIAM ELLERY CHANNING

She Came And Went

As a twig trembles, which a bird
Lights on to sing, then leaves unbent,
So is my memory thrilled and stirred—
I only know she came and went.

As clasps some lake, by gusts unriven,
The blue dome's measureless content,
So my soul held that moment's heaven—
I only know she came and went.

As at one bound, our swift spring heaps
The orchards full of bloom and scent,
So clove her May my wintry sleeps—
I only know she came and went.

An angel stood and met my gaze,
Through the low doorway of my tent;
The tent is struck, the vision stays—
I only know she came and went.

Oh, when the room grows slowly dim,
And life's last oil is nearly spent,
One gush of light these eyes will brim,
Only to think she came and went.

—James Russell Lowell.

Grocer—No, sir. I prefer cash, and that's what I had him brought here for.—The Pathfinder.

Wifie—I've bought you a beautiful surprise for your birthday—it has just arrived.

Husband—I am curious to see it.

Wifie—Wait a minute and I will put it on.—Passing Show.

"Do you wish the court to understand that you refuse to renew your dog license?"

"Yes, your worship, but—"

"We want no 'buts.' You will be fined. You know the license has expired."

"Yes, and so has the dog."—Optimist.

A new system of memory training was being taught in a village school, and the teacher was becoming enthusiastic.

"For instance," he said, "supposing you want to remember the name of a poet—Bobby Burns. Fix in your mind's eye a picture of a policeman in flames. See—Bobby Burns?"

"Yes, I see," said a bright pupil. "But how is anyone to know it does not represent Robert Browning?"—Punch.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Walter E. Lanphear

Mrs. Alida Martin Lanphear, wife of Rev. Walter E. Lanphear, died at Melbourne, Florida, early Sunday evening. Mrs. Lanphear was stricken with a shock Monday evening, Dec. 1st, remaining unconscious until her death. She was born in Chaplin when she spent her early life until the marriage with Rev. Mr. Lanphear. She was highly esteemed by a host of friends in town and other places where she had been a loyal helper in Rev. Mr. Lanphear's ministry. The heartfelt sympathy of all goes out to Rev. Mr. Lanphear and relatives in their bereavement. The body is to be brought to Chaplin for the funeral service and burial.

A union C. E. meeting comprising the societies of Windham, Scotland, Mansfield Center, North Windham and Chaplin will be held with the local society, Sunday evening, at 7.30. An interesting feature will be a debate between Rev. William D. Pardee and Rev. E. C. Prettyman of New Haven, representing the Conn. Temperance and Anti-Saloon league. They will give first hand information they have gained in their work throughout the state in the interests of temperance and prohibition. It is hoped a large number will attend the meeting.

Patients At Hospital

Two Airlie mills employes, George Brennan and Joseph Carter, are undergoing treatment at the W. W. Backus hospital. Mr. Carter is circulating about the ward in a wheel chair. Mr. Brennan is not quite strong enough yet to leave his bed, but is very contented and hopeful.

Mrs. Emma Sims has practically recovered from an accident by scalds from hot water spilling on to her some time ago, but finds herself quite weakened from being obliged to lie in bed for so long. Her strength is coming back slowly, however.

The Story Hour circle will meet Friday afternoon immediately after the closing of the schools. The attendance has been so large lately that it has become necessary to divide into two groups. The younger ones now go to the home of Judge Adams with Mrs. Adams for leader, Mrs. Stone retaining the older ones at the parsonage. The Daughters of the Covenant, who meet Friday evenings, as their last work have been pasting colored pictures on cards and making scrap-books which have been taken to the W. W. TAFTVILLE

David Lambert and Henry Phaneuf of South A street, Ralph C. Dion and Edmond Proulx of Hunters avenue were in Willimantic early in the week to transact some business for the St. Jean Baptiste society.

Each year the south side of the village suffers an invasion of the skunks which march down from the lots and take possession of that section of the town. In former days they got into the closed gutters and pedestrians who were out in the evening always passed the gutter-openings with fear and trembling. Edward Duprey of South B street, veteran sportsman and trapper states that skunk pelts are prime about November 15th. If the skunks realized this they would probably not stage their invasion at just this time of the year.

The Basketry club has organized for the season and is holding its meetings Thursday evenings in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah community building.

NORWICH TOWN

William Weaver, of Huntington Green, is general chairman of a clam chowder supper planned by the Ladies' Aid society of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Norwich Town. The clams were generously donated through the kindness of Captain Lucius H. Wilcox, now at Osgood's wharf. When Captain Wilcox was solicited for a contribution to the painting fund of this church, he responded in this way. He also is to provide a man to make the chowder, as well as assisting in other ways.

A large number of Norwich Town people attended the Social Corner dinner Wednesday at the Y. M. C. A rooms in Willimantic. Club No. 1 entertained with a very fine dinner, served under the direction of Mrs. Mott (Too Late). Following the dinner a Christmas party was held in place of the usual program. Each person who brought a gift received one in return.

NORTH STONINGTON LUCKIES RECEIVE RECORD BOOKS

A very interesting meeting of the Luckies club of North Stonington was held last week at the home of Miss Ruth Cryder, which was the first meeting presided over by the newly-elected officers.

Communications from County Club Leader Miss Elizabeth Grover were read and discussed. New record books were given to each girl in the club to be kept for the following year. Each girl is striving to make this year's record the best ever.

After the business meeting, an interesting program was carried out by two of the club girls, as follows: Piano selection, Mrs. Cryder; reading of jokes, Merle Elias; Plowing song by club; reading of a week's diary, written by all those present. At the close of the social program birthday gifts were presented Miss Merle Elias and Miss Ruth Cryder, after which two very prettily decorated birthday cakes and other refreshments were enjoyed.

SETTLEMENT IN $15,000 SUIT OUT OF COURT

The $15,000 damage suit brought by Frank Crandall of Groton against Margaret C. Newton of West Hartford has been settled out of court. Announcement was made in the superiour court here Wednesday where the case was scheduled for trial.

Crandall sued for damages as a result of injuries received when the defendant's automobile collided with his motorcycle on the Boston Post road, May 28, 1930.

TROOP INVESTITURE AND AWARDS MADE AT SCOUT HONOR COURT

Boy Scouts were given the privilege Wednesday night of holding their court of honor in the council chambers at the courthouse where hang the portraits done in oil of many of the leading citizens of Norwich in years gone by. Principal H. A. Tirrell, in welcoming the guests and scouts, called attention to the gallery of faces of mayors who had served their city and expressed the hope that these faces would remind the scouts that they too must become servants of their city.

Scout Executive John L. Sellman conducted the investiture ceremonies for tenderfoot scouts from the new Elizabeth Street school troop of which Frank P. Allen is scoutmaster and of the new Community Synagogue troop of which Harry Schwartz is chairman and of tenderfoot scouts of Troop 9. The scouts pledged themselves to try to live up to their oath, which says: "On my honor I will do my best to do my duty to God and my country, to help other people at all times, to keep myself physically fit, mentally awake, and morally straight."

The award for first class scout rank was granted to Scouts W. Kinney, R. Edmond, A. Bennett, W. Prothero, E. Manning, John Friswell, W. Johnson, L. Sussman. The award for second class was made to T. Donovan, A. Shefer, J. Schwartz, J. Anderson, L. Peloquin, H. Randall, A. Rondeau and C. Tourtellotte. Scoutmasters A. L. Peale, Walter Weidman, Art Collins, Lloyd Rathbun, H. Downer Johnson, Jr., and Deputy Commissioner William Wyman presented these badges to the scouts and warmly congratulated the boys upon their advancement.

Significant in the program were the awards of merit badges to several scoutleaders: Art Collins of Troop 12 receiving from Principal Tirrell, chairman of the court, merit badges in safety, pathfinding, first aid to animals, plumbing, hiking, reptiles, firemanship, forestry, botany and chemistry; Walter Weidman of Troop 7 receiving merit badges in pathfinding, reptile study, plumbing, electricity, safety, public health, automobiling, carpentry; Frank P. Allen, scoutmaster of the new Elizabeth Street school troop, receiving a merit badge in firemanship; First Class Scout Arthur Bennett of Troop 2 received badges in personal health, public health, first aid, first aid for animals; Star Scout Walter D. Goring received badges in first aid and in handicraft; Second Class Scout Frank Kennedy received a merit badge in cycling, and Second Class Scout W. Strenkowsky received a merit badge in firemanship.

Scout Commissioner A. L. Peale gave the new charter to the Elizabeth Street school troop and Principal Tirrell, following a brief introduction by the scout executive, gave an interesting talk to the scouts on "Learning to Live is More Valuable than Anything Else We Can Learn." He entertained the scouts by showing how it was possible to do large multiplication sums by using the hands.

Following Principal Tirrell's talk, Scout Executive Sellman asked the scouts how many would like to camp out overnight in the new cabin around the great fireplace, listening to stories of adventure. The cheers and cries which came from the scouts made it very plain that the scouts are more desirous than anyone to see the cabin project become a reality. It is estimated that about 150 scouts were present at the court.

Scoutmaster Luther Buell and his scouts from Columbia were given a hand by the scouts and Scoutmaster Burr of Baltic was also welcomed and cheered. Following adjournment of the court, the scoutleaders met for a few moments and decided to make a trip to New London next Wednesday for the sixth session of the training course to observe a good troop in that city.

CLERICUS HELD MEETING AT POMFRET SCHOOL

The clericus of the New London Archdeaconry met Tuesday at Pomfret school, Pomfret.

The opening service, holy communion, was held in the chapel, the officiating clergymen being Rev. George D. Langdon, chaplain of the school, and Rev. Leonard R. Richards, vice-president of the clericus.

After the service the clergy were conducted through the school by the head-master, Hallock Lefferts, and the chaplain.

After the tour of inspection the business meeting was held in the head-master's study, being called to order by the president, Rev. John R. Jones of Danielson. The usual business was transacted and an expression of sympathy for Rev. Thomas Richey of Christ church, Norwich, in his sickness, and of good wishes for his speedy recovery of health, was authorized to be sent him in the form of a telegram.

The meeting adjourned for luncheon in the school dining hall, and immediately afterwards resumed its session.

Books for reading were suggested by those present.

The speaker of the day was Rev. George Dorland Langdon, who gave a profitable and interesting discourse on "The Place of Sacred Studies in the Private Schools."

At its conclusion a discussion of the subject followed, participated in on the part of those present, Hallock Lefferts, head-master, was a guest at the meeting and made some helpful remarks from the layman's point of view in the course of the discussion.

After a rising vote of thanks to the head-master, Mr. Lefferts and Mrs. Lefferts, for their generous hospitality and bounteous luncheon, and to Rev. George D. Langdon, the clericus adjourned to meet at Christ church in Norwich in January.

TITCOMB ASKS SPORTSMEN TO END DEER JACKING

Appealing to sportsmen to put an end to the vandalism of deer "jacking," Supt. John W. Titcomb, of the state board of fisheries and game, calls attention that the annual carnage has been in full swing. To date "deerjackers" in search of their quarry have succeeded in hitting two houses, eight cows, two pigs, four horses, two steers, one heifer and a traveling salesman's thumb, in addition to what illegal game they have obtained, he said.

The state's war on the violators of deer laws has resulted in securing conviction in 46 of the 47 cases brought. Four poachers have already paid $422.86 for their fling at deer hunting, in two towns, two of them having already paid the fines and costs, while two more are awaiting trial in the county jail. Two valiant hunters whose marksmanship permitted them to place bullets between two shining eyes seen through the darkness, bagged a heifer, and with the help of a third man, attempted to take their "game" away, only to be apprehended and assessed $75 for the heifer, with fines and court costs added.

RESTRAINS PROF. HAZELTINE FROM RENO DIVORCE

Prof. Louis A. Hazeltine, 40, of New Jersey, formerly of New London, inventor of radio devices, was under a temporary injunction this week, restraining him from prosecuting a divorce action begun in Reno, Nev.

The restraining order, signed by Vice-Chancellor Fallon, was granted on the application of the wife, Mrs. Phillipine Hazeltone, who declared that her husband had no cause for divorce and is not in fact a resident of Nevada.

Hazeltine charged extreme cruelty in his divorce petition.

Letters accompanying Mrs. Hazeltine's application for the injunction indicated that her husband was seeking a divorce because there are no children.

One letter written by the inventor to his wife asking for his freedom said, "You know I have longed for children of my own, a home, a garden."

Another letter, written by Hazeltine's mother to his wife, asked Mrs. Hazeltine to consent to a divorce, saying, "You have the golden key which unlocks the doors of happiness."

Marriage License Applications

Applications for marriage licenses have been made as follows at the office of Town Clerk Harold S. Burt:

John L. Weaver, weaver, Fitchburg, Mass., and Miss Jeanette Romano, shoe factory operator, 1 McKinley court.

John I. Lundh, physio-theapist, Boston, and Miss Gladys E. Steele, employment work, Somerville, Mass.

CONNECTICUT HAS 5,476 NEW ALIEN RESIDENTS

A total of 5,476 immigrant aliens of all races who gave Connecticut as their state of intended permanent residence entered the country during the fiscal year of 1930, the annual report of Commissioner General of Immigration Harry E. Hull to the secretary of labor reveals.

Of the 5,476 immigrant aliens admitted with the intention of settling in Connecticut, Italians and Irishmen were easily predominant the former numbering 893 and the latter 851. The French, although far below, were next with 764 and the English fourth with 670.

Scotch alien immigrants numbered 640; Germans, 433; Scandinavians, 236; Poles, 245; Hebrews, 144; Slovaks, 188 and Greeks, 60.

Included with the group of immigrants intending to live in the state were four Turks, five Chinese, one Japanese, two Mexicans and nine Negroes.

Of the alien immigrants permitted to enter the country under expressed intention of settling in Connecticut, 169 listed themselves as professional people, 791 as skilled workers, 2,119 as miscellaneous craftsmen and 2,397 as being without occupation.

Leading in the professional group were teachers, numbering 37. Professional engineers totaled 31, clergymen 17, electricians 16, and physicians 10. There were two actors, four architects, one editor, three lawyers, six musicians, and two sculptors and artists.

Included within the list of miscellaneous occupations were 39 agents, two bankers, 247 farmers, 410 farm laborers, 21 fishermen, two hotel keepers, 467 laborers and 740 servants.

FOUR WERE PRESENTED BEFORE LEDYARD COURT

Charged with lascivious carriage, Allen J. Spencer and Everett Sisco, U. S. N., stationed at the submarine base at Groton, Bertha Lopes of Springfield, Mass., and Evelyn Oullette of New Bedford, Mass., were presented early Wednesday evening before Justice of the Peace Walter M. Buckingham in Ledyard town court. Trial of the cases was continued until Thursday afternoon, December 18, at 5:30 o'clock. The accused were represented by a New London lawyer.

The four were arrested Tuesday night by the state police. They are charged with living as married couples in a furnished house in Ledyard. State Police Officer Arthur Kathe arrested the girls and they were held over night at the Norwich police station. The sailors, arrested by State Police Officer Clarence Hoxie, were held at police headquarters in New London.

PARKING SPACES FOR OUT OF TOWN SHOPPERS

Free parking space, through the efforts of the chamber of commerce, is being provided for out of town shoppers, according to an announcement made Wednesday, by the chamber secretary, Miss Mary Bundy. All available sites in the city were inspected and efforts made to obtain them. Two were obtained free of charge.

They are the large parking space owned by the Peter Pan Golf Co., in the rear of the old Masonic building on Broadway, opposite the court house, and the parking space in the rear of the Y. M. C. A. on Main street, opposite the postoffice. About 100 machines can be accommodated. It has been suggested that Norwich people, as far as possible, park their machines off the main streets, in parking places available to them as members of organizations, clubs, etc., thus leaving the streets in the main section of the city open to out of town shoppers.

MOTOR VEHICLE DRIVERS WITH LICENSES SUSPENDED

Motor vehicle operators in New London, Mystic, Jewett City and North Stonington are in the list given out this week by the state motor vehicle department of those having their licenses suspended for a year for driving under the influence of liquor.

The entire list contains 39 names, of which the following are in this part of the state; Pierre Paquette, Jewett City; Victor F. Winkler, Mystic; Josiah Dallas and Stephen L. Dion, New London; John Lynch, North Stonington.

REV. T. M. SHIPHERD TO BE LUNCHEON SPEAKER

Rev. Theodore M. Shipherd, pastor of Park Congregational church, will be the speaker at the annual luncheon of the Connecticut Society of Mayflower Descendants to be held at the Mohican hotel, New London, Saturday, December 20. Luncheon will be preceded by a reception, commencing at 12:30 o'clock. Miss Adelaide Randall of Hartford is in charge of arrangements.

BINGHAM IN OPPOSITION TO JONES BILL IN SENATE

Consuming almost two hours of time Tuesday afternoon at Washington, Senator Hiram Bingham delivered a long and statistically filled speech against the Jones bill to extend the Sheppard-Towner maternal and child welfare federal aid act. During most of the time he addressed an almost empty chamber although the galleries were well filled.

Mr. Bingham concluded his address by presenting a motion that the Jones bill be referred back to the senate commerce committee with the provision that the committee conduct further open hearings on the measure.

Bingham told the senate how Connecticut was opposed to the maternal and child welfare act and read a letter from the state medical society of Connecticut expressing opposition to the bill because "it takes time and effort to correct the actual harm done by the federal aid and we believe the principle of the measure is wrong." Connecticut, the senator declared, was one of those few states which had "declined to accept the federal bribe and preferred to pay for this service out of its own pocket, at the same time contributing its quota in taxation to the money which went into the pockets of people in the other states who accepted the bribe of federal aid to run their welfare legislation as the bureaucrats in Washington wanted it run."

Senator Bingham quoted figures from a large number of states revealing that mortality rates within maternal and infant circles had not decreased so rapidly after, as before the passage of the Sheppard-Towner act and that in many states the mortality rates had even increased under the act. The maternal mortality rate in Connecticut, he pointed out, fell from 57 in 1922 to 54 in 1929 without the assistance of the federal funds.

This statement brought Senator Royal Copeland of New York to his feet with the contention that Connecticut was a wealthy state and did not need the federal aid like the less moneyed commonwealths.

"There is not the same need in Connecticut," Copeland asserted. "I am sure the figures the senator is giving are not convincing."

Bingham declared that he disliked to oppose legislation intended to be of benefit to mothers and infants but that it was the object of those opposing the Jones bill to convince the various states to conduct their own affairs rather than to lean upon the federal government for support. Such legislation as the Jones bill leads constantly to the building up of the power of the bureau in Washington and constantly to the taking away from the states the responsibility which rests upon their citizens for making proper legislation for their own citizens, the senator argued.

"I am merely asking that the federal government get out of the business of telling the states how to raise their own babies," Bingham concluded.

All through Bingham's talk, Senator Frederic C. Walcott sat in the chamber and followed his colleague closely. He refused even to leave the chamber when advised by a page that newspapermen wished to confer with him.

SUGGEST USING $2,000 000 FOR VETERANS' HOME

A legislative programme calling for an expenditure of $2,000,000 for new construction of the Veterans' Home at Noroton was considered at a meeting of the executive committee of the Veterans' Home commission at the state capitol this week. The proposed programme will be presented at a meeting of the commission to be held at Noroton Dec. 16.

Plans have been prepared for additional barracks and hospital space for the home to provide accommodations for 50 veterans in residence at the institution and 260 in the hospital units. There are now on the rolls of the home at present or accounted for 442 veterans, of whom 375 are actually in residence. This is an increase from 117 on July 1, 1929, when the present commission took over the management of the institution.

Eventually, it is believed, the institution will have to be enlarged to care for from 1,200 to 1,500 veterans, but plans now under consideration for presentation to the legislature which will convene in January contemplate enlargement only to provide accommodations for about 750 men. The probable future growth of the hospital is estimated on the number of institutional cases resulting from the Civil war and from the war wth Spain and the number of World war veterans n Connectcut.

WILL CHECK UP LIGHTING OF MACHINES ON ROADS

The lighting system of automobiles operated on Connecticut highways will come in for special attention during the department of motor vehicles regular inspection during the next two weeks, it was announced by the department Tuesday. No general campaign will be started, but cars will be checked up to see that their lights are in good condition and comply with the state law. Except in flagrant cases of violation of the law, operators will be warned and required to report to state authorities with proof that they have had the required repairs or changes made in their lighting equipment.

Special attention will be paid to cars being operated with but one headlight; cars having blinding and improperly adjusted lights; cars with unevenly adjusted lights, and those without tail lights. With the early dusk of the shortest days of the year the department of motor vehicles feels that all car owners should be doubly careful that their lighting equipment is in good shape.

GAVE CHRISTMAS PARTY FOR UNITED CHURCH

A goodly number of the members of the parish of the United Congregational church accepted the invitation of the Woman's guild to a Christmas party Wednesday evening. The church school rooms were beautifully decorated with Christmas greens upon which red candles shed a soft glow. The entertainment was a series of dramatic recitations by Miss Dorothy Berry Carpenter of Boston. These included a short story, two poems, several monologues and a playlet. Most of the selections had a Christmas setting. The last, "Christmas Shopping," arranged by Miss Carpenter herself, aroused much merriment.

Three piano numbers were given by Miss Alice Richardson of Norwich. Refreshments were served by some of the young women of the parish.

BRUSH FIRE SPREAD ON BOSWELL AVE. PROPERTY

At 2.35 o'clock Wednesday afternoon the fire department was called out to extinguish a brush and grass fire on land owned by Mrs. Rachael Peterson and others in the rear of No. 363 Boswell avenue.

Sparks from a brush fire set off by property owners ignited grass in that section, requiring the services of the firemen. Engine No. 2, Squad A and Deputy Chief Dennis J. Brennan responded and stopped the blaze without damage resulting.

FAST TRAVELING WITNESS TWICE STOPPED ON WAY TO COURT HERE

In the trial of the $10,000 damage suit of George A. Beckwith, a New London boiler fireman, against Russell Starkweather of Plainfield, who is employed in a chain store in Southbridge, Mass., the superior court in this city Wednesday spent most of the day waiting for Russell Starkweather to get here from Southbridge.

Starkweather eventually got here at 3:15 in the afternoon, having made the 50 miles in the fast time of 55 minutes including two hold-ups by state police, one at Danielson and the other at Jewett City, to explain the reason for his speed along the road.

Starkweather's presence in court was desired by Attorney G. C. Morgan, counsel for the plaintiff, in order that he might have this defendant and his brother, Homer Starkweather, in court at the same time to be confronted by Mr. Beckwith and Mrs. Beckwith in order to have the Beckwiths say which of the two brothers had been to see them with another man a day or two after the automobile accident in New London on Thanksgiving day, Nov. 28, 1929, which is the basis for this suit.

The morning session of court, at which Judge Ernest A. Inglis is presiding, with a jury hearing the case, was partly occupied with arguments between Attorney Morgan for the plaintiff and Attorney C. Hadlai Hull, for the defendant over the admissibility of evidence tending to show who the two men were who called at the Beckwith house after the accident and there showed an operator's license and car registration, both of which Beckwith claims were in the name of Russell Starkweather. The jury was kept in the jury room while the attorneys were arguing these points, and when the arguments were over a recess was declared which lasted till the arrival of Russell Starkweather in the afternoon.

The Starkweather brothers were seated side by side in the court room and Attorney Morgan had Mr. Beckwith and Mrs. Beckwith look at them to say if either of them had called at the Beckwith house at the specified time. Neither could make the identification nor could Mrs. Beckwith identify Anthony Paine of New London, who, it is admitted, was driving the Starkweather car at the time of the accident.

After some further questioning, Judge Inglis ruled that he would exclude the proposed testimony as to the identity of the man who called at the Beckwith home.

Attorney Morgan tried to have a written description of the Starkweather brothers go into the record, but this was also denied and he declared he would have photographs of the two brothers taken.

With the jury brought back into the court room about 4 o'clock the trial proceeded and Anthony Paine of New London, driver of the Starkweather car at the time of the accident, was called to the stand by Attorney Morgan. He testified that he was employed at a diner in New London where H. Starkweather was also employed. He said he had used the car a few times before the accident, getting it at the diner in New London. On the day of the accident, the witness said he asked Homer if he could have the car and got the key from him. He said he had never seen Russell Starkweather in New London nor until he saw him in court here Tuesday.

Homer C. Starkweather, a grocery clerk at Southbridge, formerly employed at the diner in New London, was the next witness, answering questions by Attorney Morgan as to his use of Russell Starkweather's automobile. He told of Paine asking to borrow the car on Thanksgiving afternoon. The witness said nothing had ever been said by his brother about letting anyone else use the car, and said he took the car down to New London six times, and the longest time he ever had it there was 24 hours.

Court adjourned at 5 o'clock to continue the trial the next day.

HAD EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM FOR ROTARY MEETING

With the educational committee in charge of the meeting the members of the Norwich Rotary club heard some very interesting discourses on the founding and growth of Rotary at the weekly luncheon of the club held Wednesday at the Wauregan hotel. The program was arranged by Christopher M. Gallup, chairman of the educational committee, and the speakers were introduced by Arthur M. Thompson, who is in charge of the December programs. The subjects presented and the speakers were: Origin of Rotary, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell; The First Rotary Platform, Dr. A. C. Freeman; How Rotary Became International, Bruce F. Rogers; Why the Classification and Limited Membership in Rotary, Arnold E. Smith; Rotary Administration, Emery H. Davis; The Story of the Norwich Club, Lucius Briggs.

At the business session, President Harold D. Larrabee presided and Lucius Briggs and Charles E. Taylor were the song leaders.

Another plea was made that the Rotarians and other organizations make a special effort to collect toys and take them to the work shop of the Norwich-New London Sign Co., where the toys will be repaired and painted for distribution to the needy children on Christmas. Mr. Vignot, in speaking of the matter, said that the toys were coming in very slowly and that there must be plenty of these slightly used and discarded toys in the city which will make some children happy. People having toys may call the Boy Scout headquarters or the United Workers and the toys will be called for, or they can leave them at the Y. M. C. A., Scout headquarters, or at Mr. Vignot's shop on Franklin street.

LIQUOR CASES' WITNESS FAILS TO APPEAR

Joseph Zienkowski, 36, and Anna Martell, 22, both of the West Side section of the city, were presented in the city court Wednesday morning on charges of violation of the liquor laws. Their cases had been continued from a previous date and were again continued, as the state was unable to proceed against the accused, due to the absence of the police aide, Patrick Cox, who did the "stool pigeon" work for the police in collecting the evidence for the state. Cox disappeared after the arrests were made and has not yet put in an appearance.

Introduced by Senator Walcott

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Senator Frederic C. Walcott of Connecticut presented the following petitions and resolutions to the senate today:

Resolutions adopted by Eagles' aeries, praying for the passage of a bill for the stabilization of employment.

Petitions from the Women's Christian Temperance union of South Manchester, Connecticut, favoring the enactment of a law for the federal supervision of motion pictures establishing higher standards for production of films that are to be licensed for interstate and international commerce, as provided in the Grant Hudson motion picture bill H. NORTH STONINGTON DAIRY CLUB WILL ELECT

The monthly meeting of the North Stonington Dairy club was held last week at the home of Harold Gray, North Stonington. The meeting was called to order by President Raymond Thorpe. Randolph W. Whaples, county club leader, was present and distributed new record books and membership pins.

Following this, short speeches were made by the members on "The Best Way to Raise Dairy Animals or Poultry." Then it was voted to hold the next meeting at the home of Henry Wheeler Wednesday, Jan. 7. At this meeting the annual election of officers will be held.

The subject for discussion will be, "What I Have Done in Club Work for the Past Month."

WILL DISCUSS DAMAGES TO TREES BY DEER

Many subjects pertaining to forest tree planting, will be discussed at a public conference on Friday at the state capitol, Hartford, according to an announcement by Austin F. Hawes, state forester. The session will open at 10:30 a. m., and Prof. R. C. Hawley of the Yale School of Forestry is the first speaker, his subject being, "Value of Forest Plantations."

Joseph Illick, state forester of Pennsylvania, will talk on the subject, "Can We Have Tree Plantations and Deer?" There is a state-wide interest in this subject, as in some localities the deer are so numerous that they severely damage tree plantations by browsing the new growth each year.

W. O. Filley, forester of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment station, will give his views on "Pure vs. Mixed Planting," and J. A. Gibbs, extension forester, will tell of the causes of failure in forest plantations. R. M. Ross, forester of the Connecticut Forest and Park association, will talk on "The George Washington Bicentennial Tree Planting Campaign." Under the leadership of the American Tree association, it is planned to have 10,000,000 trees planted in the United States during the year 1932, as memorials to George Washington. The conference will decide what part Connecticut will take in this memorial program.

An educational campaign to promote prohibition was advocated in a resolution adopted by the executive committee of the Federal Council of Churches

SENATE VOTES $115,000,000 FOR PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS

Adds $5,000,000 to House Emergency Bill—Money Will Be Spent Only on Projects Already Authorized by Congress—Bill Goes Back to House For Consederation of Amendments—Speaker Longworth is Confident That the House Will Approve a $30,000,000 Drought Relief Bill Instead of the $60,000,000 Measure Passed by the Senate

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—(AP)—The emergency public improvements appropriation was passed late today by the senate as administration leaders undertook new steps for a harmony relief program.

The senate struck from the bill the provision giving President Hoover a free hand in the use of the fund, on motion of Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader. This and other amendments, including an addition of $5,000,000 to the $110,000,000 voted by the house, require reconsideration of the legislation by the house.

The huge fund to be spent on a vast public improvements program throughout the nation will become available immediately upon enactment and final congressional approval is expected by early next week at the latest. Sponsors of the legislation assert it will give immediate employment to thousands.

As the democratic storm in the senate against Mr. Hoover's denunciation of those advocating added relief measures subsided, the republicans went into conference to seek some manner of harmony and cooperation.

Earlier, President Hoover communicated with Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, expressing a desire to send his experts before congress to back up the administration contentions on the extent of the necessity for relief legislation.

Watson called the conference of party leaders when discord developed in the republican ranks. Some held the view that Mr. Hoover should have consulted his party chieftains before issuing the statement he did. Others felt the party should have given a more vigorous defense to the democratic attack.

After the conference, Watson called the president and assured him of cooperation by the party in keeping relief legislation within bounds but also asking him to cooperate with the party on tactics to be pursued in advocating the relief program.

The senate added to the public improvements appropriation measure an amendment by Senator Couzens, republican, Michigan, requiring that contractors using the founds employ only local labor and maintain a wage scale equal to the highest paid in the locality.

An attempt by Senator Connally, democrat, Texas, to liberalize the provisions to permit a direct appropriation of half of the $80,000,000 for federal road aid to the states was rejected, 42 to 32.

Senator Oddie, republican, Nevada, offered the amendment adding $5,000,000 for use in constructing roads on the public domain and Indian reservations.

HOUSE PROBABLY WILL VOTE $30,000,000 FOR DROUGHT RELIEF

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—(AP)—Confidence that the house will approve a $30,000,000 drought relief bill instead of the $60,000,000 measure passed by the senate was expressed today by Speaker Longworth in announcing the legislation would be called up for action early next week.

Longworth said the $30,000,000 bill previously passed by the house probably would be considered under a procedure barring any amendments. The administration recommended $25,000,000, which was raised $5,000,000 by the house and $35,000,000 by the senate.

House leaders are opposed not only to the $60,000,000 amount of the senate bill, but also to authorizing loans to farmers for food in addition to seed and fertilizers for next year's crop. They contend it would be a discrimination against workless people in industrial areas.

EINSTEIN PARRIES QUESTIONS OF REPORTERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Albert Einstein arrived in New York today, and in his greeting the great mathematician showed a new side of his character, courage of an unusual order.

For nearly two hours he maintained a frequent smile, perfect poise and sallies of bubbling good humor in the face of a barrage of publicity so painful that once he whispered to a friend:

"It seems like wolves biting into my flesh."

The random questions of 100 reporters and cameramen he parried with up-to-date American "wisecracking" as keen as their own. Time after time they laughed aloud with him, but a moment later his grave, round, brown eyes would seem to be gazing far past the packed circle of auditors as if hunting for escape.

In messages intended for a wider audience he dropped the jesting pose, talking over the radio about suppression of militarism and hitting unemployment in a statement prepared for the press. He told the United States, "You can entirely destroy militarism whenever you set your hand to it."

POLITICAL CRISIS IN FRANCE CONTINUES

PARIS, Dec. 11.—(AP)—France went to bed again tonight without a government and the prospects that one would be ready for tomorrow appeared more remote than they have since the Tardieu ministry resigned a week ago today.

Senator Theodore Steeg, former resident-general of Morocco, was charged by President Doumergue today to form a cabinet but tonight parliamentarians generally conceded him little chance of success.

His consultations with political leaders brought out the fact that not only would he lack the support of the group of the extreme right headed by Louis Marin but that the moderate parties of the right, under the leadership of former Minister of War Andre Maginot, would refuse their assistance. M. Maginot, offered the war portfolio, declined to accept it.

DAY REPRIEVE FOR THREE SING SING PRISONERS

OSSINING, N. Y., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Three young Sing Sing prisoners known as the "Baby Bandits" because two of them were not yet 21 years old when they held up a drug store and killed the owner last February, were granted another day of life by Governor Roosevelt today.

The three—James Bolger, 20; James Butler, 21, and Italo Ferdinandi, 23—were to have died tonight in the electric chair for the killing of Charles Bauer, shot down as he wrestled with Butler in an effort to protect his cash drawer.

GANGSTER INDICTED FOR SLAYING OF BUCKLEY

DETROIT, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Joe Bommarito, alleged gangster and associate of down river rum runners, was charged with first degree murder for the slaying of Radio Announcer Gerald E. (Jerry) Buckley in an indictment returned by the Wayne county grand jury today.

The indictment was the first to be returned in the Buckley murder case and the seventh of any kind to come out of the grand jury since its initial session Aug. 28.

B. & O. SYSTEM GETS C. & A. FOR $23,000,000 AT AUCTION

WILMINGTON, Ill., Dec. 11.—(AP)—An auctioneer's hammer knocked down the Chicago & Alton railroad today for a bid of $23,000,000, and the 1,021-mile line passed into the hands of the Baltimore & Ohio system.

BRUENING GOVT. IS IN CONTROL OF REICHSTAG

BERLIN, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Chancellor Heinrich Bruening's government remained in command today despite efforts of the opposition to bring up matters which would delay early Christmas adjournment.

The fascists loosed numerous oratorical volleys today, one of them blaming the government for the recent flood disasters in Germany.

This elicited a retort from Dr. Paul Moldenhauer, former finance minister, that no government in the world could prevent rain from falling and rivers from rising.

In another instance the chief of the reichstag fascists, Dr. Paul Goebbels was ordered out of the house for his constant interruptions.

FEDERAL INTEREST IN N. Y. MAGISTRATES INVESTIGATION

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Inquiry into New York magistrates' courts drew the attention of the federal government today as Special Prosecutor Isidor J. Kresel for the appellate court continued to delve into bank accounts of judges, policemen and lawyers.

Internal revenue agents indicated interest in the disclosures of income other than salaries which have been brought out in the inquiry with the inference of graft.

The investigation will go into open hearing again tomorrow before Referee Samuel Seabury.

MAN FATALLY BURNED IN AN AUTO ACCIDENT

FITCHBURG, Mass., Dec. 11.—(AP)—An automobile tonight hurtled over an embankment into a 25-foot ravine and then burst into flames, carrying to death one man and causing critical injuries to two others.

Vincent J. Bolan, 36, died of burns, broken bones and probable internal injuries. Mercer Dailey, 32, the driver, also will probably die. But James Connors, 31, has a good chance for recovery. All three were taken to the Burbank hospital after they had been pulled out of the flaming wreck by passersby. Bolan died two hours later.

OLD C. P. LINER EMPRESS BURNED TO SKELETON

BLYTH, Eng., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Nothing but a smouldering skeleton remains of the old Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Scotland, wrecked by a roaring fire fed by 300 tons of oil.

This afternoon firemen played streams of water on the red-hot plates of her steel hull and holes were cut to flood the lower part of the ship. The vessel had been docked here for dismantling. A short circuit was blamed for the fire.

NINE TEXTILE STRIKERS CONVICTED OF PICKETING

DANVILLE, Va., Dec. 11—(AP)—With nine of their number already convicted, a second group of 14 men and women went on trial in police court today on charges of unlawful assembly in connection with the attempt at mass picketing Monday by striking employes of the local textile mills.

The nine convicted at the end of the first group trial were sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $50 each.

The defense noted an appeal.

BIDS REJECTED BY THE SHIPPING BOARD

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The white house announced today that the shipping board had decided to reject all bids for the Black Diamond and the America-France lines.

The decision of the shipping board was taken after long consideration of the report of the advisory shipping commission appointed nearly a year ago by President Hoover.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

BERLIN, Dec. 11.—(AP)—A movie version of Germany's part in the war, based on a book written by a German, was banned from the screens of the fatherland today.

MADRID, Dec. 11.—(AP)—An earthquake, lasting between four and five seconds, shook Melilla last night. The shocks, which occurred about midnight, were preceded by subterranean rumblings. It was not believed any important damage resulted.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Prime Minister MacDonald's efforts to break the deadlock between Moslem and Hindu leaders of the Indian conference were carried on today to the accompaniment of a violent bombardment of criticism in another part of the city.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—A message to Lloyds tonight reported that the Swedish steamer Strassa had rescued the crew of the schooner Amy G. McKean, bound from Swansea for Halifax, as the latter vessel was foundering in the Atlantic, 800 miles from Queenstown.

HANKOW, China, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Tsingshth, Hunan, an important provincial town 125 miles northwest of Changsha, has fallen into the hands of reds, who today were reported looting and burning the city and killing its inhabitants. Tsingshth is the station of a Finnish Protestant missionary society and an Augustinian Catholic mission also is located there.

Senator Overman Dies After Short Illness

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—(AP)—Senator Overman of North Carolina, died tonight at the age of 76.

The North Carolina senator died at 12.30 a. m., after a short illness.

Surviving are his widow and three daughters.

Mr. Overman had suffered a slight attack of indigestion a week ago, but was able to return to his office, only to be stricken again. However, he had been thought on the road to recovery until yesterday afternoon he suffered a severe hemorrhage of the stomach.

He rallied after a blood transfusion and was conscious during yesterday evening, chatting with his physician, Dr. Sterling Ruffin and with his son-in-law, E. N. Snow of Washington. Mrs. Overman and Mrs. Snow were at his apartment also.

BANK OF US. S. CLOSED BY STATE SUPT. OF BANKS

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The Bank of United States, a state institution with 59 branches specializing in serving small depositors in New York city, but with virtually no out-of-town correspondents, was closed today by the state superintendent of banks, Joseph A. Broderick.

Immediately after that official action, which followed a run on some of the bank's branches yesterday, 23 powerful members of the New York Clearing House association took steps to help 400,000 depositors gain prompt access to half of the $202,972,000 standing in their names on the books. The bank was not a member of the clearing house and was one of the smaller New York institutions. With Christmas only a fortnight away, it was announced that the clearing house banks would lend depositors up to 50 per cent of their accounts, charging 5 per cent interest for such service.

For several months there had been rumors that the bank, which has no connection whatever with the federal government, might be embarrassed. Not long ago plans were made to merge it with three others into a billion dollar bank, but these proposals were abandoned last Sunday night.

Some of the city's most prominent bankers worked day and night through Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in an effort to solve the difficulties, and it was not until early today that the final action was decided on.

The opinion was expressed among Wall street's most powerful bankers that the closing of this institution had definitely clarified the banking situation, and that any unforeseen emergency could now be promptly and effectively met.

Mr. Broderick, it was said, felt that the Bank of United States, which was understood to have been embarrassed by frozen loans, could eventually have liquidated, but that it had been impossible to determine the amount of cash required for such purposes. It was largely for this reason, bankers said, that the other three banks in the proposed merger had decided to abandon the consolidation plan.

Two of these institutions, the Public National bank and the Manufacturers Trust Co., were admitted to the Clearing House association today. The requirements of this association are unusually stringent.

WALKER DEFENSE WITNESS IN HEALY-TOMMANEY TRIAL

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—(AP)—Mayor James J. Walker took the witness stand late today as the first witness for the defense in the trial of Martin J. Healy, Tammany district leader, and his aide, Thomas T. Tommaney, charged with accepting a $10,000 bribe in 1927 to help George F. Ewald get a city magistracy.

Under vigorous cross-examination by Hiram Todd, special prosecutor, which at times became hot, the mayor's testimony that he appointed Ewald at the behest of the Steuben society after he had satisfied himself that Ewald was qualified for the job, remained unshaken. Just before the mayor took the stand, the state rested. His testimony was confirmed by Victor Ridder, publisher and leader of the Steuben society.

On direct examination by Sydney A. Syme, defense counsel, the mayor denied he had received any message from George W. Olvany of Tammany hall concerning the appointment and that there was any regular channel of communication between Tammany Hall and his office.

OBITUARY

Charles E. Iserman

THOMPSONVILLE, Dec. 11—(AP)—Charles E. Iserman, 85, Civil war veteran and member of Wilcox post, G. A. R. of Springfield, Mass., died suddenly here tonight of a heart attack.

Iserman enlisted in New York when he was 17 years old and spent 13 month in Libby prison. Following the war he operated a farm near Springfield for 40 years, and came here 20 years ago

Pressure On Cuban President To Resign

Message by a Reliable Sou[illegible] Has Been Received [illegible] Washington

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—(AP)—Attention of state department and diplomatic officials in the capital centered again tonight on the Cuban situation, with the resignation of President Machado considered a possibility.

Word that "great pressure" was being brought to bear on the Cuban president to resign was received in Washington by a reliable source tonight. The message came on the heels of many rumors throughout the day hinting that the Cuban chief executive would resign.

The message also reported that opponents of the government were supporting student demonstrations against Machado.

State department officials remained silent, but the impression was that they considered a settlement of the long-standing political turbulence through a strictly political move would be much better than an outbreak of open hostilities against the government.

The department's silence was generally interpreted as a change in attitude toward conditions in Cuba.

Tonight, for the first time in a long period, the state department even declined to reiterate its often repeated declaration that conditions were virtually normla. It was admitted that the department had received reports from the Havana embassy, but their character was not hinted.

Considerable weight has been attached by state department officials despite their outward calm, to the many rumors of an impending armed outbreak. Their attitude appeared to be summarized in one official's assertion that in a country where such a situation had existed over so long a period, the occurrence of almost anything could not come as a surprise.

PRESIDENT OF CUBA INVOKES MARTIAL LAW

HAVANA, Dec. 11—(AP)—Amid new disorders by students and with rumors buzzing through the city that he soon would resign, President Machado today suspended constitutional guarantees throughout the whole of Cuba.

This is tantamount to martial law and is similar to the suspension decreed in Havana and environs which ended last month. Both were authorized by congress after much debate, but whereas the first decree was confined to the capital and for only 20 days, the suspension invoked today will run for 60 days over the entire island.

Student activities not only continued but increased, meanwhile, and the sound of firing was heard in the streets as police attempted to break up demonstrations. Numbers of business and professional men, graduates of the National university, pledged their support to the rioting undergraduates.

The president's action followed a secret meeting of the cabinet at which American Ambassador Harry F. Guggenheim was reported to be present, and important developments were expected.

Havana at the same time was swimming in a flood of rumors. There were numerous reports that the president would resign, another that he already had placed his resignation in the hands of the supreme court, and still another that Ambassador Guggenheim had summoned two American cruisers from the United States naval base at Guantanamo. All were denied.

CLANDESTINE ROMANCE N FIGURES IN MURDER TRIAL

KANSAS CITY, Kans., Dec. 11—(AP)—From love letters and the quavering lips of Miss Grace Brandon, blonde stenographer, the prosecution in the murder trial of Major Charles J. Shepard today drew the story of a clandestine romance intended to show a motive for the alleged fatal poisoning of the army medical officer's wife.

Miss Brandon, the government's star witness, testified Shepard wrote her from Fort Riley, Kans., a few weeks before the prosecution alleges he poisoned his wife, that Mrs. Shepard had refused to divorce him.

Between bursts of tears, the girl related details of her love affair with the elderly major and listened to the reading of ardent missives which he had sent her along with a shower of gifts.

It was a story of an affair that began more than seven months before Mrs. Shepard's death and continued afterwards with an engagement and plans for a honeymoon until government agents arrested Shepard at Denver last March.

NEW LONDON MAN GETS EIGHT MONTHS SENTENCE

NORWALK, Dec. 11.—(AP)—John H. James of New London was sentenced to serve eight months in the county jail following his conviction in the city court today on charges of aggravated assault and carrying concealed weapons.

James was arrested Sunday after he fired two shots at Edward Smith of Norwalk. An appeal was filed by James and the court set bonds of $2,500.

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 11—(AP)—Amid all the splendor traditional to the Swedish court, Sinclair Lewis and other Nobel prize winners, accompanied by their wives, were entertained by King Gustav tonight at a state banquet in the royal palace.

The tables were almost buried in roses, and sparkling with gold and silver plate. All the food was served from gold dishes.

It was the outstanding social function of the Stockholm season, and the 90 guests included virtually all the eminent men and women of Sweden.

DECREASE IN LOANS TO BROKERS AND DEALERS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York Federal Reserve member banks for the week ending Dec. 10 were announced by the federal reserve board today as $2,099,000,000, representing a decrease of $12,000,000 as compared with the preceding week, establishing a new low record for brokers' loans

A 4[illegible]ur Strike [illegible] Up Cadiz, Spain

[illegible]ult of a Dispute Between Carpenters and Their Employers

CADIZ, Spain, Dec. 11.—(AP)—People who had to go places traveled afoot or on bicycles in Cadiz today. Restaurants were closed, the bars were not functioning, there were no newspapers, no busses and no trolley cars, for the city was tied up by a 48-hour general strike which began with a dispute between carpenters and their employers.

The strike spread here from Valencia, and the authorities were afraid it might go on to other cities as did the nation-wide general strike last month. There have been no serious disorders in Cadiz but police and the secret service were rounding up suspected communists who they believed were at the bottom of the trouble.

Rumors persisted that these subversive forces were working through the labor unions to foment a revolution against the Berenguer government, and these reports were substantiated to some degree by the secret service operatives.

The strike in Valencia ended today when the labor headquarters ordered men of all crafts back to work. Valencia was torn by street clashes yesterday and the day before and one man was killed.

STRIKE AT CADIZ, SPAIN, WAS STARTED LAST NIGHT

CADIZ, Spain, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The 48-hour general strike, called by stonemasons and joined by other building groups, was settled tonight with the aid of the president of the board of councilmen and the men will return to work tomorrow.

Some disorder grew out of the strike today but nothing serious occurred.

SENATE CONTROVERSY ON WORLD COURT PROTOCOL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Leaders of opposing sides in the senate controversy on the world court agreed today that it could not be disposed of at this session, but a division developed among its freinds whether to urge a special session of the senate.

As the chieftains in the impending contest considered a program, word was passed out by the court foes that a new check-up led them to count at least 28 votes in opposition. This was 11 more than voted against entry five years ago and is near the one-third necessary to defeat ratification.

Friends of the court said they were optimistic.

While many republicans are opposed to reporting the protocol from the foreign relations committee now lest it precipitate an extra session, there are apparently enough votes to get an early report.

Chairman Borah, although an opponent of American participation, wants to have the protocol reported. Senator Swanson, democrat, Virginia, a leader of the court proponents, likewise wants the committee to put the issue before the senate at this session.

BELIEVES DRY REFERENDUM WOULD PROVE COUNTRY DRY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—An outline of the reasons why the drys should favor a prohibition referendum came tonight as wet and dry advocates left the capital after agreements upon their respective plans.

Patrick H. Callahan of Louisville, secretary of the Association of Catholics Favoring Prohibition, said in a statement a group of prohibition leaders believed a referendum would prove the country definitely dry and after such confirmation violators would see they would remain outside the law all their lives unless they observed it.

The anti-prohibitionists had agreed upon a government liquor dispensary plan and the drys left behind them an enlarged board of strategy to work out a program for the 1932 presidential campaign.

Prohibition Director Woodcock, meanwhile, made known plans for organizing his corps of dry agents on an efficiency rating system, comparable to that of the army.

Woodcock said he would like to see prohibition "disappear entirely from the front pages of the newspapers."

WOULD DEDUCT CHARITABLE GIFTS FROM INCOME TAX

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—(AP)—Legislation to encourage corporations to increase their contributions for charitable purposes during the present depression by permitting them to deduct gifts in computing income for tax purposes was proposed to congress today by Secretary Mellon.

His proposed measure was introduced immediately by Chairman Hawley of the house ways and means committee. Hawley plans to hold hearings soon and predicted quick approval of the bill in congress.

TO ANNOUNCE NAMES CO-EDS CAUGHT "PETTING" WITH BOYS

BIG RAPIDS, Mich., Dec. 11.—(AP)—President Wells D. White of Ferris institute announced today that the names of all co-eds caught in "petting postures" with boys hereafter will be announced at public assemblies.

"Students," he explained, "are in school primarily to study academic courses and not to experiment with the cosmic urge."

VALUABLE COATS STOLEN AT WILLIAMS COLLEGE

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Dec. 11—(AP)—Six coats, valued at more than $2,000, were stolen from two freshmen dormitories and the Theta Delta Chi house at Williams college last night, it was revealed by college authorities. The loot included three raccoon coats valued at $1,600.

NEW RULING ON SALE OF LIQUOR IN GERMANY

BERLIN, Dec. 11—(AP)—Prussians who get thirsty before 9 a. m., will have to grin and bear it, so far as bars are concerned.

A government decree today banned the sale of hard liquor, except in sealed bottles, between 3 and 9 in the morning. Hitherto, the ruling has been off after six a. m.

WORKING FOR DEPORTATION OF NOTORIOUS GANGSTERS

Life Histories of the Gangsters Are Being Studied by the Government—W. N. Doak, New Secretary of Labor, Says the List Includes Racketeers in New York, Chicago and Other Large Cities

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—(AP)—Life histories of some of the country's most notorious gangsters are being studied by the government to see if they can be deported.

William N. Doak, the new labor secretary, said today the list included racketeers in New York, Chicago and other large cities, but he mentioned no names. Immigration authorities, however, are understood to have enough data for biographies of some of the men on Chicago's list of "public enemies" looking toward giving them a one-way ticket on outbound ocean steamers.

Doak said the department's activities were a continuation of the work under Secretary Davis and explained the gangsters combated deportation with shrewd lawyers and in every other way possible.

The growth of racketeering in some sections brought announcement some time ago that the government was cooperating with local authorities in combating gangsters. Failure to pay income taxes has been used by the department of justice as a weapon against affluent criminals. President Hoover said recently, however, he would make no recommendations for new laws to combat them and that what was needed was an awakening of public conscience and the enforcement of state laws.

Doak said his department also was continuing its cooperation with the state department in checking immigration and added he would transmit figures covering the past few months to congress soon.

President Hoover has recommended revision of the immigration laws for "selectivity" and Senator Reed of Pennsylvania sponsored pending legislation to end all immigration for a two year period.

THREE MEN ON TRIAL FOR HIJACKING IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—(AP)—Two men in bandages and a third with a gash on his nose pleaded not guilty to hijacking today and their attorney accused police of treating them brutally.

A fourth prisoner, Benjamin Levine, was the complaining witness. He said he was stopped as he drove a cargo of liquor from New York toward Cleveland, Ohio, by the three men—Sam Weiss of Brooklyn, Jacob Rothberg of Boston and Ben Burnstein of New York—and five others not apprehended.

Burnstein, the only one of the three unbandaged, was held with his two companions without bail on charges of robbery and kidnaping. The other two also face Sullivan law charges. Levine, the complainant, was charged with liquor transportation.

The attorney for the three men asked the court to have a physician examine them and to permit photographs to be taken for use at their trial. The court did not rule on the request.

Levine said eight men held up his truck, loaded with whisky and champagne worth $10,000, as he drove through a woods near Troy, N. Y. He said his helper, Oscar Smith of Somerville, Mass., was led away at pistol point, and had not been seen since.

The three men under arrest, Levine continued, forced him to drive the truck back to New York, where he attracted the attention of a policeman who arrested them.

Levine said he was 38 and lived at 136 Addison street, Chelsea, Mass.

DREW HER MONEY FROM BANK; NEARLY ROBBED AT HOME

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—(AP)—Mrs. Mary Brodsky, who is 26, thought she was able to take care of her $200 better than a Brooklyn bank, so she drew it out tonight and took it to her Brownsville home.

In the hallway a youth snatched at her purse. Mrs. Brodsky wrenched it free and screamed.

The would-be robber hit her on the head with a piece of lead pipe, but although stunned, she still clung to her handbag.

Neighbors stepped out of nearby doors as the thug hit her again. Mrs. Brodsky flung her purse and a man caught it. The footpad took to his heels. A block away he was captured by two detectives, who said he was Martin Gordon, 21, an unemployed laborer.

REQUESTS INVESTIGATION INTO BREAD PRICES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—(AP)—Attorney General Mitchell's office today received an open telegram signed by Henry Stude of Chicago, president of the American Bakers association, asking that the justice department's inquiry into bread prices be made "the fullest investigation" possible.

Stude asked that the inquiry include the purchase price of bread in the open market rather than a too strict reliance on reported figures, but contended that "to reduce all bread to one comon level would precipitate a readjustment of wage scales, reduce employment and reduce consumption of milk, shortening and other farm products."

DAIL EIREANN APPROVES LONDON NAVAL TREATY

DUBLIN, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The Dail Eireann, following the example of the senate yesterday, approved the London naval treaty today and recommended that the government ratify the instrument signed by the United States, Great Britain and Japan in London this spring.

Patrick McGilligan, minister of external affairs, pointed out that the three signatory countries and all the British dominions except Ireland had ratified the treaty, hence the Irish government was anxious to do so immediately.

USES SHOOTING GALLERY GUN TO COMMIT SUICIDE

LONG BEACH, Cal., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Oscar E. Mayhugh, 53, was lounging in front of a shooting gallery on the Pike today.

"Want to shoot, Mister?" the girl attendant in the gallery asked.

"I believe I will," he answered. He took a gun, fired once at the target and then swung the weapon around and sent two bullets through his head. He died an hour later.

GANGSTER "BUGS" MORAN ACQUITTED OF VAGRANCY

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Dec. 11.—(AP)—George "Bugs" Moran, alleged Chicago gangster and hoodlum, was acquitted tonight by a jury on a charge of vagrancy. The verdict was returned after six hours and 15 minutes of deliberation. Under orders of the judge, there was no demonstration in the court room.

WIFE IS SUING TOM MIX, FILM ACTOR, FOR DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 11—(AP)—Tom Mix, film actor and circus performer, was sued for divorce in a complaint filed here today by Mrs. Victoria Mix. The complaint charged cruelty.

Mrs. Mix declared her husband told her last November 26 he was leaving her, and emphasized his statement by spinning a loaded gun on his finger in wild west fashion. Thus occurred the complaint alleged when Mix returned after several unexplained absences and brief homecomings.

Another instance of Mix's alleged cruelty occurred during the Christmas holidays in 1925, it was declared, when he took his wife and a group of friends to Ensenada, Lower California. There he "flew into a rage," hired an automobile and drove back to Los Angeles alone, leaving her to explain to the guests and manage the yacht, the complaint set forth.

The complaint said Mix frequently "acted in a loud and boisterous" manner in various public places, much to the humiliation of his wife.

FLOOD AND FOG REPORTED IN THE BRITISH ISLES

LONDON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Flood and fog were reported in many districts of the British Isles tonight.

The fog was particularly heavy this morning, but was dissipated to a certain extent this afternoon and was followed by heavy rains. Tonight the mists again rolled in and Londoners went about with smarting eyes and tickling throats. Traffic was slow and rail service was disorganized.

Floods are reported mainly in the west country and the midlands. Three feet of water lie over many fields and roads in South Wales, while water also is high in the midland areas around Droitwich, Kidderminster and Northampton.

In Scotland most of the roads are icebound, presenting grave danger to motor travel.

NEW SKIPPER FOR THE LINER LEVIATHAN

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP)—A new skipper — perhaps Captain George Fried, hero of the several rescues at sea—will walk the bridge of the world's largest liner, the Leviathan in February, for Commodore Harold Cunningham resigned today.

The resignation of Commodore Cunningham, who is still in his 40's despite his 30 years at sea, came as a surprise to his friends. It was understood that after taking the Leviathan across the Atlantic three more times he would take an executive position with the Standard Shipping Co., of New York. He wants, for one thing, to spend more time with his wife and family at the Cunningham home in Edgewater, N. J.

CONVICTED THE WRONG MAN FOR SWINDLING

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP)—An entry in a New York hotel register of Aug. 8, 1928, today convinced a woman federal prosecutor that she had convicted the wrong man for swindling Jacob Hazelbaker, of Pittsburgh, out of $136,000 on a race track bunco game.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Ellamarye Failer, who two weeks ago successfully prosecuted William Humphreys of Kinston, N. C., on a mail fraud charge, said tonight, after inquiry into certain phases of the arrest and trial of Humphreys, that she would move at once for reversal of sentence on the ground that he was innocent.

MARRIAGE OF PASTOR AND STAGE DANCER REVEALED

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The marriage of Rev. Russell Kleinginna, 27-year-old pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Resurrection in West Philadelphia, to Miss Drusilla Taggart, stage dancer, was revealed today. They were married in Chester, Pa., Thanksgiving day.

Mr. Kleinginna announced from his parsonage today that his wife had abandoned her stage career. She had been on the stage eight years under the name of "Drusilla." Several years ago she introduced the radio novelty of broadcasting dance steps from the studio in the Eiffel tower, Paris.

BELIEVES SKELETON TO BE REMAINS OF HIS MOTHER

SOUTH MANCHESTER, Conn., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Walter Green, after viewing the remains of a skeleton found in the woods near his farm, said late today that he would assume the remains to be those of his mother, Mrs. Mina Bissell, missing for the past eight years, and had them removed.

Green, and First Selectman H. W. Belcher, of South Windsor, who had known Mrs. Bissell, expressed the belief that the remains were those of the missing woman because of the small size of the skull. Mrs. Bissell had a small head, they declared.

POLICE INVESTIGATE SOUTH COVENTRY ASSAULT CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 11.— An alleged assault on Mrs. A. M. Gilman committed at her home in South Coventry Saturday night is under investigation by officers of the state police barracks at Stafford Springs. Mrs. Gilman states that about 6 o'clock in the evening she answered a rap at the door and a man asked her if Mr. Gilman, a former justice of the peace, was at home. Mrs. Gilman turned to call her husband and the man struck her a vicious blow on the left side of the head, knocking her to the floor, inflicting a cut on the ear and a bruise a quarter of an inch long below the left temple. The woman screamed and her husband rushed to the door but the assailant had fled. Mrs. Gilman received treatment from Dr. J. A. Girouard of this city.

Rev. Sherrod Soule of Hartford spoke on Unknown Heroes of the Revolution at the annual guest day of Anne Wood Elderkin chapter, D. A. R., held in the Congregational church house Tuesday. Rev. Mr. Soule brought out many interesting facts about heroes who are practically unknown and whose names he encountered in his study of the records of many towns in the state in his capacity as superintendent of the Connecticut Congregational Missionary society. Members of the Blanchette school of music, including Bernard Beiller, piano; Leonard Davis, violin and Miss Simoneau, accompanist, provided excellent entertainment.

A petition is going the rounds among residents of Village hill, town of Lebanon, to be presented to the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company for the installation of electricity in homes there. An extension of the line from the Eagle's Nest section of Mountain street to Village hill, a distance of about one mile, would be necessary to furnish the service.

Among the many indications of wide interest in the drive being staged here for the new Windham Community Memorial hospital are contributions to the fund from individuals and organizations having but little, if any, direct contact with the city and its definite hospital area. At the report meeting Wednesday night a contribution of $100 was announced from the Woodstock League of Women Voters in connection with a similar donation from the Windham league. This manifestation of interest on the part of the Woodstock women was greeted with special applause. While it is expected that memorials and large contributions will for the most part make up the $84,000 remaining to be secured in the $500,000 drive by next Monday night, many small contributors are coming forward with subscriptions which should substantially increase the total number of subscriptions as well as the amount they represent.

Members of Earl W. Green post, No. 52, and auxiliary of Mansfield and Coventry, gave a splendid entertainment at the local legion rooms on Jackson street Wednesday night, under the auspices of the auxiliary to James J. Shea post, No. 19. The program: Piano and banjo selections, William Smith and Joseph Bernet; vocal solos, Mrs. Ray L. Hahn and Mrs. Elizabeth King; dialogue, Mrs. Rose Ashley and Mrs. Marjorie James; accordion selections, Frank Leund; monologue, Philip Linderson and a one-act play portrayed by Mrs. Helen MacFarland, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hickey, Willis C. Homer and Harold James.

Rabbi Michael Aaronsohn, former national chaplain of the Disabled American Veterans and a veteran of the World war, gave a lecture on Principles of Judism before a large audience at the Community house in Storrs tonight. He spoke on behalf of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. Rabbi Aaronsohn was wounded in the Argonne forest in 1918 and later lost his eyesight as a result of the wound. A similar lecture that he gave here last year was well received.

Capt. McLean Arrested Bandits

The killing of Nicholas "Cheek" Luciano by gangsters in New York this week has brought about a number of reviews of the activities of the Diamond brothers, notorious bandits, who made a flying trip through Connecticut. None of these reviews have, however, recalled that the gangsters were brought to halt in Willimantic and escorted to the cells at the local police station by a single officer. That officer is Captain of Police Frank McLean, who had received word of the shooting affair at Woodstock and when he saw a Cadillac touring car come up Main street, jumped onto the street, climbed the running board, faced a revolver that fortunately failed to "click" and effected the arrest. Handicapped by his hazardous position on the running board of the moving machine, Officer McLean finally succeeded in getting his own revolver into play. The group arrived at police headquarters and under the old system there was no one there to assist him in searching the trio and locking them in cells. Somehow this was accomplished and Morris Diamond, who later paid with his life for murdering the west end bank messenger in New York, was subsequently arraigned in superior court at Putnam where he received a jail sentence.

A 30-foot cedar cut on land of George D. Wells in the Warner district has been installed at Lincoln square. It will be wired by the fire department electrician and this week end will stand as the city government's contribution to spirit of goodwill and Christmas cheer manifested in the attractive decorations throughout the business district.

Officers of the White Eagle Polish-American Citizens' club elected for the year are: Izydor Rajchel, president; Michael Maliga, vice president; Albert Pitras, financial secretary; Frank Nycek, recording secretary; John Bury, treasurer. The club has voted the sum of $50 to the hospital fund.

BUGS DON'T BOTHER 'BIGGEST' LEMON GROVE

MAXWELL, Cal.—(AP)—This probably is the sourest spot in the world. It's the home of a 750-acre grove of lemon trees, called the world's largest, that produces upwards of 150 carloads of fruit a year.

The orchard is 18 years old, but it never has been sprayed. Absence of insect pests is attributed to extremely hot summer weather and low temperatures in winter.

More than 300 ocean-going vessels dock at Oakland, Cal., monthly.

It was voted to transfer the Dec. 24th meeting to Dec. 22, at which time a Christmas tree and appropriate exercises will be held for the Masons and Stars and their families at the lodge rooms.

Miss Margaret E. Donovan, Bacon Academy, French instructor was reported somewhat improved, Thursday following a week's illness at her home on South Main street.

HAMPTON

Wednesday, Dec. 17, is the date of the annual P. T. A. get-together—Place, Grange hall; time, 7:30 p. m., admission, free. This is a community affair and it is expected that a large number will be present. Mrs. Lippincott, from the Bay state, a talented reader, will give several selections. The remainder of the program will include Christmas music and a Christmas playlet.

Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Phillips and daughter were dinner guests at a birthday party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins, at Hopkins' Mills, R. I., Sunday.

The 4-H Poultry club held its first meeting Friday evening, Dec. 5, at the chapel. The Cluckenmoo club has been divided and will now be two separate clubs, a dairy and a poultry club. Carl Jewett will be the dairy leader and Stanton Burdick the poultry leader.

Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Phillips attended a whist at a friend's in Manchester recently.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Burdick on the recent holiday were Mr. and Mrs. James Cole, Mrs. Louella Bester, Mrs. Emma Ford and Miss Anna Johnson, all of Worcester. Miss Ruth Russ and Miss Blanche Hallahan, of Willimantic, and Miss Charlotte Gibson, of Portland, Me., a teacher in Coventry.

Mr. and Mrs. George Huling had with them for the holiday, Green Huling, Ray Huling, Mr. and Mrs. George Bridges and daughter, and Herbert Copeland.

Mrs. Freelove, from Providence, spent the first of the week at Corner Crest. Miss Isabelle Phillips returned to Providence with her and spent the remainder of the week.

N. S. Light, of Hartford, supervisor of rural education, gave a very interesting talk on the methods of modern teaching, at the chapel recently. Over eighty were present. Mr. Light's talk was based on the answering of questions which had previously been put in a question box. There was music on the piano, violin and harmonica and chorus singing of P. T. A. songs. This program took the place of the regular monthly meeting of the P. T. A. The serving of cake and coffee concluded the program.

HOLIDAY 'GOODBYE' HARDEST TASK OF TURKEY PRODUCERS

ALLIANCE, Ohio —(AP)—For the Sam H. Stocktons, turkey raisers, Christmas is just another heartache that comes with producing center pieces for holiday tables.

"The hardest part of turkey raising," says Mrs. Stockton, "is the 'goodbye.' Turkeys demand so much care and individual attention that after nursing a flock of them through a year, even if there are as many as 1,000, a bond of affection is sure to be established—and it isn't broken without some pain."

But there is some solace on the Stockton farms as Christmas nears. Old "Amos 'n' Andy," two veteran toms, will stay on to preside over next year's crop.

The two share an annual grevance against the young toms who rise up every summer to threaten their rule, but always there comes a late fall day which sees the last of their competitors carted away to the chopping block and they are masters for another year.

WORLD WAR AIR EXPLOITS EARNED MEDALS FOR FOUR

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The award of the congressional medal of honor to Col. Edward V. Rickenbacker, American "ace of aces," makes him the only living airman to possess the decoration for a world war exploit.

Only three others who fought in the air were honored with the medal, including Lieut. Frank Luke, known as "the balloon buster of Arizona," whose memory was venerated with an award seven months after his death.

Lieut. Luke's honored exploit was his final sally across the lines in which he shot down three German balloons, killed six enemy ground troops, and landed, severely wound-nned, to die while defending himself with a pistol.

The other two, receivers of the medal, who also were honored posthumously, were Lieut. Erwin R. Bleckley, Wichita, Kas., and Lieut. Harold E. Goettler, Chicago.

Lieut. Christian Schilt, present-day marine aviator, was awarded the medal in 1928 but for bravery in Nicaragua.

MOTHERS KNOW ITS WORTH

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the written recommendation of more than 500,000 American women. 98 out of every 100 who report after taking it say, "It helped me." Get a bottle from your druggist today. Be one of the 98.

Mrs. Clyde I. Sherman,
R. No. 1, Lickdale, Pa.

"Before I married, my mother and sister and I did all the work on a 64 acre farm for eleven years. Now in addition to my housework and the care of my children I help my husband with the outside work on our farm. After my last child was born, I began to suffer as many women do. One day our doctor told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did and now I am a new woman."

Mrs. Ethel Wright,
Cheyenne Wells, Colorado

"I am a busy woman for I have six children to care for. I was rundown and felt so weak I could hardly do my work. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I began to take it. I am feeling stronger in every way, have a good appetite and sleep well. I recommend this medicine to other weak women."

Mrs. Horten Jones,
208-48th St.,
Union City, New Jersey

"About ten years ago I got so weak and rundown that I felt miserable all over. One day my husband said, 'Why don't you take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' When I had taken two bottles I felt better so I kept on. My little daughter was born when I had been married twelve years. I praise your medicine to all my friends, and you may publish this letter for I want all the world to know how much the Vegetable Compound has helped me."

DANIELSON

DANIELSON NOW DRESSED IN CHRISTMAS REGALIA

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 11.—Not in years at Christmas time has Danielson's business section looked so attractive as it does at night now, with hundreds of white and colored electric lights strung streamer-like across and down the streets. These lights are in place from Academy to Water streets, and they are so pretty as to call forth much favorable comment, not only from local people but also from out-of-town shoppers. The special lighting has been made possible by the co-operation of local business interests. It is probable that this arrangement of holiday lighting not only will be continued next year, but the numbers of lights increased.

Arthur A. Dean, the personal tax collector, said this afternoon that the taxes have been coming in very well indeed, though there are many yet unpaid. Failure to pay within the time limit means that delinquents will have a dollar more added to the regular charges, and, after that, the old summary process of getting the money in, and—well, that's almost too expensive for most of us. The economical will take care of this unavoidable matter not later than the end of this week.

HOAR TO BE TRIED AT PUTNAM NEXT TUESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 11.—Lewis A. Hoar, former treasurer of the Moosup Trust Co., is due to appear in the superior court at Putnam next Tuesday for trial of the charges that have been filed against him by direction of the state bank commissioner's office. At present Mr. Hoar is at liberty under bail. He will be represented when he makes his appearance in court by Attorney Irving H. Miron of Putnam, who was in Danielson and in Moosup today in his client's interest. Mr. Hoar will face a charge of perjury, based on sworn statements made in reports filed with the state bank commission; another charge of making excessive loans and still another count growing out of loans he made to one Andrew L. Tackus of Hartford.

OBITUARY

Miss Nellie Quinn

After a long illness, Miss Nellie Quinn died this morning at the home on Maple street where she had been resident the greater part of her life. Miss Quinn was born on the West Side, a daughter of Timothy and Honora Fox Quinn and was a lifelong resident here. For many years Miss Quinn was employed at the tailoring establishment of W. J. Craig, continuing there until her health began to fail.

Miss Quinn leaves a brother, Rev. John Quinn, pastor of St. Gabriel's parish at Windsor, this state, a sister, Miss Catherine Quinn, and an aunt, Miss Ellen Fox, both of Danielson. The body is at L. E. Kennedy's funeral home.

Eastern Star Elect

Last evening the annual meeting of Danielson chapter, No. 77, Order of the Eastern Star, was held at the Masonic temple on Broad street and the following officers elected for the ensuing year: Worthy matron, Winifred R. Carter; worthy patron Charles B. Carver; associate matron Marie T. Birch; associate patron Thomas A. Beckett; secretary, Sidney W. Bard; treasurer, Ida E. Armington; conductress, Calista B. Gardiner; associate conductress, Florence R. Mariand.

The reports covering the activities of the chapter showed that the past year has been a successful one.

Leon V. Brown, dead at his home here, was engaged in foreign missionary work prior to coming to Danielson. In preparation for missionary service, Mr. Brown attended the Union Missionary Training institute at Hackettstown, N. J., and later attended the Pentecostal Collegiate institute at North Scituate, R. I., from which he was graduated in 1905. He made further studies at Taylor university, Upland, Ind., for a period of two years and then entered Boston university for a year.

Having married Miss Esther Sprague of Boston at the Douglas camp meeting in 1909, the couple sailed in the fall of that year for Brava, Cape de Verde Islands, and opened a school for the study of English by the Portuguese Negroes. Upon returning to this country, Mr. Brown taught for two years at the Pentecostal institute.

Miss Katherine A. Nettleton, state regent, and Miss Emeline A. Street, state vice-regent, will be guests of the members of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., and will make short addresses when the chapter holds its meeting at the Congregational parish house next Thursday afternoon. The hostesses will be Mrs. Helen S. Dowe, Mrs. J. H. Milligan, Mrs. C. D. Chase, Mrs. Ida Polhemus, Mrs. Ida Blanchard, Mrs. Mina Heath, Miss Nellie Keech, Mrs. Mary Kenyon and Mrs. Lizzie Withington.

Attention! The last practical day for paying personal taxes will be Saturday, Dec. 13. See Collector A. A. Dean at the selectmen's office.—adv

The new traffic rotary at Brooklyn green gives rise to expressions of apprehension that it may defeat the very purpose for which it has been created—the re-education of accident risk at this point, where two state highways intersect. This opinion was heard several times today, when the going was dangerous and sloppy and visibility not too good. The critical comments heard were along the line that too wide a swing is necessary to get around the circle of standards that have been set up. A tryout of the rotary for a time likely will establish whether or not there is any ground for worry about the matter.

It appears that there are some things that are not allowable in connection with the sending of Christmas packages by mail. Among these is the postal regulation that written matter in the form of personal correspondence cannot legally be enclosed in parcels. However, a letter placed in an envelope, addressed to correspond with the address on the parcel and fully prepaid at first class rate may be tied or otherwise securely attached to the outside of the parcel and in such manner as not to obscure the parcel address.

The first sleet in any quantity this year put in its appearance this afternoon, and immediately difficulties began to arise for operators of motor vehicles. Ice on the windshields of cars made driving a hard proposition.

LEADER OF SILVER BANDITS IS ARRESTED IN PROVIDENCE HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 11. — Harry Abrams, reputed leader of the band that held up a ByRolly truck carrying a cargo of silver bullion at South Killingly on the morning of Oct. 6 was taken prisoner at his home in Providence this morning. The house was surrounded by officers and detectives of the Providence police department and State Officer Royal V. Scranton of the Danielson barracks was in the party that captured Abrams.

Later today Abrams was arraigned in the district court in Providence. He has decided to fight extradition to Connecticut, but steps to that end were taken after the hearing and it was believed here tonight that no great difficulty will be encountered in getting him back into this state. Once back here, he will be presented in the Killingly town court to face a charge of robbery with violence.

Abrams, a man about 45 years of age, has been sought by Danielson state officers and Providence police since a short time after the truck was held up and robbed. It is believed that he has been out of Providence for the past two months.

Information having come to the police that he had returned to that city and that he had been observed entering his home led to the arrangement for this morning's coup. Officers are confident that Abrams conceived and worked out the holdup, in which Cornelius Wines, giant colored driver of the silver-laden truck, was held up about 4 o'clock in the morning and at the point of guns forced to get down from the driver's seat, to which one of the bandits climbed and drove the truck off the state highway into a nearby lane, where it could not be observed from the main road.

Abrams has a long criminal record. Only a few months ago he was released from state prison in Rhode Island after having served eight years for the part he played in a bank holdup in Providence. Other felonies also are charged against him in his record of the past.

DAYVILLE

A business transaction of importance was consummated here Monday when Napoleon P. Gingras, a local merchant, bought out the business of John J. O'Neil. Prior to entering the meat and grocery business, Mr. Gingras was associated for 13 years in the store of which he is now proprietor.

The Tuesday night bridge club met this week with Mrs. N. Lorne Greig. Prizes were won by Mrs. William Douglas and Miss Bernice Cogswell.

Mrs. William Swainson has been substituting this week at Brooklyn Center school, also at Danielson grammar school.

The annual Christmas sale was held at the Congregational church Wednesday. It was followed in the evening by a play entitled "How the Ladies Earned Their Dollar," featuring an all-star cast. Thomas Emerson, of Worcester, Mass., was the soloist with Mr. Parkin at the piano.

Mrs. N. M. Dunleavy and Mrs. Irving Robbins, of East Douglas, Mass., were in town Wednesday, visiting the latter's sister, Mrs. Herman Steinbough. They were also in attendance at the Congregational sale and entertainment.

Mrs. Ida J. Field and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hughes, of Putnam, were visitors here Wednesday evening.

NO. GROSVENORDALE

Rev. William F. Geisler, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, was extended an unanimous vote to return to the pastorate here for another year, at the fourth quarterly conference held at the church by Rev. Myron E. Genter of Norwich, district supervisor. Reports were given by George A. Elliott, treasurer of the church; Arod Ormsby, treasurer of the benevolences; Mrs. George A. Elliott, president of the Ladies' Aid society; Mrs. N. Verne Rawson, president of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society; Mrs. Fred D. Chandler, superintendent of the Sunday school, and Daniel W. Cunningham, president of the Men's club. The officers and committees were re-elected. Edward Cassells was named delegate to the meeting of the Laymen's association at Providence, March 1. Ernest P. Ryant was named alternate.

Patrick L. Peterson has returned from a week's stay in Providence where he was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Joel, formerly of this town.

Brutal Husband Penalized

Maurice Patti, of East Thompson, was in the town court before Justice of the Peace P. P. Tourtellotte on a charge of assault and battery brought by his wife, Mrs. Emma Patti. It is alleged that the woman was found lying on the floor after her husband had choked her into an unconscious condition. Patti was found guilty of the charge and was ordered to pay costs of the courts and to leave his wife unmolested. The arrest was made by State Officer John Murphy.

A meeting of the Sunday school board of the Methodist church was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Floyd Potter. Plans were made for the annual Christmas tree and concert.

PUTNAM

SILVER BANDIT'S CASE TO BE TRIED HERE NEXT WEEK

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 11—A new list of assignments issued today by Clerk Curtis Dean shows three Putnam trial dates for superior court next week. Judge Newell Jennings will preside over the sessions at which both Manuel Silva, South Killingly silver bandit and Lewis A. Hoar, Plainfield banker, will be presented. Silva is awaiting trial on a charge of robbery with violence, while the former treasurer of the Moosup Trust company is charged with violation of the state banking laws. Hoar will go to trial on Tuesday, December 16th, and the Providence hold-up man will appear at a special criminal session on Wednesday, December 17th.

On Thursday, Dec. 18, the case of George Potvin, deposed secretary of the St. Jean Baptiste society, against the organization, is listed among several civil actions to be heard by Judge Jennings. The Potvin suit has been pending for several months and its trial next week, will arouse considerable interest. Potvin alleges malpractice was used by the society in ousting him from office and ultimately from membership in the French fraternal organization. The suit is the outgrowth of Potvin's refusal, while secretary of the society, to accept membership dues from a member who, he said, court records indicated, had been convicted of a constitutional violation. Potvin was not upheld by the order and at an election of officers his successor was appointed. The deposed official refused to turn over the records of his office to the newly appointed secretary and before they could be procured, an injunction restraining Mr. Potvin from denying further requests made upon him to turn over the books, had to be served upon him by a superior court judge.

Other cases listed are the Cohen suits against Solomon Z. Gordon, Monarch Garment company against A. Abrahams and Eudoxie Remillard vs Arthur Landry.

Court cases for hearing at the civil session on Tuesday are: Albert B. Webb vs. Charles A. Parker; Edwin H. Perry vs. Asa D. Cheney; Gregory Sweiki vs. Byron M. Lewis; The Labelle & Page corporation vs. Zoe B. Wilson; Leon V. Brown vs. Fannie G. Paine; George O. Potter vs. Charles H. Levine; Fred Darby vs. M. Evelyn Gelinas Dor, all of which were originally signed for hearing at Willimantic.

SLEET STORM IMPEDES TRAFFIC IN PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 11—Winter launched a fierce attack on this section of the county today when freezing temperatures were accompanied by a storm of rain, snow and sleet. The combined assault of the elements was started shortly after one o'clock this afternoon and before many minutes the streets were coated with ice. Skidding of vehicles became frequent shortly after the start of the storm and necessitated the ordering out of the fleet of sand trucks which have been held in readiness for such an occasion at the state highway department headquarters for several days. All dangerous inclines and curves in the highways in this section were sanded by late afternoon, but the crews were prepared for a renewal of the storm this evening.

Weather conditions of today's calibre rarely pass without accident on the highways and early this afternoon the first mishap occurred on the north end of Mechanics street, when a Buick truck operated by Edward E. Hutchins of East Franklin street, Danielson skidded on a bend in the road, careened into an embankment and capsized causing considerable damage to the vehicle. The driver was extremely fortunate in escaping without injury. Captain of Police A. J. Dubreuil investigated and assisted the driver and state highway sand crews in uprighting the damaged truck.

State officers of Danielson barracks tonight were making cautious patrols of the roads in the territory hereabouts keeping traffic moving at a minimum rate of speed in an effort to prevent the usual toll of accidents.

The expectations of observers of the Knights of Columbus-Canadien Athletic club indoor sports winter tournament were suprisingly upset Wednesday evening when the Canadiens playing in their own domicile in the north end of the city turned the tables and took the Kayes into camp with comparative ease by a score of 6-2. Les Canadiens in the auction bridge rounds captured prizes at five tables and scored the final point by dividing the old whist honors. The summary of the evening's meet follows: (Kaceys names first)—L. Giraca and J. Charron lost to Mathurin and Latour; Hogan and J. Hannifan lost to A. Guertin and L. Guertin; Welch and H. Rice lost to Courtemarche and Paulhus; Benoit and Rev. Fr. Norman lost to Marion and Allard; A. Giraca and L. Planeuf lost to Beausoliel and Dupre; Cain and Bourgeois won from Miller and Dupre. Bid whist: Duffy and Martin lost to Latour and Magnan; L. Light and J. Light won from Bardier and Tetreault.

Next week's round will be played at the K. of C. rooms on Main street. The win by the North Enders Wednesday gives the C. A. C. players a lead of three points and places the seasons standing at 10-7.

The arrest in Providence today of Harry Abrams, as a participant in the daylight holdup at South Killingly on Oct. 6, of a silver laden truck, in the opinion of Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart, commandant at the state police barracks at Danielson was expected in some way to delay proceedings in the trial of Manuel Silva, also of Providence who surrendered by pre-arrangement to State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford last week. Silva is scheduled to appear in superior court next week to answer to a charge of robbery with violence preferred against him for his alleged participation in the hold-up. A detailed account of the arrest of Abrams will be found in the Danielson column of the Bulletin this morning.

Judge Mahlon H. Geissler and Deputy Judge Archibal Macdonald Jr. city court magistrates are among the 120 judges of Connecticut's lower courts to be invited to attend a joint meeting to be held in Hartford on December 15th. The session is to be held for the purpose of discussing problems of common interest continually confronting the court officials throughout the state. Kenneth L. Messinger and Richard Goodwin, officials of the bureau of child welfare are cooperating in the movement to bring the judges together, the initiative in which was taken by Judge Frank T. Foss of Willimantic police court.

Community service organizations are now laying plans to bring Christmas cheer among the needy families in the territories in which they are serving. The Salvation Army post here is first among the charitable organizations to take steps to gather data necessary to the carrying out of the charity work. The post officials have sent out an appeal for funds and for foodstuffs which will be used to fill the Christmas baskets. In past years the Rotary club and Putnam lodge of Elks have joined in the city wide movement to brighten the holiday outlook for the families of the poor and doubtless the work will be taken up again this this year.

Word has been received by friends of the announcement of the engagement of Miss Frances Obletz, daughter of Mrs. Rose Obletz of New York, formerly of Putnam, to Paul Robinoff, of New York, a well known violinist. Miss Obletz is a graduate of Putnam high school class of 1927, and is an accomplished pianist. The date of the wedding has not been announced.

Rev. Joseph Vasey, pastor of the Congregational church was the speaker at the weekly meeting of the Putnam Rotary club, held Wednesday at the Putnam inn.

Michael D. Hannifan, captain of the Bulldog football team, is reported as making a speedy recovery from an operation which he underwent last week at St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester.

Certificates of appreciation have been received from Arthur F. Hughes, chairman of the Red Cross roll call drive committee, by local people for the part in support of the principles and work of the Red Cross in the annual roll call of 1930. The certificates also bear the signature of John Barton Payne, chairman of the central committee of the American National Red Cross.

Stradis Strombelis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Strombelis of Sunnyside, and a junior class student at Putnam high school is a patient at a Boston hospital where he is suffering from a form of throat trouble.

NO. GROSVENORDALE

No sessions were held Wednesday afternoon at the Tourtellotte Memorial high school. Instead an evening session was held. All parents and friends were invited to attend. This was the first session of its kind here and was introduced by Supt. W. G. Colby in an endeavor to acquaint the parents who are unable to attend the regular day classes with the school regime.

Over a hundred parents and friends attended the first evening session held at Tourtellotte Memorial high school Wednesday. The regular day schedule was in effect, starting with chapel exercises and music by the school orchestra. The visitors were given permission by Superintendent W. G. Colby to roam about freely from one class room to another Wooden toys made by the manual training classes and clothing and foods made by the domestic science classes were on sale, under direction of Miss Helen Mack and Miss Ruth Elliott.

Miss Dianne Paradis is ill at her home on Main street, requiring the care of a nurse.

UNION

The L. B. A. held the annual Christmas supper, sale and social at the town hall, Wednesday evening of last week. An excellent supper was provided by the hostesses, Mrs. Nelson E. Horton, Mrs. Charles Wanerka and Mrs. H. J. Tyler. The sale table of articles suitable for Christmas gifts, was in charge of Mrs. Howard G. Barber. After supper, Mrs. H. J. Tyler and Miss Mary A. Daley furnished music with piano and violin; also community songs were enjoyed. Games of various kinds, recently started from the recreational instructors' meetings held in this county, have held the interest of many at recent socials. Among guests from other places were the following friends of Miss Helen J. Hutchins, teacher of Red school; Dr. and Mrs. Lake of Bristol, R. I., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bassett and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Griffith of Providence, R. I.

It is expected that Miss Edith Mason, of C. A. C. Extension Department, will meet with the Union Home Economics club next week. The subject will be Home Furnishings.

Miss Helen Hutchins, of Red school, attended the annual banquet of the local district of the Connecticut Teacher's association, at Stafford Springs hotel. This district includes all teachers in Stafford under the supervision of Superintendent Francis S. Brick and the teachers of Pomfret, Woodstock, Eastford and Union who are under the supervision of Calvin Stanley.

Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Cushman and son, Maurice, of Willington Hollow, were guests Sunday afternoon of Mr. and Mrs. George Heck.

Week end guests at the Gilbronson home, at Mashapaug, were, Mrs. Ora Young and her daughter, Miss Bernice Young, of Stafford Springs, and Miss Ida Bartlett of Eastford.

Springs and brooks were helped to some extent by recent rains, but the wells were not raised much, and brooks soon began to show depletion again. During the cloudy days just past, this town saw only a few light sprinkles of rain.

December 5, young bluebirds were investigating tenement houses and were evidently planning to return to take posession next spring. The parent bluebirds are accustomed to starting migrating to warmer climes some weeks before their fledgings are ready to start, but it was a surprise to see the latter here so late in the season.

KEEP DOWN THE ACCIDENTS

There are but 20 more days in December and with December there passes the year 1930. Attention has been called by Motor Vehicle Commissioner Stoeckel to the important fact that there is an opportunity in those 20 days to help Connecticut create a new record for motor vehicle accidents—not a record for an increased number, but one that will be the lowest in the last five years.

What are you going to do about it? Are you going to lend your cooperation or are you going to display a greater interest in reckless conduct and let the year's casualty list halt where it happens to?

On the face of it, there is something more than a record at stake. There is a matter of life and death. There is an opportunity for highway users to safeguard others and themselves. The motor vehicle commissioner states that in all but two of the past 11 months there has been a reduction in the accident records and it is not too much to feel that that is due in some degree to the efforts which have been put forth in behalf of safety. It is quite natural to believe that what has been accomplished in the other months can be continued during December. It certainly can with public cooperation.

But while Commissioner Stoeckel is directing attention to the fact that 1930 gives promise of decreased accidents, the largest decrease since 1926, he also points out that, "Up to December 1, this year, 17,435 accidents were reported in Connecticut" and estimates at that rate that the year's total should be no more than 19,700, which would be about 4,000 below the 1929 record.

But while there has been a change in the right direction manifested during 1930, the fact that there have already been 375 persons killed by autos and it is estimated that 30 more deaths may be expected in December, while 11,649 have been injured, with a possible thousand more to be added in December, it is apparent that the totals are still far too large.

It is well that sufficient efforts have been put forth to accomplish the indicated reductions during 1930. It shows what can be done, but there is also revealed how much more ought to be done in reducing that huge total which, in a great majority of the cases, probably represents needless deaths and injuries.

WORLD COURT ACTION

Some may feel, and perhaps justly, that there are enough controversial matters before congress without having added to them the question of acting upon the protocols of the world court. Nevertheless, they were ready for submission to the senate and in accord with the assurance given by the president he has presented them and asked for early action after the emergency legislation and appropriation bills have been taken care of.

It is to be realized that, while there are those who think the decision as to whether we enter the world court might be delayed without any injustice, and ought not to have been brought forward at this time, there are those who attach much importance to it and who would have been disposed to fret and fume if there had been any delay in submitting them. In other words, the situation was one which threatened trouble for the president whichever way he acted. If he delayed submission in the hope of getting other things out of the way first, he would have aroused the ire of the supporters of the protocols. They would have been peeved and resentful. Now that he has acted in a manner to get their approval, he has reason to expect their cooperation, but he likewise knows that in presenting the matter to the senate he is but stirring to action the opponents. Evidently as he weighed the matter he considered the value of public sentiment, known to be strong for joining the world court, and put his dependence on the senatorial supporters to see that the situation is properly met.

It would be a mistake if what is considered to be a minority in the senate should use this matter as a means of blocking action on the important legislation which should be enacted at this session with the object in view of forcing a special session. It is entirely possible for action on the world court to be delayed until later in the session. It is desirable to have it decided and entrance made, but no irreparable harm would be done if it had to go over until the next regular session, while the forcing of a special session would create just that much more uncertainty by the public on what is to be expected from congress, and that uncertainty is too high already. The president has, however, put the whole matter up to the senate.

MAYFLOWER'S SERVICE

Soon after President Hoover took office it was made known that he would have no use for the yacht Mayflower, which had been kept at the disposal of the chief executive. He wasn't disposed to go yachting and he didn't want the expense of keeping the yacht in commission continued. It was thus a case of putting it out of commission and taking steps to see what disposition could be made of it. It meant the saving of $300,000 a year and something additional for the price that could be obtained for it.

There were bids made for the craft, and for a time there seemed to be a serious effort to acquire it as a yacht for the mayor of New York, a sort of reception vessel when important personages visited these shores or returned from abroad. But it wasn't wanted badly enough to pay what the government considered it worth. The result is that it has been out of use and out of the public eye for many months. It has been on the reserve list of the navy, not in the expectation that it would be wanted for war service, but for any purpose that might develop for which it might be fitted.

Now that service seems to have developed. A survey vessel is wanted for service in the Caribbean. The Mayflower meets the requirements sufficiently well for it to be selected for the work and to be turned over to workmen to be put into shape for use. It will take some weeks to complete the job but when she sails it will be in the service of the government for which it has proved a sturdy ship over a long period of years and in a variety of capacities.

It is more than 30 years since the Mayflower figured conspicuously in war service. It has flown the flag of various presidents since it carried that of Admiral Dewey and while it has undergone many changes it has by no means outlived its usefulness or reached the stage where it is considered of no use except for junk. There may have been some disappointment when the navy was unable to dispose of it on the auction block, where it has been placed four times, but the need for just such a craft indicates that it was quite as well that no one wanted it badly enough to pay the price. As things turned out it appears to have been a good thing the navy couldn't sell it.

HORSES

For a long time there has been a reluctance on the part of horse lovers to admit that the number is rapidly decreasing. They point to statistics and are unwilling to accept the verdict that is reached by those who are guided in their opinions by the number seen in the streets.

Even the lovers and owners of horses know that horses are few and far between in comparison with automobiles. People who never owned a horse or considered such an acquisition are driving motor vehicles, so that it doesn't mean that if the auto had not come into popular fancy an equal number of horses would be seen in the highways. But the Horse Association of the United States has members who maintain that, "Popular though the automobile may be, it has not yet displaced the horse, either for labor or pleasure."

Occasionally there will be seen those who have driven four, five or nine miles behind a horse. At times there will be seen a truck hauled by horses, but the number of horses on the streets of a city today is small. Horses have certainly disappeared from the streets, both for business purposes and for pleasure driving. They are too slow, and it is better to drive a machine.

In the country, on the farms, the horse is still necessary. The tractor has been secured in increasing numbers but it hasn't made the horse a needless farm requirement any more than the auto truck has brought about the abandonment of the horse's services. But the horse is not as conspicuous as in years gone by. In the cities it is gradually disappearing and even today is regarded as a hindrance to the traffic, and it is a question whether there is the comfort and enjoyment to be obtained from pushing a horse over the highway for business or pleasure that is to be found in forcing a machine to do the same thing, and do it quicker and easier.

ARMAMENT LIMITATION

Members of the commission which have been engaged in preparing a programme for the world conference on disarmament have completed their session at Geneva. It is seldom possible under such circumstances for all delegates to claim that the results are entirely satisfactory. There must, of necessity, be some giving and taking if agreements are reached through majority action.

The outcome at Geneva is somewhat different than the United States favored. Some of the things which we approved were not in accord with the views taken by other countries, but out of the general expression of views and the balloting there has come a plan for study by the nations and for action in 1932, when it is hoped that treaty understandings can be reached which will give further protection to the world against war.

It would be too much to expect that there will ultimately be full agreement upon the entire programme. It is quite probable that it will be impossible to get treaty action upon all the proposals. There will be certain of the matters which will have to be discussed and put aside until some future time when experience and conditions will make agreement easier. It is impossible to tell what the conference will accomplish. All that can be done is to hope and work for the best, to so present the arguments for and against the suggested action that will remove the obstacles and allay suspicion, or else concentrate on those features which can get approval and leave the rest for another time. It will be quite as impossible to accomplish everything in the way of limiting world armaments in one conference as it has been to do it concerning naval limitations. Satisfaction is to be gained, however, if a good start can be made and it can be kept moving forward by successive stages.

PASSING OF LAST OLD-TIME PROMPTER RECALLS CADY, CARLTON, HAZEN

Just the other day it was announced that the estate of Edwin L. Tinkham of Hanover had been distributed in final account as accepted by the probate court. With this item the last member in that great group of old-time eastern Connecticut dance prompters makes his final bow and disappears for good as an active figure in the public eye.

The career and personality of Mr. Tinkham, who died only last year are still to vividly remembered to justify the retelling of his life story at this time. But the passage of the years has so dimmed the memory of his fellow-craftsmen that it may not be amiss to recall a few of them. Naturally the figure of Gurdon Cady at once emerges from The Bulletin files. In its issue of Aug. 4, 1892, The Bulletin says:

Cady's Unique Monument.

Nearly all the residents of Central Village have been to Evergreen cemetery in that place to see the unique monument just erected on the lot of Gordon Cady by his order, and of his own design. There will never be but one Gurdon Cady, and there probably never will be another monument like the one just placed on his lot. It is characteristic of the man who has played the violin, taught the young people to dance, and been the most popular prompter in eastern Connecticut for nearly half a century.

The uniqueness is not in the form of the marble shaft or the material of which it is made, but in the emblems and the inscriptions. On one side is cut a violin, above which are the "All Ready, Mr. Cady;" and below it, "At Rest!" On the opposite side is the figure of a cow with the inscription, "Rosie, my Jersey cow," above the figure and below it, "Record; 2 lbs. and 15 ounces of butter from one day's milk." On the third side is the name "Mary J. Lee," and beneath the name, "She Was Kind to Dumb Animals;" and on the fourth side the family inscription.

It is not strange that this monument is being daily visited by scores of citizens; and it will continue to be visited long after Gurdon Cady has passed over to the majority, for it bears upon it the impress of a man who has no double, and inscriptions and figures as quaint as his individuality has been exceptional.

50 Years a Prompter.

Mr. Cady's death [illegible] were thus chronicled in The Bulletin of March 4, 1897:

After a long and severe illness Gurdon Cady died yesterday at his home near Central Village. He had been in poor health for the past nine months and had not done any business for over a year.

Mr. Cady was born in Plainfield nearly 75 years ago, and has always resided there. His early life was spent on a farm, and when quite young, he became interested in music and learned to play the violin and became a good performer. He often played at dances. When about 21 years old he began giving instructions in dancing and in prompting and for half a century he was the best known prompter in eastern Connecticut. No dance of any size was complete without his genial presence and stentorian voice.

He had a striking presence, having a ruddy complexion and white hair and whiskers. He was the picture of health and was always welcome at social gatherings, where his ready wit and fund of anecdotes made him the center of an appreciative group of listeners.

Mr. Cady had a sonorous voice of remarkable power, and even in his latter days it had apparently lost none of its force and ring. He was of eccentric habits and several years ago had an expensive tomb built of curious designs, in which he wished to be buried. For several years past he has done little prompting, but has lived on his farm. He never was married and leaves no near relatives except one sister.

Shares Honors Wtih "Old Put."

The practical joke which Mr. Cady staged for perpetuation on the day of his funeral is thus recorded in The Bulletin of March 9, 1897:

There was interred in the village cemetery near Central Village, Conn., Saturday afternoon, says the Providence Journal, the remains of as a quaint a character as ever even Connecticut produced, one who for several reasons will share with Old Put himself a warm place in the hearts of the inhabitants of eastern Connetcicut.

Gurdon Cady, or "Uncle Gurdon" as he was known in every village between the Connecticut on the west and the Pawtuxet and Pawcatuck on the east, was no martial hero, but to have taught lads and lasses in a hundred townships the poetry of motion for more than half a century and to have contributed, aided by his violin, to more gayety than any man of his time, perhaps, was no little distinction aside from the kindly eccentricities of speech and manner which advertised him far and near.

In the summer of 1892 the "professor" determined to erect a monument. Accordingly he had erected in the family lot in Evergreen cemetery, at Central Village, a monument which became at once the most famous in all the cemetery round, a shrine of up-to-date eccentricity, to which the thousands have made their annual pilgrimage.

Placed Letter in Grave

When the monument was placed in position in the center of the family lot, Uncle Gurdon had his grave dug. It was bricked up, and within the brickwork was placed the wooden box which should some day contain the casket with his remains. It was reported at the time on excellent authority that the professor had placed in the box a letter which was to be opened and read on the day of his interment.

Rumor went still farther and said that with the letter was a quart bottle filled with whisky to be given to the man who opened the grave. It may be imagined that these stories whetted not a little the curiosity of the villagers as to the contents of the letter, and when it was learned that death had at last claimed the old dancing master, great was the desire to be present at the funeral and hear read the strange missive in which he was to give his last message to his friends and neighbors. They wondered and waited until Saturday, when they assembled, nearly 1,000 of them, in the chill March air to hear the letter read.

A few minutes before 2 o'clock the remains were escorted by the members of Moosup Lodge, A. F. and A. M., to the Central Village Congregational church, where the religious services were conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Crane. A male quartet from Danielson sang "Abide With Me," "Nearer My God, to Thee," and "Rock of Ages."

Last Look at Kindly Old Joker

After a portion of the Masonic rites had been performed by P. G. M. Greene, the casket was taken to the vestibule, the lid removed and the villagers passed in single file to take a last look at the face of the kindly old man.

That "Uncle Gurdon looked natural" was the unanimous verdict of the country folk, and when all who wished had gazed upon him, the lid of the handsome oaken coffin was closed and the funeral procession started for the cemetery. The pallbearers selected from the members of Moosup Lodge, A. F. and A. M., with which deceased was affiliated, were A. B. Sprague, Charles E. Barber, George R. Fowler, F. A. Carey, S. A. Clarke and E. A. Sholes.

The ceremonies at the grave were performed while the expectant crowd waited to hear the letter read; but in this they were disappointed, as was the man who opened the grave on Friday. There was however, fastened between two pieces of rough board a moldy sheet of paper, the writing on which was scarcely decipherable, which the friend in charge of the funeral arrangements carried off. Uncle Gurdon had his joke, an April fool joke at that, on his friends even in his grave. The Journal man was permitted to copy the letter, and here it is:

"Central Village, Conn.,
April 1, 1892.

"Dear Friends: This grave was dug and bricked by Charles Collins, April 1st, 1892. Kind regards to all."

"All Ready, Mr. Cady"

Not only Mr. Cady, but also other old-time dance prompters come in for mention in The Bulletin of April 14, 1913.

Old dancing days in this county, with some of the familiar figures that served as prompters, are recalled by reminiscences in a New London exchange, in which Gurdon Cady is mentioned as the prominent figure of 20 or more years ago.

Gurdon Cady was known from Colchester to the Rhode Island line for his fiddling and prompting 20 years ago. Let two of the men from any part of the territory in which Gurdon fiddled for dances meet and get to talking over all times. The chances are that they will refer to the days when the floor manager would call out, "All ready, Mr. Cady!"

Gurdon Cady is dead now. His grave is in Moosup. His gravestone is a story in itself. It was carved under Mr. Cady's personal supervision while he was in the flesh. The stone occupied a niche in the hall of fame for gravestones. Its lettering not only tells the visitor to the graveyard in Moosup that Gurdon Cady lies there, but it tells the milk-producing capacity of Mr. Cady's pet cow, shows a likeness of his favorite violin and gives the name of his housekeeper, who is buried close by.

Gurdon Cady rarely invaded the southern part of New London county. He was popular in Norwich and Jewett City. In the latter place at one time a young man with novel ideas tried the importation of a negro fiddler with his southern jigs. The dance, instead of proving a novelty, turned out to be a farce and the dancers called for Mr. Cady forever after.

Carlton of Montville, Hazen of Norwich

Thirty years ago John Carlton of Montville fiddled the nights away. He and Professor Hazen of Norwich held the lower tiers of New London county towns firm in their grasp, so that Mr. Cady was not in demand. Succeeding Professor Hazen of Norwich was John Miller, a dancing teacher well known within the last few years.

John Carlton is still available for dances. He is now within hailing distance of 80. He can still saw the catgut and call off the figures. In Palmertown, Quaker Hill, Gardner Lake and other places his, "top couple for'ard and back" are remembered by the older dancers.

Professor Carlton was one of a very few men who could do three things at once. He could fiddle, prompt and sleep at the same time. When it got to crowding three or four engagements into one week, Mr. Carlton would doze during the late numbers. With his eyes closed, his body rocking and his bow running over the strings, just as soon as the figure was complete he would call out for the next. The "tops" would forward and back and the "sides" follow suit, then cross over, right and left, ladies' chain, balance and swing, chasses, winding up with an "all promenade" that would send everybody away to the settees.

YOUR HEALTH

Care And Use Of The Tooth Brush

By J. C. Bryant, D. D. S., Minneapolis
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

In discussing the care of the teeth, consideration should be given to the care of equipment used in this very important health measure. The care of the tooth brush is overlooked by most people. The brush should be thoroughly washed and rinsed after use. Never continuously hide the brush away in the popular tooth brush containers and sterilizers. Expose the brush to the light and preferably to sunlight which will kill more bugs than any solution. Have your brushes out in the open where they will dry out readily and be good and stiff and ready for an effective prophylaxis next time you scrub your teeth. When you have a diseased condition of the gums, such as pyorrhea, the brush should be held under the hot water faucet for a short time, which will in a measure sterilize it, and it should be used for a short time only and then discarded for a new one. It is recommended that you always have two tooth brushes on hand at all times and neither should be over six weeks old.

Now as to the method of manipulation of the brush while cleaning the teeth, there are two good methods and you can take your choice, or better yet, combine both methods and then you will do a seemingly non-important job twice as well. In both methods it is quite essential that the grinding surfaces of the teeth should be scrubbed first. A group of two or three teeth should be brushed at a time, working the bristles back and forth in the grooves in the tops of the grinding teeth. Then go to the next group and continue until all the grinding surfaces have been taken care of.

In the circular method of brushing the sides of the teeth it is better to form the habit of starting, say from the upper left side. Place the brush between the cheek and gums at the left side of the mouth, partially closing the jaws so that the cheek muscles are relaxed. Starting at the gums of the upper back teeth and carrying the brush downward and backward and then upward and forward on the lower teeth you make a complete circle. This motion should be executed briskly and rapidly, bringing each circle a little forward till you reach the center of the mouth. Then reverse the circular motion on the opposite side of the jaw. In brushing the inside of the mouth, place the thumb on the back of the handle using an up and down motion reaching up on the gums as far as possible. The same motion is used in the lower jaw.

The second method, is known as the rolling method and is practiced with the jaws separated while brushing. Point the tooth brush bristles upward and starting on the upper left side in the molar region, brush the gums and teeth downward, toward the grinding edge. Repeat this as many as eight times in this one area. Then move to the first molar region repeating the downward brushing motion. Continue on around all the uppers to the right side until you reach the third molar. Then place the brush in the inside of the uppers on the right side brushing downward, continuing gradually around to the left molar region. The lower teeth are brushed upward using a definite number of strokes in each section as in the upper jaw.

The mouth should be rinsed several times during the procedure. Regular brushing makes the teeth clean, makes the mouth taste sweet, hardens the gums, prevents pyorrhea, and rids your breath of halitosis.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—The third and final session of the 71st congress got under way December 1, with its official flags flying at half-staff.

They were lowered in respect to the memory of Representative Quayle of New York, who died shortly before the session opened.

Similarly, in the house, the only business aside from opening routine that first day was adoption of the usual resolutions of condolence for the half dozen or so members who have died since the last session ended in July.

So far as the 71st congress is concerned, that is about all there is to it. Deaths among those on its rolls have had no political significance.

The half-staffed flags over house and senate chamber merely carried to the eyes of folk on the streets that note of mourning incidental to the real message of the flags.

They are set there to tell when house or senate respectively is in session.

Different Next Time

Consider now what will be the case when the 72nd congress assembles with hair-line party majority margins in both houses. Deaths among members-elect to the 72nd congress are almost inevitable.

Unless some definite arrangement, enduring for a session at least, can be arrived at when that congress convenes, the flags may tell a wholly different story from day to day.

When they are placed at half-staff, no casual onlooker will be able to tell what has happened to party control in one branch or the other due to the death thus proclaimed.

This makes it logical to expect that a gentlemen's agreement will permit organization by one party without danger of that organization being upset overnight by the accident of death.

The legislative product could not be greatly affected either way since that is a matter of roll-call votes.

Patterns Longworth?

It is said, but maybe not truthfully, that Representative Garner of Texas has provided himself with a new sartorial setting, based on Nicholas Longworth's ideas about what well dressed house speakers are wearing this season. He did not trot it out on opening day, but wore the usual business suit of somewhat the same hue as his ruddy face.

And the strawberry-roan effect of face and dress throws into startling prominence those bushy, belligerent-looking and strikingly white Garner eyebrows.

Looking down from the press gallery, one gets an advance notice sometimes that Garner is about to explode into action when those eyebrows are noted twitching. They do it frequently.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Jerry Shows Stumpy What To Do

Which-ever way you chance to turn
There's always something you can learn.
—Jerry Muskrat.

"You follow me," said Jerry Muskrat to Stumpy, his three-legged son who was making his home with his parents in the big house in the Smiling pool. "You follow me and I will show you what to do now that ice covers the Smiling pool, making a hard roof as you call it. You say that when you went out this morning you could find no place to get fresh air and had all you could do to get back here again. That is because you didn't know what to do or where to go for air. You follow me and I will show you how to go about in comfort when Jack Frost has put a roof on the Smiling pool."

Jerry Muskrat filled his lungs with air and disappeared in the water-filled hall that opened in the floor of the house. Stumpy filled his lungs with air and followed. They came out of the doorway in the mud on the bottom of the Smiling pool and

"Now you see how it is done," said he

Jerry led the way upward. Stumpy had a queer feeling. He had that very morning come up in just this way and had bumped his nose against the ice which had formed in the night, the first ice he had even seen or felt. He had had hard work to hold his breath long enough to get back into the house where there was fresh air. Was his father going to make the same mistake? It looked that way.

But Jerry did not swim clear to the top. Just a little below this he straightened out and headed for the bank. Stumpy followed, although he really was afraid to. He couldn't believe that they could possibly swim over to that bank and back again without fresh air and where could they get this if they couldn't push their noses out of water? He was tempted to turn back. Yes, sir, he was so. However, common sense whispered that his father must know what he was about. So Stumpy kept on.

Under the edge of the bank Jerry Muskrat gently pushed his nose up. Stumpy did the same. To his surprise he found there was a little air space there and he could fill his lungs with fresh cold air. There was plenty of it. The roof of ice kept him from putting his nose up in the outer air, but there under the edge of the bank the water didn't quite touch the ice and there was air enough for a muskrat or several for that matter. Then Jerry led the way to the bank on the other side and there it was the same way. After this Jerry dived and dug up a root and with this swam back to the house. Stumpy dived at the same place and found another root which he could get hold of with his teeth without having to dig it out. With this he swam back to the house. Meanwhile Mrs. Jerry and Stumpy's sister had also come out in search of breakfast.

Once back in the house Jerry turned to Stumpy. "Now you see how it is done," said he.

Stumpy nodded. "Yes," said he, "I see how it is done. Is there always air under the edge of the bank?"

"Almost always," replied Jerry. "If there wasn't there would still be a way to breathe. I'll show you the next time we go out. Just now, having had some exercise and my breakfast, I feel like a nap."

So Jerry curled up and went to sleep. Presently the other members of the family returned, ate breakfast and went to sleep. Stumpy couldn't go to sleep. No, sir, he couldn't go to sleep. He tried but it was useless. He kept thinking how strange the Smiling pool was with a roof over it, a roof through which the light came so that they could see almost as well as if there had been no roof of ice. Now that he knew how to get fresh air he was no longer afraid. So presently he slipped out and swam across to where the Laughing brook enters the Smiling pool. To his surprise he found that the Laughing brook was not frozen over. So here he had a chance to climb out and see how the Smiling pool looked with a roof over it.

The New York Judiciary

Mr. Editor: My attention has just been called to a paragraph in your issue of December 6th containing a statement attributed to the toastmaster on the occasion of the dinner to Judge Avery, which should not pass without rebuke.

The statement was as follows:

"In the state of New York the judges are hand picked. After their appointment they take a trip to Europe. On their return they are feted by racketeers and others. In other words, justice is bought and sold."

It is difficult to exercise restraint in commenting upon this language because, expressed as it is, as a characteristic of the whole New York judiciary it is untrue and is an offensive libel.

I can only account for this accusation by the notoriety of the present proceedings here in New York to expose and punish some individuals for the vices described, which proceedings were in fact instituted by our own judiciary. In other words, it would seem that the New York judiciary as a whole is charged with the very criminality of the individuals it is endeavoring to punish.

It could only have been made as a result of ignorance of the facts or utter recklessness in drawing a general inference from the recently advertised conduct of one or at most a small minority of judges of an inferior criminal court, removed or compelled to resign from their positions because of an investigation by the real judiciary itself of New York state.

In other words this raw aspersion if made, was a villification of the whole body of New York judges by attributing to them discreditable conduct which they had exposed and brought to punishment as to the small number shown to be guilty.

To accuse a judiciary, as a body, of the very crime which it is exposing in one or several of its inferior members would be paralleled by attributing to the bar itself criminality because, forsooth, its members are generally concerned with wrong doing in their professional business of righting it.

The judiciary of New York city alone (including therein the five boroughs) has a membership of probably 100 judges, the great majority of whom are universally recognized as men of high character and fine ability with not a breath of suspicion that any mercenary consideration ever led to their election or appointment, or had anything to do with the administration of justice.

This judiciary, as a whole, is held in the highest esteem by litigants and the general public, as is evident from the fact that our courts are simply overwhelmed with litigation voluntarily instituted in those courts. What other inference can be drawn than that the public has confidence in the courts!

It is strange that any such offensive aspersion upon the New York judiciary as a whole should have been made at the meeting of any bar, and if made was indeed an insult to the intelligence of those acquainted with the real facts.

I have been a member of the New York bar for nearly 50 years and know whereof I speak, and obviously the least that I could do on observing the paragraph referred to was to enter this protest.

It would be an injustice to the bar of New London county and its public that any such impression as is contained in the article referred to should not be corrected.

Slander and libel of individuals are bad enough.

They are even worse when directed against an institution as a whole which is the very foundation of civilization.

I trust and hope that an error has been made in attributing the language quoted to the speaker, and if so he owes it to himself to repudiate it.

My sense of obligation to the judiciary of New York and my regard for the bar and public of New London county will not permit me to allow this charge publicly made against the New York Judiciary to pass without a point-blank protest.

Norwich and Its Industries

Mr. Editor: In the items of "Fifty Years Ago", appearing in your columns we read "the blacksmith shops are all working overtime," which is food for reflection, viewed from the economic. One resident recently remarked, "What is the matter with Norwich? Why, I remember when we had half-a-dozen machine shops where a fellow could get work anytime, but now we have none." In place of the horses and blacksmith shops we have the automobile and the garages, which it is safe to say, employ many more men. The machine shops either closed for want of patronage, or moved elsewhere to meet their economic need, to be nearer the larger market for their product, the midwest.

The question is very naturally in everyone's mind—What is the matter with Norwich? If you had your ear to the ground in any other city, at this time, you would hear the same question asked, relative to their local condition. All cities are subject to changes, but the industrial city's changes are more apparent, with the success or failure of its industries. Norwich has suffered much from removal of plants and again from failures. Many local men can recall with pride the numerous industries of the past, developed and owned by Norwich capital, by men with a pronounced civic pride, but when outside capital gains control, Norwich for Norwich interests is discarded for Norwich for her advantages.

Operating a plant in this era is vastly different from days of yore. Markets have changed and merchandise marketable in the past has been supplemented by merchandise with a greater utility, a greater sales appeal. We recognize two distinct markets, "the sellers market" as in the past when the manufacturer could stress staples, and manufacturer and store ahead for requirements, and the "buyers market" when nothing is staple, changes are constant and the stock question of the buyer is what have you new to offer? It is a difficult market, an expensive one, individuals and merchants buying only for immediate needs. Orders being small, costs necessarily rise in manufacturing and distribution. And yet, creditwise it is one of our wholesome encouragements, merchants buying safely, inventories in proper ratio.

There is much discussion in this age of the mounting sales costs, and some very radical policies being adopted to try to overcome the very logical result of small sales and salesmen's excessive traveling expenses. Efforts have been put forth by certain groups to eliminate the traveling salesman, but it has tended to aggravate the issue for the manufacturer. Thus the industrial issue is one fraught with complex problems, problems which are trying the hearts of the staunchest and rattling the bones of many of our traditional New England industrialists. One has to be ten jumps ahead of the market, to maintain leadership, to trail is to suffer prestige. New ideas, new methods, fertile brain work, constructive planning is the order of this industrial era.

Not overlooking the many industries, now so ably contributing to the well being of Norwich, for these we must be proud and thankful, yet it is not sufficient, in view of the losses sustained. These must be replaced. Norwich must progress, must secure or start several new industries. This is our chief concern, and Norwich must be up and going, every citizen doing his or her part. We have natural advantages, but who in the industrial field knows of them, except by accident? In view of our losses, the question is rightly asked, What type of industry will thrive best in Norwich, under present conditions? Let us analyze our losses of the past: The cotton industry moving south, very logical, chiefly to be near the raw material supply. The paper industry followed its raw material supply, mostly north. The gun industry is very restricted, due to legislation, and the diminishing supply of game. Stove and boiler industry moved for economic pressure, consolidation of plants and probably due to obsoleteness of local plant. Norwich has a very favorable labor market, supply is ample. Shipping facilities for the New York market are excellent. The issue therefore is the geographical location, relative to raw materials. My personal opinion is any industry which can thrive in any section of the state, Rhode Island or Massachusetts, generally speaking, is the type favorable to our well being. Small hardware, household ware, wire products, small parts, electrical appliances, silk and shoes are worth mentioning. Industries primarily, which employ men, the heads of homes, are essential, and should be stressed, to build Norwich a city of homes.

An issue we cannot overlook and a very vital one, I fear the cause of more than one industrial loss, obsolete industrial buildings and equipment. To my own mind it is much to the discredit of industry in general, who are building for permanency, that capital investment, represented by building and equipment are not protected by reserves for replacement, yet, there is no regard for labor, services faithfully performed for years, so the absence of vision on the part of industrialists is not surprising. However, in the light of developments, so visible around us, we must remark, if some of the so-called dividends, paid in the past, were justifiably used to build up replacement reserves, Norwich for one, would have a better industrial outlook. I recognize this issue as a debatable one from the accountant's angle, or more properly the auditor and treasurer versus the cost accountant; the treasurer naturally desiring to pay all the dividends in sight and the cost accountant desiring to conserve the capital investment by the inclusion of all elements, to provide against this obsoleteness.

Even though we are in the midst of grave industrial distress, our confidence in the eventual, if not the speedy recovery of business is certain, and Norwich must plan ably and well, a way out of her difficulty.

My suggestion Mr. Editor, is that the splendid efforts of the chamber of commerce can perhaps be augmented, assisted, through suggestions arising from open discussion in your columns of the issue—Norwich, what of her industrial future?

From my personal knowledge of local men, I am confident, there are industrial leaders in our midst, equal to the past, with capacities equal to the emergency. Civic pride can be greatly improved, loss of investments have hurt, disappointments have occurred and will occur in a measure again, but Norwich must live on and progress, the present generation must be equal to its responsibilities. There are numerous angles which can be discussed constructively, relative to our local industrial position, and I feel present efforts can be ably assisted. I also feel the common ejaculation, O. Norwich! can be changed, as indeed it must to our former pride. Norwich the Rose of New England, My Home.

BANDIT GETS NOTHING, BUT KILLS CHAIN STORE MANAGER

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—(AP)—When he refused to turn over the day's receipts to a hold-up man, Michael McLaughlin, 32, manager of a chain grocery store on the upper West Side, was fatally shot tonight. A bullet penetrated his head and he died soon after being taken to a hospital. The slayer escaped.

The lone robber, pistol in hand, walked into the store just as McLaughlin, with two employes, was preparing to close.

"Get 'em up quick," the gunman said.

The others compiled.

"Now shell out," ordered the robber.

"I won't give you the money," McLaughlin replied, "and I think you're afraid to shoot."

The man fired.

McLaughlin fell with a bullet in the middle of his forehead. The youth ran from the store.

Michael Morrow and Samuel Kerr, the clerks, rushed out, shouting for help, as the robber leaped into an automobile, and drove away.

PROPOSITION FOR NEW INDUSTRY BEFORE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The possibility of establishing in Norwich two factories, one for the manufacture of an air-cooled engine for automobiles and the other for making taxicabs in which these engines would be used was put before a special meeting of Chamber of Commerce members Thursday evening at the rooms in the Thayer building. A group of four New York and New Haven men explained the proposition to the meeting, at which President Charles V. James presided, and a committee of investigation was named.

The expressed sentiment of the meeting was more in favor of the engine factory than the taxicab idea and this committee is to visit Long Island City and New York in the course of its investigations. Those named on the committee are Harry E. Austen, H. H. Vignot, Thomas F. Connor, George W. Moore, L. M. Carpenter, Hugo Munn and Frank R. Murdy.

The engine, it was explained, is the small-size Martin air-cooled engine for automobiles, which would be used in the small car and truck. This car is a revolutionary type of automobile invented by Capt. James B. Martin, famous inventor of the Martin bomber, and of rubber cord suspension which takes up the shock of landing instead of springs for airplanes. This rubber cord suspension has been applied to automobiles and has stood the test of running for 30,000 miles. It is so cheap that it costs but 20 cents. It does away with axles, springs, frames, fenders and differentials and a car of the Austin size can be made to sell for $200 and will make 50 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

The manufacturing cost of the Martin engine would be $26, it was stated, the clutch and transmission would add $9 more and the electrical equipment about $25 more, making the total cost of manufacturing the engine about $60. It would be sold for a profit of $8, and it was stated that the company would be in a position to sell 100,000 engines in its first year. The small Martin engine is to be built after the pattern of the large Martin engine, and it was declared that there are three or four concerns which are ready to take more engines than the company could produce.

The visiting speakers said it would require $30,000 to develop the engine, turning out 15 or 20 demonstration engines. As soon as the engine had been proved there was a standing order for 20,000 engines and a New York banking firm, Palmer and Co., stands ready to carry out the financing of a million dollar corporation. The $30,000 would be raised in common stock at $5 per share.

With the manufacture under full headway, there would be employment for from 2,500 to 3,000 men, with the ratio of about ten per cent in skilled help. At the start there would be 50 employed and they would expect to add from 50 to 100 men weekly.

Taxicab Building

Taking up the taxicab building, it was stated that this was a taxicab weighing 1,600 pounds, as compared with 4,500 pounds weight of taxicabs now. It would be four feet, six inches shorter than the yellow taxi, seven feet shorter than the large taxi, seven inches higher inside and six inches longer than the present large taxi and would seat six persons instead of five. It is roomier than any taxi now built. It would run 34 miles on a gallon of gas and could be built to sell for $1,000 as compared with present price of $2,600 for taxicabs. Through handling the distribution, the company could expect to make not less than $200 profit on every taxi built and would figure to sell 1,000 of the taxis per month. The promoters stated that they already have many applications for distribution.

It would require $50,000 for the development of the taxicab factory, the promoters said, and it was expected to employ ultimately from 1,800 to 3,000 men.

Three places in Pennsylvania, Grove City, Butler and Newcastle, were anxious to get the engine factory, it was stated by the visiting speakers, who stated that they would not think of coming to Norwich unless they could be sure of an adequate supply of labor and a suitable place to manufacture here.

Assurance was given that Norwich could meet those requirements.

HOPE FOR REDUCTION OF AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

If care is exercised by motorists and others in avoiding accidents during the remaining days of December it will mean that Connecticut will have a lower total of motor vehicle accidents for 1930 than in any year for the past five years, said Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel in a bulletin prepared for and read from WTIC, the Travelers station, Thursday afternoon. There has been a reduction in each of the first eleven months of the year, except two, he pointed out, "which, with a reduction this month, will give a total below any annual figure since 1926.

"Death and injury totals because of motor vehicle accidents have also shown marked decreases. If nothing unforeseen occurs in December, the number of persons killed should be lower than at any time in the past three years. The list of injured will show an annual decrease for the first time since motor vehicle statistics have been a matter of record.

"Up to December 1st, this year, 17,435 accidents were reported in Connecticut. If the total for December is no greater than last year, the figure for all of this year will be approximately 19,700. This is about 4,000 below the total for 1929, and considerably less than the comparative total for any year since 1926. The decrease this year will represent the second successive annual decrease in accidents.

"While the total of deaths chargeable to motor vehicle operation is still high, it will be about fifty below that of last year. There were 375 deaths in the first eleven months. According to experience records, about thirty deaths may be expected in December. There were 466 deaths in the calendar year 1929. The same total was reported in 1928. This was 110 above the previous high figure of 356, which was reached in 1927.

"The injuries, other than those resulting in death, numbered 11,649 in the first eleven months of this year in Connecticut. This is about 2,000 below the number reported in all of 1929. As not more than 1,000 persons may be expected to be added to the injured list during December, indications are that the total for the year will be about 1,000 below that of last year, establishing the first annual reduction in injuries to persons because of motor vehicle accidents.

"Many things have contributed to bring about the record which seems certain for 1930. Chief among them is the effort made by users of the highways to avoid accidents and difficulties, for, after all, this record is their record. Whatever has been done in lowering previous bad totals has been accomplished by them. If decreases continue, it will be, mainly because of the efforts made by vehicle drivers and pedestrians."

YALE INVESTIGATING USE OF FOOTBALL TICKETS

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 11—(AP)—H. F. Woodcock, general manager of the Yale A. A., tonight announced that investigation into the personal use of tickets to the recent Yale-Harvard game, had so far revealed 229 cases of irregularity.

The investigation is not complete As a result of these 229 cases, 20 people, including 11 students and nine alumni, have been blacklisted in regard to future ticket sales because tickets sold them were later found in the hands of scalpers.

Up to this time 1088 signed stubs have been investigated. Of the 229 cases of irregularity, the stubs of 130 were found to have been signed by persons other than those who applied for them, 91 were found to have signed the names of the original applicants but the signatures did not compare, and eight refused to sign. Proper signatures were found on 859 tickets.

A check-up of many of the irregularities has resulted in the discovery that some holders traded seats. In such cases none have been blacklisted.

The investigation is being conducted by comparison of the signatures on the tickets, as they were turned in at the game, with the signatures on the ticket applications.

STEEL COTS FOR PRISONERS WHO BURNED MATTRESSES

BURLINGTON, Vt., Dec. 11—(AP)—Prisoners in the county jail today had a laugh on the warden and their guards. One after another seven of them set fire to their mattresses which the guards had to throw out into the yard as smoke filled the cells and corridors. Tonight the laugh was on the other side. Seven prisoners had to try to sleep on nice hard steel cots without any protective bedding.

NORWICH TO HAVE NEXT LIONS' CONVENTION

District Governor Luke A. Whipple of Pawtucket and Leo Eaulac, president of the Pawtucket Lions' club, were visitors at the Thursday luncheon meeting of the Norwich Lions' club, where District Governor Whipple made the important announcement that the next convention of New England Lions, which will be in January, will be held in Norwich. This will bring about 200 men to this city.

In addition to his announcement relative to the convention, Governor Whipple spoke of the New England conference and made mention of work being done among the blind of Rhode Island.

Rev. William J. Sly of Greeneville was the three-minute speaker and his subject was Public Speaking and Self-Expression.

The club extended a warm greeting to Lion Max Hanover in welcoming him back to the city after an extended absence in New York, to which Mr. Hanover responded with an expression of his pleasure at being in Norwich again and spoke interestingly of his visit in New York.

The meeting was in charge of President Louis M. Crandall and Dr. Kopland K. Markoff was song leader.

ACADEMY CLOSES YEAR WITH ANNUAL BANQUET

The Academy football season was formally closed Thursday evening with the annual banquet, which was held at Whipple's cottage, Gardner lake, at 6:30. An old-fashioned New England turkey dinner was served to 42, who included besides Coach Courtland Whitney and the football squad, the lettermen in cross-country and Principal Henry A. Tirrell, Matthew Sheridan, cross-country coach, Paul Bitgood, basketball coach, Paul Bradlaw, athletic association treasurer and John Schaefer, school janitor.

Coach Whitney was presented a bathrobe by the football team as a taken of appreciation of his work and he responded in fitting words.

Messrs. Tirrell, Sheridan, Bitgood and Bradlaw also spoke briefly. Capt. Ernest Stevens was toastmaster and kept things moving lively. The trip to the cottage was made in private automobiles, leaving the school building at 6 o'clock.

Because of the disastrous season, the banquet was held under difficulties this year. There was a deficit at the close of the campaign so that, after much planning, the various fraternities of the school, together with a few friends agreed to finance the annual affair. It is the plan to run an entertainment in the near future, the proceeds of which will defray the expense of the banquet.

The financial statement of the football season, released Thursday, shows that the deficit will amount to approximately $270. The statement follows:

Income
Student season tickets	$277.00
General season tickets	16.00
Score book	247.00
Megaphones	8.20
Gifts	30.00
Gate receipts	731.65
Guarantee from Bridgeport	125.00
Total income	$1,434.85
Expenses
Guarantees	$250.00
Ticket boys at gate	32.60
Equipment	440.00
Police	80.00

GRIFFITHS-STRIBLING BOUT IS MID-WEST FEATURE

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—(AP)— Just how much business Gerald Ambrose Griffiths, the tough youth from Sioux City, Iowa, has in the heavyweight championship scene will be determined tomorrow night when he meets W. L. (Young) Stribling of Macon, Ga., in the Chicago stadium.

Stribling, by his quick triumphs over Otto Von Porat and Phil Scott, has built himself a position among the heavies that only a good, sound licking can destroy. Griffiths, however, has been an in-and-outer, going well against some good fighters and going into reverse against some not so good.

The National Boxing association has hinted that the winner will be its choice for a heavyweight championship fight with Max Schmeling, and both Stribling and Griffiths are eager to be first in line in case it goes through.

Griffiths, usually phlegmatic, has worked harder for the bout than for any other and today had reached such a pitch of belligerency as to be unapproachable even by his manager, Jack O'Keefe.

Stribling has done little in the gymnasium. He was in shape when he reached Chicago and sought only to retain his fighting edge. He worked with light-heavies and middleweights for three days developing speed and is satisfied that his condition could hardly be improved. He also has become surly, an indication that there will be plenty of fight.

The fact that the Georgian has taken it easy in training has not caused him to lose the favor of the wagering gentry, who have made him a 2 to 1 choice. He worked very little before he met Von Porat in his last Chicago appearance and some of the experts were inclined to go for angular Otto and his devastating punch. The fight lasted less than one round, with "W. L." knocking Otto stiff with a left hook to the chin. The left hand was supposed to be in bad condition, too.

Griffiths will depend on speed, his left hand and his defensive ability. Stribling has greater experience, considerably more punching power and unlimited confidence. The Sioux City youngster probably will weigh around 188, with Stribling coming in a couple of pounds heavier.

The clash has aroused the imaginations of Chicago fans, and Sidney Strotz, president of the Stadium corporation, said tonight he expected a gate of "well over $100,000," which would mean an attendance of around 20,000. The advance sale had reached $70,000 today, with the less expensive seats going fast.

GAINER KNOCKS OUT KELLY IN NINTH

WATERBURY, Dec. 11.— (AP) —Al Gainer, sensational New Haven Negro, checked the ambitions of Jack Kelly, local Lithuanian, here tonight when he knocked out his state rival in the ninth round of a scheduled ten round bout featuring a charity fund fight card at the State Armory.

The meeting, the second between the light heavyweight rivals, was contested for the New England championship and drew a crowd of more than 4,000 fans. Gainer holds the state title in the division.

Gainer, a big favorite to triumph for the second time, outpointed the big Lithuanian for the first six rounds as Kelly fought a defensive battle. The local boy rallied in the seventh and with a right hand attack to the body beat back the Negro. He also carried the eighth with his right hand counting to the head and body.

The ninth round was under way only a few seconds when Gainer loosed a left hand smash that caught Kelly on the chin and dropped him to the canvas. Referee Bill Conway counted ten but Kelly rose at the final count and pleaded to be allowed to continue but he was waived aside by the official. Gainer weighed 168, Kelly 172.

Jack "Red" Knight, New Haven, 145, knocked out Jack Paoli, 146 1-2, in the second round of a four-round opener.

Romeo Dubois, New Haven, 130, outpointed John Vignali, Waterbury, 131 1-4 in a six rounder.

Connie Mello, 134, Waterbury, pounded out a six-round decision over Young Jack McKenna, 134 3-4, Jersey City.

Al Paliadino, New York, 153, scored a technical knockout over Jack Grapam, Schenectady, N. Y., 147, in the third round of a scheduled six rounder.

Leo Larrivee, Waterbury, 163, scored a technical knockout over Mike Toronto, Bridgeport, 167, in the fifth round of a scheduled six round semifinal bout.

INTERESTING NOTES OF ACADEMY ALUMNI

According to the current issue of the Red and White, Academy student publication, Theodore (Hack) Pepin, has made the freshman basketball team at St. Michael's college, Winooskie, Vt., and has also been elected class treasurer.

Other items of interest about alumni show that Orrin Hertz was on the freshman football team at New York university this past season and that Walter Sura won the freshman strength test, held at Worcester Polytechnic institute recently, and that Beebe has made the band and the glee club at the same school.

ALABAMA MILLION DOLLAR AIRPORT NEAR COMPLETION

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—(AP)—Birmingham's million dollar airport is to be ready for service before Christmas.

Grading of the 330-acre field practically is completed, and the drainage system is nearing completion. The administration building and hangar, of brick and steel construction, have been designed to meet requirements of the department of commerce.

A billion dollar bond issue for the field was approved by the voters last February. The airport is about 15 minutes from the heart of the city.

BURNING OF CORN AS FUEL SUGGESTED IN ARGENTINA

BUENOS AIRES—(AP)— The idea of burning Argentine corn instead of imported coal as industrial fuel again has come to the fore here.

The same suggestion was heard several years ago during a price depression.

Use of corn for fuel on railroads and in other industries is suggested by the newspaper Critica as deserving technical study in view of the exchange rate on the Argentine peso particularly since the provisional government of Argentina has been considering means of reducing the cost of living.

The somewhat pompous head of a large department store was passing through the packing room one day when he saw a boy lounging against a wooden box, whistling cheerfully. The chief stopped and looked at him.

"How much do you get a week?" he barked.

"Five dollars."

"Then here's a week's pay—get out."

When the boy had departed, the boss turned to one of his subordinates.

"When did we hire that boy?" he demanded.

"We never hired him," came the astonishing answer. "He just brought in a package from another firm."—Exchange.

MAJORS AND MINORS UNABLE TO REACH ANY AGREEMENT ON DRAFT

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—(AP)—Relations betwen the majors and minor leagues were blasted far apart today by the controversy over the universal draft, and organized baseball faced its first open warfare since the days of the Federal league, 15 years ago.

Bubbling over with wrath, the committee of nine, representing the American association and the Pacific Coast and International leagues, stormed out of a joint meeting with representatives of the National and American leagues late this afternoon determined to carry on business in the future without any relations whatsoever with the majors. The break-up brought an end to three days of negotiation here and left no prospect that the big and little brothers of organized baseball could hope to settle their differences peacefully in the near future.

The two branches of baseball split definitely on the proposition of optioning out players for seasoning and the price to be paid for athletes drafted by the majors.

The majors, headed in the conference by Presidents Ernest S. Barnard of the American league and John A. Heydler, of the National league, insisted that they be allowed to select players from class AA teams—teams of the American association, Pacific Coast and International leagues—who had had four years of experience anywhere in minor league baseball.

The minors insisted that class AA teams be allowed to hold a player three years regardless of previous experience in leagues of lower classification.

On this point—and the question of price to be paid for these athletes—the committees could reach no agreement. The majors offered $7,500 for each drafted player, a drop of $10,000 from their offer at the recent Cleveland conference, while the minors asked for $10,000.

As a final resort the minor league committee, headed by Charles H. Strub, president of the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast league, offered to place settlement of the controversy in the hands of High Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis with the understanding that both sides would agree to stand by his decision. The major league committees refused to accept this offer and the minors marched out of the meeting in warlike formation.

The minors, offering several compromises, agreed to permit each major league club to send 15 players out on option for three years apiece instead of the eight players now permitted each club for two years. The little brothers demanded, however, that the same consideration in developing players be extended to them by the majors.

The minors pointed out that universal draft of players with four years of minor experience, at a cost of only $7,500, would rob the class AA clubs of stars just coming into their own and prevent the big minors from regaining sums spent in developing their own stars in leagues of lesser classifications. They insisted that it takes three to four years to develop a ball-player of any ability, a point brought out by the majors' demand for the right to option athletes for three years, and demanded protection against the draft for their stars once they were developed.

To insure getting their money back on their own investments in players from the smaller minors, the class AA clubs asked that their players be eligible for draft only after three years of AA service if they came into the top minors without previous experience, or after two years, regardless of previous minor league service. The right of the majors to draft former big leaguers at will went unquestioned.

As soon as an impasse was reached, the minor league committee of nine met again to formulate plans for the future that include no hope of reconciliation with the majors. The majors met in joint session, discussed the draft but took no further action, and disposed of several minor matters.

After the gathering of the still fuming minor league magnates, Strub, spokesman for the committee of nine, issued this statement:

"We feel that the majors today have created a new major league. We are sorry that they could not see our viewpoint in this draft situation.

"We have tried to the best of our ability to cooperate with the majors but find their attitude is not conducive to cooperation. We even offered to let the high commissioner, Kenesaw M. Landis, be the final judge of the reasonableness or the unreasonableness of our proposition. But this did not meet with their approval.

"We now hope with this matter definitely settled that it shall have the approval of our cities in our respective leagues and that we will bring baseball up to a major league standing and that in two or three years the American and National leagues will give us the recognition that our clubs deserve.

"We hope that as long as the majors have created this situation that they will join with us in giving us world series competition and that the most friendly relations will govern all future actions."

NAVY TEAM GIVEN OVATION IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP)— Navy's squad of 43 football huskies received a great ovation when they arrived in Penn station shortly before 9 o'clock tonight for their clash with the Army here Saturday.

The fife and drum corps of the U. S. S. Pensacola, the Navy band from the Brooklyn navy yard, a hundred friends and relatives of the players, and members of the academy here on leave, swelled the crowd to about 2,000.

The band greeted the players with "Anchors Aweigh" and the Navy regulars and bystanders were recruited into a cheering section that sent Navy yells rolling all through the big station.

Repeated yells for Head Coach Bill Ingram finally forced the coach to doff his hat and bow. Responding to cries for a speech, Ingram said simply: "We'll do all our talking Saturday afternoon."

The squad finally was marched out of the station and loaded into buses which took the players to the Hotel Commodore.

NAVY OFF FOR GAME WITH ARMY SATURDAY

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 11.—(AP)—The Navy football squad left this afternoon on a special train for New York to meet the Army in a charity game at the Yankee stadium Saturday afternoon.

The squad, in charge of "Navy Bill" Ingram, head coach, numbered 60. Athletic and other officials made up the remainder of the party of 85, in charge of Commander Frederick G. Reinicke, graduate manager of athletics.

The train was scheduled to arrive in New York at 8:50 p. m., E. S. T., and the team was to go direct to the Commodore hotel, Navy headquarters.

A light practice session was held for the team early this afternoon and the final limbering up drill is to be held in the Yankee stadium tomorrow afternoon.

All of the regulars, with the exception of Joe Tschirgi and Lou Kirn, the latter the most powerful of the Middle backs, were reported by Reinicke to be in the best shape of the year. Tschirgi, he said, probably would get into the game but might not last long because of an injury which has shown stubbornness in healing. Kirn is also suffering from slight injuries.

PLAINFIELD RALLIES IN LAST HALF TO WIN

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Dec. 11.—The Plainfield Pros turned back the Detroit Clowns in a hard-fought game here tonight, rallying in the second half to accomplish the trick. The Pros were trailing 20 to 13 at the half but after intermission turned on steam and soon took the lead which they were able to hold for the remainder of the game. Kasper, Plainfield right forward, was the leading scorer with 15 points, while Patrick, the opposition's right forward, led the tallying for the visitors.

The Clowns put on an entertainment between the halves which was featured by the antics of Buster Kenny and was well received by the large crowd.

In the preliminary, the Plainfield five defeated Westerly, 31 to 13, after leading at half time by 21 to 6.

Chocolate to Beat Battalino

Being a Connecticut Yankee I suppose I should root for the dear old state when one of her sons does battle against an outsider but somehow I just am not imbued with that "die for old Connecticut" spirit. All of which means that I pick the Ebony Keed from Kuba to take the Baffling Battalino of Hartford in tonight's fracas. I never could see Battalino as champion and the way he has been fed milk toast and soft boiled eggs in his bouts since winning the title has not made him any friends. Tonight he meets a ten-minute egg and we will see how good his digestion is on solid food.

Basketball Going Big at N. F. A.

Basketball seems to have taken a very firm foothold at the Academy since the opening of the Norton Memorial. Seventy boys at the school have reported to Coach Bitgood as candidates for the varsity team which should give the coach plenty of material to work on. Not only has this large number of candidates turned out for varsity basketball but there are twenty teams in the intra-mural competition which is now under way at the school. Never has there been such a manifestation of interest in any one sport at the institution as is being shown at the present time. And never has there been such a turn-out for any one sport in the history of the school. With the students showing such interest in the sport there is bound to be a corresponding note sounded among the basketball fans in the city and it would not be surprising to see seats at the Academy games at a premium before the season is over. Let us hope so.

Poor Putnam

Because Windham high was unwilling to schedule two games with Putnam high in the Eastern Connecticut Basketball conference, because of an overcrowded schedule, Putnam will have no chance to win the title. At least that is the excuse that Windham gave for not taking on Putnam. It is rumored that there is something more subtle in back of Windham's action in its refusal to play Putnam but nothing definite is known. It would seem that if an overcrowded schedule was the only excuse it is pretty thin and that good sportsmanship would almost demand that they find a place on their slate for the two games with Putnam if only to give the Putnam school a chance at the title. Such an attitude toward a smaller school is not beneficial in the promotion of high school athletics in the eastern part of the state. It would seem that in fairness to Putnam some arrangement should be made so that they will have a chance to play for the title. Unless some way is found to allow Putnam to compete the upstate school would be justified in withdrawing from the conference.

RULES INTERPRETATION FOR E. CONN. OFFICIALS

A rules interpretation meeting of the Eastern Connecticut Basketball Officials association will be held Monday evening at the Norton Memorial gym at the Academy at which time Sumner A. Dole, of Storrs, president of the association, will explain code. Mr. Dole has recently been to New York to attend a meeting of officials.

CITS AND WESTERLY COLLEGIANS CLASH AT PULASKI HALL TONIGHT

Tonight's Lineups

Citizens	Westerly
Dugas, lf	lf, Greig
Peltier, rf	rf, Cruickshank
Finn, c	c, Cropper
Lemieux, rg (Capt.)	rg, Stefanski
Pingree, lg	lg, Stenhouse

Tonight at Pulaski hall the Polish Citizens will square off with the Westerly Collegians in the second game of the locals' season. A preliminary, bringing together the Cits Jrs. and Pepin's All Stars, will go on at 8 o'clock.

The Citizens made an auspicious beginning last week when they sent the New London Ockfords home on the short end of a 37 to 31 score. This team had beaten the Shymas a few weeks before and was favored to gain the decision over the Polish outfit.

The Collegians will bring up one of the strongest clubs in southwestern Rhode Island to test the Cits and may be able to make this week's game a sorry thought for the Norwich laddies. Cropper at center is one of the highest scorers in the section. In a game on Tuesday night he scored three-quarters of his team's points.

The Cits will have their regular lineup of Lefty Dugas and Jerry Peltier at forwards, Pete Finn at center and Capt. Lemieux and Les Pingree at guards.

The preliminary should be no less hard fought bringing together as it does two of the best junior teams in the section. It is the opening game for the Citizens team, who have been practicing hard for some time. In fact, most of them have been playing under the banner of the Shymas Jrs.

Emil Raymond will handle the whistle.

SEVENTY OUT FOR BASKETBALL AT ACADEMY

Three weeks from tonight the Academy will open its first basketball season under the coaching of Paul Bitgood and with the Norton Memorial gym as a home base and Thursday afternoon the A squad was put through another workout in preparation. The boys who make up this squad, to the number of 24, were drilled for approximately two hours by Coach Bitgood and Carl Blanchard, who is assisting him, most of the time being spent in formations, both offensive and defensive.

The present list of candidates numbers 70 boys, 26 on the A squad and 42 on Squad B. They are as follows:

Squad A—Albertine, Boyce, Butkiewicz, Caron, Carpenter, De Barros, Dickerman, Falcone, Fitzgerald, R. Geer, W. Geer, Golembeski, Greene, Hazam, Hynd, Lambert, Romanowski, J. Sheridan, Skoronski, Stavrou, Stephano, Stevens, Tripp, Vulgares, P. Wilmot, R. Wilmot.

Squad B—R. Agnew, G. Baker, T. Baker, Bellows, Bingham, A. Brown, Caulfield, Chapman, Clegg, J. Conti, Eccleston, Feister, Fields, Gallivan, Goldblatt, Garvie, Hagen, G. Johnson, Kennedy, Leary, Lichenstein, Lukoski, Lyons, McGrath, McGuinness, McMahon, McNeely, Page, Polsky, Reardon, Richardson, Riley, Roche, Rudowicz, Rozanski, Schelin, Sholes, Spiro, D. Sullivan, Tedeschi, Ward, Waterman, Wechsler, Weisler, Yietz, J. Zierler.

Melvin Miller, class of 1931, has been chosen manager of this year's team and the assistant managers are Benjamin Schwartz, '32, and John Coffey, '33.

THERE WILL BE NO REDUCTION IN PRICES FOR ARMY-NAVY TILT

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP)—For the first time in three years, the athletes and supporters of the Naval and Military academies converged upon New York tonight for the most colorful football show on earth.

Amid a barrage of ballyhoo worthy of the occasion, more and more of the football public of this and other cities dug into the bankroll to boom the ticket sale, aid the unemployed and gain admission to a game that promises to rank with the best in Army-Navy history.

Although business conditions somewhat slowed the sale of the higher priced seats, the Salvation Army-Citizens committee headed by Grover Whalen announced there would be no reduction in the rates, which range up to $50.

"Even if there should be a block of unsold seats," said Whalen, "the citizens committee has ruled that there must not be any price reduction. Such a reduction would be obviously unfair to the early purchasers.

"We have a record football gate receipt total if we stopped selling tickets right now and we are under no necessity of cutting prices. The person who waits for a price cut is going to miss the game."

Indications today were that the net gate would exceed $500,000, with a possibility of realizing a total of $750,000 when the additional funds received from various other sources, such as concessions, programs and voluntary contributions from radio listeners-in, are added. Between 16,000 and 17,000 of the 78,000 seats remained unsold.

No possible chance to increase the sum that will go to aid the unemployed is being missed. Not only will the souvenir football, autographed by President Hoover and Army and Navy notables, be auctioned off, but even the coin to be tossed by the referee at the start of the game will be sold. It is a gold medallion bearing a likeness of the Army mule on one side and the Navy goat on the other.

A big parade tonight with military units in line was arranged to increase public interest and sell more tickets.

Even the weather man smiled on the occasion, predicting the conditions will be favorable for both players and spectators with no rain either Friday or Saturday.

The Navy squad, arriving tonight were quartered at a mid-town hotel until game time. The Army encamped tonight at Briarcliff, a short distance outside the city.

This thirtieth annual service game, scheduled as a post-season attraction for charity's sake after a three-year break in relations, finds the teams fairly evenly matched. Although the Army has the more impressive record, the Navy is considered far more powerful than at any time this season.

The Army and Navy undergraduate cheering sections at the Yankee stadium will be at opposite ends of the field, having volunteered to sit behind the goalposts so the higher-priced seats could be sold. In addition to the corps of cadets and the regiment of midshipment, 11,000 seats have been sold to old Army men and 14,000 to graduates of the Naval academy.

JR. LEAGUE TEAMS TO PRACTICE TODAY, SAT.

The first of two practice sessions for members of the basketball teams of the six grammar schools of the city entered in the Norwich Junior league will be held this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the Norton Memorial gym at the Academy. The gym will be open to the schools for an hour and a half. On Saturday, starting at 10 a. m., another session of an hour and a half will be held.

Some of the schools have already had drills, St. Patrick's practicing at the armory Thursday afternoon and two or three other schools at the Y gym. The league is creating much interest among the younger element of the city and a hot race is promised. The schools entered are Greeneville, St. Patrick's, St. Mary's, Broadway, Samuel Huntington and Elizabeth street.

Accept Challenge

The Notre Dame eleven accepts the challenge of the Silver Arrows for a game at Mohegan park at 2:30 Sunday. They expect to overcome the Silver Arrows and their shift will cause plenty of trouble. The Notre Dame eleven are the Lake street team.

A total of 583,613 bales of cotton were ginned in Alabama prior to October 1.

ARMY HAS WORKOUT IN DRIVING RAIN

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 11—(AP)—Army's football squad worked out in a cold driving rain today, smoothing its attack in preparation for the football clash with Navy on Saturday and watching Navy plays as put on by the plebes against the scrubs.

The practice closed with a pass defense drill. Considerable time was devoted to handing the wet, slippery ball. Miller, Evans and Lazar worked at the center position with various backfield combinations. The squad of 42 players left in buses for Briarcliff lodge, where the Cadets will be in seclusion until Saturday morning. The corps of Cadets gathered around the gymnasium to give the squad a rousing send-off.

The tentative starting lineup as announced by Head Coach Ralph I. Sasse was: Ends, Messinger and Carlmark; guards, Trice and Humber; tackles, Suarez and Price; center, Miller; quarterback, Bowman; halfbacks, Stecker and Frentzel; fullback, Kilday.

TWO BOUTS ON THE AIR TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—(AP)—A featherweight championship fight in New York and a heavyweight bout at Chicago, will headline tomorrow night's radio broadcasts.

First will come a blow by blow account of the 15-round scrap between "Kid" Chocolate and "Bat" Battalino, featherweight champion, at Madison Square Garden starting at 10 (E. S. T.) over the WEAF network. Graham McNamee, will have the help of Ford Frick at the microphone.

The second broadcast will bring details from Chicago of the set-to between Young Stribling and Tuffy Griffiths, heavyweights, who are to enter the ring at 11 o'clock (E. S. T.)

INTRA-MURAL SEASON OPENS AT ACADEMY

Intra-mural basketball activity began Thursday at the Academy when five games were played at the Norton Memorial gym, all of which were evenly contested and brought out some good basketball. This idea is a new one to the Academy and seems to be a good one. There are 20 teams in the competition, six each in the Southern and Pacific coast conferences and four each in the New England and Western conferences. The latter two conferences will open their schedules on next Tuesday afternoon.

In Thursday's game Harvard topped Holy Cross, 8 to 5, and Yale came out in front of Maine in the New England conference games; Florida topped V. M. I. 10 to 5, Georgia Tech stopped Tulane, 10 to 6 and Alabama defeated No. Carolina in Southern conference tilts.

There were several features, such as a scoreless second half in the Alabama-No. Carolina game, Longo, of Florida, tallying eight of his team's ten points, Ouillette and Ververis of Harvard netting two field goals apiece to win over Holy Cross, etc.

The competition, all told, brings into active play on the 20 teams over 100 boys and this is all in addition to the regular varsity A squad.

CHOCOLATE GETS FIRST CHANCE AT TITLE TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Kid Chocolate, Battling Bon Bon from Cuba, gets his first chance at a ring title tomorrow night and the experts are wondering if his opportunity hasn't come too late. The Cuban flash, a sensation in American rings for two years, battles Bat Battalino, of Hartford, world's featherweight champion, in a 15-round titular bout in Madison Square Garden.

Strange rumors about the "Keed" have been afloat for some time. After ploughing through all opposition without a setback, Chocolate tangled with Jack (Kid) Berg, British lightweight whirlwind, and was forced to accept the first defeat of his career. There was talk then that he had been overmatched and that he still was invincible at his own weight.

Then came his fight with Fidel La Barba, former flyweight champion. La Barba pounded away at Chocolate's body, wore him down and galloped off with the decision.

That seemed to be the tip-off on Chocolate's condition. Some experts insist that he has been "burned out," that he has been rushed along too fast and fought too many matches for a boy of 19.

If Chocolate no longer can take a pounding about the body, Battalino will discover it in short order. The Hartford lad lacks the grace and cleverness that make Chocolate so fine a fighting machine to watch, but the champion is rough and ready and a notorious body-puncher. In 15 rounds he should have plenty of time to discover any weakness Chocolate has along that line.

Battalino's only training trouble has been the weight question. He has found it a bit difficult getting rid of excess poundage. Chocolate, on the other hand, is a "light" featherweight.

CHOOSES GOLF IN PREFERENCE TO WIFE

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 11—(AP)—Golf caused another marital disaster today and Mrs. Thelma Sprague legally entered the "golf widow" class. She testified her husband, Frederick A. Sprague told her if he had to choose between playing golf and living with her, he would choose to be an unmarried knight of the niblick. Sprague did not contest the divorce.

THREE GOOD SOCCER GAMES SCHEDULED FOR SUNDAY

Following are the league games to be played this Sunday in the Eastern Connecticut soccer league: (The first team is the home team.)

Putnam vs. Jewett City.
Wauregan vs. J. B. Martins.
Baltic vs. Plainfield.
New London bye.

What promises to be the big game of the week is carded for Baltic when this team meets the fast Plainfield team, last year's league champs, and at present holding The Bulletin's cup. Neither of these teams can afford to lose this game as it means a lot to both.

When the reports of the weke came in to the secretary he found that all the home teams won their games last week and thus did what the visiting teams did early in the season when all the home teams got a setback.

The record held by the New London Rangers for the most goals scored in a single game has been tied by Putnam when that team defeated Wauregan by a 7 to 0 score, the same team which the Rangers defeated.

Being the first time that a Jewett City soccer team has appeared at New London in a long time the Rangers defeated Jewett City by a 3 to [illegible] score in a cleanly played game in which very few fouls were called throughout the contest. An accident marred the game when Jarvis met the ball with his eye and was knocked out for a minute but was able to resume play after being treated by the Rangers' trainer.

The New London bye comes as a great benefit to that team as quite a few players are nursing injuries sustained in the last few games and will not play any exhibition game but will be ready to swing into action again a week from Sunday when the Rangers play at Jewett City.

The league standing follows:

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
J. B. Martin	9	8	1	0	16
Plainfield	9	7	2	0	14
N. L. Rangers	9	6	3	0	12
Baltic	9	4	4	1	9
Putnam	8	4	4	[illegible]	[illegible]
Jewett City	7	0	6	1	1
Wauregan	9	0	9	0	0

Wauregan is the only team that has not made a point this season.

PUTNAM HIGH NOT ELIGIBLE FOR TITLE

Putnam high will play teams of the Eastern Connecticut conference this coming basketball season but it cannot hope to win the championship. Such was the outcome of an executive meeting of the loop held here Tuesday night.

Each school in the conference was allotted certain games which will count in the standing and among Putnam's list was Windham. Windham, however, did not schedule a game with Putnam because of an overcrowded schedule and, consequently, Putnam is one team shy of the required number. Windham, to fill the deficiency in its schedule has agreed to let its previously scheduled games with Chapman Tech count in the standing.

TESTIMONY STARTS IN AUTO ACCIDENT SUIT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 11.—Hannah Sullivan, first cook in the home of Rush Sturges, Providence lawyer, of 55 Power street, and summer home in Narragansett, R. I., was the first witness on Thursday morning in Washington county superior court with Justice Jeremiah E. O'Connell, of Providence, on the beach. She was one of four plaintiffs in a suit for damages as the result of an automobile accident on the Tower Hill road in South Kingstown, on July 23, 1930. Other plaintiffs are also employes of the Sturges household, Cecelia Smith, second cook; her sister, Greta Smith, and the butler, James McMillan. The defendant is a New York resident with summer home in Narragansett, R. I., and located across Elm court from the Sturges summer home at "The Pier." Edwin H. Tompkins, whose chauffeur, a Mr. Alstrom, invited the Sturges employes for a ride with him in an open car, which, after 11 p. m. on the night in question, he was testified to have driven at a very high rate of speed from Narragansett, on the Tower Hill road where the auto smashed up on the highway and threw the occupants into the road and they were so badly injured as to make it necessary for them to be taken to the South County hospital, Wakefield, R. I., for treatment.

On the witness stand the cook testified that she had cautioned the driver about his reckless speed, after she had at first refused to accompany the party on the ride. So fast did the auto go she declared that she pulled her coat about her so tightly to prevent being blown out of the back seat she did not know whether her hat remained on or not. She testified she knew nothing about the details of the crash until she woke up the following morning in the Wakefield, R. I., hospital. Here she was attended by Dr. Henry B. Potter and her injuries included a cut across the forehead which required a number of stitches to close at the time, a fracture of her left wrist, injuries to her knees, both legs, cuts on her face and injuries to her eyes, the sight being impaired and now a sufferer from headaches and nervousness. Attorney Coerigan, of Providence, appeared for the plaintiffs and Attorney Edmund Flynn, of Providence, for the defendant. The latter, on cross-examination of the cook, learned that her age was 50 years and inquired if she had ever entertained expectations of becoming a "Hollywood actress," and upon receiving a negative reply, over his opposing attorney's claim that "later would be a time for 'wisecracking'," [illegible] that the scar on her [illegible], would not interfere with her future duties as a cook.

The second cook, Miss Cecelia Smith, whose testimony was along the lines of the first witness and her injuries found to be [illegible] about her face, was followed by Dr. Potter and other witnesses. Testimony in the case will continue to be taken Friday.

OBITUARY

Mrs. W. B. Austin

Mrs. Hannah Maria (Dawley) Austin, widow of William Browning Austin, died at 5:30 p. m. Wednesday at her home, 15 Chestnut street. Mrs. Austin was in her 81st year, and had been in failing health for a number of months. Mr. Austin, who died 11 years ago, at one time was secretary for the New England Granite works, and was general manager of their office for many years prior to his retirement ten years before his death.

The deceased spent practically all her life in Westerly, being born in Griswold, Conn., the daughter of Perry Dawley and Dorcas Chappel. She was a member of the Broad Street Christian church and at the time of her death was believed to have been the oldest member.

Mrs. Austin leaves a brother, Perry Dawley, of Chestnut street, and among a number of nieces and nephews, Mrs. William Billings, of Stonington; Mrs. Hallam Whiting, of Springfield, Mass., and Mrs. Edward Smith, of Montville, Conn.

WE[illegible] SOCIAL C[illegible] QUARTERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

W[illegible] 11—After occupying [illegible] third story [illegible] corner of Main [illegible] street, Pawcatuck [illegible] members of the Westerly Cycle club, oldest social club in Westerly, voted at a special meeting on Thursday night to remove to new quarters on Main street. By Jan. 1 next, the club expects to occupy rooms over Coleman Electric shop at 38 Main street in the Price block.

The meeting was presided over by President Benjamin A. Peabody, [illegible] and the vote to move received hearty support. Previous to occupying quarters in the Briggs building the club, for many years, had rooms on the second floor in the torn-down wooden business block removed to make room for the Washington Trust building and over the Broughton market.

EARLY MORNING FIRE CAUSES MUCH DAMAGE TO PAWCATUCK GARAGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 11.—A several thousand dollar fire loss resulted from a fire starting near a kerosene oil heating plant at the office of the Grills' service station, 88 West Broad street, Pawcatuck, shortly before 4:30 a. m., Thursday, caused several explosions and a fire which gutted the office and threatened the destruction of the station.

Michael Murano, the night man at the filling station, when he realized the flames would get beyond his control, rushed out into West Broad street and shouted "fire." This attracted the attention of Patrolman Robert W. Robinson, on duty on West Broad street, and he turned in an alarm from the fire box nearest to him, No. 46, West Broad street, near New Haven railroad bridge. Officer Robinson heard several explosions and on arriving at the filling station found the office in flames, which broke out the front of the building and licked up under the port cochere in front, sending up clouds of dense smoke.

Members of the Pawcatuck fire department under direction of Chief Engineer Joseph Purtill responded quickly and lines of fire hose were laid from West Broad street fire hydrants and powerful water streams were directed upon the fire. The front entrances on either side of the office were entered and the firemen drowned out all vestige of flame, and this was accomplished before the blaze had opportunity to spread to a number of stored automobiles.

At the rear of the office stood the Chrysler roadster of James F. Shea, and the upholstering and top of this auto were burned. In the west end of the station stood the large school bus of James Shea, of Morton avenue, Pawcatuck, and the intense heat cracked the window glass. Mr. Shea, who arrived early at the fire, found that entrance to the station fastened but succeeded in opening it and got the bus outside before the gas tanks on the side caught fire. Exploding gas tanks had previously driven Officer Robinson and Murano from the section of the station near the office until the arrival of the firemen. The water from the fire hose also flooded the show room floor at the east end of the station. The prompt arrival of the firemen and their ability to get at the flames prevented much oil and gas supplies from catching fire and spreading throughout the station, when the newly-built addition to the Elm Tree Inn just to the west of the station would have been endangered. A two-day-old car of George Dennison which stood near the Grills office room escaped damage from fire and water and was not even smoked when taken out later.

The recall whistle sounded at 6:15 a. m.

Some 15 minutes after the first whistle alarm was sounded a second call was blown and many who had not responded to the first alarm came out by reason of a two-alarm fire in the business center of Pawcatuck. Motor traffic was sent around the fire lines by way of Mechanic and Palmer streets and Lester avenue, back to West Broad street.

THOMAS J. BURDICK ELECTED MASTER OF PAWCATUCK LODGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 11.—Thomas J. Burdick, manager of the Alling Rubber store, Norwich, was elected and installed as worshipful master of Pawcatuck lodge, No. 90, A. F. and A. M., of Pawcatuck at the 68th annual and 760th stated communication of the lodge held in the Masonic rooms, Barber Memorial building, Westerly, on Thursday evening, at 7:30 o'clock. W. Harry Sutcliffe presided at the election and installation assisted by M. W. Arthur N. Nash as deputy grand marshal, both being past masters of Pawcatuck lodge.

Other officers, elective and appointive, installed were: Senior warden, Stanton S. Greene; junior warden, Arthur E. Peckham; treasurer, W. Elbert W. Clarke; secretary, W. Russell Hemphill; senior deacon, Thomas A. Crawshaw; junior deacon, Arthur R. Riley; senior steward, Leslie R. Nowell; junior steward, Louis Thavenet; chaplain, W. Samuel Girven; marshal, W. John T. Johnson; organist, Carroll W. Hoxie; tyler, Gus E. Mandes; trustee of the permanent fund, W. Frank L. Friend (elected for three years); finance committee, M. W. Arthur N. Nash, W. John T. Johnson and W. D. Everett Hoxie to replace W. Russell Hemphill, who was elected secretary to succeed W. Robert D. Vennard, secretary for the past two years and who declined re-election for the reason that he contemplated leaving town.

The tellers were W. Carl E. Burdick and James P. Campbell, senior warden, both of Franklin lodge, No. 20.

The annual report of Secretary Robert D. Vennard at the opening of the business session preceding the election and installation showed a present membership of Pawcatuck lodge to be 233 members.

Other reports presented, showing progress during the past year, were those of the finance committee, treasurer and the trustees.

Members who have died during the past year have been: John Henry Tanner died Jan. 21, 1930, aged 67 years; Thomas Rain, died April 2, 1930, aged 45 years; Ben Pickhover, Sr., April 18, 1930, aged 60 years; George Anderson, June 9, 1930, aged 28 years.

The out-going worshipful master, Raymond E. Pendleton, was not able to be present due to the fact that he was a patient at the Westerly hospital and for that reason will be presented a past master's jewel and apron at some later date. The members of Franklin lodge, No. 20, F. and A. M., of Westerly, were the guests of the evening. At the close of the annual meeting refreshments were served in the armory banquet hall of Narragansett commandery, No. 27, K. T., of Westerly, adjoining the lodge room.

J. D. WILCOX SLIGHTLY HURT IN AUTO CRASH

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 11—Joseph D. Wilcox of 9 School street, was cut about the face and bruised about the legs when his Ford coupe collided with the rear end of a truck of the Rowley Construction Co., parked in front of 38 School street. The accident happened shortly after 5 p. m. Thursday as Wilcox was proceeding down School street and the headlights of a car proceeding up School street so blinded him that he was unable to see the dimly lighted truck ahead of him.

Westerly Police Officer George L. Madison who went to the scene to investigate found that, although the Ford coupe was proceeding slowly at the time it was tipped over by the collision and Mr. Wilcox cut by the broken glass.

A class in social dancing at Iowa university is attended by 357.

Now comes the biggest Christmas thrill in years

A "Medal of Honor" Frigidaire enclosed in this tiny jewel box!

This Christmas we've figured out a way for you to give her a Frigidaire inside a tiny velvet jewel box—a box you can hide in the palm of your hand or slip in her Christmas stocking!

Inside this box is a sterling silver medallion or "Medal of Honor," engraved with the name of the fortunate one who's to get the Frigidaire—or with both her name and yours. Thus you can give her the Frigidaire she's always wanted—and make your Christmas morning presentation in a new and exciting way that guarantees the most surprising Christmas thrill she's had in years.

Or, if you prefer, we'll attach the medallion in advance and have the Frigidaire installed in your home before Christmas. Either way, you'll be giving her more than a Christmas gift. It will be a token of your appreciation of the many things she has done for you.

Frigidaires this year cost less than they've ever cost before. And we'll agree to a small down payment and the balance extended over a period to suit your convenience. Come in today and find out all about this brand-new Christmas gift idea.

Ray Eddy is confined to his home, ill with a mild attack of diphtheria.

Charles Wolcott was recently elected commander of the Veterans of the Spanish War, Webster, Mass., post. Mrs. Wolcott was chosen as patriotic instructor of the Ladies' auxiliary.

Mrs. Mary Hopkins and Mrs. Lillian A. May attended the D. A. R. meeting in Putnam, Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Aldrich, their son, William, and granddaughter, Mary Cody, of Putnam, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. E. E. May.

Able To Sit Up.

Warren Peckham has returned from Hartford hospital where he went for observation. He is able to sit up a short time each day, after being confined to his bed since last February.

The annual meeting of the Woodstock League of Women Voters was held last Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. F. W. Johnstone. Interesting reports of the state convention were given by the president, Miss Ethel E. Upham, Mrs. F. W. Johnstone and Mrs. Leonard Healey. The officers were all re-elected, namely—President, Miss Upham; vice president, Mrs. G. A. Wetherell; secretary, Miss Rilla Child; treasurer, Mrs. Frederick W. Johnstone. A pleasant social hour followed with refreshments. About 30 attended.

GOSHEN

Rev. Howard Bushnell chose as his text Sunday morning, Matthew XIII: 15, "And their eyes they have closed, lest at any time they should see with their eyes and hear with their ears and understand with their heart and should be converted and I should heal them." It was a sermon of deep thought and carried a vital message to his hearers.

The C. E. meeting was omitted Sunday evening as the pastor and a number of the younger members went to Plainfield to take part in a special service. Stephen Gorski sang a number of solos and the Union C. E. orchestra of which the local pastor is a member gave several selections.

The Christmas exercises, comprising pageant, recitations and songs, with tree and gifts, will be held Christmas eve.

A number from this place attended "Aunt Lucia," given in Colchester Friday evening.

Lloyd Grant at Ye Redde Gayte Farm has his new barn about finished.

The Sunday school is making preparations for a tree and entertainment.

Mrs. H. H. Fenn, Mr. and Mrs. Davoll and Mrs. Davoll's mother, Mrs. Martin, of Meriden, were visitors at Maple Hill Farm Sunday afternoon.

A number of young people here are interested in the proposed organization of an orchestra at Lyman Memorial high school, Lebanon.

A two-story dwelling has been reconstructed from the home nearly destroyed by fire a short time ago owned by John Kneeland.

It is but a few times a year that we are able to behold such a gorgeous sunrise as was seen Monday.

Luncheon at Wallstone

Mrs. Charles Hinckley and Mrs. J. A. Randall attended the luncheon at the home of Mrs. E. J. Graham, Wallstone, Lebanon, Wednesday. Miss Roberts, of New Haven, gave a splendid talk on the Boyston schools, England. Mrs. Beckwith, of Franklin, and Mrs. Will Clark, of Lebanon, gave a fine description of the annual convention of the League of Women Voters held recently in Bridgeport, which they attended in company with Mrs E. J. Graham, president of the local league.

Miss Edith Jones and Miss Fannie Woeronick are boarding in Lebanon and attending Lyman Memorial high school.

BROOKLYN

Monday evening at the chapel the Men's club held another successful meeting preceded by the usual excellent supper. The new pastor of the Congregational church, Rev. Philip J. Cleveland, was the speaker, his subject being December. It was a jolly, social evening for all who attended.

Tuesday evening the meeting of Brooklyn grange was held at the hall. The third and fourth degrees were worked on a class by the officers, W. M. Theodore N. Anderson conducting. All were pleased to welcome Worthy State Steward and Mrs. Charles M. Adams of Groton; also Worthy Master and Mrs. Dennison, of Groton grange. Worthy Steward Adams and Worthy Master Dennison exemplified the secret work of the fourth degree and at the close of the meeting made brief and practical addresses. Coffee, doughnuts and cheese were the lunch of the meeting. All were pleased to welcome guests from Hampton.

Mrs. Mary E. Pike and daughters, Misses Mildred and Laura Pike, were in Melrose, Mass., Sunday, guests of Mrs. Pike's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Brown. Miss Mildred Pike is remaining in Melrose for a longer visit.

John T. Ashworth has been detained at home the past week by illness.

Tuesday, the rotary traffic signal was placed at the intersection of the highways in the center of the village. This consists of a circle of heavy posts topped with red lanterns and while it cannot be said to be a thing of beauty it is hoped it will be a joy forever in eliminating the smashes or near-smashes at that intersection which caused all in the neighborhood to nearly have nervous prostration. Anyway, cars have to slow up to pass the signal!

F. Kinne and C. E. Frink of Canterbury attended the meeting of the Men's club, Monday evening.

The Misses Dyer who were with out of town friends over the week end, have returned home.

Mrs. F. C. Leavens entertained the Round-about club, Friday afternoon.

A citizen has erected a one-room house at Winnipeg, Canada, in a manner that may encourage imitation. He claims the structure is so insulated that it remains cool in summer and warm in winter. His walls inside and outside are lined with concrete, while the center section is made of hay bale filler.

GALES FERRY

TRAIN SERVICE MISSED, AS WELL AS STATION

The New England Transportation company has arranged for motor coaches to operate via Gales Ferry village, their schedule becoming effective Dec. 3. Four buses from Norwich and four from New London stop at the bridge over the track of the New Haven railroad, the schedule having been posted at the store of Norman and Povey, and includes morning trip each way with afternoon and evening service. All buses, with the exception of those transporting the school children, have previously stopped at the four corners on the Military Highway. The new service will be appreciated by residents in the western section of the village as it will save a walk of nearly half a mile each way.

The removal of the train service is sadly missed by many in this section as where formerly there was a comfortable station for their accommodation, the bus travel requires a long walk and oftentimes a long wait in the cold and storms, without shelter. The need of shelter could now be easily arranged for providing the buses backed about 200 feet to the village store.

Mrs. Delphine Fish, who is spending some time with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Coleby Morgan, of Mystic, was a caller Saturday at her home in the village.

At the Community M. E. church the theme of the Sunday morning sermon by Rev. Harold H. Critchlow, was The Two-Part Life. Solo parts in the offertory anthem, I Will Sing of Thy Power, were taken by Miss Grace A. Chapman and Miss Gertrude Allen. The Epworth league evening service was in charge of Mrs. Critchlow, with the topic, The Need of a Better World. In place of the closing talk by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Critchlow called on his guest, Dr. I. W. LeBaron, principal of East Greenwich academy, who spoke on Building a Better World by a Better Life. The Melody of Love was sung at the offertory by junior girls. Miss Doris Wightman was at the piano for the service taking the place of Mrs. Rufus W. Hurlbutt in the latter's absence. Calendar notices included a turkey supper to be served by the Men's club and a postponement of the meeting of Queen Esther circle.

Nelson Parker accompanied the New London patrol to Springfield, Mass., Saturday afternoon to attend a Masonic Shrine ceremonial that evening.

Pupils of the local schools had a holiday Wednesday, the teachers of Ledyard schools having the day for the observation of teaching methods in other schools. Willard Eggleston, teacher at the Long Cove school, was accompanied by Mrs. Alice Slater and Mrs. Ira B. Hurlbutt, of the village school, and Mrs. Fannie G. Stoddard, of the Stoddard district school, to the Lisbon Center school, in Newent district.

Miss Susan Mathewson, who is staying for a time with a relative in New London, called on friends here Tuesday.

Rev. Ira W. Le Baron, D.D., principal of East Greenwich, R. I., academy, and Mrs. Le Baron, were entertained over Sunday night and Monday by Rev. and Mrs. Harold H. Critchlow, at the M. E. parsonage. Dr. and Mrs. Le Baron were en route home, having been in Poultney, Vt., attending an educational conference. Rev. Mr. Critchlow accompanied Dr. Le Baron on a business trip to New Haven Monday.

Took Annual Thank Offering

The auxiliary to the Woman's Home Missionary society was entertained Tuesday afternoon for the December meeting by Mrs. Harold H. Critchlow at the parsonage. The meeting opened with the hymn, What a Friend, the president, Mrs. John Harold, presiding. Youth and Peace was the topic for the session, the program being arranged by Mrs. C. Alton Chapman Mrs. Dudley C. Perkins conducted the devotions and the recording secretary, Mrs. Morton E. Crawford, read the roll and minutes of the last meeting. A report from the treasurer, Mrs. Courtland E. Colver, who was absent, was read by Mrs. Harold. Mrs. Perkins, the temperance secretary, read Liquor Subsidy, by Daniel A. Poling, and Mrs. H. Winthrop Hurlbutt gave an interesting review of a chapter from the study book, Trailing the Conquistadores. Mrs. Chapman, who conducted the Mission Enigmas, presented Christmas cards with the readings. What is the Object of the Thank Offering? was read by Mrs. Harold. The annual thank offering of the auxiliary was taken at this meeting. Thirteen members with two guests and two children were in attendance. At the close of the program sandwiches, cake and tea and coffee were served by the hostess during the social hour. She was assisted by Mrs. Harold and Miss Sarah T. Latimer.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Carter, of Groton, called on their aunt, Mrs. Harmon L. Perkins, the first of the week.

ROAD SOCIETY

Miss Mary Starr Wheeler of New York spent the week end at home.

Miss Rathbun of Mystic called on Mrs. Emmeline Allyn, Sunday evening.

Rev. Fred Bunker preached an excellent sermon Sunday and will be here on Christmas Sunday to show pictures of the Nativity.

Mrs. William Billings and daughter, Miss Bertha, were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ricker of Mystic.

Mr. and Mrs. Cressingham Gray of North Stonington called at Edmund Burdick's, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Preston of Hudson Falls, N. Y., motored to Mrs. Preston's home here Tuesday. Mrs. Preston remained for a visit, Mr. Preston returning home Thursday.

Billings Wheeler has been at Robert MacChette's several days this week, assisting him to move.

The Woman's society met in the church parlors Thursday and discussed plans for the Christmas entertainment.

Mrs. William N. Palmer and Mrs. Harry R. Palmer attended the sewing meeting held at Mrs. Edward Streeter's, Monday afternoon, sewing for the Red Cross.

Mrs. Seth N. Williams attended the meeting of the D. A. R. held in Mystic, Wednesday, and gave a paper on Historic Trees.

Pigs Fatten Rapidly

BINFIELD, Tenn.—(AP)—Arthur Peters of Binfield fattened a litter of pigs to weigh a ton in four months and 25 days. The litter consisted of ten Poland China pigs, thoroughbred, that were farrowed May 4, and which weighed 2,002 pounds September 25. The cost of feeding was $134.76.

Little Lowa Corn For Sale

DES MOINES, Iowa —(AP)— Iowa known as the "tall corn" state, will have little corn to sell outside the state this season, crop reporters say. The small surplus, and prices lower than cost of production are given as reasons.

One Horned Sheep Lef.

LONDON—(AP)—A solitary ewe is the only known survivor of the old horned sheep of Norfolk—and she is a bit on in years. A ram, last of the almost extinct breed, was placed in a museum when it died.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes — most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

THE FARMER'S TALK TO FARMERS

TOO FEW OLESONS

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

A knot of us old farmers were bewailing the decadence of the old fashioned thrift spirit, the other day.

One of our neighbors, a young farmer of the new generation and spirit, had just tootled past in his six-cylinder car, with a new radio he had purchased for pre-Christmas installation.

"He's still paying installments on the car," remarked one. "'Nd he's just subscribed for a new cyclopedia on monthly payments," added another. "'Nd he's talkin' of gettin' a tractor to plow with next spring," said a third. "He's about like all the rest of the youngsters," said I: "they all of 'em seem to think that tomorrow'll have to take care of itself, so long as they have what they think they want, today."

"Guess you don't know the Olesens, do ye, John?" put in old Uncle Ike in his slow, smooth voice.

"Why, I know that he works on the big Stillingworth farm," I answered. "That's all I know about him. Why?"

"Well," said Uncle Ike, "he's a Swede, you know and he's got a Swedish wife. He's a good workman and Hilda's about as canny a manager as they make. Stillingworth pays him $75 a month and sez he's worth it. He turns the $75 over to Hilda, every pay day. She promptly puts $50 of it into the savin's bank, 'nd they live till next pay day on the $25 reserved. They've bin doin' it for more'n three years, now, and don't seem to be reely sufferin' for things to eat or wear."

This made us all gasp a bit. "D'ye mean to say," at last broke in Hank Malden, who is earning $75 a month in a garage, "that they c'n keep up the rent and buy supplies and pay for clothes on $25 a month?"

"Oh," replied Uncle Ike, "Stillingworth gives them their house rent, and a half-acre garden. They keep a few hens, and raise quite a lot of vegtables. In fact, Olesen told me that, last year, Hilda sold enough eggs and vegetables, mostly green peas and onions, to more than pay their grocery bill."

All of this was news to me, and I took such steps as an amateur detective can to find out if it was all true, and how these Olesens lived. The facts, as I developed them, may be suggestive to others as well as myself.

It seems that Olesen's "day" on the farm is understood to be one of eight hours, except in emergencies, when he willingly puts in ten or even 12. But Stillingworth is "a white man" and doesn't make emergencies in order to squeeze out more work on a manufactured pretext. Ordinarily, Olesen goes on at seven a. m. and off at four p. m. with an hour out for dinner and "nooning." These hours, in the spring and summer days, give him ample time to tend the garden. Hilda takes care of the house and the hens and gathers most of the garden produce. She is also treasurer and bookkeeper and budget-maker and purchasing agent. All three of the family are decently and comfortably clothed and give every sign of being adequately fed. Little Elsa, the daughter, is quite as neatly dressed as any of her school mates. The hens have all they seem to need and even the house cat is a picture of purring contentment.

Even if Olesen should be "laid off" tomorrow, he wouldn't fear any immediate distress, with at least $1,800 reserves to draw on. He wouldn't have to ask for any dole or take his place in any breadline.

Wherefrom it seems that thrift is still practiced in America by some Swedish-born if not by many American-born residents.

It also raises the question why native-born workmen can't use it as satisfactorily as Scandinavian immigrants.

Of course, such thrift as that practiced by the Olesens involves long hours of work and permits mighty few luxuries. They haven't a car or a radio or even a phonograph. I doubt if there's a silk shirt or a pair of silk stockings in the house. There is a fiddle and Olesen, while no Ole Bull, can yet make it sing not only to the pleasure of his own family but to the delight of all the neighboring children, at least. Even the cat sits up and takes notice when he takes it down, in the wellow dusk of a fall evening, and draws forth the strangely moving tunes he learned among the fjords of his native land.

They have one daily and at least one weekly newspaper, and are rather unusually well informed in the news of the world. Uncle Ike tells, with a chuckle, how Olesen one day, tackled our local communist, who was yawping about his favorite soviets, and fairly flattened the critter into a thin pancake between his weight of statistics and arguments. He turned out to know more about the crank's favorite fad than the crank did himself.

"What has been done can be done again," runs an ancient wise saying. When little Johnnie Farmer complained that he simply couldn't learn that pesky multiplication table, "Why, Johnnie," said teacher, "can't you do what Sally Jenks has done?" And little Johnnie found that he could.

It wasn't a question of capability but one of willingness. Learning that old multiplication table was slow and dreffle stupid work. Little Johnnie would much rather play "rounds", or "duck-on-a-rock", or even "tag, you're it!"

It's exactly the same reason which makes thrift so unpopular, today. Not that we can't be thrifty, but we don't want to be. We'd rather eat our cake than have it; we'd rather eat it all, to the last frosted crumb, than save even a piece for tomorrow. Furthermore, we want the cake to be made of the very best flour and the fanciest eggs and frosted with the highest-priced packaged sugar. "What's good enough for the queen is none too good for us," seems to be the feeling.

We aren't pleased with nature's slow-growing methods; we're more nearly akin to the mullein which gains its full height in a single short season, than to the oak which takes a hundred years to become a real tree.

We aren't even willing to climb the ladder from the bottom round up; we demand a derrick or a dirigible to land us at the top in one motion.

Also, climbing any ladder involves actual work, the use of both arms and legs, both hands and feet, to say nothing of the eyes in marking which rounds to grasp and the ears in giving warning of possible cracks.

No, indeed, ladders may have done for the old fogies of the past, but we prefer escalators, thank you. Something which does all the climbing for us and saves us the trouble.

The old idea of "slow and sure" doesn't appeal to us. We hanker after something quick and snappy.

Don't preach to us the gospel of hard work; our preferred evangel is that of "the easy snap."

"Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die." Yes, but suppose by some unfortunate oversight of nature, we don't die tomorrow, but find ourselves compelled to face that new day without anything saved up for dinner and supper or even breakfast? That's different.

Just at present the slogan of half-baked economists and straightened business men is "Spend; put your money into circulation; buy now and start a new boom."

But where is the man who has lived "from hand to mouth" for years, spending all his income as fast as he got it, to find the money now that he is deprived of the job at which he could earn more?

He hasn't considered the matter of thrift in the past; he has saved nothing; he has no reserve to fall back on.

The Egyptian taskmasters who required the enslaved children of Israel to make bricks without straw were no more unreasonable than the demagogues who now demand that we should spend money we can't find the chance to earn and which we haven't saved.

The simple truth is that there have been too few Olesens and too many Prodigal sons in the world for the past decade or two. We've been wasting our substance in, if not riotous, at least extravagant living. We've spent our last dime for luxuries when we might have got along with necessities and saved many dimes for the evil day which is now upon us.

We seem to have assumed that there was no bottom to the flour barrel, and that the mill would continue to grind with the water that had passed.

A very wise man once remarked that "Experience keeps a dear school, but fools will learn in no other."

It begins to look as if they wouldn't learn, even from experience.

There have been "business depressions" and financial panics in the past; not merely one or two, but many of them. Every one has been preceded by a period of extravagance or inflation or reckless speculation. Everyone of them has brought suffering and actual misery. Everyone has taught the unequivocal and authoritative lesson that times of plenty are merely opportunities to prepare for seasons of famine.

A few Olesens seem to have learned this lesson, but the big, beetle-headed majority have either ignored or denied it.

There's nothing new about this. King Solomon remarked quite casually and as the simple statement of a well known fact: "A prudent man foreseeth the evil and hideth himself; but the simple pass on and are punished."

Perhaps this inevitable sequence may not suit our ideas. But it is the law of life; a law we didn't make, can't repeal or resist, and show most prudence in recognizing and obeying.

THE FARMER.

Your correspondent was sorry to learn that Henry Congdon had to go to the hospital for an operation. They hope to hear of his recovery soon; also his family has your correspondent's sympathy.

Callers at William Bitg[illegible]'s Sunday were Charles Floyd and Joel Ba[illegible] of Jewett City, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bitgood and daughter of Pachaug, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dawley of Eastern Voluntown.

Joel Barber and a fellow from Jewett City are sawing up stove wood at William Bitgood's saw mill.

Lizzie Maynard has been a big sufferer for a week with ulcerated teeth. She is better at this writing but not well.

George Ingalls of Norwich was a caller at William Bitgood's Monday; also Harry Phillips and Mr. Belevance and little boy of Moosup.

Mrs. Lee Remington and Georgie and Edith of Oneco, called on Mrs. Remington's parents Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Tanner's little girl is quite sick with a sore throat. Mrs. Tanner and Lizzie Maynard are sisters. They live at Ekonk.

Ruth May Richmond and Charlie Crickett were also callers at the Pine Grove far mSunday.

It kinder looks as if wedding bells are soon to ring at old Campbell Mills.

Miss Maynard, the little Tanner girl's aunt, heard from her today and she was better. Glad to hear the good news.

George Inglass and Jefferson Barber took a long walk through the woods Monday.

Mrs. William Bitgood received word Wednesday morning that William Strange of Voluntown was quite feeble. Hope to hear of his recovery soon. Mrs. Bitgood has known him from a child. He has her sympathy. She says she knows what it is to be sick.

Mrs. Bitgood has a cold. She is up and around but doesn't feel good.

N. Y. U. STUDENTS ELEVATE AVIATION TO FIRST BANK

NEW YORK—(AP)—The college engineer who used to learn of transits and slide rules now turns to propellers and wind tunnels.

Civil engineering, once representing the main field in which the budding engineer took his training, now plays second fiddle to aeronautical engineering at New York university.

Aeronautics, in becoming head of the engineering family here, has attracted three times as many students as civil engineering.

In five years, enrollment in the Daniel Guggenheim school of aeronautics has increased 700 per cent to a point where 388 students are on the roster, 152 of which are freshmen.

Complete Big Airport

BURBANK, Cal.—(AP)—United Airport is believed to have the nation's largest individual hangar. Four hunded tons of steel, 3,200 tons of rock and sand and 11,000 sacks of cement were used in constructing the 311 by 246 foot building.

Home Planning

In matters architectural my knowledge is conjectural—
I'm vague about the Doric and the Renaissance and such;
It's often been explained to me, but nothing has remained to me
Of where the early Norman had the bulge on Early Dutch.
I listen unconcernedly when people chatter learnedly
Of architraves and buttresses and cornices and domes;
And when such persons speak to me of Gothic it is Greek to me—
But I'm an expert at constructing theoretic homes.

I'm happy, nothing less, if I can draw and plan and specify
The house I'm going to live in when I've made a mondest pile;
What matter if I violate convention, and annihilate
The rules of fair proportion and the laws of proper style?
I wield the pencil, giving room for one prodigious living room,
And one tremendous library with miles of built-in shelves;
Adjoining, I contrive a secret study for my privacy—
And as for all the other rooms, I leave them to themselves.

My wife may do the dining rooms and kitchens and reclining rooms,
("Reclining room" means bedroom, but I need the triple rhyme),
Of closets, halls, et cetera, why should I think? 'Twere better a
Professional should 'tend to them—I cannot waste my time.
There's nothing so funereal as figuring material
And stress and cost and plumbing and cement and wood and stone;
But, oh, that grand abiding-place, that library, that hiding place,
That mansion of my fancy—and I've planned it all alone!

How Old Are You?

This Is The Date I'm 48

My Mind Is Keen—My Skin Is Clear—Of Petty Ills I Have No Fear

No doubt about it—I am 48 and never felt better in my life—I feel like 30 and you can take my word for it—It's the little Daily Dose of Kruschen That Does It.

Once I was fat and forty—had headaches a plenty—Was tired out most of the time — My liver was sluggish and my bowels inactive—I searched for a real remedy and by good fortune I found it in Kruschen Salts.

Fat isn't healthy—so Physicians state and I want to say to this world full of fat people—that the Kruschen Method of losing fat is safe, sure and sensible—just cut out sweets—pies, pastries and ice cream for a month—go light on potatoes, rice, butter, cream and sugar—and don't forget to take one half a teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning.

I wish I could induce every overweight person on earth to try this splendid method—It surely doesn't cost but a trifle—for an 85 cent bottle last 4 weeks and can be bought at any drug store in the world—Get it—Grow Thin—Feel younger.

Rust And Dust

Two things that I abominate
Are dust
And rust!
I hate them both with deadly hate,
Yes, dust
And rust!
I'd speak well of them if I could
But I'd be lying if I should,
Pray tell me, is there any good
In dust
And rust!

They spoil so many things, these two,
Do dust
And rust,
I'd like to know what good they do,
Yes, dust
And rust!
Dust softly settles everywhere,
Rust does more harm than wear and tear,
They are a precious, baleful pair,
Are dust
And rust!

Day after day we have to fight
With dust
And rust.
They work all day, they work all night,
Do dust
And rust,
We must combat them all the time,
They mean corrosion, dirt, and grime—
And that's the reason for this rhyme
Of dust
And rust!

—Somerville Journal.

Late Fall

Denuded branches hold the tattered robes
That lie across the margin of the night,
In crimson shreds along the fading sky
A wedge of wild geese holds its fast, dim flight.

Beyond the sunset flash, the faint, far wings,
Steered by a power mysterious, hold their way
Against the western shores of yellow sky
Where turquoise depths are as a calm, blue bay.

The huddled trees, cold and spare and thin
And naked, bare their breasts against the frost,
The clock-faced owl intones the hours of night,
Or like to some late hunter strayed or lost.

The hibernating bear has waddled down
And bedded him among his faded fern,
Dried mosses, leaves and withered grass,
And he shall dream again of spring's return.

—Clarence P. Milligan in Detroit News

"Boy, I'll never try that again."

"Try what?"

"Just to test mail service I drew a picture of a buffalo on an envelope to see if it would reach Buffalo."

"Did it reach Buffalo?"

"No. This morning it was returned to me from Red Dog."—Youngstown Telegram.

Young Angus had been out for the evening with his best girl. When he arrived home he found his father still sitting up. The old man looked up and shook his head.

"Has ye been oot wi' yon lassie again?" he asked.

"Aye, dad," replied young Angus. "Why do ye look sae worrited?"

"I was just wonderin' how much the evening cost."

"No more than half a croon, dad."

"Aye? That was no sae much."

"It was a' she had," said Angus.—Bystander.

JEWETT CITY

MRS. A. M. WEBSTER INJURED WHILE BOARDING A BUS

When the Putnam-bound Connecticut company bus, which left the Norwich station at 3:45 Thursday evening arrived at the west end of the Lisbon bridge in Taftville, on the Newent road, it stopped to take on, first a man, who was followed by Mrs. Annie M. Webster, of 12 Aspinook street, Jewett City. A Jewett City girl, who refused to give her name sat in the front seat on the right hand side of the bus, next to the door. While she was moving over to allow Mrs. Webster to sit next to the window and, as Mrs. Webster, hanging on to the upright brass pole near the door had turned partly around to sit down Mrs. Webster in some way stepped back off the floor of the car, down on the first step. Being then unable to hold herself, her hand pulled away from the pole with the result that she fell backwards out of the door striking on her head and back in the road.

The driver, Earl Young, and his father, who is also a car conductor, with Frank Eccleston and another man picked her up and helped her into a seat. Complaining of her head where a large lump rapidly appeared, she had forgotten where she had been and was much confused. Every attention was given her by the carmen and by Mrs. Velo Sharkey, of Jewett City. She preferred to be taken home rather than to a doctor's office. When the car arrived in Jewett City Mr. Young immediately called the carbarn from E. H. Hiscox's residence. Dr. George H. Jennings was called and later reported that Mrs. Webster, as far as he could tell, was probably not seriously injured, although nauseated and considerably confused. The driver's father took the names of E. H. Hiscox, Frank Eccleston, Mrs. Velo Sharkey and Mrs. Frank Bush, all of whom from Jewett City were passengers on the bus. The car had not started when the woman fell from the door.

MRS. FAUST ENTERTAINS FOR STATE D. A. R. OFFICERS

Anne Brewster Fanning chapter, D. A. R., was delightfully entertained at a luncheon Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Edward A. Faust, on the annual visit of the state regent, Miss Katharine A. Nettleton of Derby and Miss Emeline A. Street of New Haven, state vice regent. The decorations were chrysanthemums and carnations, the latter being a gift to the chapter from Miss Mary Partridge of Hartford, in memory of her mother, Mrs. Hannah Partridge, first regent of the chapter. In accordance with Miss Partridge's wish, the flowers at the close of the meeting were sent to members of the chapter who were ill. Mrs. Faust was assisted in serving by her daughter, Miss Ellen Faust, Mrs. William Phillips and Mrs. John P. Post. Mrs. A. H. N. Vaughan of Norwich was a luncheon guest.

At the close of the luncheon Mrs. Wallace H. Payne, regent of the local chapter, conducted the business meeting and then presented Miss Nettleton, who spoke of the work of both state and national societies. Forty years ago four women in Washington conceived the idea and organized the national society which now requires 24 committees and 100 clerks to carry on the business of the national organization. Miss Nettleton cited the manual, which is now published in English and 17 foreign languages as one of the outstanding pieces of work. This was especially a Connecticut project.

Miss Street, who is state chairman of the Sons and Daughters of the Republic club, gave a fine account of this most interesting new work. Any child, regardless of ancestry, race or creed, nine years old and over is eligible to membership. The purpose is to prepare for intelligent citizenship and to instill a deeper love for the flag and country. These clubs are mostly formed in the fourth and fifth grades and in many cases are carried on in connection with school work. Wherever these clubs are in operation, teachers and pupils are most enthusiastic. The club meetings are conducted by the children themselves and aside from the educational value they satisfy the desire in these young children for club activities which are enjoyed by their older brothers and sisters.

Mrs. Fred S. Leonard delighted her audience with two charming piano selections, "Chant of Love," by Paderewski and "Valse Brilliante" by Raff.

A table in the reception hall, where Miss M. Adelaide Burdick, Ellis Island chairman presided, was of interest to all, as it contained articles brought by the members to be sent to Ellis Island. Gifts of yarns, worsteds, knitting cotton, etc., are used to keep the detained aliens busy during the weeks and often months of detention. Last year over 1,800 boxes were sent by D. A. R. chapters. The state regent complimented this chapter on its work for this project, saying that for its size, there was no chapter in the state doing better work along this line.

PACHAUG SUPPER-SALE DRAWS GOOD PATRONAGE

Pachaug Ladies' Aid society served a turkey supper and held a Christmas sale in Grange hall Wednesday evening. The general chairman was the president, Mrs. F. D. Browning. The supper was in charge of Mrs. Henry Holden, Mrs. Victor Campbell and Mrs. LeRoy Holmes. Mrs. W. E. Montgomery and Mrs. Ellen Young sold grabs from a Christmas tree, and Mrs. Harold L. Arnold and Mrs. Benjamin Goldstein sold home-made candy. Mrs. Davis had charge of the sale of handkerchiefs and Mrs. Will Edmond and Mrs. Edward Gibson were at the fancy work table. The waitresses were Ruth Burton, Lucille Holden, Janet Wilcox, Marian and Elsie Edmond, Annie Williams and Grace Campbell.

The Missionary society of the Congregational church met at Mrs. C. D. Wolf's Thursday afternoon. Miss S. K. Adams presided at the business meeting, after which a box of Christmas gifts for a hospital connected with the Brewer Normal school in Greenwood, South Carolina, was packed. A Christmas tree held gifts for each one present, and a delightful social time was enjoyed with Amos 'n' Andy in person as entertainers. These two artists wore lovely gray fur coats and performed with paper bags. Mrs. Wolf served tea and fancy cookies.

Edgar Knox, commander of the local American Legion post, has been ill with pleurisy and threatened with pneumonia. He was much better Thursday.

The body of Mrs. Frank Wesden has been brought from Providence to Pachaug cemetery for burial.

Slater library has been closed until further notice.

MOOSUP

Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Kitchen have spent a few days in Maynard and Shawsheen.

Miss Viola Troenig, of Moosup, employed in New York city, is gaining strength after a recent illness in the Berkshire hills.

Mrs. Paul Roper and Mrs. George Sanderson spent Thursday in Providence.

The annual Christmas sale and supper was held at the Baptist church Wednesday evening. The supper, which was highly praised, consisted of meat loaf, escalloped corn, mashed potato, relish, rolls, cakes and coffee. Supper was served to a large number. At the different booths candy, grabs, ice cream, books and fancy work were for sale. The supper committee was Miss Mary Hope, chairman; Mrs. Dennison, Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Asal, Mrs. Mortimer, Mrs. Roper and Mrs. Sanderson. Mrs. Hope and Mrs. Seaton were in charge of the fancy work; Mrs. Codlin, grabs; Mrs. Robert and Mrs. Hyde, aprons; Miss Margaret Hope and Miss Phylis Sanderson, candy; Mrs. DeWolfe and Miss Elfreda Eyers, books, and George Sanderson, the supper tickets.

The pupils of the grammar grades of the town of Plainfield were dismissed early Wednesday afternoon to enable their teachers to attend a lecture at Plainfield high school building by Searle Light, state supervisor of rural education. His subject was "The Old School and the New School." A general discussion followed the lecture which was very interesting. Mr. Light visited the different schools in town before his lecture.

Mrs. Alice B. Makepeace, home demonstration agent of Putnam, will be at the Girls' club rooms Monday afternoon for her December visit to the Home Economics class. Gift suggestions will again be the topic for discussion. Sewing will also be done.

Legion Whist Of 33 Tables

At the American Legion whist held Monday evening in the Franco-American rooms, thirty-three tables were at play. The prizes were won by the following: Mrs. Allan Mopsick, $2.50 in gold, donated by Leo Potvin; Melina Gagne, comfy slippers, donated by the Beausoleil store; Mrs. Leander Robitaille, electric curling iron, donated by Rene Arseneault, Viola Beaudoin, compact donated by the Emily shop; Delphis Lamoureaux, $2.50 in gold, donated by Smith and Bessette; Bernard Caron, incense burner, donated by Moosup pharmacy; D. Tracy, Canterbury, Ford heater and $1 in cash, donated by Fred Wellman; Dona Dupuis, pipe, donated by Frank Bernard. The door awards went to Miss Mary Smith, 10 gals. gas and 1 gal. oil, donated by William Heywood; Grace A. Wright, $3.00 in merchandise from Gelinas; Noah Bourque, 10 games of golf, donated by Petite Golf course; Mrs. Leander Robitaille, cedar chest of stationery, donated by the Roy shop; Frank Cournoyer, 1 bottle hair dressing, donated by Harmidas Jette; Raymond Cournoyer, 1 lb. box chocolates, donated by A. & P.; Wilfred Bernier, 1 bottle toilet water, donated by Alfred Faucher. Treffle Bellavance, Edward Bellavance, Napoleon Fournier, Roy Barber shop and T. E. Main and Sons have been added to the list of donors.

The December meeting of Rebecca chapter, No. 27, O. E. S., will be held this (Friday) evening, followed by a Christmas party.

The Inter-church bowling league finished its season with a supper at the Methodist church Tuesday evening. The supper consisted of boiled ham, baked beans, relish, rolls, cake, coffee and milk. The churches which participated in the league were: Plainfield Congregational, Wauregan Congregational, Moosup Baptist and Moosup Methodists. The Wauregan Congregational were the winners. The following adults were in charge: Cecil Butler, Henry Leach, Harold Burgess and Rev. A. E. Tingley.

Mrs. Helen Robertson, who has been spending a few days in Groton, has returned to her home.

A well child conference was held Wednesday in the Franco-American rooms.

Mrs. Louis Jette is recovering from illness at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Bellavance.

The children of the different schools have begun selling Christmas seals.

The December meeting of the American Legion was held Sunday afternoon. Committees gave favorable reports on the Christmas baskets and the airplane markers. Incoming Commander Granger urges every eligible service man to join the legion as soon as possible and swell the ever-growing membership. Applications and membership cards may be obtained from Finance Officer Clarence Reid of Central Village or Henry Fillmore of Moosup. The local legion has a quota to fill and much to accomplish. Legion meetings are held in the Boy Scout rooms in the Public school building on Daggett street, the first Sunday of the month at 2 p. m.

CANTERBURY

TOWN LOSES TWO OF ITS WORTHY RESIDENTS

(Contributed)

The last week of November was eventful in that there passed away from their earthly labors two descendants of old Canterbury families, Herbert Smith and Miss Margaret Shea. After an active career in the business world Mr. Smith's untimely end came as a sad loss to the community in which he lived and Canterbury may well mourn the passing of this worthy descendant of her most respected family. Three generations of his forebears made many of those that made Canterbury history, honored by holding most every office within the gift of the townspeople. For generations the shining quality of this family was neighborly kindness and within the town are many who can bear witness to that ever present solicitude for others less fortunate.

Of Miss Shea it can be said her only ambition in life seemed to be to assist others. During her seventy-three years of life the active portion was given to the care of the poor and motherless children. The writer knows whereof he speaks and can testify of a newly-born motherless babe, a case said to be hopeless by doctors and nurses. The situation aroused the womanly interest of the subject of this tribute and she nursed to health and strength this shunted infant. They laid her body in the land where Miantonomo fell brokenhearted and none shed more bitter tears upon her grave than did the little party, several in number, of motherless babes, grown to manhood and womanhood, parents of children.

Warriors and statesmen have their need of praise and what they do or suffer men record the fact; but of the love and dear sacrifice of woman, the days too often pass away without a thought or a word.

A FRIEND.

STOCK PRICES WERE LOWER; LOSSES AT FINISH WERE MOSTLY NARROW

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—(AP)—The general level of share prices dipped into new low ground for the bear market today, but failure of U. S. Steel common and a few other pivotal shares to venture under their previous lows brought a swift change of trend in the last hour, and net losses at the finish were mostly narrow.

Bonds were again under pressure, and cotton futures sagged 65 cents to $1.05 a bale to new lows for the season. The wheat market, however, held virtually stationary, and corn eased but slightly. Silver was again slightly firmer, after recording its new historical low on Tuesday.

The stock market seemed to be still under the influence of the wave of persistent selling which has been in leisurely progress for the past several days. The taking over of an uptown bank by the state banking department, was regarded in Wall street as the elimination of a sore spot, which had been an aggravating psychological factor for several days, and some observers thought that it alone might have caused a rally.

Trading was the heaviest in the early afternoon. On the basis of 1 o'clock prices, the price average of 90 leading shares touched a new low for the past three years at 122.9. At the close, however, it was at 123.5 or 1-10th of a point above the low established on November 10. The net loss for the day was only 1.4 points. Trading slackened in the last hour, and the day's turnover was only 2,885,910 shares, or somewhat less than yesterday's.

Despite the current gloom in Wall street, substantial holiday cheer is being provided here and there. The third bank to announce a Christmas salary bonus within the past few days informed its employes that they may expect 10 per cent. of their year's salaries. Stock exchange seats, however, are distinctly not in demand. The price dropped today to $205,000, the lowest since 1927, when the price went as low as $170,000.

For the 11th successive week, brokers' loans declined. The latest drop was $12,000,000, comparatively small, but about as expected, in view of the dull trading in the period covered by the compilation. This reduces the total to only $2,099,000,000 which makes a deflation of $1,123,000,000 since the downward trend started at the end of September.

Out of town banks increased their funds on call by $27,000,000, while local banks reduced theirs by the same amount. The account of others showed a drop of $12,000,000. The weekly federal reserve condition statement showed moderate seasonal gains in bills bought in the open market and currency in circulation.

Call money was firm at 2 per cent but held officially at that figure, although outside loans commanded 2 1-2 per cent. late in the day. Foreign exchanges were inclined to ease. A notable development was a drop in the Canadian dollar to a discount of 5-32nd of a cent, which resulted in a shipment of $5,000,000 in gold from Montreal. Canadian exchanges normally sags after the closing of St. Lawrence navigation.

Some of the widest breaks again occurred in the rails. New York Central dropped 5 points to the lowest in five years, then recovered all but 1 1-2. Atchison tumbled 8 points, then recovered six. American Water Works, Johns Manville, and Baltimore and Ohio, sagged about 5 to new lows, and recovered moderately. General Electric and Westinghouse dipped about 2 points to new lows, but recovered most of their losses. U. S. Steel sold off 4 to 138, its November tenth low, but would not go farther. It later regained half its loss. American Can and Standard of N. J., kept substantially above their lows.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—(AP)—The curb market showed considerable resistance to selling pressure in an active session today.

Although 734,100 shares were traded, nearly 50,000 more than yesterday, and pressure was heavy at times, prominent shares were well taken, and showed some recuperative power in the final transactions. Few net losses exceeded a point or so.

Some of the oils reached new lows, including Gulf and Indiana, which lost about a point each. Humble lost as much. Cities Service sagged a point, then recovered. Columbia Oil A, which has not been very active, spurted up a point.

Electric Bond & Share was an active feature, but its extreme loss was little more than a point, and it closed off only 3-4. American Super Power declined fractionally to a new low at 9 3-4, and closed at 10. American Gas & Electric dropped 3 points, then recovered half its loss. United Light A, and Niagara Hudson closed steady. Central Public Service A declined about 2 to a new minimum.

In the industrial group, Deere rallied 2 3-4, then lost most of its gain. Dresser B stock slipped back 2 3-4. Columbia Pictures stiffened, closing up a fraction. Coppers were quiet. Newmont, however, lost nearly 2 points. In the insurance division, North America lost 4, reaching a new low. Among investment company issues, Goldman Sachs was active, losing a point, then rallying to close steady.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—(AP)—Pressure on the bond market continued unabated today. Losses of one to three points and more, liberally sprinkled through the domestic and foreign lists, recalled the days immediately following the crash in stock prices a year ago, when holders of coupon bearing obligations dumped their holdings without regard to intrinsic merit in order to obtain ready cash for share market purposes.

The current weakness of bonds may be partially attributed to similar circumstances, but investment circles find a more likely cause in the apparent sudden desire of banks to reduce their holdings. Also the broad declines of the past few days have apparently frightened private investors into selling at sacrifices, thereby displaying in the opinion of conservative investment bankers, an unjustified lack of confidence.

The bargain hunter in the bond market, who profits by the nervousness of investors with shorter visions, found plenty of opportunities in today's market. Issues on which neither principal nor interest are regarded as even remotely endangered declined almost as broadly as less attractively situated bonds, and at their closing prices offered the best yields in some time. A handful of the highest grade mortgages showed a little more steadiness than yesterday, but their performance was exceptional.

Foreign obligations were particularly weak, and the largest losses came in the South Americans. Bonds of Chile, Argentina, Colombia, and Peru, dropped 1 to 4 points, although there were slight recoveries at the close. German 5 1-2s, steady for a time, finally gave way and lost a point. Scandinavian, Japanese, and French government issues, however, were firm.

Domestic rails were hard hit and scores reached new lows. There was considerable firmness in such gilt edge bonds as Santa Fe general 4s, Baltimore and Ohio first 5s, Union Pacific first 4s, New York Central 5s, the Canadian Pacifics and Pennsylvanias but secondary carrier loans were weak with few exceptions. An example of the thinness that prevailed here and there, was the drop of 7 1-2 points in New Haven railroad 4s, on the sale of a single $1,000,000.

American Telephone debentures 5s had another relapse and each issue lost about a point. American and Foreign Power 5s turned over actively, making a new low with a decline of more than a point. International Telephone 5s, moved sharply against the trend and were up 1 1-2 as the regular quarterly dividend was declared on the stock.

The industrial and stock privilege harbored some acutely weak spots. Philadelphia and Reading 5s lost six points, Richfield Oil convertible 6s sagged 5 and Kendall 5 1-2s dropped 5 although sales in none were large.

Liberty Bonds were firm in large turnovers, but considerable heaviness developed in the treasuries, the 4 1-4s losing 12-32nds.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Record low prices for this season in July wheat resulted today from dearth of demand and from sympathy with weakness in securities. Grain values were depressed also by downturns in cotton and hogs, the latter being the lowest in several years. Traders sold corn and oats on account of mild weather, which tended to curtail seasonal use of feed.

Wheat closed irregular at yesterday's finish to 1 1-4c lower, corn nervous, unchanged to 3-4a7-8c down, oats 3-4a7-8c off, and provisions at 15a35c decline.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Based upon their requirements of crude rubber during January, resumption of activity in the tire manufacturing industry is slated to get under way on a fairly large scale, the Rubber exchange of New York reports. Estimates place the crude rubber requirements of manufacturers during January at approximately 31,000 long tons against 25,000 long tons this month.

The weekly gold statement of the Federal Reserve bank of New York showed imports of $2,739,000 from Argentina and $340,000 chiefly from other Latin-American countries. There were no exports and there was no net change in gold earmarked for foreign account.

VIOLATED IMMIGRATION LAWS—FIVE ARRESTED AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 11—Immigration inspectors, R. W. Kenney and Walter Bartlett, of Hartford, tonight arrested five fishermen charged with violation of the immigration laws in obtaining unlawful entry into this country. They were locked up and tomorrow will be taken to Hartford and arraigned in the United States district court. The men arrested tonight, it is claimed, entered this country without obtaining the necessary immigration papers and were employed on boats connected with the Portland Trawling Co., at Groton. The arrests were the eighth of this character made by the immigration officers within two weeks.

NEW LONDON MAN INJURED—HIT BY GROTON MACHINE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 11—An automobile operated by George P. Finch, 3rd, 134 Baker avenue, Groton, hit Paul Smiligin, 148 Crystal avenue, tonight, at the underpass of the New Haven railroad approaching the Thames river highway bridge. Smiligin was knocked down and sustained numerous bumps and scratches. He was attended by a physician at his home.

WALLET WITH SUM OF $378 LOST BY ROBT. R. SHAFER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 11—Robert R. Shafer, residing at the Hotel Mohican, reported to the police tonight that he had lost his wallet containing $378. He was unable to state whether he lost it on the street or in the hotel.

Mrs. John Awezec, of Montville, and Mrs. William Manice, 30 Chicago avenue, Groton, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Samuel Goodman, proprietor of a tailoring establishment, 49 Church street, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States district court at New Haven. Goodman listed his liabilities as follows: Taxes, $30; wages, $50; secured claims, $1,925; unsecured claims, $3,887; notes and bills, $1,302; total, $6,302. Goodman gave his assets as follows: Real estate, $300; merchandise, $1,000; household goods, $400; accounts receivable, $1,286; stocks and bonds, $120; fixtures, $400; total $3,506.

Philip W. Lloyd, of 372 Williams street, this city, was arrested in Groton last night charged with reckless driving and will be in the Stonington town court next Tuesday. The police of Westerly made complaint against Lloyd and when he was driving on Thames street he was arrested by State Police Officer Eric Swanson.

Henson Carter, of Ledyard, was in Ledyard justice court yesterday afternoon, charged with driving without a license. He was fined $15 and costs and paid. Carter was arrested by State Police Officer Arthur Whitmarsh.

IMMIGRATION LAW VIOLATION ALLEGED

Immigration officers today arrested another fisherman for violation of the immigration laws, the man being Christopher Farrell. He was locked up and is being held a prisoner, for the officers are seeking the arrest of another fisherman. The arrest, which is the third to be made within a fortnight, was made by Inspectors R. W. Kenney and W. S. Barker, Hartford.

FUNERAL

John A. Bergen

The funeral of John A. Bergen was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at his home, 46 Mercer street, and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. The service was read by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James' Episcopal church and he was assisted by Rev. Edward M. Chapman. The bearers were Capt. Lawrence B. Gross, Walter D. Beckwith, Charles A. Peterson, John Cullin, Martin A. Small and Henry H. Coogan. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

A Fishers Island laborer with a long police court record, was charged with intoxication and was sentenced to 30 days in jail but execution of the sentence was suspended.

Another man charged with intoxication was sentenced to ten days in jail. Execution of the sentence was suspended. A third man, charged with intoxication, had the charge nolled.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Carl Russell

Mrs. Eva Russell, 49, wife of Carl Russell, died yesterday afternoon at her late residence, 33 New street. She had long been ill with a complication of diseases.

William D. Seagrave has filed a quit claim deed for record at the office of the city clerk, transferring title in property on Ledyard street to Harriet D. Seagrave.

Isaac M. Quinn has sold to Alfred W. and Ella P. King a house and lot on Ocean avenue. Quinn, however, reserves a life use of the property.

Peter P. Sauerzopf, 310 Ledyard street, and Miss Arlene Bailey, Mystic, were married yesterday by Justice of the Peace Harry Gordon.

The annual meeting of Goff temple, No. 1, Pythian Sisters, was held in Union lodge rooms last night and the following officers were elected: Most excellent chief, Mrs. Katherine Noyer; excellent senior, Lillian Cohen; excellent junior, Alice Loseno; manager, Florence Maus; mistress of records and correspondence, Frances Greenman; mistress of finance, Mima Jeffrey; protector, Hattie Brown; guard, Fannie Stone; trustee, Jane Reed. Fanny Stone was elected delegate to the approaching meeting of the grand lodge and Alice Losepo was elected alternate. The officers-elect will be installed at a meeting to be held Jan. 14 and the installing officer will be Charlotte Fowler, Norwich, district deputy grand chief.

Marriage intentions have been filed at the office of the city clerk by Russell W. Sutlive, U. S. coast guard, state pier, and Maxine D. Jennings telephone operator, 112 Howard street.

NORWICH NEGRESS GOES FREE—BOOTLEGGER PAYS $300

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 11—Vincenzo Decrescenzo, 17 Cottage street and Mrs. Edna Shankel, colored, of 62 Scott street, Norwich, were in the police court this morning, each charged on two counts of violation of the liquor law. Decrescenzo was fined $300 and costs and the charges against the woman were nolled for her arrest was the result of her having acted as agent of Decrescenzo, also she turned state's evidence. Decrescenzo last Tuesday requested Mrs. Shankel to carry a grip to Fort Wright, Fishers Island and deliver it to a soldier, Private Irving Benway, known as "Blondy," who is alleged to have been bootlegging among the enlisted men at the fort. Although Mrs. Shankel, who was paid $4 to perform the errand, stated that she was not aware of the contents of the bag, she boarded the 10:30 o'clock boat, having been informed that Benway would meet her on its arrival at the island. When the boat reached the island, Benway was not on hand and Mrs. Shankel started to walk toward the fort with her cargo. While doing so an automobile in which Benway was riding with a friend overtook the woman and the latter entered the car. Upon its arrival at the Fort Wright field, Mrs. Shankel was relieved of the bag by Benway, who carried it to one of the post buildings. Benway had been suspected of his bootlegging activities and had been watched, especially because of a statement he had made, which led to the belief that he was receiving a supply of liquor. When Benway placed the bag in the building an officer demanded that he reveal its contents and the order being obeyed, Benway was made a military prisoner. Mrs. Shankel was also arrested, was brought to New London and locked up. When questioned in her cell she made statements that revealed that Decrescenzo was the real bootlegger and the next day he was arrested. Benway will be given a court martial within a few days.

MONTVILLE MOTHER AND CHILDREN MISSING

Mrs. Walter Mozniak, 29, and her three children, a girl of 13, a boy of six and a baby of six months, are missing from their home in Montville and the state police and New London police have been requested to be on the lookout for the woman and children. Mrs. Mozniak is described as being about five feet in height, weighs about 200 pounds. She wore an imitation fur coat. Mrs. Mozniak, it is believed, is slightly demented and because of that condition, fears are entertained that she may take the lives of the children and then commit suicide. Mrs. Mozniak and the children left their home about 9 o'clock and they were discovered missing about two hours later. When a search for the woman and children was made without any trace of them being found, the aid of the police was requested.

BENJ. FELDMAN SHOT IN BROOKLYN HOLD-UP

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 11—Benjamin Feldman, a former New London merchant, now proprietor of a grocery store in Brooklyn, N. Y., is a patient at Bronxville hospital, Brooklyn, shot by a holdup man's bullet, when his store was invaded by three youthful bandits Tuesday. While Feldman's condition is serious, according to advices received here today the merchant is out of danger. Feldman and two clerks were in the store when the bandits entered and the command was given that the proprietor and his employes go to a rear room. The clerks obeyed the order but Feldman resisted and when he started hurling merchandise at the holdup men, one of their number opened fire. One of the bullets entered Feldman's back and barely missed penetrating the spine. He dropped in his tracks and the robbers fled without obtaining money. Feldman was rushed to a hospital where his condition was reported as critical until today when the report of the improvement was given out. Feldman was formerly proprietor of a grocery store on Huntington street, corner of Hill street, removing to Brooklyn about three years ago. He has several brothers in this city.

ROBT. SCOTT, NORWICH, IN COURT WITH J. H. JAMES

John Henderson James, colored, who claims to reside at 45 Hill street, this city, but who is not known here and neither is there any such address as James gave, was presented in the city court at Norwalk today charged with felonious assault and carrying a concealed weapon. He was arrested Sunday last when he fired two shots at Edward Smith, Norwalk Negro. With James were Robert Scott, Norwich Negro known to the New London police and Evelyn Mendez and her sister, Monica Jubray, former residents of New London, the last named having a police court record, having been arrested charged with conducting a disorderly house on Golden street. Today in court James was sentenced to eight months in jail. He gave notice of appeal and was held in bail of $2,500.

At a meeting of the New London Manufacturers' association, held at the community house, State street, last night, the following officers were elected: President, Alois J. Pfannenstell; vice president, William Johl; treasurer, J. Reid Johnson; secretary, Richard E. Quaintance; directors, Alois J. Pfannenstell, William Johl, J. Reid Johnson, Richard E. Quaintance, O. Pomeroy Robinson, Howard L. Hetherington, Thomas B. Congdon.

SNATCHED WOMAN'S BAG—NEINGER SOON NABBED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 11.—The police captured a pocketbook snatcher in the quickest possible time tonight for within 20 minutes after the theft was perpetrated the thief, a former member of the U. S. coast guard, was in custody. Although he denied his guilt, the greater part of the money he stole was recovered when he was stripped and searched. The thief is Walter Neinger, 24, a lodger at 119 Golden street. He will be in the police court tomorrow morning. Deninger was on Broad street, near Hempstead street shortly before 9 o'clock, undoubtedly for the purpose of exercising his talents as a thief; for when Miss Flora St. Thomas, of 171 Broad street, was on her way home and was opposite the Second Congregational church, Deninger suddenly walked close to her and seized Miss Thomas' pocketbook, which contained $17, a few pennies, a cigarette case, handkerchief, and bank book, the last named issued by the Mariners Savings bank. Deninger, taking the pocketbook and its contents, ran to Hempstead and then to Federal street. When he disappeared in the latter street, Miss St. Thomas was outdistanced. The young lady went to a nearby store and acquainted Lieut. Sullivan of the theft. Several officers were dispatched on the clue furnished by Miss St. Thomas, who was positive she could identify the thief if found. With the giving of the alarm, Patrolman Ernest Opperman was acquainted of the robbery at Crystal avenue and Main street and within 10 minutes after receiving the report, Deninger was going past the officer. He was held up as he answered minutely the description and when taken to police headquarters and searched, Miss St. Thomas' cigarette case and handkerchief were found on him. Miss St. Thomas, who was summoned to police headquarters, identified the effects as her property before she saw Deninger. Once looking at Deninger she positively identified him as the crook and when Deninger was stripped the money bills of the denomination of $10, $5 and $2, was found secreted in his arm pit. Deninger then confessed, admitting that he had disposed of the pocketbook and bank book.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Progressive Mfg Company, Torrington.

Back in the days of the gay nineties, when cycling was in it's heyday, was laid the foundation of the present Progressive Mfg company. The advent of the automobile, while the resulting decline in the popularity of the bicycle, turned the product of the Eagle Bicycle Mfg. Co., as it was then known, to marine engines and spark plugs. Later these lines were sold as the concern prepared to enter the machine screw and rivet industry, and in September 1905 it was incorporated under Connecticut laws as The Progressive Mfg. company.

This company pioneered in the development of roll threading, and rapid strides were made as this economical method of applying threads quickly replaced the more expensive cut-thread process. Today roughly 95 per cent of the country's production in machine screws is produced with rolled threads, resulting in great economies to the consumer without sacrifice of quality.

Cold upsetting in all it's phases is specialized in by this concern, whether machine screws, rivets or special items heretofore made on automatic screw machines. The company maintains a staff of experts on cold upsetting who welcome the problems of those interested in reducing the cost of their assemblies by applying the product of this process.

Large stock of standard machine screws and machine screw nuts are carried for the convenience of it's customers and prompt service is given on materials of a special nature. Realizing that in the machine screw industry "service" must of necessity be the watchword, this company has concentrated on and developed this feature to a high degree, as can be attested by complimentary letters from a good many of it's satisfied customers.

The present officers are: George B. Alvord, president; G. E. Hammann, secretary and treasurer

ANNOUNCEMENTS

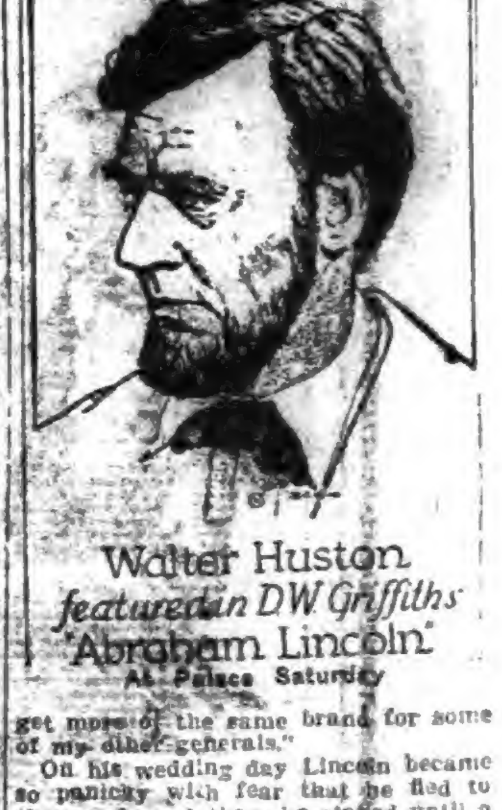
Palace Theatre

Starting tomorrow for the next four days one of the most outstanding features of the year, perhaps the greatest of all pictures since the Birth of a Nation, Abraham Lincoln.

Griffith, who is presenting "Abraham Lincoln," an epic vocal film built on the theme of Lincoln's life, at the Palace theatre, discovered, for instance, that the Emancipator never drank liquor, though he never censored those who did.

On one occasion a committee of temperance workers pleaded with him to dismiss Ulysses Grant because the general was drunk when he won a decisive battle.

[illegible]



At Palace Saturday

get more of the same brand for some of my other generals."

On his wedding day Lincoln became so panicky with fear that he fled to the woods and there he stayed until a party of searchers discovered him five days later.

His habit of reading out loud drove his law partner, Herndon, to distraction. He argued his law cases to success through the employment of apt stories which struck sympathetically the "down to earth" hearts of his juries; then he forgot to collect his fees.

Walter Huston breathes the verities of life into the character of Lincoln. Others in the cast of principals are Kay Hammond, as "Mary Todd Lincoln"; Una Merkel, as "Ann Rutledge"; Ian Keith, as "John Wilkes Booth"; Jason Robards, as "Herndon"; Hobart Bosworth, as "Robert E. Lee"; Frank Campeau, as "Sheridan", and Lucille La Verne.

Today for the last times Rain or Shine, with Joe Cook, and Rivers End, with Charles Bickford, will be shown and truly this is the greatest double bill to date.

Broadway Theatre

In order to get the exact locale for certain scenes in "East is West," the all-talking version of the stage success now playing at the Broadway theatre and ending tonite, Monta Bell took his entire company from Hollywood to San Francisco's Chinatown. Here many of the Chinatown sequences were enacted in the place where they are purported to happen. Features in the cast of this production, which was made famous on the stage by Fay Bainter, are Lupe Velez, Lewis Ayres and Edward G. Robinson.

LEWIS AYRES and LUPE VELEZ
in "EAST IS WEST"

At Broadway Theatre

Jules Verne, H. G. Wells and Edgar Rice Burroughs, perhaps, are the best known men of letters who have used Mars as a setting for their fantastic fiction.

In "Just Imagine," the great futuristic musical comedy, successor to "Sunny Side Up," opening tomorrow at the Broadway for a four day stay Mars supplies the background, for the first time in pictures, for some of the most important sequences of the production.

A great cast is assembled in "Just Imagine." It includes El Brendel Mareen O'Sullivan, John Garrick, Marjorie White, Frank Albertson, Kenneth Thomson, Hobart Bosworth, Wilfred Lucas, and Ivan Linow.

Lecture on Swedish Orphanage Work

Of interest to all Scandinavians of Norwich and vicinity will be the illustrated lecture on Sweden to be given at Salem Evangelical Lutheran church on Hickory street next Tuesday evening. This lecture will be given by Rev. Geo. Svenson of Bohuslan, Sweden, who is traveling in the States in the interests of the orphan home work on the scattered islands off the west coast of Sweden. With headquarters at Gravarna, Rev. Svenson is carrying on a very effective missionary work among the scattered population of the archipelago. No admission will be charged, but an offering will be lifted.

Moose Charity Ball.

Saturday evening the Norwich lodge, No. 950, will put on their first charity ball to raise money for new buildings at Mooseheart. At present there are 1258 children at Mooseheart being cared for by the Moose. There is also a waiting list of over 400 children who are being taken care of in the outside world through Moose extension service. It is hoped that through the charity ball which is being given by 1751 lodges throughout the United States during the month of December that Mooseheart will be equipped to take care of at least 1000 more children. The local lodge expects to realize about $1,500 toward this building campaign.

The Turkish government is going to manage sports in the country because of poor results shown by athletes.

FUNERALS

Mrs. Sarah J. Morgan

The funeral services of Mrs. Sarah J. Morgan of No. 24 Eighth St. were held Thursday afternoon at the funeral parlors of Undertakers Church and Allen at 2 o'clock with a large attendance of relatives and friends. The services were conducted by Rev. E. J. Norris, pastor of St. Andrew's Episcopal church. Burial took place in a family plot in Evergreen cemetery at Central Village. Friends of the deceased acted as bearers. Among the large attendance of mourners were people present from New York, New London, Westerly and Massachusetts. The floral tributes were both numerous and beautiful.

Mrs. Morgan died Monday at the home of her son, James Sweet, at 24 Eighth street. She was born in Sterling 82 years ago, the daughter of James and Hildah Hawkins Stone. Mrs. Morgan is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Anthony Field of Springs Long Island, Mrs. Grace McNeill of Norwich, Mrs. George W. Lyon of Westerly, R. I., and Mrs. Abby McCabe of New York city; three sons, Charles Brown and James S. Sweet of this city and Frederick Wilson of New Haven and several grandchildren. She was the last member of her immediate family. Mrs. Morgan spent most of her life as a resident of Norwich although she was a resident of Webster for a short period.

Stephen L. Cordone

Wednesday morning the funeral of Stephen L. Cordone of Washington street was held from the home of his brother, George R. Cordone, 362 North Main street, at 8:30 o'clock, followed by a mass of requiem at St. Patrick's church at 9 o'clock which was offered by Rev. James A. Dargan. The musical portion of the mass was in charge of the church organist, Henry LaFontaine, and he was assisted with the singing by Mrs. Bernard C. Coyle, who rendered De Profundis at the offertory and Mr. LaFontaine sang Abide With Me as a waiting hymn; Lead Kindly Light was played at the recessional. The bearers were Frank Eggleton, Richard L. Tarrant, Judson Wendell, Albert Spenoza, Albert Johnson and Henry Freeman. The body was later taken to Johnstown, N. Y., for burial, being accompanied by a large number of relatives and friends. The floral remembrances were both numerous and beautiful. Funeral Directors Hourigan Brothers were in charge of the arrangements.

Upon receiving word of the death of his sister, Mrs. Charles H. Vaughn, which occurred at Pawtucket, R. I., Wednesday morning, Patrick Sullivan of 6th street and wife left yesterday for that city to attend the funeral. Mrs. Vaughn was very favorably known throughout the Greeneville section and the news of her death was learned with profound sorrow and her many friends in return will express their heartfelt sympathy to the members of her immediate family.

Caught Two Large Coons

Two large coons which have been on exhibition for the past two days in the windows of W. H. Bowen's news stand were shot on Monday evening in the woods at Willimantic by Charles Staubly and Fred Lewis. The two animals weighed 18 and 16 pounds apiece.

The many friends of Turner Upton of Fifth street will be pleased to learn that he is resting as comfortably as can be expected after undergoing an operation at the W. W. Backus hospital recently.

Many of the local people are receiving cards from Mr. and Mrs. Patrick F. Bray and family of North Main street who are touring by automobile to the southern states.

Will Lecture At Synagogue

The lecture to be given at the Brothers of Joseph synagogue this (Friday) evening will be delivered by Rabbi M. Freed of New York, secretary of the Yeshivah college, Isaac Elchanan theological seminary, who is a well known Jewish speaker.

NORWICH MOVE GAINS SEPARATE WEATHER REPORT FOR STATE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The request by the Norwich chamber of commerce that separate weather reports shall be furnished that state instead of Connecticut being classed as "southern New England" has been granted by the weather bureau, and today Senator Bingham, who pressed the claim, was notified by the chief of the weather bureau that beginning January first or as soon thereafter as details could be arranged, Connecticut would be in a class by itself and receive from the bureau a separate wind and weather forecast designed to meet the needs of shipping.

The two other requests of the chamber of commerce were not granted on the ground they were not necessary at the present time. These were for a night weather map and the organization of a Connecticut section within the bureau. Not only has Connecticut gained by the move of the chamber of commerce but this new service is to be extended to all New England states, each separately instead of the existing group service.

COMMUNITY LEADERS HOLD SCOUT MEETING IN WILLI.

Twenty men representing the Norwich, Willimantic, Putnam, and Stafford Springs centers met Thursday evening around a table at dinner at the Nathan Hale hotel at Willimantic and for two hours discussed the future of Boy Scout work in Eastern Connecticut. George Felker, deputy regional executive of Boston, representing the National Council, spoke briefly of two plans of service which might be adopted. It was the unanimous opinion of those present that strong district committees should be organized in each center to see that the privileges of scouting is extended to every church, school, and organization in the respective communities as a programme for their boys.

The meeting was characterized by enthusiasm and appreciation of the work which had already been accomplished and a determination to push through with the establishment of district committees, district courts of honor, and an organized merit badge counselorship.

States Attorney Arthur M. Brown gave a summary of the thought of the group in a well delivered and pointed talk in which he declared that scouting as a national institution was doing more for the training of citizenship than any other organization engaged in boy's work.

Each man present was called upon by Lewis Arnold, presiding chairman, to state his opinion concerning the best method of assuring the permency and substantial growth of scouting in this section of the state. The men present were of the unanimous opinion that the professional guidance of an executive or paid field worker had been demonstrated to be necessary and was the goal towards which all would work either for the year of 1931 or later. H. D. Larrabee, president of the Norwich council, pointed out that Norwich had come to the cross roads in which it had to choose between continued active service to the territory with the active cooperation of the territory professionally directed or to a minimum mail service rendered through the local council office.

The dinner was tendered the scout men by the Willimantic chamber of commerce and was attended by men from religious institutions, the public schools, Storrs college, the business and social groups. As a result of this meeting it is anticipated that Deputy Regional Executive George Felker will return to the respective centers on invitation within three weeks to meet with and assist in setting up going district committees in the three centers.

N. SEARLE LIGHT WAS SPEAKER ON EDUCATION

A short business meeting of the Poquetanuck Parent-Teacher association was followed by the singing of Christmas carols by the children of the various departments. This was excellently done.

N. Searle Light of Hartford, superintendent of rural education, talked interestingly on present tendencies in education. He stressed the fact that no two children are alike physically, mentally, temperamentally. The traditional school imposed tasks upon the children and subjected them to common measurements; the new school, develops the native tendencies and capacities of children. The child of the new school shows greater interest and application and attains a high standard in the traditional school subjects. Mr. Light cited various instances of misfit children whose lives were transformed by the changed conditions under which they worked. He emphasized the importance of sympathetic, open-minded attitude on the part of those who received their training under the old regime. A helpful discussion followed the address.

Refreshments were served during the social hour by Mr. and Mrs. Homer Dixon and Appleton Main.

STORES' EVENING HOURS FOR CHRISTMAS SEASON

Norwich merchants are to observe evening hours for the stores during the Christmas season from Thursday, Dec. 18, to Wednesday, Dec. 24, inclusive. On week-day nights in this period the merchants of the city are to keep their stores open each evening until 9 o'clock, according to the schedule that was adopted at the beginning of the year by the Merchants' bureau.

NORWICH TOWN

L. M. CRANDALL TO SPEAK BEFORE THE JOHN MASON CLUB

Monday evening next the first winter meeting of the John Mason Community club is to be held in the vestry of the First Methodist Episcopal church, at 8 o'clock. The committee feels fortunate in having secured a man greatly in demand as a popular speaker, Louis M. Crandall, who will talk on the subject of "Twins." Since the convention held in Toronto in the fall, Mr. Crandall has received over 150 calls to speak in various parts of the United States and Canada. At the finish of Mr. Crandall's speech in Toronto the audience of 3,000 stood and cheered, almost an unheard-of thing in a convention of that nature. The committee in charge of the meeting Monday evening is Harry Cripps and LeRoy Miner and they are extending an invitation to all men, whether members of the club or not, to listen to this popular speaker. The committee in charge of the refreshments is Stanton W. Brown, Robert Brown and Wellington Miner.

Story of Liberia

Next Sunday night in the Methodist church, the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter, will deliver a stereopticon lecture on "The Story of Liberia." The lecture tells the story of the first Methodist missionary, Melvin Cox, who went to Liberia. Today there are large interests owned by the church and much work is being accomplished. During the lecture over 40 hand-colored, beautiful slides will be shown by stereopticon. The machine will be operated by Ralph Smith. The lecture is open to all interested

MADONNA PAINTINGS MADE SUBJECT FOR STUDY GROUP

Tuesday evening the study group of the Children of Mary sodality of St. Patrick's church held its December meeting in the Diocesan bureau rooms. Miss Lucy Mullen, illustrating her delightful talk with slides, discussed the development of the painting of Madonnas from the first early attempts through those of the illustrious masters to the modern works. Miss Mullen showed that, according to the trend of the period, artists pictured the Madonna in portrait, or enthroned, or in glory, or in adoration. In facial expression the Madonnas were always either distinctly spiritual or secular. The famous Raphael "Madonna of the Chairs," and the "Sistine Madonna" were especially studied.

A pastoral Madonna and a Madonna in adoration were beautifully portrayed in tableau form by Miss Natalie Conner.

The success of the evening was due to the efforts of Miss Lucy Mullen Miss Natalie Connor and Miss Geraldine Enos. The study group is indebted to the Palace theatre, the Porteous and Mitchell Co., and the Boston store for their courtesies extended for the tableaux.

CHRISTMAS PROGRAM FOR LEBANON D. A. R. MEETING

Gov. Jonathan Trumbull chapter, D. A. R., of Lebanon, held its regular December meeting at "Redwood", Miss Bertha Perry, hostess.

The meeting was opened in the regular form with the addition of the singing of Christmas carols.

The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and accepted.

It was reported that the Christmas box packed at the last meeting had been shipped.

A Christmas card to the chapter was received from the president general.

A suggestion was made that each member try to procure a new member for the chapter during the coming year.

Mrs. Eleanor Burgess Casey requested that she be dropped from the roll of the local chapter on account of non-residence.

The business meeting concluded a most delightful paper on "The Origin of Christmas" read by Mrs. Emma Danielson of Brooklyn, Conn.

A delightful social hour was then enjoyed by all during which a delicious lunch was served by the hostess, Miss Bertha Perry, assisted by Mrs. Hortense Pultz. Also much pleasure was derived by the members from the annual Christmas box.

FIRST LUTHERAN LADIES ELECT THEIR OFFICERS

The December meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of First Lutheran church was held Wednesday afternoon at the church.

Election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows: President, Mrs. E. Thumm; vice president, Mrs. H. Erlbeck; secretary, Mrs. H. Rettkovske; treasurer, Mrs. J. Banfield. Among other business it was decided to send Christmas baskets to the needy.

At the conclusion of the meeting a Christmas party was enjoyed by all attending. After the singing of Christmas carols, at gaily decorated tables in keeping with the season, a delightful luncheon of holiday cakes, candies and coffee was served. Two small Christmas trees graced the tables and the room was fittingly decorated.

A vote of thanks was given the committees in charge.

SUPT. GENTER WAS SPEAKER AT BOSTON

Rev. Myron E. Genter, Norwich district superintendent, was a speaker Tuesday at the 29th annual meeting of the district suerintendents of the Methodist Episcopal churches of New England, which was held at the Wesleyan building in Boston with a session also on Wednesday.

West End Sewing Circle

The West End Sewing Social circle met this week at the home of Mrs. Elbert Rathbun, Bushnell place. Mrs. Gertrude Alquist presided at the usual business meeting and sewing. The bed spread will soon be completed. The hostess furnished candy. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Henry R. Taft, Coit street.

Verdict For Defendant

Through a mistake in the heading the wrong impression was given in the report of the verdict in the suit of Fairfield Milling company against A. N. Meyer, a Norwich baker. The verdict by Judge C. B. Waller in the court of common pleas was in favor of Mr. Meyer, the defendant.

Road Conditions Reported

Road conditions in this part of the state made necessary by highway construction, repairs and oiling announced by the Connecticut highway department as of December 10, 1930, are as follows:

Route No. 12—Norwich-Jewett City road is under construction. Grading is being done and culverts are being installed. Traffic can pass.

DESCRIBES "WHITE SILENCE" IN FAR OFF ALASKA

In a letter to his father, Herbert M. Booth of 6 Nelson Place, written from Fairbanks, Alaska, James H. Booth mentions that there is real winter in that country now with the thermometer around 40 below, which is the time of the famous "White Silence" of which he writes in a vivid way as follows:

"We are having a touch of real winter now, with the thermometer dodging between 30 and 40 below. It is at this time that we get what is called the White Silence. Suppose you have heard the term. Everything is still, not a breath of air stirring. The silence is so great that you can feel it grip you, you can almost hear it. There seems to be a pressure on your ear drums. It is really caused by the absence of hundreds of small noises you are accustomed to. It is the most perfect silence known; that is, in the hills, only broken by the snap of the fire and an occasional crack of a log or tree split by the frost."

"In town all the sounds are magnified. The crunching of snow caused by a person walking on the hard snow of the sidewalk can be heard a couple of blocks away, while a car passing makes as much noise as a train. Then, after they pass, the silence presses in again on your ear drums."

Well, that's about the best I can do with the subject. It's so big it is hard to describe, one has to experience it. I like it and hate to have the trucks and people walking break it up.. But lots of people don't like it, they hate it, the silence drives them wild. It is one of the tests of fitness to live in this country. No one is indifferent to it one either likes it or hates it. The hating of the silence is the cause of most of the cases of insanity here. More than any other one cause it makes or breaks a man."

GAVE WEDDING RECEPTION TO CAPT. AND MRS. MURPHY

A reception in honor of Capt. and Mrs. Thomas P. Murphy, who were united in marriage Tuesday morning at St. Patrick's church, was held Thursday evening at the bride's former home, No. 44 Forest street. Capt. and Mrs. Murphy returned Thursday from their wedding trip, which took them to Providence. During the early evening there was a full course chicken supper, which was followed by radio music, singing and dancing. A feature of the evening was a number by a quartette comprising John C. Donovan, Sergt. Matthew Delaney of the local police force, Michael Murphy and Myles Sullivan. There were about 75 guests at the reception. Frank Jacaruso was the chef. Capt. and Mrs. Murphy will reside in their newly-furnished apartment on Avery street extension.

EXPECT $375 PROCEEDS FROM "AUNT LUCIA"

Incomplete returns up to Thursday evening give the net proceeds of the musical comedy, Aunt Lucia, to be turned over to the United Workers, as approximately $375, but all returns are not in yet. The musical comedy, staged by an entirely local amateur cast, was given for the exclusive benefit of the unemployed of the city, to be distributed through the United Workers. The theatrical was given under the auspices of the American Legion, R. O. Fletcher post, No. 4, and its auxiliary, the women's organization. The auxiliary rendered most valuable aid and a good share of the success of the undertaking is due to their efforts.

LETTER FROM EGYPT FOR BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mrs. Sarah E. Tracy, widow of Daniel W. Tracy, observed her 89th birthday Thursday, at a social gathering at the home of her son, Charles L. Tracy, No. 330 Main street, with whom she resides. Friends and neighbors extended felicitations and Mrs. Tracy received a number of birthday cards. There were also gifts of three birthday cakes. A most appreciated letter was one from a niece, Mrs. Hugh Leal, a missionary in Egypt.

OBSERVED 75TH BIRTHDAY OF CAPT. ALVIN LEWIS

The 75th birthday of Alvin D. Lewis, former captain of the Norwich fire department, was celebrated Thursday evening, with a supper at the home of his granddaughter, Mrs. A. H. Perry, No. 586 West Main street. Members of the immediate family were present.

Captain Lewis received a number of birthday gifts. He was a member of the fire department for 50 years, having been retired several years ago. He is also a past noble grand of Shetucket lodge, No. 27, I. O. O. F., and is now chief patriarch of Palmyra encampment, No. 3, I. O. O. F.

Rheumatism Goes

Swollen Joints Vanish

How To End Rheumatism In Less Than a Week

If you suffer from torturing rheumatic pains, sore muscles or stiff inflammed joints, it's because your system is full of the dangerous poisons that cause rheumatism and make thousands helpless. What you need is RU-MA, and need it right now.

RU-MA acts on the blood, stomach, kidneys and liver, and drives the dangerous rheumatic poisons from the system through the natural channels of elimination—it eases pain the first day.

You must use an internal medicine to free the joints and muscles of crippling stiffness, soreness and torturing pain. That's why RU-MA succeeds while external remedies and pain deadening drugs give only temporary relief.

Lee & Osgood says no matter what kind of rheumatism you have or how long you have suffered, try RU-MA—it must completely end all rheumatic agony or you get your

JURY VERDICT FOR DEFENDANT IN SUIT OVER AUTO CRASH

Verdict for the defendant, Russell B. Starkweather of Plainfield, who is at present manager of a chain store in Southbridge, Mass., was given by a jury in the superior court here late Thursday afternoon in the suit brought against him for $10,000 damages by George A. Beckwith of New London.

The jury was out an hour and 15 minutes, returning their verdict through Foreman Charles W. Burton of this city just before 5 o'clock and Judge Ernest A. Inglis at once adjourned court till this (Friday) morning at 9:30 for the short calendar session, but the jury panel was excused till next Tuesday morning, when there are more cases to be tried.

Beckwith sued for injuries, the most serious of which was a broken arm which he received in an automobile accident on Nov. 28, 1929, at the intersection of Ledyard and Vauxhall streets in New London. The car he was driving across this intersection was struck in the rear by a machine which belonged to Russell Starkweather, but which had been loaned that day to Russell's brother, Homer Starkweather who, in turn, had allowed Anthony Paine of New London to take it and Paine was driving it at the time of the collision.

During the morning session of court Thursday, Attorney C. Hadlai Hull moved to have a directed verdict for the defendant, but Judge Inglis denied this, stating that there were questions as to agency and negligence which ought to go before the jury, as developed in the evidence.

Attorney G. C. Morgan made the first argument for the plaintiff after the noon recess and was followed by Attorney Hull for the defendant. After the closing argument by Attorney Morgan, Judge Inglis occupied about 40 minutes in his charge to the jury.

FLETCHER POST VOTES THANKS FOR ASSISTANCE

A regular meeting of R. O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, was held Thursday evening at Buckingham Memorial with the commander, Walter T. Clerk, in the chair. Harry W. House, general chairman of the musical comedy Aunt Lucia staged this week for the benefit of family welfare department of the United Workers made a preliminary report on the finances. The post adopted a hearty vote of thanks to the members of the auxiliary for their splendid services in making the undertaking a success and also a vote of thanks to all who took part in the cast or assisted in any way.

Warren Wilcox reported on the arrangements being made for the securing of uniforms for the post members. Announcement was made that the next meeting will be held Monday evening, December 29th, instead of December 25th, which is Christmas day. The next district meeting will be held at Taftville, Thursday evening, December 15th.

RADIO FROM CHINA FROM FORMER NORWICH MAN

Rev. Edward H. Smith, a native of this city, who for 20 years has been in missionary work in China, was one of the first to send a radio message from that distant point when radio service between China and the United States opened last Saturday.

Rev. Mr. Smith, who is at Ingtai, Foochow, sent his message to John Talcott of Talcottville, a corporate member of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. Rev. Mr. Smith is supported by Congregational churches in Norwich, Hanover and Talcottville, as well as the First Congregational church of Fall River.

The message was sent from Foochow at 9.30 p. m. on December 6, and reached Hartford at 3.04 a. m. on December 7. It contained Christmas greetings to the Talcotts, and was sent by courtesy of the radio company.

American film companies plan to put 175 foreign language "talkies" on the European market during the coming season.

APPROVES TWO-WAY TRAFFIC FOR CHURCH STREET

At a special meeting of the court of common council Thursday evening, a resolution, which if adopted, will make Church street a two-way street, with no parking on the north side of the street, was introduced. The council accepted the resolution, but deferred action, until the January meeting of the council, at which time there will be a public hearing.

Mayor Lee Roy Robbins called the meeting to order at 8 o'clock and stated that the city had received a claim of $600 from The Bulletin Co., paid by the company through error made in the tax books. Mayor Robbins stated that the claim had been checked up, the error found in the city's tax books, and informed the council that the company was entitled to re-imbursement to that amount. The claim was referred to the corporation counsel and the finance committee, who later in the meeting recommended that it be paid. The council voted that the city pay the claim.

Mayor Robbins stated that the express object of the meeting was to take preliminary steps towards making Church street a two-way street. The street is by ordinance a one-way street, from Washington square to Union square but for about a week the police commissioners have allowed the street to be used as a two-way street, as an experiment. It is felt that parking on both sides of the street should not be allowed, if the street is made a two-way street. Mayor Robbins said he understood that there is some objection to any change being made in the traffic ordinance on the street.

The resolution introduced at the meeting makes the street a two-way thoroughfare, with no parking on the north side of the street. Following the adoption of a resolution providing for a public hearing at the January meeting of the council, adjournment was taken, the council having been in session less than 10 minutes.

RELIEF WORK DELAYED BY CONGRESSIONAL FRICTION

Senate is Unwilling to Surrender Its Prerogatives to the President—Deletes Section Conferring Upon the President Authority to Interchange Allocations to Certain Works—House Refuses to Accept Senate Amendments to the $118,000,000 Emergency Appropriation Bill—House Also Prefers Its Own $30,000,000 Drought Loan Fund Bill to the $60,000,000 One of the Senate

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.— (AP) — Final congressional action on legislation to relieve drought-stricken farmers and the unemployment situation has been put off until next week due to opposition in the house to the senate's stand on both matters.

The house today refused to accept senate amendments to the $118,000,000 emergency public works appropriation bill, and made plans to consider its own $30,000,000 drought loan fund bill Monday in preference to the $60,000,000, one of the senate.

Senate amendments prohibiting the president from interchanging allocations of funds under the emergency appropriation and limiting employment to local workers drew house opposition in both parties. An amendment to make the fund available until expended also is opposed, President Hoover having asked it to be applicable for only six months.

The administration looks upon the deletion of the section conferring upon the president authority to interchange allocations as a move which will freeze the appropriations to certain works and reduce actual relief, but also as one which will relieve executives of much responsibility which they had been willing to assume to produce as much employment as possible.

The measure was sent to conference and it may be possible for the conferees to agree at a meeting tomorrow. Final action, however, will not come before next week.

If the administration leaders are not able to muster the necessary two-thirds majority to pass the house drought bill under the procedure under which it will be brought up on Monday, it will be given legislative privilege on Tuesday and considered in the regular manner.

Under either course, the leaders will strive to prevent it from being amended to incorporate the senate provisions to permit loans for food for farmers, and to hold it to the $30,000,000 proportions of the present house bill.

Speaker Longworth predicted adoption of the administration measure. On the other hand, Representative Garner of Texas, the minority leader, said he felt democrats could muster enough votes to secure favorable action on the senate bill.

The food loan provision of the senate measure was called a dole by Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the majority floor leader, in an appeal to his colleagues to support the house bill.

"While we may call it a loan," Tilson said, "it is in effect distributing funds for strictly charitable purposes, which in many cases cannot be repaid at all and others cannot be repaid without intolerable hardship to the beneficiaries.

"If charity is what we have in mind," he continued, "then let us be honest with the people of the United States, with the taxpayers of the country and admit that we propose to have the United States government, whatever the implications and consequences, take over the work of charity hitherto assumed and well provided for by community effort and private contributions."

The Red Cross, he said, was capable of taking care of the needy.

Representative Aswell of Louisiana, ranking democrat on the house agriculture committee, and house sponsor of the $60,000,000 relief bill, said the $60,000,000 resolution was written by state agriculture commissioners and supported by the drought relief committees set up in the states at the request of President Hoover.

Aswell said farmers would be required to mortgage their next year's crop of food, and labor to borrow enough money to live upon and to make another crop.

"The farmer," Aswell said, "is prostrated in this area of 24 states. He has no credit. He has nothing upon which to earn a living or to make next year's crop and if you deprive him of this you will add five million people to the already astounding number of unemployed in America.

"These men on the farm who cannot make a crop will come to the towns and cities and add to your unemployment."

TILSON DENOUNCES SENATE $60,000,000 DROUGHT LOAN BILL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—(AP)—The house had the congressional stage to itself today and took advantage of the opportunity to enact a bit of drama lifted bodily from the repertory of the senate.

Its theme was drought and unemployment relief, and its dialogue included some familiar lines—charges and denials of raids on the treasury, warnings against the dole system and appeals for human rights.

The principal roles were portrayed by Representative Tilson, the republican floor leader, and Representative Aswell of Louisiana, a democratic member of the agriculture committee.

Tilson denounced the senate's $60,000,000 drought loan fund bill as a "pipe line to the treasury." Aswell replied that sum had been recommended by the president's drought committee and state commissioners of agriculture.

Tilson asserted a provision to make half that amount available for buying food and clothing was a dangerous approach to the dole system. Aswell said he was astounded to hear loans for food termed a dole.

HOUSE PASSES $15,000,000 BOULDER CANYON BILL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—(AP)—The interior department su[illegible] bill carrying $15,000,000 for work on the Boulder Canyon project during the next fiscal year was passed by the house today after a provision prohibiting pay increases to classified employes had been removed.

The bill appropriates $68,554,106 for all departmental activities, an increase of $5,642,482 over current appropriations. An effort by Representative Douglas, democrat, Arizona, to block the appropriation for Boulder Canyon dam was defeated.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR SENATOR L. S. OVERMAN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.— (AP) — President Hoover, members of the supreme court, and diplomatic officers of more than ten nations joined the senate and house tonight in paying homage to one of North Carolina's two grand old men in the senate—Lee S. Overman, who died early today after a brief illness.

With almost 28 years of continuous service behind him, the body of the 76-year-old legislator lay in a gray flower-covered casket in the senate chamber as high officials, friends and associates listened with bowed heads to a funeral oration by Rev. Dr. Z. B. Phillips, chaplain of the senate.

After the ceremony the casket was taken to Union station to await departure of the funeral party shortly before midnight for Salisbury, N. C., the dead senator's home, where burial will take place at 3 p. m., tomorrow.

President Hoover, with seven members of his official family and Walter H. Newton, one of his secretaries, sat on the left side of the chamber. Immediately behind them were members of the diplomatic corps.

To the right of the center aisle, in the front row, sat Chief Justice Hughes and associate justices of the supreme court.

Mrs. Overman and her three daughters, in mourning, were seated beside the casket in front of the supreme court members.

Vice-President curtis opened the services with a brief tribute: "We all loved him and we all mourn his passing."

Rev. Dr. Phillips then read the funeral service based on the new book of Common Prayer of the Episcopal church, and including recitations of two hymns, a poem, excerpts from the Scriptures, and extemporaneous prayer.

BRUENING GOVT. VISTORIOUS AS REICHSTAG ADJOURNS

BERLIN, Dec. 12.— (AP) —Harried and beset on all sides until the very last minute by enemy sharpshooters, the Bruening cabinet nevertheless emerged victorious today at the end of the reichstag session—the second after the elections which brought the fascists to the fore—which has been an almost unceasing succession of parliamentary rows since it was assembled October 13.

Perhaps it was the cumulative effect of hours of hammering for silence and shouting for order until he was hoarse that made the weary speaker Paul Loebe this time neglect, by accident or design, to wish the members a happy Christmas.

The Bruening government's main object has been reached with social democratic help, namely, the passage of financial reforms and the successful avoidance of discussions of thorny questions of foreign policy that might have jeopardized the cabinet's life if full debate had been permitted.

ROBBERY OF JEWELRY VALUED $65,000 TO $150,000

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—(AP)—Two men in jumpers delivered a table and package to the Riverside Drive apartment of Mrs. Charles F. Zittel today and took away jewelry valued at between $65,000 and $150,000.

Except that they laid a dagger against Mrs. Zittel's throat to make her open the safe and subsequently bound her and sealed her lips with adhesive tape, they were extremely polite, she said. Mrs. Zittel's husband is publisher of Zits, a theatrical weekly. It was he who estimated the loss at $150,000. A police inspector gauged the value of the jewels at $65,000.

A Negro maid also was bound and gagged.

RECEPTION BY EINSTEIN FOR JEWS ON HIS SHIP

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—(AP)—Albert Einstein descended today from the plane of abstruce mathematics to make a social sally from his ocean liner suite in New York harbor and to receive a delegation of fellow Jews on his ship.

With his wife and the two other members of his party the scientist went ashore to a luncheon given in his honor by Adolph Ochs, publisher of the New York Times. This was the only one of a host of invitations Dr. Einstein accepted for his five-day stay in New York. The luncheon was entirely private.

ADMITS DEFALCATIONS OF SEVERAL MILLION DOLLARS

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 12—(AP)—Gilbert H. Beesemyer, building and loan association executive, who admitted defalcations of "several million dollars," was indicted today on ten counts of embezzlement.

The indictment was based on only a small portion of the huge amount which Beesemyer confessed to misappropriating.

It charged he had illegally drawn checks aggregating $43,000 on the Guaranty Building and Loan association, one of three security companies of which he was an officer, and from which he said he had taken "several million dollars" to finance oil well and other projects.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 12. —(AP)—The newspaper Imparcial says plans are nearly completed for a new trans-Andean railroad between Antofogasta, Chile and Salta, Argentina.

BRUSSELS, Dec. 12.— (AP)— European delegates to the international sugar conference, which is attempting to fit world sugar production to consumption, today announced a counter-proposal to the Cuban-American commission's suggestion and it was flatly rejected.

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 12. — (AP)—Sinclair Lewis formally accepted the 1930 Nobel prize for literature today, and took occasion to thrust right and left at certain American institutions and Americans.

The creator of "Babbitt" and critic of things particularly a part of American life was careful to say that his remarks should not be regarded as "attacks."

MAY TAKE OVER ASSETS OF CLOSED BANK OF U. S.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—(AP)—The prospect of eventual acquisition of the assets of the closed Bank of United States by one of the city's large banking organizations was regarded hopefully in important financial quarters today.

Completion of the examination by the state banking department is expected to remove most of the obstacles which could not be surmounted in the protracted merger negotiations which preceded the closing. Several of the strong downtown banks have been ambitious to expand their branches, and are said to regard the 59 locations assembled by this uptown institution with interest.

A prominent banking official pointed out that the bank's assets could undoubtedly be more effectively preserved by maintaining their use for banking purposes, and that it was conceivable that an agreement might be reached whereby they could be taken over by another institution, guaranteeing depositors a percentage of their funds. He was hopeful that this percentage could be made high.

In the meantime, plans to make effective the offer of heads of 23 clearing house banks to relieve the closed bank's depositors were rushed forward. Joseph A. Broderick, state banking superintendent, said he thought the machinery for making loans to these depositors might be ready by Monday or Tuesday.

The offer is to lend depositors up to 50 per cent of their authenticated deposits. These deposits are being authenticated as rapidly as possible by teh banking department's clerks. As a large percentage of the depositors are garment workers and persons of moderate means, no time is being lost.

It is now estimated that the total deposits are approximately $160,000,000, having shrunk from the total of nearly $203,000,000 reported in the statement of Sept. 24.

GYPSIES GATHERED IN NEW HAVEN FOR WEDDING

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 12—(AP)—With the glamour and mystery that has long been their heritage, gypsies representing tribes from throughout the east, gathered here today in bright, festive garb for a three day festival which will culminate Sunday in the wedding of a dark eyed gypsy girl to her gypsy lover.

In a whirl of brilliant color and with strict adherence to their ancient tribal traditions, the prospective bride, Anna Butch, of New York, and the prospective bridegroom, Tom Thomas, of Boston, today pledged their faith to each other in engagement vows. First they were formally introduced by Chief Zelitcha Demitra, 70 year old leader of eastern tribes.

With the formal engagement of the couple, there began an all day program of dance and play. Tomorrow the festivities will continue and on Sunday, Miss Butch and Thomas will be married in a Catholic church which has not been announced. Chief Demitra will give the bride in marriage, while Frank Mitchel, of Washington, D. C., king of gypsies, will also officiate.

DISSATISFACTION IN DRY RANKS OVER CONDITIONS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—(AP)—Dissatisfaction over conditions within the dry ranks was expressed today by two members of the temperance group's new "board of unified strategy," while a third, Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president of the Woman's Christian Temperance union, called upon President Hoover to say the W. C. T. U. had supported him in 1928, was for him now.

The two who bit out at the present set up of the dry organizations were Oliver W. Stewart, president of the flying squadron foundation, and Clinton Howard, chairman of the national united committee for law enforcement. Both were appointed Wednesday to the strategy board of 16, chosen by the National Conference of Organizations Supporting the Eighteenth Amendment to map out plans for the defense of prohibition in the coming campaign. Stewart prepared today to resign.

RECEIVERSHIP FOR THREE TENNESSEE NEWSPAPERS

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 12—(AP)—Two newspaper corporations publishing three daily newspapers in Tennessee, went into receivership today.

At Memphis receivers were appointed for the Memphis Commercial Appeal, Inc., publishers of the Commercial Appeal, morning, and the Memphis Evening Appeal, evening, and almost simultaneously receivers were named at Knoxville for the Knoxville Journal Company, Inc., which publishes the Knoxville Journal, a morning paper. Defendants agreed to the action in both chancery court hearings.

WICKERSHAM PAYS TRIBUTE TO GEORGE W. WHEELER

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 12—(AP)—Homage to George W. Wheeler, retired chief justice of Connecticut, and to the traditions of the supreme court of errors, was paid tonight by George W. Wickersham, chairman of President Hoover's law enforcement commission, at a testimonial dinner given to the retired chief justice by the Bridgeport Bar association.

Mr. Wickersham also questioned the wisdom of a constitutional provision which compels members of Connecticut's judiciary to retire at the age of 70 years.

Strict Censorship Effective In Cuba

Drastic Step Taken by President Machado to Extinguish Sparks of Discontent

HAVANA, Dec. 12—(AP)—For the second time since the November congressional elections censorship on all forms of communications entering or leaving Cuba was imposed today. It was the first outward sign the republic has given that constitutional guarantees, declared suspended yesterday afternoon by presidential decree, had been withdrawn throughout the island.

As was the case a month ago, censors were placed in cable offices, radio stations and telephone offices. All news communications thought to exaggerate the picture of political unrest here were withheld from the outside world and all incoming news which deals with revolutionary artivitics in other parts of the world was held up.

Imposition of the censorship represented another drastic step by President Machado to extinguish the sparks of political discontent, which have threatened to burst into a devastating flame.

The censorship may continue in force until well toward the middle of February, when the 60-day authorization granted the president by congress will xpire.

The suspension affects six articles of the Cuban constitution.

Inviolability of the home, freedom of speech, right to hearing within 24 hours after arrest, confidence of mail and private documents, privilege of changing residence at will and right of assembly are removed from those living in Cuba at the present time.

While President Machado was taking these drastic steps to keep down revolt against his administration and insure order during the tourist season, which is one of Cuba's leading businesses and upon which the country depends to a large extent, opposition circles were busy circulating a fresh series of manifestos in criticism of Machado's handling of the situation.

Ambassador Harry F. Guggenheim, who advised the American state department that the disorders here were principally economic and bore little political significance, is being made the target of some of these manifestos.

WORD AWAITED FROM EMBASSY AT HAVANA

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—(AP)—With only the most meager reports from the American embassy at Havana available, state department officials tonight were awaiting word of any further developments which might bring a crystallization of the situation there.

Breaking a two day silence by department officials on the political turbulence in the island republic, Secretary Stimson reiterated his policy of non-intervention by the United States in the internal affairs of Cuba. This policy was announced some time ago when the situation appeared to be becoming acute. It is the so-called "restrictive policy" evolved nearly 30 years ago by Elihu Root.

The department's information was confined to official confirmation of press reports telling of the suspension of constitutional guarantees by the Cuban government.

The department was not in touch with the American embassy by telephone during the day, although it was said the situation was being carefully watched. Ambassador Ferrara of Cuba conferred with Francis White, assistant secretary for Latin America, but Stimson declined to disclose the nature of the report he had from him.

OUTLAW CAPTURED IN A HAIL OF BULLETS

TORONTO, Dec. 12—(AP)—Posses of police closed in about a wood near Oakville late today and in a hail of gun fire from the bush captured Jack Brockenshire, of Windsor, hunted for 24 hours for the killing of Constable Roy McQuillan.

Brockenshire was wounded in the encounter by a constable who located his hideaway north of the Dundas highway. The pair shot it out until Brockenshire, an alleged notorious motorcar thief, fell.

Earlier today 600 detectives and deputies under Brigadier-General D. C. Draper, chief of police, captured Harry Clarkson, also of Windsor, Brockenshire's alleged accomplice in last night's slaying.

PHONE SERVICE BETWEEN ARGENTINA AND ENGLAND

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 12.—(AP)—A new direct telephone service between Argentina and England was inaugurated today just as a censorship, due to the revolt at Jaca, Spain, was imposed at Madrid through which point the circuit was previously routed.

For the present the circuit will operate two hours daily. The rate will be approximately $23 for a three-minute conversation.

New French Ministry To Be [illegible]ned Today

War[illegible]litical Parties Are [illegible]nt Steeg a Measure of [illegible]port

PARIS, Dec. 12.— (AP) —President Gaston Doumergue took the big stick of parliamentary dissolution out of the glass case in which it has rested since 1877 today and the warring political parties of the chamber of deputies, suddenly pacified, agreed to grant at least a measure of support to a cabinet headed by Senator Theodore Steeg.

As a result, M. Steeg told the president tonight that he would probably have his ministry ready for presentation at the Elysee palace tomorrow.

It was the eighth day of the ministerial crisis brought about by the overthrow of the Tardieu government in the senate December 4, the 15th cabinet resignation during the seven years of M. Doumergue's presidency. Until this afternoon it appeared that no solution could be found and parliamentarians were seriously considering the possibility of a dissolution and new elections.

It was here that the president, in no way overstepping the limits of the constitution, let it be conveyed quietly to the leaders of the thirteen groups in the chamber that unless a cabinet were formed tonight he might have to "take definite measures." This was immediately interpreted as meaning that parliament would be dissolved under article five of the French constitution.

Within an hour the leaders of three small groups of the center and right-center called upon M. Steeg and informed him that they were ready to co-operate if the radicals would lift their exclusion veto against members of the right parties. The veto was provisionally lifted and M. Steeg set about the formation of his ministry.

The most important portfolios were said to have been already distributed, M. Steeg taking the premiership and the ministry of public instruction with the veteran Aristide Briand presiding over foreign affairs at the Quai D'Orsay. Other posts were said to have been distributed as follows: War, Louis Barthou; interior, George Leygues; air, Paul Painleve; justice, Henri Cheron; finances, Louis Germain-Martin. Disposition of other portfolios, to be offered members of the radical-socialist party, were to be settled later at a conference between M. Steeg and the leaders of the party.

The complexion of the cabinet as outlined tonight made it appear certain to close observers that France's foreign policy under the new ministry will be one of moderation and conciliation.

PERSONNEL OF CABINET AS DRAFTED BY STEEG

PARIS, Dec. 13—(Saturday)—(AP)—After long and laborious negotiations, Senator Theodore Steeg early today completed his task of drawing up a new cabinet to succeed the ministry headed by Andre Tardieu, which resigned several days ago.

With himself as premier and minister of the colonies, Senator Steeg composed his cabinet as follows:

Interior, Georges Leygues; justice, Henri Cheron; foreign affairs, Aristide Briand; finance, Louis Germain-Martin; budget, Maurice Palmade; war, Louis Barthou; marine, Albert Sarraut; education, Camille Chautempts; public works, Edouard Daladier; commerce, Louis Loucheur; agriculture, Victor Boret; labor, Edouard Grinda; pensions, Robert Thoumyre; air, Paul Painleve; merchant marine, Charles Danielou; posts and telegraph, Georges Bonnet and public health, Correz Queuille.

Senator Steeg will present the ministers to President Doumergue officially later in the morning.

CAR OF BENEFACTOR STOLEN BY HITCH-HIKER

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 12.—(AP)—The night of Dec. 1, a hitch-hiker whom he had picked up near New Haven and befriended, stole the money and car of John W. Lawler, of Providence.

Today the car was reported recovered in a Baltimore garage. Police of that city are watching for the return of the youth who gave his name as John Brown and left the car after telling garage attendants that he was going to Florida and would return in a few weeks.

PREFERS DEATH PENALTY TO LIFE IMPRISONMENT

WILMINGTON, Del., Dec. 12—(AP)—A request that his sentence of life imprisonment be changed to the death penalty was made in court today by Frank Wilkins, 30, Negro, who was convicted of assaulting Mabel Smith, Negress of Newark, Del.

The court refused.

"One Night Stands"

Remember the medicine shows that used to come to town? With minstrel music and flaring gas light, the eloquent "doctor" sold a good many bottles of his marvelous elixir. No chance to discover that it was only molasses and water! He was gone the next day to another town, playing "one-night stands."

REVOLT IN SPAIN BREAKS OUT NEAR THE FRENCH FRONTIER

At Least 3,000 Troops in Garrison at Jaca Turn Their Guns on the Town in Defiance of Premier Berenguer—Troop Trains Are Being Rushed Toward Jaca and a Squadron of Flying Planes Has Been Ordered to the Frontier—A Strict Censorship Prevents Any Authentic Account of the Revolt—Five Soldiers Have Been Killed by the Rebels

MADRID, Dec. 12—(AP)—Military revolt, long expected in Spain as the result of warm political dissension, broke out today at Jaca, near the French frontier.

At least 3,000 troops there rebelled, turned their guns on the town and defied the government of Premier Damaso Berenguer. It was reported late tonight that the revolt was spreading and that the garrison at Vigo had joined the movement.

A strict censorship throughout the country prevented any authentic account of the revolt being available here. The premier, after an emergency meeting of the cabinet, announced that the situation was in hand and that the rebels were fleeing to the French border, 30 miles away.

In the meantime, various unconfirmed rumors reaching Madrid characterized the revolt as an important one and said that Major Ramon Franco, noted Spanish aviator who was imprisoned recently for disobedience but escaped, was one of the leaders.

(A dispatch from Barcelona today said that authorities there had been informed that Franco was one of the leaders of the rebellious garrison).

The garrison at Jaca, said to be one of the strongest fortresses in northern Spain, was variously estimated at 3,000 to 6,000 infantrymen and artillerymen. Jaca is in high country near the Pyrenees and commands the base of one of the passes into France.

Hardly had word of the revolt been received at Madrid than every military establishment in the north was active. Troop trains were rushed toward Jaca and a squadron of fighting planes, under one of the highest officers in the air service, was ordered to the frontier.

Censorship was established immediately and even the most harmless messages were subject to delay or suppression. At first, persons in Madrid were able to reach points outside of the country by telephone, but this also was subject to censorship and calls were interrupted or cancelled without warning.

Officials here gave out little news, and there was no means of determining whether blood had actually been spilled. It was known, however, that the rebels, after turning the guns of the fortress on Jaca, had established a base in the town.

FIVE SOLDIERS REPORTED KILLED BY THE REBELS

MADRID, Dec. 12—(AP)—Five soldiers were reported tonight to have been killed at Jaca by the rebel forces who were said to be marching toward Huesca, Major Ramon Franco, Spain's premier aviator, was reported at the head of the revolting troops.

The government called an extraordinary meeting of the cabinet at midnight to consider the situation. The five soldiers killed at Jaca were a major, a sergeant, a corporal and two privates of the civil guard.

JACA ONE OF STRONGEST FORTRESSES OF EUROPE

PARIS, Dec. 12—(AP)—French military men said tonight that Spanish soldiers who rebelled at Jaca chose their spot admirably. They described Jaca as one of the strongest fortresses of Europe, known among soldiers as the "Verdun of Spain."

Should the rebels establish a powerful base at Jaca they would command practically two-thirds of the Franco-Spanish frontier, according to the French observers. Should they be defeated they have merely to disarm and slip across the frontier into France.

Jaca has been used as a transfer point when garrisons were changed in various towns of northern Spain. The troops were kept there a few days, refreshed and refitted and then sent to their new base.

RISING AT JACA PART OF GENERAL SCHEME OF REVOLT

HENDAYE, France, Dec. 12—(AP)—The rising at Jaca was believed here, on the basis of reports received from Spain, to be part of a general scheme of revolt.

The reports said that groups of armed civilians and soldiers marched through the streets of Jaca, which has a small garrison and two forts, and seized the leading authorities. Telegraph and telephone wires were cut and rail traffic was stopped.

The rebel officers are said to have prevented people from leaving the town and officers at the fort who refused to join the rebellion were kept under guard in their quarters.

The garrison at Jaca is reported to consist of one regiment of heavy artillery, one of light artillery, a battalion of infantry and a battalion of sappers.

Meager reports said there was no bloodshed.

In addition to a number of regiments dispatched to the scene of the rising, the government is said to have ordered all airplanes within easy flying distance of Jaca to be held in readiness for bombing the fortress there.

MAGISTRATE LOUIS B. BRODSKY ON THE STAND

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—New York city's reputed richest magistrate Louis B. Brodsky, testified today at the appellate division inquiry into the inferior courts, to the manner in which $759,000 in deposits passed through one bank of several in which he kept accounts during his six years on the bench.

His extra-judicial activities—stock market trading, real estate development and investment—accounted for the money, he said, and his practice of "kiteing" checks for the large turnover.

"Do you think these transactions were becoming a judge on the bench?" Isidor Kresel, prosecutor of the inquiry, asked at the end of the day's testimony.

"Yes, sir," the magistrate answered.

The word "kiteing" was distasteful to the magistrate and he attempted to explain his exchange of checks—his own pre-dated—with friends by some other term but finally admitted that was the name generally given the practice.

"Big bankers do it, too," he said at one point.

MARTIAL LAW IN CANTON, CHINA, AS REDS ADVANCE

CANTON, China, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Alarmed by communist disorders in northern Kwangtung province as 10,000 reds moved southward toward this city, the government declared martial law in Canton today as a precaution against a communist uprising.

Troops patrolled the streets, guarding against a recurrence of the red terror three years ago which caused the deaths of thousands in street fighting and the burning of a large portion of Canton.

With telegraph wires cut, no word came from Shiuchow, where four regiments were hurried yesterday to stem the red horde. Anxiety was heightened by reports of defections of government troops, bought by communist chieftains.

Widespread disorders on the large island of Hainan, off southern Kwangtung, caused the government to dispatch three gunboats with marines to Hoihow.

PARACHUTES 1,000 FEET INTO SAN FRANCISCO BAY

OAKLAND, Cal., Dec. 12—(AP)—Frederick J. Funston, 27, son of the late General Frederick Funston, leaped from a spinning airplane, 1,000 feet above San Francisco bay and parachuted into the water. He was picked up by duck hunters, uninjured.

Funston, a student pilot, was practicing putting a training ship into spins and lost control.

THREE "CRY BABY" BANDITS EXECUTED AT SING SING

OSSINING, N. Y., Dec. 12.—(AP)—The state took three lives for one tonight when it sent James Bolger, 19, James Butler, 20, and Italio Ferdinandi, 22, to the electric chair for the murder of a Westbury, Long Island, druggist last Feb. 3.

The "Cry Baby Bandits" died in the space of time from 11:06 to 11:2 p. m.

Butler entered the death chamber at 11:05 and was pronounced dead five minutes later. He had nothing to say.

Ferdinandi was next. He entered the chamber at 11:12 and was dead at 11:17 p. m. He said, "Hello, Gentlemen. May God forgive me for what I have done. Bless my mother, father and sweetheart. God forgive them, for they know not what they do."

Bolger entered the chamber at 11:18 walked to the chair with his hands in his pockets and said: "I die like I lived—with a smile on my face."

The mothers of Butler and Ferdinandi fainted in the warden's office after their final visit to their sons at 9 p. m.

INDICTMENTS AGAINST 11 CUSTOMS BORDER PATROLMEN

DETROIT, Dec. 12.—(AP)—The federal grand jury today returned indictments charging 11 suspended customs border patrolmen and six alleged liquor smugglers with conspiracy to violate the tariff act.

All of the men who have been arrested will be arraigned in federal court tomorrow morning.

The indictments are the first returned in the investigation of alleged graft in the border patrol which is charged with the duty of maintaining the blockade against Canadian liquor on the Detroit river. The indicted patrolmen are accused of accepting payments of from $75 to $250 from liquor runners to permit the landing of cargoes, principally of beer.

WASHINGTON MONUMENT MENACE TO AVIATORS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—(AP)—The Washington monument, mecca of tourists, is giving trouble to aviators.

Pilots said that, since the capitol dome was lighted, the monument is the most dangerous obstacle to night flying in these parts and engineers are trying to find some way of illuminating the 500 foot obelisk without destroying its beauty at night.

WOMEN LEAD IN GETTING SUBSCRIPTIONS FOR HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 21—The Willimantic women's division in the $500,000 drive for the new Windham Community Memorial hospital lead the men's division by about $25,000 in amount secured to date and also lead in the number of subscriptions by 46. The women, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Christopher C. Case, chairman and Mrs. Charles W. Tryon, vice-chairman, have secured $101,696 from 779 subscriptions while the men, with Charles W. Hill, chairman, have secured $75,579 from 733 pledges. The allied towns have turned in 1,043 subscriptions for the amount of $97,053, the total of pledges secured by these towns being higher than the total of either the two Willimantic divisions. The grand total for the two local divisions and the towns is 2,555 pledges aggregating $274,328. Added to this amount are seven subscriptions amounting to $141,400 reported through the memorial committee and including the $100,000 conditional pledge from Mrs. Camilla Porter of Hartford. The amount of $85,000 remains to be obtained to achieve the goal of $500,000 and thereby retain the $100,000 pledge given on this condition.

COLUMBIA

Miss Bertha Buell, who was a patient at Hartford hospital for eight weeks, has returned to her home in Columbia.

Rev. Edward Chalmers, of Mount Vernon church, Boston, gave a very interesting talk accompanied by motion pictures, of the West African Mission Golden Jubilee pageant, which he witnessed, also pictures of the Chilesso mission in which Mr. and Mrs. Wain, formerly of Columbia, are shown. Mr. Chalmers visited the Wains in their home and was able to tell many interesting things about their life and work there, which were greatly appreciated by their many friends here.

The master and master-elect of Columbia grange, with several members who have volunteered to be responsible for some part of the lecturer's work next year, met at the home of the lecturer-elect to make up the program for the coming year. This will be printed in the combination program of the East Central Pomona.

Campaign For Hospital

Postmaster H. Porter is in charge of raising money in Columbia toward the new Willimantic Community hospital. He is assisted by several persons in various parts of the town. The workers went to Willimantic Wednesday evening to attend a dinner with the other workers in Willimantic and vicinity and hear reports on the campaign.

The executive committee of the Willimantic C. E. union held its December meeting Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Margaret Hutchins.

The Young Married Women's club met Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Laura Robinson on Post hill.

Scoutmaster Luther Buell, accompanied by some of the Columbia scouts, went to Norwich Wednesday evening to attend the meeting of the Norwich scout court of honor.

Miss Mildred Latham has gone to Chaplin to assist in the care of two elderly women.

OCCUM & VERSAILLES

The members of the Sunshine class of Versailles M. E. church school were entertained by their teacher, Mrs. C. W. Perkins at her home on Occum Heights Wednesday evening. Covers for 16 members were laid. The menu, served by the hostess, was roast lamb, roast veal, mashed potato, cranberry jelly, cabbage salad, rolls, pickles, cake, coffee and fruit. During the evening a business meeting was held; the president of the class, Mrs. Louis Barton, presided. During the meeting the class mite box was opened and from the contents $50 was added to the Versailles church budget. The business meeting was followed by the holding of a spelling test. This in turn was followed by the playing of numerous games, which concluded the evening's pleasure.

HAMPTON

The Reading club met with Mrs. Alice Hammond Monday afternoon.

Wednesday afternoon the Harmony club met with Miss Olive Burnham.

The girls of the 4-H club have organized a sewing club with Mrs. Evelyn Pearl Hall leader.

The bridge club met with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hines Thursday evening.

Little River grange, P. of H., No. 38, celebrated the 45th anniversary of the order in Grange hall Friday evening.

Nine members attended Quinebaug Pomona, No. 2, meeting held at Abington last Saturday.

Dr. and Mrs. Marsh and Mrs. Ray Fuller were in Hartford Thursday.

Making Good Progress

The Windham Community Memorial hospital drive is making good progress. Hampton's captain and teams met with others at the Nathan Hale hotel Thursday evening.

EAST HADDAM

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Olmstead, of Westbrook, former residents of East Haddam, are to spend the winter with Mr. Olmstead's mother, Mrs. Charlotte Olmstead, of Moodus. Mrs. Olmstead has spent some time with her sister, Mrs. F. A. Andrews of Middletown.

There is interest here in the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Williams, of Westbrook, have a son. Mrs. Williams was Miss Lillian Brooks of East Haddam. The child is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Brooks, and Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Harris have returned from Boston where they spent several weeks at the home of their son. Mr. and Mrs. Harris will soon leave for Florida to spend the winter.

Principal R. O. Fisher and family recently visited Mrs. Fisher's sister, Miss Nettie Gillis, in Westport. Miss Gillis is principal of Bedford grammar school which has recently opened a $2,000,000 addition.

Mrs. T. R. Spencer is with a relative in Southington where she will spend a portion of the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brown entertained Sunday M. J. Stark and sister, Miss Emily Stark, also Miss Pearl Colson of North Plain.

Prof. and Mrs. A. A. Gustafson of Wilbraham, Mass., were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Williams.

Mrs. Frederick Tracy spent the week end at her former home in Woodstock.

A government statistical survey of apartments versus houses as city homes indicates that 48 per cent. of families in cities now live in apartments as compared with only 24 per cent. in 1921.

DANIELSON

SELECTMEN AID IN CHARITY WORK FOR NEEDY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 12.—First Selectman Charles A. Tillinghast was engaged today in going over records with a view to assisting charitable organizations that will dispense good cheer in town at Christmas time in making an equitable distribution of good things and avoid duplication in the work.

The assurance is right now that no family in this town will be lacking a substantial Christmas dinner, for church organizations and fraternal organizations are planning that there will be a generous allotment of foodstuffs to needy families.

Last year and in recent preceding years some families have received three or four baskets of foodstuffs, while other worthy and needy families were overlooked. It is intended that this condition shall be corrected this year. To that end data is being assembled from various sources. This information will be scanned by the distributing agencies and the means worked out for seeing that all who need shall have a generous allowance of good food. If there is a surplus, another distribution will be made for New Year's dinners.

The local division of Putnam lodge of Elks and the Danielson Rotary club will share in this laudable work. These organizations are rather averse to any publicity as to what they may be doing along the lines mentioned, but they are keenly active and interested.

Next Friday evening at the Community house in Attawaugan the second annual Achievement program of the Killingly 4-H clubs is to be presented. The success of last year's program is well remembered. It is unlikely that this year's will be any the less so. The clubs have been even more successful during the past year than they were in the year ending late last fall, and they will have much more to show those attending in the way of their achievements than ever before. The young people expect, and well deserve, a large attendance next Friday evening.

Among the speakers will be: Betty Maitland, Thompson, her subject Camp Vail; William Pearl, Hampton, who will tell of his trip to the National 4-H Dairy show at St. Louis and Henry T. Child, 2nd, who will speak about the County 4-H camp.

Selectman John Z. LaBelle, vice-president of the Windham County Farmers' association, will be the chairman of the meeting and will be assisted by Miss Ruth Pray, who is the leader of the Killingly Happy Stitchers' club.

This program has been arranged by the boys and girls of the Killingly Klimbers' and Killingly Happy Stitchers' clubs, and they would like to have a great many of the townspeople at next Friday evening's meeting, that they may demonstrate the good work they have been doing.

Webster Man Fined

Leo St. Michael, a Webster young man, was as calm and peaceful as a quiet summer afternoon when he appeared in the town court here shortly after 2 o'clock today to have a fine and costs assessed for going on a bit of a rampage up at Goodyear last night. The charge against him was breach of the peace, the fine $5. St. Michael's wife has been living paart from him of late, and staying with her mother in Goodyear. Last night St. Michael, while somewhat artificially enthused, drove down from Webster and over to Goodyear, ostensibly to adjust such difficulties as existed between himself and the Mrs. All that transpired between them is not quite clear even now, but just before a call came in for a state officer to go to Goodyear and place St. Michael under arrest the wife was hot-footing it through the drives about the houses upon the Heights, St. Michael pursuing as best he might on the short turns in his automobile. He had departed for Webster prior to the arrival of State Officer John Murphy, but a message was telephoned to the Webster police and St. Michael was picked up as he drove into town, and held for the local state officers.

There may or may not be anything to warrant the suspicion, but some belief exists that raiding of woodlands for single Christmas trees is still going on, notwithstanding that heavy fines were recently imposed on three Providence men, in a justice's court in the town of Plainfield for doing a similar thing. The vigilance of officers will increase from now on to apprehend these kind of raids, which are forbidden by law.

Announcement is made that an original art exhibition by Rev. Philip F. Cleveland, who recently has come to Brooklyn as pastor of the Congregational church, is to be made at the public library here during January. Rev. Mr. Cleveland's collection includes oil paintings. There are landscapes and marines that have been done at various places in Connecticut.

Saturday of next week, Dec. 20, the new and lower rates on gas and electricity, announced by the Connecticut Light and Power company earlier this week, will become effective throughout the territory of the Danielson and Putnam districts of this corporation, doing a state-wide business. Full details relative to the reduction in rates will be announced within a few days by the company.

A great many motorists in Danielson are agreed that something must be done to curb the absolutely dumb habit of pulling cars out into what is almost always heavy traffic without giving any warning of intention to leave a parking place at the edge of the street. It is done repeatedly daily and is the cause of near accidents every day. The careless drivers appear to be on the increase. The careful drivers, it seems, are entitled to some protection from them. Danielson's business section is uniformly crowded with traffic. It is no place to be asleep at the wheel.

In this delightful rendezvous for the Christmas shopper there awaits you many a solution for your holiday gift problems—bath robes, negligees, silk pajamas, in crepe de chine and satin; step-ins, envelope chemise, hosiery, gloves, umbrellas, a suggestion in every department. Full line of the famed Elizabeth Arden toilet goods. The Alice-Eleanor Shop.—adv.

Mrs. Charles S. Blackmar of North Main street is in St. Petersburg, Fla., for the winter season.

Up to noon today 1,000 persons or more had failed to pay their personal taxes, yet this must be done before Sunday. At selectmen's office Collector Arthur A. Dean was making preparations for a rush of payments on Saturday and will have assistants to help in receiving payments.

Rene Peloquin, local boxer, will be seen in action at Southbridge the coming week, going against Harvey Peele.

The trial of Manuel Silva, held at Brooklyn jail in default of $10,000 bail, for his alleged part in the robbery of a silver-laden ByRolley truck at South Killingly on Oct. 6, is set for Wednesday of next week in the superior court for this county.

Rev. Myron E. Genter, Norwich, district superintendent, will come here Thursday evening of next week for the fourth quarterly conference at the Methodist Episcopal church. Reports covering the church year are to be made at this meeting and officers elected for 1931.

Today, Saturday, Dec. 13, is the last practical day for paying your personal taxes. See Collector A. A. Dean at the selectmen's office, town hall building.—adv.

This afternoon the Ladies' Benevolent society conducted its annual Christmas sale at the Westfield Congregational church.

FIRST STEPS TAKEN IN EFFORT TO BRING BANDIT LEADER INTO STATE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 12.—First steps to extradite Harry Abrams, alleged silver bandit, from Providence, were taken today when State Officer Royal V. Scranton was in Hartford to present his statement to Governor John H. Trumbull and obtain the necessary papers to present to the governor of Rhode Island, relative to the case.

Meanwhile Abrams, surrounded in his home in Providence yesterday by a group of Providence city police and detectives and with State Officer Scranton as a member of the party, was held in Providence in default of $10,000 bail. He has refused to come into this state unless extradited.

If possible, the grounds that local state officers have for connecting Abrams with the holdup of the silver-laden truck at South Killingly on the morning of Oct. 6, and for regarding him as the leader of the plotters, will be presented to Rhode Island's governor on Saturday. In any event, it is believed that Abrams will be back in Connecticut and ready for presentation in the Killingly town court the early part of the coming week.

Meanwhile, the hunt goes on for others of the band that held up and robbed the truck. It is possible that there were a dozen or more involved in the deal. Two of them already are serving state prison sentences for the part they played in the affair. Another is at the county jail in Brooklyn awaiting trial in the superior court for this county on Wednesday next. Another is out under bail, Abrams locked up in Providence. Clues that officers have may result in further arrests at any time.

The work of the local state officers and that of Providence police in running down the gang has been relentless and highly successful to date. All but a few hundreds of dollars worth of the stolen silver has been recovered. There will be no relaxation on the part of the officers until the case is thoroughly cleaned up.

JEWETT CITY

MR. AND MRS. PAUL GEIST MARRIED FIFTY YEARS

December 8th, 1880, Miss Annie Geist and Paul Geist, were married in Jewett City by the late Rev. O. C. Sargent, who was then pastor of the local Baptist church. The ceremony took place in the small house at the foot of Tracy avenue, then the minister's residence. On account of serious illness in the family, the celebration of the 50th anniversary which was being planned has been given up. There are three children, Frank of California and Paul Jr., and Mrs. Harry Fitch of Lisbon; five grandchildren, Clarence, Ralph, Tyler and Everett Fitch and Mrs. Hubert Miller and one great grandchild, Shirley May Miller.

The groom was born in Batavia, Germany and the bride, a native of Lisbon, was born seventy-three years ago, and has never lived in any other place than under the roof which is now her home, on the River road. The steady going, hard-working farmer's lives which have been theirs for a half century, stand in the creditable record which the couple has established, with the husband still carrying on, and going strong, on a local milk route which he began in this village shortly after settling in Lisbon with his parents. Many friends both here and elsewhere, are sending congratulations to the bride and groom of fifty years ago, as the bride said Friday, "When You and I Were Young."

In the interesting pinochle match Thursday evening at the Citizens' club, the P. C. C. were victors over the A. P. C. by the score of 115,700 to 97,900. John Keemon of the winning team is planning a few local matches for the coming season.

Owl Did Not Tarry

Thursday evening a crowd gathered on Main street, when a good sized hoot owl alighted in one of the horse chestnut trees in E. H. Hiscox's yard. The visitor from the hemlocks across the Quinebaug had become interested in the new white way and had come over to investigate. Once quite common in the adjacent woods, owls are seldom seen here nowadays, even by hunters who roam the nearby woods. One boy started to shin the tree, intending to make Mr. Owl his captive. As the lad got up toward the branch on which the bird was perched, without a sound it disappeared over the distant housetops.

Assembly Program

Following was the Riverside assembly program of the 7th grade Friday afternoon under direction of Miss Sullivan:

7-B, program; leader, Wanda Miskiavitch. Introduction: Our Enemy Tuberculosis; Causes and Prevention of Tuberculosis, Daniel Rourke; Our Fight Against Tuberculosis, The First Christmas Seal, Charles Brenek; Synthetic Santa, a short play; Sam, Daniel Rourke; John, John Kawalsky; Bill, Milford Hill, Jim, Walter Butremovic; Jane, Stella, Cholewa; Alice, Wanda Wiskiavitch; Santa, Walter Butremavice, The Shoemaker and the Elves: Father Beck, Justin Holden; Mother Beck, Evelyn L'Herault; Neighbor, Alfred Bensuk; Lishet, Bertha Doholek; Lishet's mother, Stella Cholewa; Lishet's father, Fred Maguder; Elves Roger Pepin, Walter Affix, Raymond McKenna.

The program closed with Christmas carols by the class.

M. E. Church Redecorated

Services are to be resumed in the auditorium of the Methodist church Sunday morning. The interior has been renovated, the church repaired and generally improved. A special musical program is in preparation which will include the addition of violin and 'cello. Mrs. Adam Medick, Jr., will be solo singer. Preceding the dedicatory address by Rev. Myron E. Genter, of Norwich, district superintendent, there will be a short service.

The recital in the evening will present special and attractive musical features. Those taking part will include: Charles Helmboldt, of Lisbon, violin; Robert A. Gray of Norwich, soloist the choir of the First Baptist church, of Norwich; James Royle, of Plainfield, solo tenor; Mr. and Mrs. Earl H. Robinson, John MacLean, solo baritone; and Mrs. Adam Medick, Jr.

The morning service is at 10:45 and the evening service at 7. The program has been arranged by Rev. J. W. Carter and Everett W. Thornton, organist and choir director.

A telephone alarm at 3:50 Friday afternoon called the firemen out for a small blaze in one of the Gammino Construction company's trucks on lower Main street. The big pumper responded to the alarm but was not needed, as men with hand extinguishers had the flames under control when the engine arrived.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Arthur Edmond

The body of Mrs. Arthur Edmond of Cheshire, Conn., was brought to Pachaug cemetery in Griswold for burial Friday forenoon. Rev. Harold L. Arnold, pastor of the First Congregational church read the services at the grave. Relatives acted as bearers. Relatives and friends were present from North Stonington, Waterbury, Norwich, Cheshire, Danielson, Preston, Lisbon and Jewett City.

WHEN GURDON CADY HELPED SAVE CITY OF LAWRENCE

Jewett City people were much interested in the stories told about the late Gurdon Cady in The Bulletin Friday morning by its entertaining feature writer. Local relatives of Mr. Cady are recalling another incident in his life, which serves as evidence, that among the many characteristics of this one-time famous violinist and dancing master, the faculty to handle emergency situations was not the least. One day in late summer, over 50 years ago, a grand people's excursion went to Newport, on the steamer City of Lawrence sailing from Norwich "Landing". The passenger list was made up from all through this section, with the result that the vessel was crowded. One attractive feature in the advertising hand bills which were widely posted, stated that there would be dancing on the main deck, with Gurdon Cady, prompter. The wind had been easterly for two days, and on the return trip as the steamer rounded Point Judith and came into the long ground sea, the old Lawrence, for she was a flat bottomed boat, rolled down so far as she was caught broadside in the heavy ocean swell, that the chances of weathering the point seemed terribly doubtful. Heroic measures were taken by Captain Geer, as actually with a drawn pistol, he sought to keep the great crowds from surging from side to side, as the overloaded vessel rolled down to her guards. Children cried and clung to their parents, some prayed, while a few cool heads on the upper decks attempted to calm the hundreds who were frantic with fear. The great steamer "Metus" was lost that afternoon only a little ahead of the Lawrence on the same course. All this time in the face of imminent danger, down on the lower deck, Gurdon Cady, neither lost his head nor gave visible sign that he sensed the threatening peril. When she rolled away over and it seemed the start to right would never come, and that she must certainly founder in the gale, above the roar and pounding of the mountain high seas, could be heard Gurdon's cheery, "Balance all, swing your pardners, and eight hands round." The Lawrence, after an awful hour, reached Watch Hill and made into the quiet waters of eastern Fisher's Island sound. Later it became known from the captain and the steamship owners, that one of the contributory factors, in actually saving the Lawrence that day, crowded as she was, down to her guards with human freight, was the cool judgment of Gurdon Cady in keeping hundreds of people off the upper decks, down on the water level and interested in the dance. Several hundred women and children from Norwich were aboard the City of Lawrence that day.

PUTNAM

P. H. S. STUDENTS RAISE $567 FOR ATHLETIS FUND

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 12.— A fund of $567.05 has been raised by the student body at Putnam high school in an effort to replenish the depleted coffers of the Athletic association treasury, Principal Edwin L. Robinson announced today. As the result of the financial campaign fifty-four pupils have been awarded season tickets to all school athletic contests to be held during the present academic year. The admittance cards were offered in recognition of the efforts of the students cooperating to the greatest extent in the drive. Each one filed a return of at least three dollars, while the cards of Allard Melbert showed $96 and that of Olga Chvirko, $66. Ruth Amidon received honorable mention for her contribution card containing subscriptions amounting to $11.55. Silver loving cups in recognition of their remarkably successful work were presented Melbert and Miss Chvirko.

A parking space near the railroad depot in Union square has been set aside for the use of Fire Chief Alphonse Dumas. The reserved space for the accommodation of the chief's private automobile was granted by a special act of the common council. A point on Union street was marked off for the use of the late Chief Thurston, because of the spot's proximity to the chief's offices in Union block. With the promotion of Deputy Chief Dumas it became necessary to change the arrangement because of the new department head's different line of endeavor.

Miss Judith F. Sabin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Sabin of School street, has been elected a member of Komians, the dramatic organization of Pembroke college at Brown university. Miss Sabin, who is a graduate of Putnam high school, is a junior student at the college.

The dramatic group of the senior class at Putnam high school turned to the stage this evening and presented the annual class play, "The Boomerang" at the Bradley theatre to a large audience. The talented group of students ably displayed their histrionic abilities. The cast of characters was Miss Doris Dean as Virginia Xelva; Clinton Adams as "Bud Woodbridge"; Miss Alma Potter as Grace Tyler; Miss Marie Trowbridge as Mrs. Creighton Woodbridge; Miss Marjorie Benoit as Marion Summer; Miss Hattie King as Gertrude Ludlow, who were seen in the principal roles, while others in the cast were Alberic Caisse, Arthur Ross and Jermone Tourtellotte. "The Boomerang" is a comedy by Winchell Smith and Victor Maples. It was staged under the capable supervision of John P. Heald of Webster and Miss Abbie H. Keith, head of the English department at the school.

John M. Hogan of Tatem street has been delegated by the Cargill council, Knights of Columbus, to coach and direct the Columbian players in their fifth annual dramatic undertaking "The Meanest Man in the World," which will be presented at the Bradley theatre in January. This year's stage vehicle is a play written by George M. Cohan. Rehearsals for the production have been underway for some weeks. Those who will appear in the cast are: Lester Herlihy, John M. Hogan, Emil Marquis, Joseph Bove, Lionel Charron, Michael L. White, George Harper, Jr., William Ryan and Eldridge Parker. In the feminine roles will be seen Miss Irene R. Bernier, Miss Irene S. Bruce, Miss Sybil Gilman, Miss Grace Vegiard.

The coaching of this year's Columbian production has been entrusted to one capable and exceptionally well qualified. Mr. Hogan possesses a wide experience in the field of amateur and school dramatics. When at Holy Cross college, Worcester, Mr. Hogan took a leading part in the freshman presentation of "Macbeth" and during his senior year at St. Joseph's college in Philadelphia, he enacted the role of Brutus in the college production of "Julius Caesar" and later played the same characterization in the first radio presentation of Shakespeare which was broadcast from station WFJ, Philadelphia.

With the Christmas season at hand and increased shopping traffic in the business section, Putnam police are especially on the alert for those traveling about the stores in the practice of shop lifting. Reports of stolen counter goods have come to the attention of probation officers during the past few days and in view of past performances authorities are keeping more than an ordinarily sharp lookout for such intruders who roam from town to town, working their sleight of hand tactics on unsuspecting merchants.

Seats in coaches of trains passing through the city today en route to New York were occupied by nattily uniformed army and naval officers who were undoubtedly on their way to the post-season charity football game to be played in the Yankee stadium Saturday, between the Military and Naval academies. Only a small portion of southern New England's automobile football game traffic passed through here today.

Gangs of cable builders of the A. T. and Telephone company are engaged in stringing a new cable from the upper section of Woodstock avenue extending into and beyond the town of Woodstock.

Continued improvement was reported today in the conditions of John Elliott of Abington and Myron Perry of this city, who are patients at the Day Kimball hospital.

Miss Anna Murphy of Farrows street is spending the week end with relatives in Providence.

County Game Warden Thomas G. Daniels of Plainfield was in Putnam today in connection with duties pertaining to his office. Warden Daniels and his deputies are conducting an intensive patrol of the borderline forests in Thompson and Woodstock, during the present open season on deer in Massachusetts. Reports of Massachusetts sportsmen stalking their game into this state, where they are protected by law, are continually being called to the warden's attention.

It appears at the present that this city will have a number of representative guests at the inaugural ball of Governor-elect Cross, which is to be held in Hartford.

Choirs in all of the churches of the city are preparing their special programs of music which will be presented on the Sunday preceding Christmas. This year as in the past, the children's and adult choral groups at St. Mary's church will render special services of music at the Christmas morning masses.

GRANGE AGAINST BILLBOARDS

For years various organizations interested in the ending of a condition which has been brought to greater notice because of the increasing traffic over highway systems have been putting forth their best efforts to put a stop to the practice of placing billboards along the highways and at points where they not only obstruct the view of the drivers but make it impossible to get a clear view of the countryside.

These organizations have been responsible for legislation abolishing billboards in the highway or greatly restricting them. They have struck successfully at a condition which hasn't as yet been completely overcome, but they have made those who use such boards realize that the opposition to them so destroys their value as to make their removal advisable.

These organized efforts have for the most part been centered in cities, though not entirely, but there is particular significance to the fact that at the meeting this week of the state grange in Massachusetts resolutions were adopted in opposition to various things and included in the list was disapproval of billboard advertising and leasing land to billboard companies.

The significance of this lies in the fact that many of the grangers are the owners of the land in the country on which the billboards are erected. It is a matter of private business and affords land owners a chance to get some revenue, but when the grange votes its disapproval to the leasing of land for such purpose as well as against billboard advertising there seems to be recognition on the part of the land owners that they have an important part to play in the prevention which others have been so much interested in.

If it is not possible to erect billboards in the highways and the land owners are not willing to lease land for the erection of such boards at a readable distance from the highways, there would seem to be an effective means of bringing about the elimination. Of course, all land owners are not grangers and all grangers may not see eye to eye with state grange action, but it is noteworthy that the action taken in this respect by the Massachusetts grange was unanimous.

TREATING INDUSTRIAL ALCOHOL

In connection with the enforcement of prohibition and the effort to keep alcohol intended for industrial uses away from those who wanted to use it as a beverage, there has been resort to the practice of placing certain substances in the industrial alcohol for the purpose of preventing this diversion. Naturally, it had to be something that did more than affect the taste or color if people were going to be prevented from drinking it. The result was that the denaturant used made its consumption dangerous to the human system. There may have been fair warning as to what might be expected from the wrong use of the alcohol, but it didn't entirely prevent some from drinking it and those who drank it were not protected against death.

Even though prohibition is the law and the adulterant put into industrial alcohol is known to be poisonous there has been widespread objection against the government authorizing poisonous alcohol. The fact that those who drink it should know better doesn't remove the fact that enforcement necessitates the use of poison.

Heretofore it has been claimed that resort was made to this method because nothing else was available to render the alcohol unfit for human use, but evidently, from the recent announcement by the enforcement bureau, a change is to be made. While it was believed in the past that other substances would not deter those who wanted it from drinking the stuff, or that they would not prevent it being redistilled, experiments have apparently been made with the object of meeting the situation.

The plan now is to use a petroleum product in industrial alcohol which will make the person drinking it very sick but will not poison him. It will also give it a bad odor but will not prevent its use for the industrial purposes for which it is intended.

Drinking alcohol, or redistilling it, is not a capital offense. Jeopardizing the lives of those who defy the law, even though they do it intentionally, isn't justifiable and the new method of discouraging an interest in industrial alcohol for beverage purposes promises to deal with a bothersome situation in a manner which can cause no criticism.

POSTAL DEFICIT

Whenever the question of raising the rate of postage is advanced, it is possible to look over the postoffice business and ascertain where service is paying for itself and where it is not. It is possible to consider a readjustment of rates that would end this situation and yet, as it has been determined by experience, it does not necessarily follow that if rates are changed that the revenue secured under the change will be greater. It has worked just the other way, even though the postal service is something upon which great dependence is placed.

Also when the question of making the revenue of the postoffice department come nearer to equalling the expenditures it is inevitable that thought is turned to the outlays which are wished onto the department by congress, for which the department is in no way responsible.

It has been recently pointed out that part of the deficit of the postoffice department is due to the handling of the departmental and franked matter for which it receives no return. This totals $12,481,000. Then there is the outlay for the air mail lines, which are subsidized in order to effect a faster handling of mail matter. That is a little less than $14,000,000. On top of that is $14,355,000 which has to be paid as a subsidy to the steamship lines for the handling of mail, an amount in excess of what the mail could be handled for by other lines. The object is to encourage American ships, in which Americans, of course, have an interest, for much depends upon an effective merchant marine, but it is an obligation which falls upon the postoffice department just because congress places it there, and in the method of keeping the books it looks at the end of the year as if the department had been going from bad to worse. With such a burden of nearly $40,000,000 placed upon it, there can be little surprise at the department's deficit. That doesn't take care of it all but it accounts for a considerable slice of it and it would be ridiculous to think of trying to have that made up by resorting to an increase in the rate on first class mail. As for making up the rest of the deficit, there will always be a question as to whether the boosting of the first class rates ought to be expected to accomplish it.

NAVAL CONSTRUCTION

It was inevitable that when Admiral Pratt, chief of naval operations, stated to the house naval affairs committee that there was some question whether our navy would be as large as it is possible for it to be under the terms of the London treaty by 1936, there would be some expressions of surprise and alarm. That is, such could be expected from the big-navy advocates. They have felt that we did not get all we should under the terms of the treaty and that too much was allowed others, and now for one in the position of Admiral Pratt to indicate we may not have as much of a navy as the treaty will permit sets them to wondering why.

It wasn't required of any of the countries that they must build just as many ships as the treaty specified, or by 1936 have as much tonnage in the different classes as was fixed. It was a goal to which we could build without arousing the suspicions of other nations and starting them on a bigger campaign of naval construction. We are given the opportunity if we see fit to reach parity with the British, and it is certain that additions will be made to the navy with that fact in mind. Whether it is necessary to build all we can just because the treaty permits us is a question for those who understand the situation to determine. The wisdom of one course or another will have no lack of followers. Building warships inspires construction by others.

There are many questions which Admiral Pratt will have to answer. Among them it will be interesting to know whether there will be any detrimental effect upon this country's conference position when the nations assemble again in 1936 for the extension of existing or the negotiation of new treaties, if we decide not to build up to the existing treaty limits. Would our negotiations be helped by building up to the treaty terms?

TROLLEY SERVICE

Just what is going to become of the street cars, what is to be done about fares and what thought is going to be given to the stockholders and bondholders, are questions which are confronting some of the larger cities.

It had been believed that street cars in the cities were fixtures which could not be pried loose. They haven't been taken away as yet and there will be strong opposition to any removal, but conditions are developing which indicate that the companies which operate such transportation lines are facing difficulties. They are being faced with much the same problems that have been before suburban lines and small lines which have had to throw up the sponge. They are experiencing heavy expense and getting decreasing patronage. Their struggle is to cut expense as much as possible and to do something to attract more patrons. What to do is much easier to decide than to get it accomplished.

In some of the larger cities the idea of increasing zone distances and thus bidding for greater use of the street cars by auto owners instead of driving their cars downtown and into traffic, is one idea that has been advanced. The aim is to make the service so valuable that it will outweigh the advantage of driving one's own car and then being obliged to contend with traffic and parking difficulties.

In other cities the removal of trolley lines and the substitution of busses has been resorted to, and under such circumstances the giving of the bus franchise to the holders of the trolley franchise is the only fair solution. Busses allow the elimination of the car tracks from the streets and are not as serious a handicap to traffic, while affording similar transportation facilities.

Trolley service hasn't reached its end by many years, but it is a much different proposition from what it was a decade or two ago.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Few passages in the Bible make a larger appeal to the experiences of humanity than Psalm 42.5, "Why art thou cast down, O my soul and why are thou disquieted within me?" This is the wail of an exile. Some scholars think it is the confession of a banished king, but the general consensus of opinion attributes it to a Levite. At any rate it is the lament of an exile; not a criminal, for this is a point on which all Bible students are agreed. His beloved Jerusalem had been captured by an invading army, and some stout hearted men refused to recognize the authority of the invader, and for that awful crime they were banished from their native land because they could not conscientiously accept the usurper as rightful sovereign. We must admit that there was displayed a splendid dignity of conscience in refusing to accept a cold-blooded act of oppression.

Let us take a glance at this true patriot's experiences in a strange land. He has been banished to the desolate region of Mount Hermon, to the east of the Jordan, and among men of fierce habits and alien faith. Now the lament he makes is a reflection of the wild scenes of nature all about him. He marks a gazelle, as it climbs up from a rocky ravine, panting for refreshing water. At once he is reminded of his own unappeased longing for that being who alone can quench the thirst of a man's soul. This may be the reason why he says: "As the heart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God!" A thunder shower overtakes him, and it reminds him of that storm of secret sorrow which is beating on his soul. His thoughts turn back to the Holy City where he found security in Jehoha's sanctuary, and possibly some day that longing may be realized.

New this exile's experience has a tremendously wide application; it is confined to no single race or age. Ever since man has existed anywhere or at any time on this globe there have been times when his soul has been troubled. He has felt, if he has not said, "Why art thou disquieted within me?" May not physical temperament have something to do with it? All men by nature are not optimists; they are not so exuberant in their expression of religion as their colored brethren are in their prayer meetings, and yet may be just as sincere. Now the pessimist who is more reserved in his expression of religious faith may be just as truly Christian as those who are more outwardly demonstrative, and very often is a deeper thinker. "As a man thinketh, so is he." On the other hand he is not to be judged by the strength of his voice, or by his gesticulations.

Another answer to the psalmist's question is the disparing philosophy of live. A very famous pessimist of the last century asked: "How can a man think at all without taking a gloomy view of life?" This of course is going to the opposite extreme of those who feel like shouting glorias and hallelujahs. And yet there is much in common life to justify the position of the pessimist. The father of a family with not enough to eat, keenly alive to their anxieties and hunger may be pardoned for not singing gospel songs. And yet the calm, thoughtful believer, like the exile in the wilds of Hermon, will say to his troubled soul, "hope thou in God, for I will yet praise him who is the health of my countenance and my God." There is a hymn that is good for pessimism: "Good when He gives, supremely good, nor less when He denies, e'en crosses at his sovereign hand are blessings in disguise."

There are many other things beside those I have alluded to in the above paragraphs that tend to get the soul into a subnormal condition. Take another illustration; temporal misfortune. Look at the man who has built up a great business by energy, sagacity and fidelity. He has amassed a large fortune and has rendered an important service to the community. It so happens that a combination of untoward events brings that big business down with a crash, and he finds himself hopelessly bankrupt. Can you expect that man to be exuberant in spirit? Isn't there a solid reason why his soul should be "cast down," why disquietude should reign within? and yet if that man has faith in God, he will refuse to let misfortune, for which he has not been responsible, crush him. It is right here where the true believer in God's providential care will find his safe anchorage.

Is it not amazing how much the human intellect may accomplish when working in conjunction with the will power? Children may be below par in intellect, but if they are not downright idiots, they are capable of learning, especially when they are under proper instruction. Where children are bright enough to realize the value of an education and are willing to use aright the intelligence they have, if put under kindly sympathetic training, oftentimes do things that fall a little short of the miraculous. Sometimes this transformation comes about by a minor surgical operation. Such a little ailment as adenoids makes a child seem stupid, but their removal oftentimes seems to clarify the brain to such an extent that the change seems to be almost uncanny. With a clear brain, a firm determination to make the most of it, plus able, sympathetic instruction a miracle seems to be wrought.

By this time—if we are going to do anything at all—we must have had made some approach (let us hope more or less intelligently) to the Christmas expectations. Let us remember that it is not so much the intrinsic value of our gifts as their appropriateness that make them appreciated. If there is an invisible something about your gift that seems to say, "This shows thought and care of a kind, loving heart," it touches you far more deeply than a more expensive gift that seems to say by its haste and crudeness, "Thank God I've got this thing off my mind;" Don't send a present to anybody if you can't put into it the real Christmas spirit of giving! Did you ever hear anybody say anything like this: "I shall not send So and So any present this year, she didn't remember me last year." What a Christmas spirit!

Does not the Christmas season so near at hand demand unusual attention? Would it not only alleviate actual suffering, but also create a very pleasing atmosphere, this year if those who are living in easy financial circumstance should forego the usual Christmas gift—which they do not actually need, and have the value their gift would represent put into money, clothing or food for those who are going to have a hard time this winter without outside help? Let the children be remembered as usual, but for most of us grown-ups let a plain card suffice, but give something tangible and greatly needed to those whose Christmas this year will have no joy and sunshine unless the more favored of their fellows remember them in some tangible way. We never lose anything in being kind and considerate to the needy.

WEEK'S TRAGEDIES OFF WATCH HILL-POINT JUDITH COAST RECALL METIS DISASTER

Twice during the current week has death stalked upon the wild waters which make a byword of the coastline between Watch Hill and Point Judith. Last Thursday The Bulletin reported the drowning of Morris L. Thompson, skipper of the fishing schooner Harold, who was washed overboard off Point Judith; and on the 8th it published the news that seven persons lost their lives when the Storm Petrel, a schooner laden with coal, foundered off Watch Hill with all on board.

Both these tragedies were dramatic enough to warrant placing them on the first page; but considered from the standpoint of the number who went down to death, neither is of more than minor importance when compared with the great marine disaster of 58 years ago, in which the propeller Metis found her grave at almost the same spot as that which claimed the Storm Petrel this week. The Metis disaster is thus described in The Bulletin of Saturday, Aug. 31, 1872:

Was Exceptionally Crowded

The propeller Metis, a passenger and freight boat owned by the Providence & New York Steamship company, left her slip in New York Thursday afternoon, at a quarter past five. Not usually carrying a large number of passengers, she was exceptionally crowded that night. All the state rooms were occupied, and arrangements were made to accommodate sleepers in the saloon. There were on board 104 passengers, six or seven children, whose names were not registered, and the usual crew of 45 officers and men, making the total number on the boat 155 or 156.

Though the weather was of the most threatening character, the Metis held her course as usual, till at 3 o'clock Friday morning she sighted and passed Gull Island light, ten miles south of New London. The wind, which had been heavy all evening, had now increased to a heavy gale from the southeast, and the air was filled with driving rain and spray. It was impossible for the eye to penetrate a ship's length into the almost palpable darkness which surrounded her, and taking every precaution against accident, the engines were slowed down, and the boat kept slowly on her way buffeting the heavy seas which rolled in by Montauk, in the very teeth of the gale.

Collision Off Watch Hill

At half-past three the Metis was, in the opinion of her captain, four miles south of Watch Hill. Ten minutes later the lights of a schooner under easy sail, standing to the eastward, were seen ahead.

The Metis held her way, steering to clear the stranger, when just before they met he luffed up, apparently to cross her bow, and the vessels came together, the schooner's bowsprit striking the propellor on the port quarter, 40 feet abaft the stem and snapping like a pipe stem. The vessels hung together a moment and then surged apart, all the schooner's headgear hanging from the bow.

Captain Burton at once sent the mate and engineer to ascertain the extent of the propeller's injury, but in the intense darkness the external damage was invisible; and, having satisfied themselves that she was making no water, they reported that the injury was inconsiderable, and the Metis kept on her way, the schooner having already disappeared.

But in 15 minutes the engineer rushed into the pilot house and announced the terrible fact that the vessel was leaking badly. The captain at once ordered her headed for Rhode Island shore, then five miles or more away, and, sounding a general alarm in the saloons, apprised all the passengers of their danger.

There was little confusion, most of those on board having been awakened by the shock of the collision, and many of them already dressed. There was an unusually large number of life preservers on board, and the lifesaving apparatus of the propeller seems to have been remarkably complete.

End Came Soon

Everyone was invested with a preserver, and the anxious throng then waited for the end. It was not long in coming.

Twenty minutes after the leak was discovered the water had reached the engine room and drowned the fires, coming in beneath the engine in a way that indicated that the injection pipes had been broken by the collision. The firemen and engineer stayed at their posts till the water had reached their waists, and then joined the crew and passengers, who as the water steadily rose, had gathered on the hurricane deck.

In the meantime the propeller's four boats had been safely launched and were speedily filled, many clinging to their sides by the life lines, but by far the majority of the passengers were on the upper deck. A few minutes later and the hull of the vessel, weighed down by the heavy machinery, was submerged and sank, but as it did so the buoyant freight on the main deck, principally cotton, aided by the heavy sea running, lifted the hurricane deck completely off, and wonderful to relate, left it floating almost intact.

On this were gathered 53 people, huddled together knee deep in the water, in the vain attempt to protect themselves from a pitiless rain and a sea which repeatedly swept the semi-submerged raft. For hours they drifted so; the fury of the waves increased, and several were swept from the deck, two of whom were lost. Men, voluble at first in their terror, were gradually chilled into despair; the frenzy of the women subsided with exhaustion, and when the sombre light of morning dawned it was upon a pitiable sight.

Quarter-Mile of Immense Breakers

But it brought cheer to those just snatched from death, for not two miles away was the gray beach of Watch Hill, and on it evidences that the disaster was known and aid was coming. But between the raft and shore which sweeps east from the lighthouse and is at the very foot of the hills on which the hotels stand, a tremendous sea was rolling, taking the bottom a quarter of a mile from the beach and rushing in immense breakers 100 feet above its usual limit.

Here, half a mile from land, the seagoing qualities of the raft received a severer test than any it had yet experienced, and it yielded. Scarcely had it got within the limit of the boiling maelstrom which raged and foamed along the entire shore than it shivered and shook, and in a moment was in pieces.

Two waves swept over it and those who had found it a means of safety thus far were struggling in the surf. All had preservers, and some were expert swimmers, and these struck out boldly for the shore.

In the meantime, the place was alive and the beach was lined with guests of the numerous hotels and the residents, most of the latter old fishermen and wreckers. They knew what to do and they did it, and as those buffeting the waves were swept in on the crest of a billow, strong hands were stretched out to them and before the treacherous undertow could suck them back they were pulled high and dry on the sand. The scenes here were as thrilling as any ever limned in history or fiction, and to the all but helpless crowd on shore, heartrending.

Disaster Was Unprecedented

The loss of life by this terrible disaster is unprecedented on the New England coast. The Metis had on board 155 souls. Of these only 33 have been saved, though one of the propellor's life boats has not yet been heard from. The passenger list went down with the ship, and it is at present, and perhaps may ever be, impossible to know the full extent of the sad calamity.

Subsequently the estimate of those lost was reduced by about half, though estimates were never in agreement, owing to the fact that the exact number of those on board the Metis could never be definitely established. Congress voted several medals of honor to those who took part in the rescue work on Watch Hill beach.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—The Bystander finds himself in that always pleasing situation of being able to say "I told you so."

More than two years ago, before the universal anti-war pact was an accomplished fact, he predicted that Frank Kellogg one day would join the Nobel peace prize winner group for his work in giving the world its first universal international pact in the form of a pledge against war.

And now he has it.

Probably no one familiar with the history of that pact would question Kellogg's selection. It was his individual driving force and determination that carried the project through.

But for him—and for the terrific pressure of public opinion in all countries that supported him — it might never have happened.

Looked Like Gesture

The celebrated Briand-Kellogg exchanges would have gone down in diplomatic history as an amusing bit of international by-play. For that is where it all started.

To avert charges of militarism due to France's refusal to join in the unsuccessful naval limitations conference called by President Coolidge, Foreign Minister Briand suggested a Franco-American anti-war treaty.

His first suggestion was in an interview with an Associated Press writer in Paris on the day the naval conference opened at Geneva. He followed that up with a formal note.

Washington laughed about it, a little chagrined. Obviously the United States could not enter an anti-war alliance with France alone.

Peace preserving machinery such as arbitration and conciliation covenants already existed with France and most other powers. It looked like just a gesture by Briand.

Get Action

At that time Ted Marriner, now chief of western European affairs in the state department, is said to have suggested turning the tables on Briand by countering with a multilateral peace pact proposal which France would have difficulty accepting because of her security commitments.

Nothing happened until a group of women some time later called on President Coolidge demanding action.

The state department then got busy. Existing peace treaties with France were about to expire.

A plan to redraft them, incorporating the anti-war pact in the preamble, developed.

Then Kellogg took the bit in his teeth and decided to hammer for an independent, multilateral treaty pledging all signatories against resort to war as a weapon of national policy.

Every one knows what followed. The pact is now in force and Kellogg has received recognition.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Stumpy Has An Adventure

A brief adventure now and then
Gives zest to life for mice and men.
—Old Mother Nature.

For a long time Stumpy, the three-legged young muskrat, sat on a tussock on the edge of the open water of the Laughing brook. Everything about him was familiar, yet at the same time strangely unfamiliar. All the familiar tussocks of grass were there, just as he had been accustomed to seeing them, but when he tried to swim to one a short distance to one side he found, to his surprise, that what he had thought was water was hard. It was ice. He couldn't swim from tussock to tussock, but he could walk from one to the other. This seemed queer, very queer. You see, it was the first time he ever had been on ice.

He ventured from one tussock to another, tussocks that he had often sat on all through the late summer and fall. Presently he was right on the edge of the Smiling pool. It looked like black water, without a ripple on it. There was the big rock, just where it should be. There was the roof of his own home, the big house built by his parents, Jerry Muskrat and Mrs. Jerry. It was hard to believe that he could not swim right over to it.

He went a little way out on the ice,

There, swimming right under him, was his sister and there he made a discovery. He could look right through it down in the Smiling pool. Never before had he been where he could look down like that, excepting when he was up on the big rock and had looked over the edge of it. It was fun. He quite forgot that he was out in the open and where if an enemy should happen along he couldn't possibly dive to safety. He forgot all about that, and so moved farther and farther from the open water of the Laughing brook. At last he reached the roof of his own home, and on this he sat for a long time. The air was cold, but jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun was doing his best to warm things up, and Stumpy couldn't resist a sun bath.

How long he sat there he didn't know. What at last put an end to that sun bath was a glimpse of something moving below him. He got down off the house onto the ice. There, swimming right under him, was his sister. Yes, sir, there she was, right under him. He was looking down on her back. It was the funniest thing! She didn't see him, for she wasn't looking up, but he could see her so near that it seemed as if he could reach down and touch her. She was headed for the bank, and he guessed that she was going there for fresh air, just as he had done early that morning. He started to follow her on the ice, but the ice was slippery, and when he tried to hurry he made hard work of it, the more so because he had but three legs. You remember that he had lost one of his front legs in a dreadful steel trap.

A slight noise caught his attention. He looked up. There on the bank was one of those two-legged creatures. As a mater of fact, it was the very boy who had set the trap in which Stumpy had been caught. In one hand the boy held a stout stick. He stepped off the bank onto the ice of the Smiling pool, reached out and hit it hard with his stick. He was testing it, to see if it would bear his weight. He ventured out a short distance, and the ice cracked. The boy went back.

Meanwhile, Stumpy had started for the open water of the Laughing brook. It was the only place where he could possibly escape. How he hated this ice now! It would have been bad enough had he had all four feet, but with only three it was slow, hard work on that slippery ice. The boy now started to try to head him off. Would he reach the Laughing brook before Stumpy did? It began to look as if he might. Stumpy did his best. He was clumsy, but even at that, he got over the ice surprisingly fast. The boy threw his stick at Stumpy. It came slithering across the ice and —Stumpy dived into the open water just before the stick splashed into it.

YOUR HEALTH

Circulatory Disturbances Of The Extremities

By Gesa de Takats, M. D., Chicago.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

The extremities, just like other parts of the body, receive continuous nourishment through the bloodstream. This supply of food is necessary during rest but increasingly important during muscular exercise. When oxygen cannot reach the tissues because the arterial highways of food transport are obstructed, the tissues die and the foot or entire leg becomes gangrenous.

Such plugging up of the arterial channels may occur, when a clot from a previous diseased heart or large artery breaks loose and shuts off circulation. Certain tissues like the brain can be deprived of oxygen but for a few minutes. The extremities, however, may recover even a few hours after the clot has shut off their main arteries.

If the surgeon is called in from six to ten hours after the sudden obstruction has taken place, he may save the limb by removing the clot. If a longer time has elapsed, the tissues cannot recover. The gangrenous limb endangers the patient's life and must be amputated at a level, which has enough circulation to provide for a good stump. Simple clinical tests are used to determine how viable the tissues are at the proposed site of amputation.

There is a much more frequent cause for the diminished inflow of blood, namely a gradual narrowing of the arteries. This narrowing is observed in patients past middle age and is commonly called the hardening of the arteries or arteriosclerosis. But it is also encountered in younger patients in whom a chronic progressive inflammation of the blood vessels closes up the main channels and results in the death of the tissues.

As the closing up of the arteries does not take place quite suddenly as in our first group of patients, enough time may be present for developing other channels which may contique to carry the blood to the part. These detours may replace the main highways and insure perfect comfort.

Very many individuals have slight disturbances of circulation. Cold feet, which become red when hung down, tingling and numbness of the toes, cramps in the calves when walking a certain distance are important danger signals. If thorough adequate treatment is instituted at an early stage, the dreaded loss of limb can be averted in many instances.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Fragrant Lives

As the story goes the flowers got into a debate one morning as to which of them was the flower of God, and the rose said, "I am the flower of God, for I am the fairest and most perfect in beauty, and variety of form and delicacy of fragrance of all the flowers," and the crocus said, "No, you are not the flower of God. Why, I was blooming long before you were seen. I am the primitive flower. I am the first one." And the lily of the valley said modestly, "I am small, but I am white and pure; perhaps I am the flower of God." And the trailing arbutus said, "Before any of you came forth I was blooming under the leaves and under the snow. Am I not the flower of God?" And all the flowers cried out, "No, you are no flower at all, you are a come-outer," and then a message seemed to come on the wind to them: Little flowers, every flower that answers God's spring call and comes out of the cold, dark earth, and lifts its head above the sod and blooms forth, catching the sunlight from God and flinging it back to men, are all God's flowers. So all we that God into our heart and come forth from worldliness and darkness and selfishness to give out light and fragrance and love, are God's flowers. There is not one of us, but many blossom for our Saviour and bring joy and peace to those about us.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

THE RAYBESTOS DIVISION

Raybestos-Manhattan, Inc.
Bridgeport

Prominent among the many industries that make Bridgeport known throughout the civilized world is the Raybestos division of Raybestos-Manhattan, Inc., which was, until July, 1929, The Raybestos company, manufacturers of brake lining, clutch facing and other asbestos products with plants at Railroad and Bostwick avenues in Bridgeport, and at Stratford, Charleston, S. C., Peterborough, Ont., Can., and London, England, and, through the merger of last year, part of Raybestos-Manhattan, Inc., with plants at Passaic, N. J., and Manheim, Pa.

Back in 1906 the Royal Equipment company perfected a method of weaving asbestos tape and treating it to give long wear. This was the first woven asbestos brake lining. Substantially the same material, improved, is the Raybestos brake lining of today. The first Raybestos was evolved as a necessary adjunct of the "wrapping principle" automobile brake that was being manufactured by the Royal Equipment company, which later became the Raybestos company.

This brake was the first that would stop an automobile traveling backward as well as forward. It was of steel and operated on a steel drum. Although effective, it was harsh and noisy, frequently grabbing or slipping as the brake drum was dry or oily. It was to overcome these unpleasant conditions that a lining was sought for the brake. Leather, canvas, camel's hair tape and other materials were impregnated with asphalt and other substances but none of them were satisfactory, because they charred or burned during severe braking periods.

It was finally decided to try asbestos because of its resistance to heat. Asbestos tape was sought but there was no such thing manufactured that was suitable for the purpose. It was necessary to have it specially woven.

This proved infinitely superior to its predecessors because it did not char or burn, but its life was comparatively short. It was apparent that it must be impregnated with some compound that would give it longer life.

Research developed the impregnating compound and heat changed its characteristics to such an extent that the tape became much harder and capable of withstanding tremendous wear.

This first brake lining was given the name "Raybestos" and as such millions of feet have been sold.

For a quarter of a century the concern has been growing in importance with a wide diversity of products besides woven asbestos brake lining and clutch facings, including molded brake lining, molded clutch facing, fan belts V-type and flat, air and water hose radiator hose, compressed sheet packing, pump and piston packing, asbestos mill board, brake testing machines brake drum truing machines, brake relining machines, riveting machines rivets, wheel pullers, pneumatic pedal depressor and other brake service equipment.

The Bridgeport plant of the Raybestos division is capable of producing 20,000,000 feet of woven asbestos brake lining a year, one loom alone having a capacity of 2,500 feet in an eight-hour day.

Since its inception the Raybestos division has been a pioneer. Besides introducing the "wrapping principle" brake, it was among the first to substitute asbestos lining for leather on cone clutches. In the perfection of the multiple disc clutch engineers of the Raybestos division worked hand in hand with automotive engineers to obtain a suitable woven asbestos clutch facing.

Later the Raybestos engineers invented the molded clutch facing, which still later led to the use of molded asbestos material for brake lining.

With the coming of four-wheel brakes Raybestos engineers have been called upon repeatedly for advice regarding lining and it was due to their research that many of the new types of lining were developed.

Beginning as a $25,000 company, the Raybestos division grew to an $8,000,000 corporation until July, 1929, when it became an integral part of the $25,000,000 Raybestos-Manhattan, Inc.

From a tiny shop little more than a shed on Housatonic avenue, Bridgeport, its plants have grown to many thousand feet of floor space and, with its affiliated companies, to hundreds of acres of floor space.

From a few men its employes in Bridgeport and Stratford have grown in normal times to a regiment of nearly a thousand, whose wages in the course of a year total approximately $1,000,000.

The Raybestos company has always looked after the welfare of its men, putting many safety devices in its plants and endeavoring in every way to safeguard its men from injury. It has an emergency hospital in each plant and a doctor calls every day to look after the health of the workers. The life of every employe who has been with the company six months is insured without cost to him for $500 and each year the insurance is increased $100 until it reaches $1,000. On his death this sum is paid to his dependents. A savings club pays employes who join it 10 per cent above the interest allowed by the savings bank where the money is deposited weekly in the name of each depositor.

Raybestos, distinctly a Bridgeport product, conceived, born and brought to maturity in that city, is sold 'round the world.

The present officers are: Sumner Simpson, president; H. C. Simpson, vice-president; L. V. Simpson, treasurer; George W. Hudson, secretary; Morton F. Judd, vice-president.

Damage done by rats to produce and property in the United States totals $200,000,000 yearly.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Chance For the Senators

Mr. Editor: If the United States senators are so anxious to raise money for the unemployed, why don't they begin at home and start a subscription among themselves? I understand that they are exempt from the income tax. Let Senator Robinson start it by contributing the amount he would pay in income tax if he had to pay one. And then let all the other members do the same.

It is so easy to spend other people's money for them. The city and town of Norwich and the state of Connecticut are already spending nearly one-half of my yearly income and there is no sense in the federal government taking any more.

CALEB CHURCH.

Norwich, Dec. 11, 1930.

Suggests Different Holiday Vacation Dates

Mr. Editor: Would you kindly allow me a small space in your valuable paper to make a suggestion? I understand the public schools close for the Yuletide holidays on Dec. 19 and the vacation extends to the 29th. I am sure these dates will cause a lot of inconvenience to parents and pupils wishing to spend Christmas and New Year holidays away with relatives. I see in a Providence paper that the Warwick school teachers have signed a petition asking for a change of holiday vacation from Dec. 19 to the 29th. And they suggest as more convenient Dec. 23 to Jan. 2, which enables people traveling to spend Christmas and over to the New Year with relatives. May I suggest these dates to our local school board—Dec. 23 to Jan. 2—if it is not too late to make a change, as I am sure we ought to fall in line with other towns to the more convenient dates.

I trust some other parents would like to voice their opinions on this matter.

W. R. HEATTEY.

Fort Point, Preston, Dec. 11, 1930.

New Industries

Mr. Editor: News of the possibility of two new industries, as appeared in Friday's issue of your paper, is splendid. The chamber of commerce is to be congratulated.

Let us take these two industries and analyze Norwich's adaptability to their needs. My personal deductions coincide with the committee's, as expressed in your article.

Motor engines are being successfully built within the state and Norwich offers equal potentialities with Hartford, in line of mechanically trained labor.

Taxicabs are wholly different as a proposition, as the raw material supply of iron and lumber make the mid-west the logical location for their manufacture.

There is a very definite challenge on the part of the mid-west, first, in respect to raw materials; second, quick deliveries to a greater population; third, labor supply, and fourth, factory engineering. The first and second we cannot contend favorably against, the third we are equal to. Norwich's labor supply is in equal measure to any city. The fourth issue is one New England industrialists in general have been slow to adopt. If this taxicab business was to be secured for Norwich, and this fourth element was the prime consideration, Norwich could, if industrial engineers were secured, which would be absolutely necessary, prove equal to the requirements. The business is highly competitive and to place this particular cab on the market would require the last word in modern equipment and methods, similar to those employed in Michigan and Wisconsin. While it offers a wonderful opportunity to prove Norwich is equal to the task, we must recognize a new, especially constructed building essential to the success of the enterprise, as all processes must follow in a sequence to eliminate lost motion in the manufacture.

Industries manufacturing small units can better be accommodated and prove of more value to us, all angles considered.

BOGUS TRAVELERS CHECKS PASSED IN MYSTIC

Following information that druggists in Westerly had been the victims of a woman who passed spurious traveler's checks, it has been learned that two druggists in Mystic were also victimized by the young woman last Sunday afternoon. Her first visit was at Knox's drug store where she succeeded in getting Frank Knox, the proprietor's son to cash a $10 check, after first trying to have one for $25 cashed. The woman then went to the Mystic pharmacy where Proprietor E. W. Gaskell cashed a $10 check without question.

It was not until Mr. Gaskell heard of the return of the checks to the Westerly druggists that he was suspicious and looked at the check more carefully and saw that while it was a clever imitation of the genuine, it was printed instead of being engraved. He had just made up his deposit slip and was about to take the money to the bank when he discovered that it was spurious. Mr. Gaskell called Mr. Knox and found that he too had a piece of the worthless paper.

The state police headquarters at Groton were notified and Officer Swanson was sent to Mystic to procure what information he could about the young woman, who has evidently been working the racket all along the shore line towns.

GRADUATED 29 AT SUBMARINE BASE SCHOOL

Qualified for submarine duty following six months' intensive study and training, 29 officers of the United States navy were graduated from the submarine school at the Submarine base at Groton Friday.

Comdr. E. C. Metz, officer in charge of the school, tendered a brief message of farewell to the students, following which diplomas were presented. Capt. Wilson Brown, commanding the base, also spoke briefly. The exercises were closed with benediction by the chaplain.

The exercises were held in the base theatre and were attended by officers stationed at the base and relatives and friends of members of the graduating class. For the student officers the graduation marked a turning point in their careers, which will see them entering into service aboard various submarines. They have been schooled in Diesel engine operation, electrical work, torpedo work and communications, and did actual operating aboard O-class submarines assigned to the school.

Following the graduation many of the graduates prepared to leave the base for New York to attend the Army-Navy football game. They will report for duty following periods of leave.

BUYING MATERIALS FOR NEW AIRPLANE FACTORY

FUNERAL

Mrs. Charles H. Vaughn

Many Norwich friends were in attendance at the funeral of Mrs. Charles H. Vaughn, formerly of Norwich, which was held at 7:30 o'clock Friday morning at her home, No. 381 Fountain street, Pawtucket, R. I. The service at the home was followed by requiem mass at Sacred Heart church, Pawtucket, at 8 o'clock, Rev. Father Gately, celebrant. There was a wealth of beautiful floral tributes and spiritual bouquets. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery and the bearers were Charles McIntyre, Daniel and Gerard Driscoll of Norwich, and James McIntyre of Bristol, John McIntyre of Pawtucket and Frank McIntyre of Waterbury, all nephews of Mrs. Vaughn.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Erastus W. Carter

Following illness of less than two weeks the death of Mary A. Gough, wife of Erastus W. Carter, occurred at 11:30 o'clock Friday morning at her residence in Trading Cove, this city. She was born on the Canterbury Turnpike, Norwich Town, Feb. 8, 1854, the daughter of Hugh and Theresa Newton Gough and had been a resident of Norwich and vicinity all of her life. She was united in marriage with Erastus W. Carter in West Greenwich, Conn., Oct. 4, 1874. If Mrs. Carter had lived until October next they would have celebrated their 57 wedding anniversary.

Besides her husband Mrs. Carter is survived by two sons, William H. Carter of Miami, Fla., and Joseph Carter of Valley Falls, R. I.; two daughters, Mrs. Arthur Thomasset of Providence, and Mrs. Clarence Corkrean, at home; a sister, Miss Emma T. Gough of Hartford, and a brother, Francis Gough of Esmond, R. I. She also leaves nine grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Mrs. Carter was a devoted member of St. Patrick's church and of the Rosary society connected with the church. She was a loving wife and mother, a kind neighbor and was held in high esteem by all who knew her. She will be greatly missed in the Trading Cove section where she has for a long time been actively interested in its affairs.

Mrs. Thomas Crompton

Following a brief illness, Mrs. Sarah Lomas Crompton, widow of Thomas Crompton, died Wednesday morning at her home, No. 128 Washington street. She had been in poor health for three years and last Friday was stricken with a shock.

Mrs. Crompton was born in Manchester, England, March 9, 1853, but for nearly 50 years had been a resident of this country. She was twice married. Following the death of her first husband, she was united in marriage with Thomas Crompton. The date of the second marriage was April 30, 1894, and it took place at St. Andrew's church, Rev. William Wason officiating. Mr. Crompton died July 1, 1915.

Mrs. Crompton was a member of St. Andrew's church and was ever interested in its welfare. She was well known and highly esteemed by her many friends.

COL. MOGENSEN HONOR GUEST AT MILITARY BALL AT THE ARMORY

Colonel M. J. Mogensen, of New Haven, famous World war veteran, was the guest of honor at a formal military ball, concert and entertainment, Friday evening, at the armory, under the auspices of Battery B, 192nd Field Artillery, C. N. G. Colonel Mogensen is regimental commander of the 192nd Field Artillery of which Battery B is a unit.

The formal military ball had an attendance of about 350. From 8.30 to 9 o'clock there was a concert program by the Newport Casino Society orchestra, under the direction of Joseph M. O'Brien.

Col. Mogensen and Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert led the grand march. There was dancing from 9 o'clock until one o'clock. Shortly before midnight a very pleasing floor show took place, staged by Keith Vaudeville entertainers from the Westerly theatre and others. Miss Dorothy Dion, dancer, formerly of the Keith circuit, was among the vaudeville artists. The armory was attractively decorated with hundreds of flags of all nations.

Among those present were Colonel M. J. Mogensen of New Haven, Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Briggs, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Austin, Miss Mary Doyle of New London, Rev. Dr. and Mrs. J. Beveridge Lee of New London, Mrs. Florence Fitch of New London, Louis Quinson, Miss Helene Crawford, John J. Savard, Miss Grace Young Benjamin Hall and party, Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Powers, Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Crowell, Mr. and Mrs. Reed Tisdele, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Carpenter, Paul Higgins, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Allen and party, Captain W. J. Littlefield, F. A., of New London, Lieut. and Mrs. Ulmer M. Jewett of New London, Captain William R. Dennison of Norwich, Lieut. Carl W. Young, Lieut. J. J. W. Barry of Hartford.

The general committee in charge comprised Capt. Meredith Lee, chairman, Lieut. Harry W. House, Lieut. Andrew White, and Sergeant E. L. Bonin.

On his arrival in this city Colonel Mogensen was met by a welcoming committee headed by Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert and was entertained at dinner at their home. Following the dinner Colonel Mogensen and party motored to the armory for the ball.

CHARTER MEMBERS ATTEND FORESTERS' ANNIVERSARY

Disregarding the inclement weather of Thursday members of Court City of Norwich, No. 63, Foresters of America, celebrated the 40th anniversary of the institution of the order in this city. The great significance of the occasion was manifested by the large number of charter members who were present.

At 8:30 o'clock the gathering sat down to an appetizing turkey banquet for which 200 covers were laid and the menu was as follows:

Stuffed Olives Celery
Parker House Rolls
Oyster Cocktail
Roast Native Turkey
Dressing Brown Gravy
Mashed Potatoes Mashed Turnips
Cranberry Sauce
Coffee Squash pie
Cigars

Past Grand Chief Ranger Henry A. Congdon acted as toastmaster and welcomed the members in the name of Court City of Norwich and cited a number of incidents in the life of the organization. Chief Ranger M. J. Duggan spoke briefly as did Past Grand Chief Ranger William H. Dunlavey of Waterville, Grand Secretary Thomas O'Loughlin of Naugatuck and Grand Trustee Elroy Bolduc of Norwich, the representative of the grand chief ranger; Grand Treasurer James J. Walsh of Meriden was introduced and spoke at length on the fraternal side of the organization, emphasizing the desire and need of men to be banded together for the privilege of instilling sunshine into the lives of fellow men regardless of their station in life, explaining that man of necessity should find time for organizations as well as for the other things that help to make up the short span of time allotted to him by the Creator.

He sketched, in mind's eye, the organization from its inception, by Robin Hood, in England, to the great convention in Minneapolis, in 1889, when it seceded from the parent body to become a free and independent, ruling and governing body and patterned itself after true American ideals, taking for its standard the flag of the United States and for its motto, Liberty, Unity, Benevolence and Concord.

From the time of proclaiming its independence to the present it has expended over $69,000,000 in weekly sick benefits and death benefits, as well as $50,000,000 for physicians and medicine.

In closing Mr. Walsh exhorted all of the members, both those of 40 years ago as well as the younger members of today, to renew their pledge of allegiance not only to their country but also to the Foresters of America.

Entertainment was furnished by the Happy Boys, William Tague on a set of bagpipes that have been in possession of his family for 150 years, and George Seidel with humorous sketches.

The appetizing banquet was prepared by Mrs. Carrie DeWolf and assistants. The committee in charge comprised Henry A. Congdon, William H. Ryan, Elroy J. Bolduc and Charles Lasch. The hall was decorated with American flags and evergreen wreaths. The table decorations were poinsettia.

DIVORCES GRANTED IN SIX UNCONTESTED CASES

At the short calendar session of the superior court here Friday morning with Judge Ernest A. Inglis presiding, divorces were granted in six cases that were heard uncontested.

Bruno Metzner, of Groton, was granted divorce from Anna Polei Metzner, of Hamden, this state, on the ground of desertion since Aug. 5, 1925. They were married Oct. 13, 1901.

Divorce with custody of a minor daughter was granted to Lila Shippee Rathbun of Stonington from Edward B. Rathbun, formerly of Stonington, now of parts unknown. They were married Oct. 18, 1917, and desertion was claimed from March 14, 1920.

On the grounds of a statutory offense committed at New London and other places by Reuben Prottas of East Lyme, a divorce from him was granted to Lillian Simons Prottas of East Lyme. She was also given the custody of two minor children and alimony of $10 per week. The marriage of the couple took place on Oct. 29, 1916, and it was alleged that the offenses by the husband were committed between July 1, 1929 and March 1, 1930.

On the grounds of desertion since April 9, 1927, Mary McEvoy Chapin of Norwich was granted divorce from Milton Chester Chapin of Woonsocket, R. I., whom she married on the day on which desertion is claimed. They were married in Mamaroneck, N. Y., by William D. Leeds, justice of the peace.

Arthur E. Fish of Norwich secured divorce from Edna Church Fish of Lebanon on the grounds of desertion on April 18, 1917. They were married in Salem, Aug. 16, 1905, by Rev. Samuel B. Andrews. Both were residents of Bozrah at the time they were married.

For intolerable cruelty alleged since Jan. 1 1924, Sarah Kirkup Rankin of New London was given divorce from Irving E. Rankin, formerly of Norwich, now of parts unknown. They were married May 28, 1921.

Another case that of William W. Bassett against Mary E. Bassett was continued until next Friday, when it is expected to be heard.

First Baptist (West Side Community) church. Percy Kilmister, pastor. Church school at 10 a. m. Service of public worship at 11 a. m. with sermon by the pastor. RABBI DECLARES PESSIMISM IS ADMISSION OF DEFEAT

"Pessimism is an admission of defeat and inability to cope with the problems that confront us," said Rabbi Ralph Simon of the Jewish Theological Seminary of New York, in an inspiring sermon delivered Friday evening at the regular service of the Norwich Community synagogue, in which he directed an attack upon pessimism. This is the second time that Rabbi Simon has appeared in Norwich under the auspices of the Norwich synagogue.

In his sermon Rabbi Simon spoke in part as follows: "The world today is filled with a spirit of pessimism. The general depression, the troubles in Palestine, the indifference of youth to religious movements, have caused people to throw up their hands in despair. Pessimism is an admission of defeat and inability to cope with the problems that confront us. It leads to an attitude of do-nothingness. Jaudism teaches us that joy must pervade life. The joy of doing things, of removing difficulties, of overcoming obstacles, must displace the feeling of gloom and despair.

"The story of Jacob who suffered so many hardships during his life is an example of the true Jewish spirit. He had to flee from the wrath of his brother, Esau, he was troubled by the intrigues of Laban, his daughter, Dinah, suffered wrong at the hands of the idolator and nevertheless he strove to find true happiness. So must the world today realize that not by shaking our heads in gloomy pessimism can its problems be solved, but by facing them with energy and concentrated effort. The history of the Jew throughout all of his sufferings has shown that. Despite all troubles he was able to survive because he had the faith in his final success and in the help that God could offer him. With this message in mind the Jew must not fear, but apply himself to removing the evils which beset his life and thus build a stronger and healthier Judaism."

At the conclusion of the service a public forum was conducted in the social rooms when many interesting questions were raised and answered by the rabbi. The Sabbath school, to be held today (Saturday) at 3 o'clock and Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, will be conducted by three teachers under the supervision of Rabbi Simon. There has been a marked increase in the number of children attending and indications point to an attendance of about 50 at each session this week.

HOLY FAMILY ACADEMY HELD IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY

An impressive ceremony in honor of the Blessed Virgin took place this week in Sacred Heart chapel of the Holy Family academy at Baltic.

The pupils were arranged in three long rows on each side of the chapel awaiting the arrival of the statue, borne on the shoulders of four seniors. Lights and artistically arranged flowers, with gold lace draperies made the portable throne a beautiful sight.

Miss Mary Diamond, president of the senior class, led the procession and Miss Maureen Quinn of Versailles carried a huge bouquet of flowers among the lights that altar boys bore beside the statue. A hymn of consecration was sung by the whole school, as the statue reached the center of the chapel where the Children of Mary presented candles and flowers. The long lines swung simultaneously out into the aisles.

A beautiful reception of new members followed, also the consecration of the aspirants. The Angel Sodality received an increase of membership too. Arrayed in white and bearing ribbons and candles, the little ones made a touching picture while reciting their offering to the holy angels.

Rev. W. F. O'Brien officiated, addressing the pupils, in his usual clear and fluent style. He emphasized the marvelous protection the Blessed Virgin bestows on her clients, and bade them never forget this good mother, even should they unfortunately fall by the way-side. Benediction closed the ceremony.

The pupils spent the evening in joyous festivities as the close of "a perfect day."

Through the generous courtesy of Warner Bros., proffered to Norwich lodge of Elks through Manager R. B. Hamilton of the Palace theater, the Elks gave a midnight showing at the theater Friday of the Griffiths picture, "Abraham Lincoln." The receipts will go 100 per cent to the charity work and Christmas cheer by the Elks lodge as the picture and use of the theater were donated by the theater owners.

There was an audience of close to 500, who voiced hearty satisfaction with the picture that was presented, portraying so realistically the life of the Great Emancipator. In its early scenes it gave much of the history that attaches to the life of Lincoln, the rail splitting, the famous wrestling match with Armstrong, courtship of Ann Rutledge, the Douglass debate, torchlight processions, many times lightened with the characteristic Lincoln humor. From there the picture passes on through his elevation to the presidency, his administration at Washington, and struggles with his cabinet, until it reaches the ultimate tragedy of his death.

NIANTIC MASONS PLACE DATE STONE OF TEMPLE

The date stone of the temple of Bayview lodge, A. F. and A. M., of Niantic, was placed during simple ceremonies Friday afternoon and the new home of the lodge was dedicated in the evening.

The temple is the former Niantic schoolhouse on Pennsylvania avenue. The exterior of the building, which is of frame construction, has been completely remodeled and exterior alterations are being made. Most of the work was done by members of Bayview lodge and members of other Masonic lodges, now resident in Niantic.

The ceremonies attending the placing of the date stone were begun shortly after 3 o'clock. The stone is of pink granite, finely carved, and inscribed with the date, 1930. The stone was presented the lodge by John Paakhari, a member.

Officers of the lodge conducted the afternoon's ceremonies. The officers are:

Master, Douglys F. Loughheed; senior warden, Wilbur F. Newton; junior warden, William Manwaring; treasurer, George Clarke; secretary, J. Hull Manwaring; senior deacon, Silas Brailey; junior deacon, Roy Richmond; senior steward, Lester Clarke; junior steward, Walter Crocker; marshal, George Steele; tyler, Richard Reynolds.

Dedication exercises began at 5 o'clock last evening and were preceded by a banquet at 7 o'clock. Grand Master Elbert L. Darbie of Danielson and his attending grand officers participated in the exercises.

SUES DR. WALKER ESTATE FOR 9 YEARS' SERVICES

An itemized bill for services rendered for the late Dr. Lester E. Walker over a period of nine years is drawn up by Frederick and Emily H. Backus, husband and wife, of Norwich, in a suit brought for a claim of $22,088 against the estate of the doctor. The claim has been disallowed by Mrs. Helen B. Hardy, executrix of the physician's will, the suit having been brought in the superior court with Mayor Lee Roy Robbins as attorney for the plaintiffs.

The following are the items in the bill, against which it is claimed there are no setoffs or counter claims for medical services or otherwise:

To meals furnished the deceased from June 12, 1921 to June 12, 1930	$7,038
To use of automobile from June 12, 1921 to June 12, 1930	4,000
To cash expenditures for meals and hotel expenses during local and long distance trips, including tours to Washington, D. C., Mohawk Trail, White Mountains, Cape Cod, etc., during said period of 9 years	500
To cash expenditures for amusements during said 9 year period	450
To fees paid Dr. Upham, April 16 and 18, 1930	100
To personal services of Emily H. Backus catering to said deceased from June 12, 1921 to June 12, 1930	5,000
To personal services of Frederick T. Backus catering to said deceased from June 12, 1921 to June 12, 1930	5,000

Dr. Walker left an estate of over $90,000. The details of services rendered to him are described as follows in the complaint:

For more than ten years prior to his decease, the said Lester E. Walker was a resident and a practicing physician in said Norwich.

On or before June 12, 1921, the said Lester E. Walker made arrangements with the plaintiffs, who are husband and wife, to furnish him a dinner each day and a supper every Sunday evening at their residence at East Great Plain, and from said date to the 12th day of June, 1930, the plaintiffs furnished said meals to said Dr. Walker who had the same regularly except for such days as he was out of town with the plaintiffs, as hereinafter described, and for a period of about six weeks when he was ill at the local hospital shortly before his death, and occasionally said dinners were taken to his office when such service was requested by him.

The plaintiffs supplied provisions for, and the plaintiff, Emily H. Backus prepared and served meals to the said Lester E. Walker as stated in paragraph three (3) and she catered to his taste and observed orders from him regarding meals, and set a bountiful table in accordance with his desire, and held his meals for him whenever he was detained and late to them and also upon occasions mended his clothes and devoted many hours each day looking after his welfare and comfort and regulated her personal and household affairs to meet Dr. Walker's convenience.

During the period from June 12, 1921 to June 12, 1930, except during his confinement at the hospital as aforesaid or when engaged as hereinafter stated, the plaintiff Frederick T. Backus, at the request of the said Dr. Walker, used his automobile continuously to serve said Dr. Walker by taking him from his office to his meals and return, by taking him about when he attended his patients and when he made collections, and by bringing his dinners to him at his office upon days when he was detained therein or desired to remain there and such services were extended over many hours of many days especially whenever the weather was bad or cold or the traveling wet or slippery or the doctor detained by his practice.

On or before June 12, 1921, the said Lester E. Walker made arrangements with the plaintiffs to take him with them upon a vacation trip or automobile tour that month, to Washington, D. C., and he accompanied the plaintiffs and remained with them during the tour which lasted about two weeks and subsequently during the period up to June 12, 1930, the plaintiffs, at the request of said Dr. Walker, took him with them upon long, or so-called overnight tours to the White Mountains, Cape Cod, and over the Mohawk Trail, and upon numerous occasions, at his request, they took him upon shorter, or so-called day trips to Hartford, New Haven, Providence, Narragansett Pier, Springfield and other places.

Upon all tours or trips mentioned in paragraph six (6) the plaintiff, Frederick T. Backus used his automobile, maintained and operated it himself and, at the request of said Lester E. Walker, the said Backus paid for all the entire expenses of said tours or trips including all the meals and hotel expenses of the said Walker.

During said nine years the said Lester E. Walker accompanied the plaintiffs to many entertainments and amusements, both in town and when touring, and they attended motion picture shows two and three evenings each week, and at the request of said Dr. Walker, the plaintiff Frederick T. Backus, always procured and paid for the tickets or admission fees of said Dr. Walker.

In April, 1930, the plaintiff, Emily H. Backus, at the request of Dr. Walker, procured Dr. Roy Upham, a noted specialist of New York city, to attend said Dr. Walker who was then confined in the local hospital with illness, and she paid Dr. Upham $100 for said Dr. Walker.

On or about June 12, 1921, the said Lester E. Walker agreed with the plaintiffs that they were to continue to pay him regular fees for all professional services rendered by him to them and their daughter and that he would, in consideration of the services rendered by the plaintiffs to him, compensate them adequately therefor, and the plaintiffs in accordance with said understanding, paid the said Dr. Walker over two thousand dollars for all services rendered by him to them and their daughter from that time up to the time of his death, and the said Dr. Walker, upon occasions each year, between the date of said agreement and June 12, 1930, promised to compensate the plaintiffs for their services and expenditures, but failed to do so and never did pay anything whatsoever to the plaintiffs on account of their services and expenditures as above described.

AGRICULTURAL COMMITTEE FAVORS INCOME TAX

The general property tax often amounts to confiscation of farm land according to the state agricultural tax committee.

This body, after studying the tax problem as it affects the farmer in Connecticut, has concluded that an income tax in this state would be an equitable adjustment of what it terms present ills.

This finding and report was read at the annual meeting of the Hartford county farm bureau by A. T. Pattison, chairman of the committee that was appointed by Commissioner of Agriculture S. McLean Buckingham.

While the committee has reached this conclusion and while the report was enthusiastically received by a large number of farmers at the meeting, the department of agriculture has no militant plans to right what it considers an unfair method of taxation, according to Commissioner Buckingham. The committee was appointed, he said, to prepare this report so that it might be ready when the legislature decides to consider a general revision of the tax laws.

When the committee was appointed it appeared that the 1931 general assembly might take up the matter of tax revision, Commisioner Buckingham said, adding that it now appears that the question will not be raised before the 1933 session.

Many of Mr. Pattison's figures related to the farms in particular towns and showed in some cases that the taxes paid amounted to more than 100 per cent of the profits of the farmer. The land tax does particular harm where the farm is a losing proposition he said, concluding that it is in such instances confiscatory.

Considering the country as a whole Mr. Pattison read from his report figures to show that the farmer pays land taxes that amount to seven and one half per cent of the value of his products.

JOSEPH SHEA INJURED IN PAWTUCKET ACCIDENT

Local relatives of Joseph Shea were notified Friday night that he was hit and badly injured by an automobile in Pawtucket, R. I., during the evening. He was reported late Friday night as on the danger list at the Memorial hospital at Pawtucket. The local police were notified by telephone of the accident and were asked in turn to notify Mr. Shea's daughter and sister who reside on Roath street. Sergt. John T. Casey, in charge of police headquarters, sent an officer to notify the man's relatives of his condition.

KEEN INTEREST IN ARMY-NAVY BENEFIT GRID CLASSIC TODAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—A unique athletic episode marking the greatest service ever rendered by college football to the cause of charity will bring together the football teams of the United States Naval and Military academies at the Yankee stadium tomorrow before a crowd estimated at 70,000.

The ranks of those who will flock to the Yankee stadium to see the ancient rivalry renewed in the interests of the public good after a three-year break were swelled by a last-minute ticket boom which lasted all day despite dismal weather. The stadium seats 78,000, however, and the game is likely to be several thousand short of a sellout.

No rain is predicted for tomorrow but the final workouts of the Army and Navy squads were held on wet fields in a steady drizzle.

The Navy worked out on the scene of battle. The Army ran through its final drill in the comparative obscurity of Briarcliff, a few miles outside the city, where the squad is bivouacked.

Although light work was in order for both Middies and Cadets, the athletes moved with a snap and vigor that forecast one of the hardest-fought games in Army-Navy annals.

Neither Coach Bill Ingram of the Navy nor Ralph Sasse of the Army was able to announce a definite starting lineup, and both backfields will remain in doubt until shortly before game time.

Coach Sasse said his two first-string halfbacks, Stecker and Frentzel, were still suffering from injuries and that their places in the starting lineup might be taken by Fields and Herb. Stecker is regarded as the Army's best passer and Frentzel is the leading punter.

Coach Ingram's problem was a strategic one. He was still undecided as to whether to start Kirn and Hurley, who have been his most effective backs, or to hold one or both in reserve.

Close followers of the Navy predicted that if the Middies' starting lineup contains both of these speedboys it will indicate that Ingram has determined to shoot the works at the outset in the hope of getting the jump and piling up a winning margin in the first few minutes.

Kirn came into his own in the final game of last season and Hurley, a New York boy who lives only a few blocks from the scene of tomorrow's game, flashed into prominence this season in a fashion as sensational, emerging from the "B" squad to play a great game in the one-sided victory over Pennsylvania last week. Hurley's usual assignment is as Kirn's understudy.

Ingram refrained from running through formations in today's drill, which consisted of plenty of passing for the backs and charging for the line.

Captain Bowstrom, husky tackle, does the long-distance kicking, while the fullback, Hagberg, is slated to punt when the strategy of the moment calls for a well-placed boot out of bounds.

Up at Briarcliff, the Army athletes reveled in the luxury of staying in bed until 9 a. m. Uncle Sam's hard-working cadets are accustomed to hearing reveille at 5:50 a. m. daily. Furthermore, the men were allowed to eat anything within reason and their practice consisted of nothing more than the lightest of signal drills.

The spectacle tomorrow will get under way early with the corps of cadets scheduled to march at 12:15 and the regiment of midshipmen to appear shortly afterward in their part of the parade.

In the colorful crowd will be numerous notables from Washington, including the secretaries of war and navy. In the box with Secretary of War and Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley as their guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Frank Phillips, oil magnate from Tulsa, Okla.; Edward P. Mulrooney, New York's police commissioner; Col. Peter J. Brady, New York banker, and Col. and Mrs. E. St. J. Greble of Orange, N. J., at whose home Secretary and Mrs. Hurley are guests.

With tickets ranging up to $50, the game is the highest priced affair in the history of football. A souvenir ball autographed by President Hoover and army and navy figures will be auctioned off to boost the fund for the jobless. Even the coin that will be flipped by the referee will be sold.

All arrangements have been handled by a joint Salvation Army-citizens' committee headed by Grover Whalen, former New York city police commissioner.

This special post-season benefit game marks the 31st battle between the Army and Navy. The Army leads with 15 victories to 12 and three games have been tied. In the last service struggle in 1927 at the Polo grounds the Army won, 14 to 9, through the efforts of Harry Wilson, Chris Cagle and their mates.

There was little to choose between the two teams on the eve of battle. While the Army has a better record, the Navy is considered far stronger than early in the season. It will be the 11th game of the season for both squads.

HIGH SCHOOL DIRECTORS MEET ON MONDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 12. — On Monday evening, Dec. 15, athletic directors of high schools in eastern Windham county, whose teams are represented in the eastern state basketball conference will meet with local high school athletic officials in the Putnam high school library, for the purpose of discussing their standing in conference.

Arrangements for the gathering were completed more than a fortnight ago, thereby putting to end the potential assumption that the get-together is in any way the result of Friday's announcement that Putnam high school, by reason of its cancellation of the scheduled games with Windham high of Willimantic, is unable to compete for conference championship honors.

Upper Quinebaug valley schools to be represented at the informal round table meet of the coaches will be Tourtellotte, Plainfield, Killingly and Putnam.

PLAINFIELD AND BALTIC IN LEAGUE SOCCER GAME SUNDAY

The Plainfield Soccer club will battle the Baltic team at Baltic Sunday in what promises to be one of the best games of the season. This will be the first meeting of these two teams in about eight years, Baltic not being represented in the eastern Connecticut soccer league until this past year. The kickoff will be at 2:30 and a large crowd is expected. Plainfield will use the same line-up that they have inserted in the last three games.

SACRIFICE FLY RULE IS WRITTEN OFF THE BOOKS

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—(AP)— The sacrifice fly was legislated out of existence today by baseball's joint rules committee, meeting in the Hotel Commodore.

From now on when a batter lifts a lofty fly to the outfield and enables a runner to advance a base he will not be credited with a sacrifice and he will be charged with a time at bat.

Proponents of the change insisted that the sacrifice fly had no place in the rules. They pointed out that in most cases batsmen had no intention of lifting a high fly to the outfield so the runner could advance a base. Instead most of them were swinging for home runs or a hit or some description. Therefore, they argued, he should be charged with a time at bat just as he is when he lifts a fly that does not enable a runner to advance or that comes with the bases empty.

There was no sentiment on the other side and the rule was adopted.

Another important change limits the runner to two bases when the ball bounces off the playing field. This rule was designed to prevent "trick home runs" made when the ball took a hop into the stands.

The National league rule saying that a ball shall be judged fair or foul where it last leaves the playing field and not where it is last seen was given American league approval and thus becomes a standard regulation.

The pitching rules, especially in respect to the stance the hurler should take before delivering th ball, were clarified.

The committee also decided to revise and clarify the rules in general much as the football rules committee recodified the football regulations.

The sessions of the rules committee closed the annual major league midwinter meetings. Most club owners and managers had left for their homes tonight, but a few planned to remain over for the Army-Navy football game.

19 STATES REPRESENTED IN ARMY-NAVY CLASH

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Nineteen states, one territory, and the District of Columbia are represented by the 25 Cadets and Midshipmen who either will start or are being considered today as probable starters in the Army-Navy football classic in the Yankee stadium tomorrow afternoon.

Ed Herb, who shares with Bill Frentzel, of Danville, Ill., the choice as starting right halfback in the Army backfield, comes from Manila, Philippine Islands, where his father serves with the American forces. Pennsylvania has three representatives on the two teams, Illinois two and Wisconsin two.

NAVY NOT WORRYING ABOUT ARMY GAME

ANNAPOLIS, Md. Dec. 12—(AP)—"Navy Bill" Ingram, who gained his name through five years of coaching football at the Naval academy, professes not to be worrying a great deal about the charity game with the Army at New York today (Saturday).

"It's just another game, and we are preparing as we would for any other team," he said today as he pulled off his togs after a strenuous afternoon with his charges. "We'll give 'em a battle."

Nevertheless, the Naval academy is making preparations in a far from "another game" spirit. Four teams were on the field today, and they went through a scrimmage to the accompaniment of cheers from the midshipmen grouped in the stands and music from the band.

Ingram put his first string men through a skeleton scrimmage, using nothing but tackles and ends against them in an attempt to smooth their blocking for the plays to be sprung against the Army style of defense.

Ingram is planning to use his best backfield to start the game, with Bauer at quarterback, Lou Kirn and Johnny Gannon at the halves and Oscar Hagberg at fullback. It was this combination he used today and alternated it with another having Rusty Williams at quarter, Joe Tschirgi and Tommy Hulley at the halves and Jack Campbell at fullback.

Weak spots in both backfields are worrying the Navy mentors. Kirn, midget battering ram, is worn down with the burden of line cracking all season, and is suffering from a broken great toe and a deep gash across his face.

Navy Bill and Rip Miller, former Notre Dame guard, who is line coach, both are satisfied with the line, with Bying and Steffanides at the wings, L. Bryan and Big Bob Bowstrom at the tackles, Gray and Underwood at guards and Tut Tuttle at center. But both coaches bewailed that there are few replacements.

X-RAYS TO OUTDO RADIUM BATTLE ORCHARD INSCETS

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Rays considerably more energetic and penetrating than those from radium are expected from exceptionally powerful X-ray tubes under development by the Carnegie institution.

Preliminary tests indicate that tubes can be made to withstand the shattering impact of 4,000,000 volt X-rays.

A report of the Institution says that the gamma, or radium rays, from these tubes will provide a fundamental tool for many new investigations.

LUD WRAY OUSTED AS HEAD COACH OF FOOTBALL AT PENNSYLVANIA

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 12 —(AP)— "Lud" Wray, head coach of the University of Pennsylvania football squad, around whose head raged a storm of criticism as a result of the season's showing of the team, is out.

His scheduled three year tenure as mentor of the Pennsylvania gridiron team was terminated late today in a brief statement issued by John Arthur Brown, member of the executive committee of the university's council on athletics. It said:

"The council on athletics of the University of Pennsylvania announces that J. R. Ludlow Wray will not coach the football team next year or the year after."

There was no announcement of a successor, and it is believed that no one has been selected. Many names have been mentioned, including those of Glenn Warner, head coach at Stanford university; William W. Roper, former head coach at Princeton; Lou Young, whom Wray succeeded a year ago, and Si Pauxtis, former coach at Pennsylvania Military college.

Pennsylvania this season won five games and lost four, to Wisconsin, Notre Dame, Cornell and the Navy. After the first defeat, to Wisconsin, discordant reports began to be heard and they increased with each subsequent loss. After the Wisconsin game, Rolf Carlsten quit the team following a wordy row with Wray.

Other bickerings were heard and after the Navy game, the storm broke loose. The Pennsylvanian, the student daily publication, charged that there was a lack of harmony between the players and the coaching staff. This was followed by a statement by Warren Gette, a halfback, that he would not play football again under Wray.

Criticism in other directions became so widespread that Thomas S. Gates, president of the university, took official notice of the situation and announced that matters in connection with competitive athletics and specifically football, were under investigation.

Yesterday the executive committee and the football committee of the athletic council met and it was reported afterward that Wray had been asked to resign. Mr. Brown, acting chairman of the executive committee, referred to the trouble as a "nasty situation."

Wray, after the announcement was made, had little to say, except to resort to a Biblical quotation.

"'Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof,'" said Lud. "I have plenty of plans and they are now under way."

What financial arrangement, if any, the university athletic authorities made with Wray was not announced. It was said his salary for the first year of his three year contract was $12,000 and for the next two years $14,000 a season.

"I have known Mr. Wray since he was 4 years old nd have always known him to be honest and courageous." Mr. Brown said. "He was a splendid and fearless football player. He has apparently a lot of enemies in the university among the undergraduates, some of the players, the alumni and the public.

"How many of the players were opposed to his methods, I am unable to say.

"We were not dealing in that primarily but suffice to say there was friction.

"The committee decided it was best for the university as well as Mr. Wray himself to dispense wi" his services as coach."

Mr. Brown said that Wray's successor was not a matter for the committee to determine. "We merely handled this situation," he said.

Wray is a Pennsylvania alumnus and played on the football team just before and after the World war. He played professional football for a while and became a line coach at Pennsylvania in 1923 and head coach after the season of 1929.

POLISH CITS TAKE SECOND STRAIGHT GAME

The Polish Citizens won their second straight game of the season Friday night at Pulaski hall when they trimmed the Westerly Collegians, 47 to 33 in an interesting game. Les Pingree led the locals to their victory, tallying 16 points while Cropper, with 22 points, was responsible for practically three-fourths of the Westerly points.

In the preliminary the Cits Jrs. won their opening game in defeating Pepin's All Stars, 29 to 28.

BATTALINO BEATS KID CHOCOLATE IN HARD FIGHT TO RETAIN TITLE

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Christopher "Bat" Battalino, the none too highly rated champion of the featherweights, came into the big town for the first time tonight and proved himself before a crowd of 17,000 by whipping the fading Kid Chocolate in a furious 15-round defense of his title.

It was the third straight defeat for the slim Cuban Negro, who a year ago was considered invincible in the 126-pound class.

An under dog in the betting, hardly rated the equal of the flashy "Keed" no matter how far the Cuban had gone back, Battalino got up off the floor after a count of nine in the first round to chase Chocolate the rest of the way, pound eternally at his body, and in the end gain the unanimous decision of two judges and Referee Arthur Donovan. The big Christmas fund crowd that had made Chocolate a 2 to 1 favorite booed the decision lustily though there seemed little doubt among the ringsiders that the courageous little champion had won himself a hard victory.

It seemed at the start that Chocolate, a striking picture of swift-moving, straight-punching ebony fighting machinery, would make short work of the youngster who won his title in his home town of Hartford, Conn., from Andre Routis a couple of years ago and has been beaten several times in overweight matches since. After maneuvering the clumsy Battalino into position, Chocolate lashed a left and right to the champion's chin and Christopher hit the deck.

He seemed to take the count of nine more as a precautionary measure than from any damage done by the punches and he came up full of fight. From that moment on the champion never gave Chocolate a minute's rest, storming continually into him, bobbing before him with elbows wound around his head, refusing to let the Negro get set for another of his straight, sharp punches. Then when his charges brought him into contact with the enemy, Battalino fired both hands steadily to the body, wrestled Chocolate around every time he got the chance and shifted his attack to the head often enough to keep the slim Negro confused.

The Associated Press score card gave Battalino an edge in eight rounds, with Chocolate, by his sharper, cleaner punching, carrying off the margin in seven. The champion's rally toward the close of the battle, when he ground Chocolate down by his body barrages and won the 11th, 12th, 13th and 14th rounds in a row, seemed to swing the balance to the crown-holder.

Battalino seemed a crude, inexperienced workman in comparison to the cleverness, agility and skill of the Negro. He missed many punches, walked into two-fisted volleys without offering a semblance of defense, but he never stopped charging forward, firing as he came. Toward the close Chocolate tired rapidly, though he managed to save enough for a rally that won him the final round in addition to the first, second, fifth, eighth, ninth and tenth.

The victory of the champion, underestimated though he was in everything but courage and aggressiveness, added the final touch to the decline of the Cuban Bon Bon Bon. In his last three battles, Chocolate has bowed to Jackie Kid Berg, a lightweight; Fidel La Barba, a bruising, body-punching featherweight, and Battalino. And tonight again it was the newly found weakness around the ribs that brought about the slim Negro's defeat. He could not shake off Battalino's smashes to the body and as the punishment took its toll, his speed disappeared and with it his punching power.

Aside from the knockdown in the opening round, there was little serious damage. Battalino bled early and often from a deep cut on the bridge of his nose and Chocolate's sharp rights all but closed the champion's left eye. Both wavered under hefty punches in the last of the two-fisted volleying in the late rounds but neither was close to another knockdown. Battalino weighed 124 1-2 pounds, well under the class limit, and Chocolate, 125.

Preliminaries

Mateo Osa, young Spanish heavyweight from the Basque country, scored a dramatic knockout over Ralph Ficcucello, former national amateur champion, in the third round of a ten-round semi-final. Ficcucello had a wide lead until he bounced off the ropes and into a smashing right to the chin in the third.

Osa weighed 184; Ficcucello 192 1-2.

Ralph Lenny, promising young Jersey City lightweight, won a six-round decision over Solly Ritz, in the first preliminary. Lenny weighed 135; Ritz 138 1-2.

Two heavyweights, Marty Fox, of New York, and Pietro Corri, of Italy, battled ten rounds to a draw in the second. Corri weighed 198 1-2; Fox. 185 1-2.

PUTNAM COACH NOT INTERESTED IN TITLES

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 12.—Lauriston P Noyes, athletic director and basketball mentor at Putnam high school, is not at all perturbed at losing an opportunity to compete for championship honors in the eastern Connecticut basketball conference, which was lost to the local school with the cancellation of two games with Windham high at Willimantic. The contests, Coach Noyes explained, were chalked off the schedules of both schools by mutual consent of athletic directors at Putnam and Willimantic. When interviewed this afternoon Coach Noyes said the athletic council at P. H. S. will not concern itself with the recently created conference situation, inasmuch as the school's seasonal objective is to protect its standing in "B" class rating of Connecticut scholastic basketball in order that the Noyesmen might compete in the post season tournament at Storrs.

In discussing the matter of cancellation of the Windham high conference games, Coach Noyes said the tilts were dropped because of overcrowded schedules. To play the contests it would have been necessary to jeopardize the Noyesmen's chances of winning games which are considered far more important locally than the meets with the western county school, since a "rushing" of the season would have to be resorted to and this is not considered good tactics. A similar situation is believed to have applied in Willimantic.

Athletic relations between Putnam and Windham high schools have not been gliding over velvet surfaces for some time, although an out and out "split" has never occurred. In 1928, during the basketball season, first pressure was brought to bear when the Windham basketball team management cancelled a home and home arrangement with the Noyesmen. Putnam retaliated by counteracting the Willimantic refusal to play in the local gymnasium with the subsequent result that no contests between the two schools were arranged until this year.

Whether or not athletic heads of the two county schools will take steps to patch up their differences is unknown, inasmuch as officials at Putnam high today evidenced no indications of assuming the initiative.

Putnam is starting out on one of the most difficult basketball campaigns of school history. Among the 19 scheduled games are contests with Norwich Free Academy, Chapman Technical of New London, and Tourtellotte of North Grosvenordale. Early reports coming from the training quarters at these schools have caused fans to assume that the Noyes coached five will have plenty to contend with when these quintets are met. In all events the 1930-31 scholastic basketball season prospects up and down the Quinebaug valley are the brightest they have been in years.

YALE WINS CLOSE GAME FROM WESLEYAN

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Coming from behind in the second half of a hard-fought game, Yale basketeers defeated the Wesleyan quintet here tonight by a score of 28 to 23.

The half found the score standing 16 to 12, with the visitors on the long end. However, in the opening minutes of play during the second half, Yale brought in 12 more scores before the Wesleyan players could add to their tally.

Eddie Horwitz, with 10 points to his credit, was the individual high scorer of the game. Booth and Linehan played outstanding games for Wale, while John Stone and Owen starred for Wesleyan.

FORMER TIGER PLAYER ATTACKS FORWARD PASS

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 12—(AP)—Attacking the forward pass because "too much stress is being laid on its value," Rev. William C. Speir, of Gloversville, N. Y., former Princeton halfback, suggests in a letter to the Princeton Alumni Weekly that the rules be modified to reduce the value of a touchdown scored through the air. The letter makes two alternative suggestions, one that a touchdown made on a pass count only three points without the privilege of a trial for goal, or that no pass be allowed to be carried beyond the ten-yard line.

The first suggestion, he writes, "would make the scoring more equitable than it is today. If the latter seemed better, it would tighten up the game where it is expected to be tight and put forward passes where I think it belongs, a ground gainer but not a scoring play."

One reason Dr. Speir gives for his suggestion is that by passing "two men can score more points than the team, working as a unit, is able to do."

AGGIE QUINTET OPENS SEASON THIS EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Dec. 12. — With only eleven practice sessions to its credit this fall, the Connecticut Aggie basketball team has rounded into shape and is fully prepared for its premiere contest of the season which is with the Bridgewater Normal school quintet here Saturday evening in Hawley armory.

The team which will start against the Bay Staters is composed of Darrow and Mason, forwards; Chubbuck, captain and center, and Wilson and Glennon, guards, Coach Dole announced today. All of these players made letters last year with the exception of Mason who was member of last year's freshman team. Chubbuck, who has twice been named All-New England center, was the high scorer of last year's quintet and is the team's biggest offensive threat this season.

Today's practice session was light, the main part of the work being on passing and shooting fouls.

20,000,000 TINY FLIES BATTLE ORCHARD INSECTS

ATLANTA—(AP)—More than 20,000,000 of the Trix cousins, small parasitic flies, have been released in Georgia in the last two years to battle fruit insects.

Trichogramma minutum and its cousin, Macrocentrus, are the scientific names of the tiny Trix cousins. Given a chance they destroy the oriental peach moth and the codling moth.

Parasitization of apple and peach orchards in Georgia is under supervision of the state board of entomology. A laboratory, one of the few of its kind, has been established at Cornelia where the Trix cousins are bred artificially and supplied to formers. The demand is greater than the supply.

'LOCKY BROTHERS,' SKILLED PILOTS, ARE INSEPARABLE

COLOGNE —(AP)— Hans and Hermann Petersen ore Germany's flying brothers.

The two Petersens, who are inseparable, have just completed their one thousandth flight in the service of the German Lufthansa; Hans as a pilot and Hermann as his mechanic.

The Petersen who are now piloting the Cologne-Leipsic plane are known to many of the regular passengers as the "Lucky Brothers." They have not had an accident since 1926, when they started piloting passenger planes of the Lufthansa.

SENIORS PLAY WESTERLY SOLDIERS AT Y. M. C. A. COURT THIS EVENING

Line-up For Tonight's Game

Norwich	Battery E., Westerly
Leffingwell, lf	lf, Sullivan
Lynch, rf	rf, Fannon
Henschel, c	c, Stenhouse
Ludlow, lg	lg, Roever
Armstrong, rg	rg, Holt

When the above two teams come together at the local Y court this evening basketball fans will see two finely matched teams in action. These same two outfits fought it out at Westerly a week ago and when the final whistle ended the game Norwich was on top by the slim margin of one point.

Coach Demarest has put the local squad through some stiff workouts this past week and is molding together a clever aggregation. The two forwards, Lynch and Leffingwell, are as capable a pair of basket tossers as there is in eastern Connecticut and will give plenty of trouble to the Westerly defense. Rizzuto, a scrappy young player drafted from the Emps, will more than likely see service part of the game. Henschel will be at center and Capt. Ludlow and Armstrong will be on the defense, while Tubbs will act as utility guard along with Serafin, another graduate of the Emps.

In Westerly's line-up are two of the best basketball men in little Rhody, namely Stenhouse and Roever, two ex-high school stars, who always are a thorn in their opponents' side.

In the preliminary game the Norwich Y Emps will meet the Battery E second team and a fast tussle may be expected as the Emps just emerged victorious over them in Westerly and both R. I. teams are out to even up matters tonight.

Randy Whaples will referee and the preliminary will start at 7:45 with the main attraction immediately following.

ARMY-NAVY GAME TO BE WELL BROADCAST

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.— (AP)— The Army-Navy football game for the benefit of the Salvation Army unemployment fund goes to the combined WEAF-WJZ chains, to the WABC network and to at least a half dozen short wave stations.

The game starts at 1 p. m., but WABC and stations will be on at 12:15 and the WEAF-WJZ group will open at 12:30 for the story of the preliminaries.

Between the halves various speakers will be heard, including Grover A. Whalen, chairman of the citizens' committee for the Salvation Army.

Announcers will be Graham McNamee and Arthur P. McNulty for WEAF-WJZ, and Ted Husing and Knute Rockne, coach of Notre Dame, for WABC.

In addition WOR plans to start at 12:15 with its own story of the game. George Trevor and Eddie Dooley will give the details, with Joe Vila and H. I. Phillips participating as announcers. All are on the staff of the New York Sun.

The broadcasts are sponsored by Philco, which made a large donation to the Salvation Army fund.

Cochrane Beats Hoppe

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Welker Cochrane tonight won the fourth block of his 18.1 balkline billiard match with Willie Hoppe, 200 to 173. In three cushions, Hoppe beat Cochrane in the fifth block, 30 to 19.

Cochrane's high 18.1 run was 107 and his victory tied the match at two-all. Hoppe's high runs were 79 and 77.

They will finish their match here tomorrow night. Hoppe has won all of the five three-cushions block.

Mexico has been making large reductions in cavalry forces of the army, and has been distributing the horses among the peasants.

STRIBLING FIGHTS CAUTIOUS BOUT TO BEAT GRIFFITHS

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Fighting a cautious, tricky battle, W. L. (Young) Stribling, the pride of Georgia, defeated Tuffy Griffiths, mid-west heavyweight aspirant, in a bristling ten-round contest in the Chicago Stadium tonight.

Stribling, overwhelming favorite in the betting, was forced to use all of his sharp-shooting boxing skill to outscore the gritty youngster from Sioux City, Iowa. The Georgian, with his flashier boxing skill, won six of the ten rounds, but only after he was extended to the limit by the shifty Griffiths.

The decision, which was unanimously agreed upon by the two judges and the referee, Ed Purdy, may result in making Stribling the choice of the National Boxing association as the heavyweight champion of the world. Prior to the battle, General John V. Clinnin, president of the N. B. A., and chairman of the Illinois Athletic commission, declared that Max Schmeling, of Germany, the titleholder, had failed to defend within the prescribed six months limit, and that it was up to the N. B. A. to name the winner of the Griffiths-Stribling bout as the association's titleholder. General Clinnin, however, must obtain the approval of other member states and communications asking for their assent will be sent out tomorrow.

Griffiths never let up throwing his left hook, and he banged away in close range with both fists to the body. The Iowan, however, was unable to score decisively with his rights to the head but was able to crack Stribling with tantalizing lefts to the face that broke up many of the southerner's well-intended attacks.

Stribling used a stiff left to the face in the early rounds, but from the third round on he began to batter Griffiths with terrific right hand blasts to the body, which he alternated between the heart and stomach.

If Stribling had an idea that he would score a quick knockout over Griffiths he soon lost it. In fact, the fast-moving Iowa lad earned a slight shade in the first round by virtue of spearing the southerner with a volley of lefts and holding his own at the rough battling in close quarters.

After the first session, Stribling began to box more carefully and won the next three or four rounds, by superior boxing and ring generalship.

The sixth and seventh rounds, which found both boxers fighting doggedly might have been called even, but Griffiths, flashing a new burst of speed moved ahead in the eighth round. In this session, Tuffy began plugging for the body and tried repeatedly with his right to the head. Stribling found himself forced on the defensive.

The ninth round, in which Stribling made his major bid for a knockout victory when he landed a vicious right uppercut, was clearly the Georgian's.

Stribling was guilty of some unnecessary roughness in the battle, especially in the clinches. Griffiths complained to the referee on several occasions when Stribling belted him back of the neck with "rabbit punches."

Herbert "Baby" Stribling, welterweight brother of W. L., who hails from Wichita, Kans., gained a decision in six rounds over "Irish" Kennedy of St. Paul.

Micky McFarland, Pueblo, Colo., light-heavyweight, outboxed Willie Oster, a rough, tough swinger from Boston, to win a decision in six rounds. McFarland kept poking long left hands into Oster's face to keep him at a safe distance.

In the semi-windup, Larry Johnson, Chicago Negro heavyweight, knocked out the rugged Jack Gagnon of Boston in the sixth round of their scheduled eight-round bout. Johnson felled Gagnon in the first round for a count of nine, had him on the floor in the fourth and finally knocked him cold with a heavy left to the jaw in the sixth. Gagnon weighed 191 pounds with Johnson scaling 180 1-2.

BATTALINO STILL CHAMPION.

Christopher "Bat" Battalino of Hartford is still the featherweight champion. Last night before 17,000 fight fans the Hartford Italian literally battered his way to the top of the featherweight heap when he won a close verdict over Keed Chocolate of Cuba in a gruelling 15-round bout. Awkward and showing little of the finesse that marks a champion Battalino displayed a doggedness of purpose that carried him to the victory over the Ebony Keed. But in doing so Battalino did not come off unscarred as his features were somewhat battered by the cutting rights and lefts that Chocolate shot into his face. It was a great scrap and those that saw it got their money's worth. By beating Chocolate, even though the Cuban is said to be on the toboggan, he raised himself several points in the opinion of the most skeptical of his championship qualities. Battalino fought the best fight of his career without a doubt but there are others in the featherweight division who must be met before we will acclaim him as the rightful holder of the title. There is Fidel LaBarba and Eddie Shea to be considered. Labarba beat Chocolate and then Shea beat LaBarba the other night. But let's hope that Battalino will consent to a bout with either of these boys before they get old and feeble.

PASSING OF THE SACRIFICE FLY

When the rules committees of the major leagues agreed to do away with the sacrifice fly rule in baseball they did a good job. The sacrifice fly rule has been a gift from heaven for some of these long fly hitters in the majors. The rule has kept their averages well above the .300 mark by popping flies to the outfield which have advanced fast baserunners. The rule has been an injustice to those who were not so fortunate as to hit long flies. The batter who hits a long fly on which a man advances is no more entitled to a sacrifice than the batter who advances a man on an infield out. It's a safe bet that not one batter out of 1,000 goes to bat with the avowed intention of hitting a sacrifice fly to the outfield so that a man can advance a base. When he doesn't bunt he's trying to knock the old apple out of the lot and if he hits to the outfield he most certainly should be credited with a time at bat. The intent of the sacrifice rule is to give the batter a break when he deliberately passes up a chance to make a hit by bunting. This is as it should be. There was no reason for giving the batter a sacrifice when he tried to bust the ball out of the lot.

Among other important changes in the rules was the limiting to two bases the hit that bounds into the stands. This action eliminates another of the rules that gave the batter a great break. Since the playing fields have been encroached upon to make room for the stands many homers have been made by a ball bouncing into the stands when it might have been fielded if the stands hadn't been there. How many times have we seen a ball hit on a line take a weird hop into the stands when it would certainly have been fielded in time to stop a runner at second or third.

Then there is the rule governing a ball that goes out of the park. Under the old rule an umpire called a ball fair or foul according to where the ball was in relation to the foul line when the ball left his range of vision. Many a ball has cleared the fences when it was well within fair territory only to curve foul after it passed the barriers. Any batter that hits a ball out of the lot should be entitled to a homer provided it leaves the ballfield while it is traveling over fair ground. There are several other clarifications made of the rules which have not been announced as yet.

Palace Theatre

Abraham Lincoln, the man of destiny, of whom it was said, "He now belongs to the Ages," is brought to life again in the greatest picture of the year, of the same name, starting today and running through Tuesday: this great picture that has thrilled thousands all over the larger cities and is still thrilling thousands throughout the country.

No American film spectacle produced during the past ten years can rival this stupendous feature based on the life of the great Emancipator.

No deliberate selection of superlatives can justify the magnitude, the expense and historical accuracy which features this greatest and most genuinely "Griffith" picture since "The Birth of a Nation" startled the world with its pathos and romantic realism.

In the matter of cast alone the production rightfully lays claim to a record which may never be surpassed. The principals—so called because of their characterization of high historical personages—total 119 of the stage and screen's most capable players.

It is claimed for this picture that no expense was spared in securing the exact type desired to play a certain role. Absolute resemblances were required in 90 per cent of the selections of players. This strict adherence to historical exactitude made many demands on the treasury of the producers, but the result has more than justified expense in this direction.

Broadway Theatre

With the rapid development of the airplane and other modes of transportation and the increasing problem of traffic in our great cities, what will New York look like in 1980?

Buddy DeSylva, Lew Brown and Ray Henderson, multi-millionaire authors and song writers, have attempted to answer that question in "Just Imagine," their second moving picture comedy with songs.

Huge modernistic skyscrapers tower 200 and more stories above the street level. Fleets of airplanes, all equipped with helicopters that permit straight up and down flying, coming to a complete stop in the air, cruise the air lines. Aerial traffic cops, in anchored balloons, direct traffic. Great air liners bring all the capitals of the world within a few hours travel of the American metropolis.

Nine traffic levels are provided, ranging from subways, surface trams, elevated railways and five automobile levels, to a novel canal system that permits great ocean liners to traverse the main thoroughfares, discharging freight and passengers much as do the huge buses of our day.

Of the thousand and one novelties which add to the entertainment value of "Just Imagine," this dream city of 1980 probably will stand out as most effective, as you will see today at the Broadway theatre where it will have a four days' run.

Hillcrest Theatre.

"Sea Legs," starring Jack Oakie will be the Sunday attraction at the Hillcrest theatre.

In this gorgeous fun festival of life on the ocean wave, Oakie is ably assisted by Lillian Roth, Harry Green and Eugene Pallette.

An exceptionally fine surrounding bill of short features is included.

"Sea Legs" will be shown at the matinee at 2 o'clock and twice in the evening, at 6.30 and 8.30. This is another Paramount picture that hasn't played Norwich.

Tuesday only, Manager Schwarts offers the one and only Maurice Chevalier in "Playboy of Paris."

A YULETIDE LONGING FOR HOME OPENS THE DOOR OF ROMANCE TO A MODERN BACHELOR GIRL

A GRAY, drowsy air clung about the employes' entrance of Clark & Co. as Miss Bertie Brannon inserted her key in the lock and stepped softly through the door at 5 o'clock of a chill November morning.

The first-floor counters, rows upon rows of them, were sleeping like tired soldiers underneath white shrouds to the right and left of her common-sense heels as she made her way down the main aisle, and the only wakeful thing in the entire big department store was a single electric-light bulb above the elevator banks.

Bertie paused at a door marked "Stairway" and glanced back at the shadowy cavern of the first floor. In the eerie stillness it seemed as if she could hear the distant roar of the tides of humanity that poured all day through the huge, many-chambered hive of merchandise. It was like holding a conch shell to the ear and hearing the beat of mighty waves that once thundered through it. But the roar of the day was still three hours away and Bertie held that pleasant thought foremost in her mind as she went through the door and began to climb up, up, twelve weary flights to the home furnishings department.

There she sat on a striped porch hammock and gained her breath, but she couldn't afford to loiter long, for the thing that brought her every morning at this early hour lay only a few aisles away, and there was much to be done before alarm clocks went off in Manhattan and suburban homes and a vast army of clerks began to filter through the funnel of the employes' entrance into the store.

She arose and walked rapidly toward a miniature house situated in a corner of the floor. A placard on a green-paper lawn proclaimed: "Clark & Co.'s Model House, With All Advantages—Designed and Furnished Under the Supervision of the Home Furnishings Department."

Bertie pulled off her hat, ran her fingers through the sleek black hair that she had never bobbed and sighed comfortably. She might have been ending her day with carpet slippers from all that her manner indicated instead of just beginning it. She laid a forefinger on the surface of a desk, looked closely to see if it left a mark, straightened a tooled leather writing set and then passed on to the next room.

OVER on a scatter-size table beside the easiest of the easy armchairs was a tiny Italian pottery tray heaped with a mound of feathery gray things.

"Ah-ha," she cried. "Ashes again!" And then—"Something's got to be done about this."

This was not the first time that she had found ashes in the model house upon her early morning visits.

The house was Bertie's joy by day and sweetest dream at night. She was, at the age of 39, chief interior decorator consultant for the home furnishings department and in charge of the model house. She had furnished it from garden gate to kitchen broom.

Eleven years of earning her own living and superintending her own life had stiffened Bertie a little, from her really pretty upper lip through to her heart. No one could trifle with either. She stood squarely on her own two feet, knew what was what, and as a consequence got $125 each week in her pay envelope, half of which she deposited every Saturday noon in the savings bank.

In that way one got ahead, and when one reached the silvery 60s one could retire to the country in a little cottage similar to Clark & Co.'s model house and grasshopper away the remaining days of life.

Love was for girls minus bank accounts—girls who lingered over final clinches in the movies, or girls who never had had to straight-arm their way through life.

Bertie was sure she was happier alone, walking efficiently about the home furnishings department every day, eating dollar table d'hote dinners every evening in the very pleasant dining room of the very pleasant women's hotel where she lived. For relaxation, going to a play or attending a lecture on interior decoration.

Holidays were apt to be a little bleak, naturally. Bertie had had a very normal childhood. Cranberry sauce and turkey for Thanksgiving. Stockings over fireplace and spangled trees on Christmas. But now Bertie's family was scattered, and holidays were usually spent walking through Central park or washing out lingerie in the tiny white bathroom that adjoined her bedroom.

The model house had begun to share such a large portion of her daily routine only within the last month. It wasn't exactly that she had been lonely or felt the need of reaching out for more warmth and color in her meticulous and rather drably ordered existence that she had requested a private key for early visits to the model house. It was because of something that Bertie herself didn't quite realize—something soft and maternal that had been aroused by daily association with six synthetic rooms in a department store.

Those ashes, however, must be dealt with immediately. And it was more or less up to Bertie to deal with them. If she informed Mr. Kendall, the head of the home furnishings, of their presence, he might put an espionage system into effect that would prove rather embarrassing. Plainly they had to be solved quietly and silently and by only one interested party.

Bertie assumed her new responsibility that evening.

She outwaited the last straggler in the home furnishings department, sitting plunged in apparent absorption behind her desk. When she was certain that the employes' elevator had made its last trip and that the operator of the employes' elevator had exchanged his vertical method of traveling for a horizontal one in the subway, she walked through the doorway of the model house and looked over a spacious closet that opened off the hallway.

It was almost in a direct line with the front door, excellently placed for watching the ash vandal. Bertie then proceeded to the kitchen and appropriated a yellow stool, which she carried back to the closet. She settled herself upon it and prepared to wait as cheerfully as possible in view of the fact that her stomach told her that dinner would soon be served at the hotel.

At last she was rewarded—those were certainly footsteps picking their way across the floor to the model house. Her heart began to hammer, but she thought of her adopted child and applied her eyes assiduously to the crack.

A tall figure of a man—a man whose shoulders drooped a bit and whose face was hidden by the turned-down brim of a felt hat—appeared in the doorway. He fumbled for the switch, found it and flooded the hallway with light.

He stood for a minute looking about him and then pulled off his hat and ran his fingers through a shock of steel-gray hair. He made his way into the living room and Bertie heard him moving about with gentle, careful footsteps.

For a vandal he did not sound particularly destructive. Bertie slid cautiously out of her hiding place and tip-toed across the hallway concealing herself behind a red lacquer screen adjacent to the living-room door. She peered inside.

THE man had made himself thoroughly and comfortably at home on the divan. He had a newspaper in his hand, his shoes were off and he was tugging contentedly at a pipe!

Bertie trembled with righteous wrath at the sight. She cast off all fright and addressed the man in a voice that carried more than a suspicion of the school-ma'am in it.

"Are you aware," she said, "that your ashes are falling all over the divan and probably ruining it?"

The man sprang to his feet and stared at Bertie.

"Who are you?" he asked slowly.

"Miss Brannon, of the home furnishings department, and in charge of this model home," she stated crisply. "Who are you?"

The man didn't answer. He dug into the pocket of his coat and pulled out a hairpin and held it up accusingly at Bertie.

"This, then, belongs to you?"

Bertie looked at the hairpin. It was a sturdy wire one—the kind she always used.

"Perhaps," she admitted, "but what has that got to do with your ashes?"

"Only that I've been trying to track down its owner for a long while. I've been finding them all over—on the divan, in the kitchen sink, in the cactus plant."

They glared at each other for half a second.

Then——

"Now that you have found out, what do you intend to do?" asked Bertie.

"What do you intend to do about me?" countered the man.

"Ashes," said Bertie, "are a menace to any home."

"So are hairpins," said the man. "You have no idea what a menace a hairpin is until it works its way out of a divan into your third rib or chokes up the growth of your pet cactus."

"Your cactus!" exploded Bertie. "You don't own this home. Clark & Co. does, and I, by the way, am its—"

"Guardian?" supplied the man. "I fancied that I was playing that role, but perhaps, after all, it needs a woman's touch and hairpins."

He sighed and started to fold up his paper. Under the glow of a bridge lamp his long, lean face looked rather wistful. He didn't look like a very nice man. But what on earth was he doing around the model house of nights, knocking pipe ashes around and at the same time keeping an eye out for interloping hairpins?

"Who are you?" Bertie asked again. Not like a district attorney this time, but with genuine interest.

The man hesitated and looked at Bertie. The rays of the bridge lamp made her very soft and shining—like the pictures of women confirmed bachelors often find at the end of their smoke rings.

"John Hathaway," said the man.

Bertie had coped with many situations in her life, but never before with such an embarrassing one. John Hathaway, she knew, although she had never laid eyes on him before, was "And Company" of Clark & Co. He owned the model house, the aisles on which it stood—her job. He could flick ashes all over store executive meetings if he chose, and she had just called him to task like a maiden aunt for leaving his ashes on his own divan.

"I've b-been an awful busybody," stammered Bertie.

"Oh, I wouldnt say that—even if you do leave your hairpins around. You seem to be fond of this house. More so than your department requires or knows, I suspect. But I don't blame you. It's a nice place."

"It's a beautiful place," said Bertie, almost reverently. "I—I have sort of overstepped my job on it. You see, I like to be alone here. I have a private key and I come here every day early, before the sun is up, and just live in it for a little while. I found ashes here a number of times and thought some person — some park-bench vandal or burglar was frequenting it, so I decided to watch tonight and find out who it was. It was all very presumptuous of me."

"Perhaps," said Hathaway, "it's just as well that we discovered each other's hairpins and ashes before the store detective did. Then we might have had to do some explaining. As it is, we don't have to explain to each other why we were here."

Yes, thought Bertie, if you are an interior decorator consultant and live in a tiny bandbox of a room in a women's hotel, you don't have to explain why you like to stretch and nestle in six beautiful, homelike rooms. But why, if you are a merchant prince?

Mr. Hathaway appeared clairvoyant "Well, then, Miss Brannon, even a bachelor business man gets a snug feeling out of a homelike place."

He pulled into his overcoat and picked up his hat. Then he leaned down and with an awkward movement brushed a mound of ashes into the palm of his hand.

It was a gesture that touched Bertie.

"Don't," she said. "Let them lie. Haven't you heard—that ashes keep out moths?"

"Do they?" he asked in almost childish relief. He glanced at the living room that lay in brooding peace around them. Its curtains drawn securely against the roar of the city outside. A strange and lovely home, tucked away in the vast, empty shell of a big store.

"Well, good-by, Miss Brannon," he said, pulling his eyes away with an effort. "I guess I'll be leaving."

Bertie took his proffered hand shyly.

"I've driven you out of your home, I'm afraid," she said, "and it makes me feel ashamed. But you can come up here any time now without fear of encountering hairpins—for I won't be coming any more."

"That's nonsense," said Hathaway, "when I'm turning it over to you without any ashes—for I won't be coming any more."

"Oh, no," said Bertie. "It's your house!"

"Not at all. It's yours!"

IT HAD been rather disturbing—the whole evening—especially the wistful look on Mr. Hathaway's face as he left.

She turned out the lights carefully and went home to the women's hotel.

November merged fleetly into December. Clark & Co. arrayed itself in Christmas finery and stood ready behind mountains of augmented merchandise to serve thousands of Christmas purses. Its show windows spilled over with temptations. Its battlements glistened with winking lights, bobbing ornaments and long serpentines of tinsel. Through the store filtered the fragrance of evergreen and holly.

The model house had donned holiday attire, too. The order had come through with a "must" from the executive offices. Bertie carried out the order faithfully, although she didn't set her alarm clock for the crack of dawn any more nor linger lovingly over the picket fence after 5 o'clock.

She had gone back to the model house just once—very furtively, one morning early in December—but it seemed changed. Its precious sense of belonging to her was spoiled. A faint aroma of tobacco seemed to cling to the air and she found herself looking suspiciously for ashes. She couldn't find a trace of them. Nevertheless, it was impossible to settle down comfortably. There didn't seem to be a cozy spot in the entire six rooms. She paced about restlessly, looking for something. Finally, in disgust, she left.

She told herself that she wouldn't allow her personal attitude toward the model house to interfere with her business attitude and she did a highly artistic job of clothing it in festive raiment. She went down to the Christmas tree mart at the freight terminal on 10th avenue and walked about the flatcars loaded with green trees from northern timberlands.

SHE hung a holly wreath with a great splashing crimson bow on the front door and put wreaths in all the windows. Honey-colored tapers flickered behind the panes and sprigs of mistletoe dangled in strategic points—to the delight of newlyweds who journeyed to the model house to learn a lesson or two in "what to give the house for Christmas."

She outdid herself, although it was only in the interests of her job, of course. Mr. Kendall, of the home furnishings department, patted her tweed-clad shoulder and told her she was a credit to the company.

But it all made Bertie a little sick. As the calendar raced along toward a big, red-lettered 25th on her office desk, she grew bluer and bluer.

Every morning she woke with the first dim streaks of dawn and tossed restlessly until it was time to get up and proceed in orderly fashion to Clark & Co. The streets churning with bundle-laden shoppers, the excitement in the air, the roar of the great holiday bazaar that was Clark & Co. now, only contributed to depress her more and more.

She wondered in frequent odd moments about John Hathaway and would blush over her shrewish entrance that evening in the living room of the model house. He must think her a sentimental, interfering idiot, if he thought of her at all; But, of course, he didn't. The head of a big city store—he had more momentous things on his mind.

Strange, though, that there hadn't been a note in her pay envelope: "This is to notify you that Clark & Co. is no longer in need of your services."

One, after all, doesn't usually call the owner of a big department store to account and get away with it.

And then she would wonder if he ever came back evenings to the little house.

HABIT had always played a large part in John Hathaway's life. Up until the time he had discovered the model house he had the habits of a confirmed bachelor. Office, clubs, occasional dinners at the homes of married men friends, week-ends down on Long Island. When he forced himself to fall out of the habit of dropping up to the thirteenth floor of the store, evenings, it had been a severe wrench.

He didn't know what to do with himself. In his overconvenient apartment on Sutton Place, which his renting agent assured him was "equipped with all the comforts of enlightened latter-day construction," he was lonely. His solemn Tudor furniture didn't invite lolling and careless ease. His Long Island place oppressed him as too far away from things.

The sparkle of the Christmas season drew little response from him. Thebusiness end of the store was absorbing, as it always was, but evenings he felt like an alley cat!

Once he had weakened and crept up to the model house like a thief in the night. But every creak sent a panic through him.

Drat that girl! She had ruined the place for him. It was a wonder he didn't have her fired from the store. He seemed to feel her presence everywhere in the house. He couldn't sit still on the divan—he found himself hopefully searching for hairpins under the cushions. Primly scooping up furtive ashes. He was in a tremble and a cold sweat the entire time. He was most unlike himself. He didn't like it at all, and he left.

Odd moments, in the midst of dictating to his male secretary or just before he went to sleep at night, he fell to wondering about that girl. He wouldn't whole-heartedly admit it to himself, but he was rather afraid of women.

However, it would be good business policy to have the model house togged out for Christmas. Like the Christmas cards he saw of little homes with tapers in the windows and a wreath on the door. He sent the order through.

Up until 8 o'clock on Christmas eve Bertie had been planning to attend the services in a nearby church. A business friend had assured her that they were most impressive.

She stood in front of her mirror in her tiny bedroom knotting a beige scarf about her throat. The reflection in the glass didn't please her. It looked unhappy. Well, she was unhappy. She didn't know when she had felt so blue before in her life.

Suddenly she sat down in a chair by the window and began to cry. Her busy, self-sufficient existence flopped on her hands. She was lonely—so lonely that she ached in every fiber. She could picture endless Christmases ahead of her, spent in business suits in solitary ten-by-twelve hotel rooms. Planning homes and budgets for other people. Matching draperies and rugs and china, while she went homeless and lonely and unhappy herself.

She wanted a home of her own—now. Not when she would be too decrepit to enjoy it. A home where she could heap a crackling fire on the hearth Christmas eve and call in friends to admire the tree. She wanted a yellow kitchen stocked with yellow dishes, a wardrobe full of soft silk dresses. And [illegible] one to come in and say: "Bertie, dear, you're beautiful in that blue thingamajig! Come and light my pipe."

The last was too ridiculous—but she wanted it terribly.

SHE wiped her eyes on the back of her hands like a child, and looked out the window. Brilliant winter sky—stars, and moon, and a shining whiteness drifting over everything. Christmas eve. Well, what was to be done about it?

There was one thing she could do—one place where she could go. Up to the thirteenth floor of the store. She had helped to make that place beautiful.

She started to pull on her brimless black felt hat, hesitated, then threw it on the bed. She jerked off her tweed suit, rummaged in the closet and brought forth a black lace dinner dress that she sometimes wore to buyers' dinners.

It looked uninspired, but perhaps over a tubelike pink silk slip * * * there, that was really lovely. Interior decoration taught you things about exterior decoration if you only had the sense to know it. Black pumps with bright buckles. Loosen natural, wavy scallops in the hair. No hat * * * winter coat hugged about one as if it were an evening wrap.

She went downstairs and the doorman didn't recognize her when he called a taxi for her.

The cab drew up before Clark & Co., standing strangely silent and deserted after the hordes that had stampeded it all day. Bertie got out, paid the driver and walked around to the employes' entrance.

She stood for a moment looking up into the winter night. She felt oddly happy and contented.

Inside, the store lay deep in slumber, washed clean of the babel that had inhabited it only a few hours ago. Vestiges of the shopping maelstrom lingered on the floor—scraps of tinsel, patches of white tissue paper, slips from clerks' pads.

The counters over which so many hands had passed throughout the day were shapeless forms under their swathings. The last foot-weary clerk had gone * * * the last tired bundle-wrapper. The great Christmas bazaar was over.

Bertie climbed the twelve flights to the home furnishings and groped her way down the dark aisles to the model house. Around a corner by the kitchen linoleum a beam of light suddenly straggled out to meet her.

She stood transfixed. The whole house was lighted up. Tapers glowing in the windows—a spray of colored lights from the fir tree. Carelessness on the part of the janitors, no doubt. They were always in such a hurry to get home to their own hearths Christmas eve.

She lifted the latch and stepped inside. It was good to be home. She took off her coat and fluffed up her hair in front of the hall mirror. Then she walked softly into the living-room door.

Some one was reclining on the divan, feet on the imported cushions, ashes tumbling from a pipe.

"Oh," gasped Bertie, "oh!"

John Hathaway rose guiltily to his feet. For a moment her loveliness quite took his breath away, then he smiled, and Bertie smiled shakily back.

In that brief, transient instant it dawned on both of them to whom the little house belonged—to whom they belonged.

"Welcome home," said John Hathaway.

"Welcome home," said Bertie Brannon.

Wouldn't It Be Nice

Wouldn't this old world be better
If the folks we meet would say
"I know something good about you,"
And then treat us just that way.

Wouldn't it be fine and dandy
If each handclasp warm and true
Carried with it this assurance
I know something good about you.

Wouldn't life be lot's more happy
If we praised the good we see.
For there's such a lot of goodness
In the worst of you and me.

Wouldn't life be lots more happy
If the good that's in us all
Were the only thing about us
That folks bothered to recall.

Wouldn't it be nice to practice
That fine way of thinking, too,
You know something good about me.
I know something good about you.

A PRAYER.

A prayer for those within the dreary places—
The dull, the strange, the erring of all lands,
Who face the future with despairing faces,
And stretch forth pleading, unavailing hands;

The slaves of poverty, the heirs of weakness,
The arrogant who will not heed commands,
The spirities who wear a coward's meekness,
The desperate who spill life's creeping sands.

O scions of the wise and favored races,
O revelers along the sunny ways,
O holders of the prized and vantage places,
O sharers of the bright and happy days,

I beg a momen'ts pause with earnest faces,
Which common blood and fatherhood demands,
A prayer for those within the dreary places,
Who stretch forth pleading, unavailing hands.

HELPERS

Dear Social Corner Friends: With many thanks to the editor for my prize check, which I am sure will be very much appreciated, as it has been sent to a small boy who has been saving the nickels and dimes hoping to get enough to pay for some storm boots to wear to school this winter.

This boy's father is gone and the young mother with her small income and no work is having a hard time to make brother and little sister and herself comfortable this year.

A social worker has suggested that every family do something to help out some other family less fortunately situated now.

That certainly would be carrying out the Christ spirit of the holiday season.

We can all help by kind words, if not financially able to do good and generous deeds this year.

A friend comforted many by giving them her motto. "Everything will come out all right if you keep cheerful." How often that has been true, when we have started to worry ourselves into a nervous breakdown, then the thought came to us, why not wait until we are sure there is no hope, and the cloud passed and comfort and cheerfulness and thankfulness took possession of us to stay.

IMPROVEMENT.

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: Must get a letter to the Corner before the Christmas rush.

We have had splendid letters the past few weeks. Let the good work go on. We all like to open our Saturday paper on a full page, and so if we each write occasionally we can have it.

Have been interested in the gardens and what was harvested in the vegetable line.

Betsy Bobbett: Am sure you did well, and how good those different things will taste!

Am also interested in the books that are being read. Tastes differ so. Just now I am reading "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer by Yeats Brown. Have just read an article by Lowell Thomas on the life of Yeats Brown and found it very interesting. I seldom indulge in deep heavy books. I like the light airy ones best.

I am sure we all enjoy the radio. Presume you all listened in when that beautiful cup was presented Sir Thomas Lipton, the world's finest loser.

It was a wonderful tribute to a fine man. What did you think of Will Rogers' letter? Have you ever tuned in at 10.45 p. m., Sunday, and heard "The Githerin at Seth Parker's?" For homely old fashioned religion, it is fine. It takes me back about 40 years when we use to have such old fashioned prayer meetings.

I have had to miss some of the Social Corner dinners as I was not feeling well, but I thought of you and what a delightful time you were having.

Dorinda: Am sorry you are having to bear so much pain, and sincerely hope you will soon be well and be able to meet with us again.

Ma of Greene Gables: Was sorry to hear you are not well. Hope you will soon be better. Saw your daughter and she told me.

Wisteria: You and your helpers served us a wonderful dinner at Club No. 1's meeting, and we thank you.

We had our annual supper and sale, Dec. 4. There was the usual line—fancy work table, candy table, handkerchief table, grab bag and best of all, a fine supper of baked beans, brown bread, rolls, meat loaf, a variety of salads, jellies and apple sauce and all kinds of cake and coffee. We had after all expenses were paid, $81, so we felt repaid for all work.

Kind Editor: I wish to thank you for my yellow slip; unexpected, but greatly appreciated. The other dollar I received I sent to a friend in Massachusetts, who has been ill for a long time and told her to get some dainty with it.

As I do not expect to write again before the holidays will wish you all a merry Christmas.

OLGA.

CHRISTMAS GREETING.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: We are nearing the time of year when all hearts should be glad, for we know that all over the world little children are counting the days till Christmas comes; and fathers and mothers hiding away sleds and skates and dolls and books and games where sharp eyes shall not see them till they are brought out to give joy on the day of days.

And we older ones who, especially at this time of year, are but children of a larger growth, we rejoice with the boys and girls and tiny tots just learning what Christmas means, and our pleasure in seeing their enjoyment, mingles with happy memories of the Christmasses of our childhood.

I send a poem for the poetry column which will help us to think also of those who are alone and sad or in trouble, when it seems that all the world around them is glad.

These verses were printed on the Corner page some years ago but they will bear reprinting as we have many new members. At that time, one of the Corner writers asked for the author. I saw the poem in a Collier's magazine many years ago, and, liking it, cut it out and pasted it on the wall of my room, and, the print being large, I read it often enough so the words became fixed in memory. The printed words were lost finally so I cannot give the author's name.

All good wishes to our editor and the members of the Social Corner for a happy Christmas season. My celebration begins quite a while before the 25th and continues many days afterwards in the old-fashioned way.

I hope all who are sick may be well enough to enjoy Christmas day and all who are lonely or sad may find good cheer and comfort.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES

QUID NUNC: Letter sent as requested.

CALORIES.

Dear Editor and Sisters: Last Thursday I attended a food demonstration given by Mrs. Dakin and I was told to write about it so they could check up and see if I told all about it. I just wonder if "they" thought my imagination had been working over time in some of my letters. How about it, Topsy? Hadn't I better have a powerful imagination than not write at all? Now you just know you would miss me if I didn't write, Mr. Milky Way says they have to be awful careful about what they do, or they see an account of it in The Bulletin. But, I have to write about something, don't I? And just imagine me on the sunny side of 200 writing about counting calories! If you don't practice what you preach how should I expect any one else to?

Mrs. Dakin showed us, by making cocoa, that if we make it with half milk and half water that one-half cup makes 100 calories. And calories, by the way, are a unit of measure for measuring heat. That 100 calories that we have in one-half cup of coa are so many units of heat and those measely little units of heat are the bane of contention for the pleasingly plump lady. But more of that directly. By adding a tablespoon of cream to that one-half cup of cocoa instead of water we only get one-half as much in the 100 calories. And when we make it of all milk, one tablespoon cream and extra sugar we only have three tablespoons in the 100 Cs. She also showed us the difference in clear and cream tomato soup, getting a whole cup of clear soup where we only have one-half cup cream soup. I think many of us know that it is fats and starches which turn to sugar in our bodies that make these extra pounds. Every blessed thing we eat has those terrible calories. (Of course we would change our tune if we were under weight.) While green vegetables have less we should fill our tummys with them so we can't hold any starchy things. For instance: Two heads of lettuce, 30 or 40 radishes, 20 stalks asparagus and so on (of course without any dressings) count 100 calories while the starchy ones like baked beans, 1-2 cup; peas, 2-3 cup; green corn, 2 6-inch ears; make the count go up. Many people have the impression that toasting bread reduces the caloric count, but no, no, and no matter what kind, dark or light, one slice from an average loaf, 1-2 inch thick with no butter, has 100 calories; but listen, slice it thin and have two slices, 1-8 inch think. You can fool yourself a lot if you only try. Dark breads are more easily digested but the calories are just the same. When giving up starchy foods don't eliminate potato entirely from list because it contains mineral salts necessary to good health. The best way to reduce is to cut down a little on everything you eat but eat everything (not every thing, you see, but some of every thing). If you can go a day, perhaps two days on liquids only, your stomach shrinks so it doesn't take so much to fill it and you are satisfied with less. And that liquid may contain skim milk, bouillon, the liquid from canned peas and string beans, etc. One-half pound a week is plenty to lose at a time and over a longer period is better, because if you reduce too fast the skin does not have a chance to shrink with the fat and you will have a lovely crop of wrinkles to get rid of.

While trying to reduce, don't ever pick between meals or taste things when seasoning. That all counts in the end. If you really must eat candy (chocolates, 1, 100 C) or nuts, which are very high in calories, eat them before a meal and then cut down on the portions at mealtime. Remember a piece of cream pie may be had for desert if you eat a head of lettuce and a slice of Melba toast for lunch. Melba toast is a very thin slice of bread dried out and browned in the oven. By the time you have chewed up a slice you decide one is enough, consequently less calories. And let me tell you what Pyrethrum did. She brought a cake; it was delicious and everyone wanted the recipe. And here-in lies the tale. Remember this meeting was how to eat to grow thin. It contained 3-4 cup butter, 1 tablespoon 100 C; 1 1-4 cup rolled oats, 2-3 cup 100 C; 1 lb dates, 6 dates 100 C; 1 1-2 cups sugar, etc., and of all things, whipped cream on top. Wasn't that the most aggravating thing you ever heard of? (Of course I ate some, I shall begin dieting after Christmas.) I can just imagine what some people are thinking when they read this. I didn't know but I would name a few who should follow these instructions, but on second thought, guess I'd better not.

Pyrethrum: Now you send in the rest of the recipe.

Coonie: Glad you are feeling better. How was the show?

American Girl: It will be all right.

Pernickety: That list of books would be good to have on hand but I wouldn't want them for a steady diet.

Sister Rhody: Milky Way is attending state grange. Did you go? Do your Christmas shopping early and mail early as well as buy plenty of Christmas T. B. seals.

CHECK YOUR FOOD HABITS

Dear Social Corner: This letter is to be a continuation of the one I wrote recently on home demonstration work. Most of the local group meetings are held in the afternoon. When the subject is nutrition, only one or two kinds of food are prepared and tasted by the members. In our community we decided to have this meeting a mid-day affair and conducted it like the training school one.

The members brought the raw foods and prepared the luncheon under the direction of the leaders. Although it was a rainy day, there were 25 present at the luncheon. The table was decorated with green and yellow crepe paper, candles and paper napkin cups containing candy. Have you seen the gum drop candle holders that have a life saver peppermint for a handle? It is fun to make them and they are cute. The napkin cups are easy to make, too.

After the dishes were done, the chairman called the meeting to order. The secretary called the roll and then the meeting was turned over to the two leaders. They explained the purpose of the project and scored the members on their food habits. There was a big difference in the total scores for they ranged from 20 credits to 95. Of course everyone is expected to improve her score as this checking up will be done at each meeting.

What are your food habits? Have you ever checked them up to see if you are eating the foods that will keep you healthy? Here are some of the remarks that were made at the meeting: "I don't drink enough water." "Potatoes are the only vegetable that I eat." "I drink coffee at every meal." "I never drink milk." "Eating sweets between meals is my failing." So you see most of us need to pay more attention to our eating habits if we are to keep well.

Adult's Food Habits Score Card

Milk—For adults over 20 years, 1 pint daily	20
3-4 pint daily	15
Vegetables, other than dried beans and peas. Potatoes may be included as one serving. Three servings daily	15
Two servings daily	10
If one serving is a green or raw vegetable add	5
Fruits, fresh, canned or dried. Two or more servings daily	10
One serving daily	5
Orange or tomato—Two servings weekly	10
One serving weekly	5
Meat (lean), fish, eggs, cheese, dried peas and beans. One or more servings from above daily	10
Whole grain products—One serving daily	15
Five servings weekly	10
Three servings weekly	5
Water—6 to 8 glasses daily	15
4 glasses daily	10
Deductions
Use of over 2 cups of coffee or tea or both daily	10
Eating sweets between meals several times weekly	10
Complaining about food	10

This score card does not cover a complete diet but seeks to show the user where she stands with relation to certain important food habits.

MAKES WOOLEN RUG

Dear Social Corner Readers: I am sure it makes us all happy to receive the Social Corner page. Such a lovely method of exchanging ideas.

I have made a rug of heavy woolen squares, each one foot square, cutting a cardboard six-pointed star, and using odd pieces of skeins of woolen yarn. Catch yarn at back of cloth, bring over and catch at opposite side of point, inserting back and forth till top of point is reached.

After covering each cardboard point, I clip through center which will leave the cardboard pattern free, and leave a lovely wool star. Mine is pink and light blue, sewed together as patchwork blocks, and lined with heavy material, bound, they are beautiful. I also have a patchwork quilt of the old nine-patch pattern, the white is entirely of flour sacks, also the lining which makes a very comfortable quilt and launders well.

Having no place to spare for my Christmas work, and not wanting it scattered through the living rooms, I procured a packing box, 20 inches square, lined with flour sacks, padded top and covered sides and top with cretonne. This serves as a window seat and is useful for sewing, or storing packages.

A clay pipe inserted in a spool of darning cotton, a poke bonnet, skirt, shawl fastened with a darning needle and small work-bag containing thimble, with card, and verse from Miss T. D. Clay makes an acceptable small gift.

My sympathy to the sick and regret to learn of the loss of members. Wishing one and all a Merry Christmas.

THE BANSHEE.

MAKES GOOD USE OF BAGS

Dear Social Corner Editor and Readers: I am going to write to you about the Song of the Bags, as I play it twice a week.

Instruments—Galvanized tub, glass washboard, super suds, P. and G. soap, spring water and I am the operator.

Chorus: Rich man, poor man, beggar man, thief; doctor, lawyer, merchant, farmer; some dress in velvet, some in rags, some in silk and some in bags.

With me it's a farmer and bags. I have five grain bags for a sheet for big bed and two or two and a half grain bags for crib sheets. I have three cribs in use. One grain bag makes a pillow case, two grain bags make a pair of bloomers for myself and sugar bags make bloomers for two-year-old. I made slips out of grain bags. Nightgowns, two 25 pound sugar bags, cut kimono style, neck faced with pink bias binding for baby; two calf feed bags, necks faced with blue, for three-year-old, two cattle salt bags, neck bound with orange for four-year-old. The colors help the little children distinguish their gowns. Hubby's night apparel is also made of grain bags.

Towels, hand towels and dish towels from grain bags. Hemmed household salt bags make good every-day handkerchiefs and strainers for dutch cheese. I use sugar bags for strainers for jelly and pork scraps for lard.

I took four grain bags, sashed with pretty percale and put a wide border of percale around edge and had a very pretty serviceable bed spread.

Out of dyed grain bags I have boy pants to be worn with percale blouses, overalls, sun suits, rompers and overalls.

So I say all thanks and praise to the bags.

Hope Cobweb: I'll say you had a dozen peas in your pot.

Hoping the sick ones are steadily gaining is the wish of

XMAS SHOPPING ALMOST FINISHED

Dear Social Corner Members: I have imagined so many of you having a nice time at Club No. 3's meeting today. Had hoped to be there, but could not be away for all day, so went to see "The Big Trail" this afternoon. It's a fine picture and I enjoyed it very much, but would not care to see that kind every time I went. No doubt others do not feel as I do. While seeing a picture I just live right in it and seeing hardship and troubles that come rather takes one's strength sometimes.

Most of my Christmas buying is done and now comes wrapping the packages which is the hardest part for me. I think it's fun to make them attractive, but oh, so tiresome. I once remarked that to a clerk one time when I was buying gifts and she said she thought that was quite an idea for some to make a business of it and a chance to earn pin money.

Pernickety: I have recently read Mirthful Haven and liked it until the ending and then felt like throwing it as far as I could. I felt I had wasted my time reading it. I never have cared much for Booth Tarkington's stories, but a friend loaned the book to me and did not tell me how disappointed she was in the ending until I had finished it. I have just read Crimson Roses, by Lutz. That was quite like the books of yesterday and very improbable, but I liked it so well I read it through on Sunday afternoon.

Dec. 16 will soon be here when we shall hope to see a good number at Club No. 6 meeting in Mechanics' hall, Westerly. Ignatz is to be hostess and American Girl is to have charge of the programme so we are assured of a good time. Come all who can and bring something good for the dinner. I made a cake by a new recipe today that came out fine for a hurry up cake.

Beef iced cake: Cream 1-4 cup butter with 1 cup of sugar, add 1-2 cup sweet milk and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Then add 1 1-2 cups flour that has been sifted with 1 teaspoon baking powder. Mix well, then fold in the whites of two eggs that have been beaten stiff with 1-2 teaspoon salt. Turn into a shallow well greased pan and cover the top thickly with thinly shaved unsweetened chocolate. Bake in moderate oven 1-2 hour. As soon as it comes from the oven sprinkle thickly with powdered sugar. I put the sugar in my flour sifter. We liked it for a change.

SEED CATALOGUES AWAITED

Dear Social Corner: It seems I left out a word in my last letter, where I was comparing R. I. Johnny cake with the southern corn pone, "pone" being the word omitted. Can any of our southern sisters tell us if they are alike?

Thanks to the editor for my yellow slip. I am keeping it until the new catalogues come.

I. C.: Hope someone can tell you what you asked about your snuff box. Thank you for answering my query about the none-so-pretty. I can't name the plant from the description, (sounds like sweet rocket), but it surely wasn't a Johnny jumpup.

None-So-Pretty: Won't you tell us what your name flower looks like?

Canterbury Bell: Where are you? Tell me what flower you call none-so-pretty.

Milky Way: Did the rats come back to be counted?

Sister Rhody: I wish you could help me look at the catalogues, also. Well, why not? If Club No. 4 happens to have a meeting in Danielson in February why can't we tuck our favorite seed catalogues under arm (the new ones will be out by then) and fare forth to meet and compare notes? Then Pernickety could join us, and perhaps some of the other garden grubbers. What do you say?

RAISES 150 BUSHELS OF CORN

Dear Social Corner Friends: Although our page was not quite full last week, I found it most interesting. We all wanted to hear from our ex-war nurse, Miss Elster R. Bengs.

Sussana: We are much amused with your experience with Joseph C. Lincoln. We always read his stories because they are so unusual.

J. C.: I want to tell you we raised 150 bushels of white Rhode Island corn this year and ground it ourselves and we think it the best ever. Ask Buffalo. I did some of the cultivating and some of the husking and it was real fun. The cattle get theirs as "cob meal," but ours is shelled before grinding. We are raising some young stock, sheep and my special charge, a little pig.

Wiltwyck: I was pleased to get your recipe for shredded wheat pudding. I make cookies with egg, sugar and nuts with shredded wheat.

The holiday season promises to keep us very busy. Some of us dread it, but we will hope to get new joy and some sweetness from the memories that cluster around it. As Cheerio just quoted: "Where it is all sunshine it is a desert," and somehow there is a use for the pain that nothing else can bring.

So, with best wishes for the best holidays ever,

THIRTY-TWO.

HEADS NON-FICTION LIST

Dear Social Corner Friends: "The story of San Michele" has been at the head of the list of best-selling non-fiction for months now. And if you have read it, you won't wonder at the fact. It is writen by Axel Munthe an ex-doctor and it is a rather rambling tale of incidents in his busy life. The book is fascinating, truly; it is one of those rare stories which one feels impelled to finish as quickly as possible once he has started it. "Memories and Vagaries" published this fall in this country was written a number of years before "The Story of San Michele."

If you like Kathleen Norris' stories, then you certainly like "The Lucky Lawrences." It seems to be on a level with her other recent work and it was a great relief to me that none of her unmanageable characters drove off a cliff in a fog as they have been in the habit of doing in previous novels.

I wonder what the title "The Waters Under The Earth" is supposed to signify? I am only half-way through it—perhaps I'll find out before I finish reading it. It isn't nearly as interesting to me as her first book, "Wild Geese." Each chapter is more or less complete in itself and tells of one of the seven Welland children. By the means of this loosely woven narrative one is made to feel the frustration of the family as a whole, dominated by the father Matt Welland who supports his family meagerly by the composition and sale of religious tracts. Carlotta, the youngest is the only one to escape the destiny that held her older brothers and sisters under the father's power. Not a very pleasant story.

If the series of articles entitled, "The Secretary of the President," are all as interesting as the first, then I think I shall try to have first grab at the Saturday Evening Post when it comes. Everett Sanders, who writes these articles certainly ought to know what he is talking about for he was President Coolidge's secretary. In this first article he tells of the troubles in sitting the president's callers, Lindbergh's reception in Washington, and the famous statement, "I do not choose to run in 1928," as well as a number of other topics of equal interest.

The young lady in "Young Man of Manhattan" has my sympathy. She hated to change ribbons in her typewriter and so do I! Just fixed mine and smudged my fingers and then my nose for good measure. So, now, I've got to stop and wash them off.

ENJOYS BOOK REVIEWS

Dear Social Corner Friends: As I am alone I will improve the opportunity to send Christmas greetings to you all. What five letters are appearing on our page. I so enjoy the little book reviews by Pernickety and others. I noted with pleasure recently that Mark Sullivan has another volume out. Our Times—Pre-War America, I believe is the way the title reads. I am hoping our library will have it in due time as it already has the two earlier volumes of the series. I am now pegging away at The Story of Philosophy by Will Durant. It seems good to renew my school day's acquaintance with Socrates, Plato, Aristotle and the others and I understand them so much better now than I did then. I read some where recently that one can buy Lewis Browne's, This Believing World, now for only $1. Although I have had this fine book from our library three times. I am planning to make myself a Christmas gift of it as I feel it is one of the books I cannot afford to be without.

I discovered years ago that when one's mind is occupied with entertaining and instructive reading matter one is far less concerned with material wants, either real or fancied, and that makes the reading habit especially helpful in these days. I cordially recommend this habit to those who are unhappy and restless because they cannot buy as many luxuries as the Jones's have. I wonder if Sister Rhody, like myself, is a native of our country's "biggest little state." I remember as a child hearing mother sing:

"In little reddy Rhody's heart
There glows a spirit loyal,
And in her children's veins is found
A blood as good as royal."

I think this must have been a Civil war song for the chorus ran

"Then give the lead to gallant Sprague," etc., and he was the war governor. I well remember Canonchet, his beautiful home at Narragansett Pier. It was burned some years ago.

I have read with interest the recipes for Johnny cakes. I can make dandy ones of the griddle variety, but have forgotten the rule for the oven variety. Mother had a fine recipe for this latter kind. I always add sugar as well as salt to the meal, but cannot tell just the proportion of each ingredient. I have the dough much too thick at first and reduce it with milk. I prefer the white bolted meal to all other kinds.

Glad to see another letter from our new member, the former war nurse, and hope she will write often. Here is an epitaph for the sister who collects them:

"Beneath this stone, a lump of clay,
Lies Arabella Young,
Who on the twenty-fourth of May Began to hold her tongue."

EVELINE BURR.

SLOWLY RECUPERATING

Dear Social Corner Folks: After a long silence, I greet you with all good wishes, love, and sympathy to sorrowing ones. I want to thank you all for your cards and letters during my recent serious illness, from which I am slowly recovering. You see I was most too ambitious. I had a chance to take boarders. The state is building the largest fish hatchery in Maine here at Dry Mills, so, of course, experienced workmen came from Augusta, I had five, several bosses. I did enjoy every minute of their stay with me. Help was scarce and I overdone until October 1st, I retired. Oh, so tired, and I didn't know anything of what was going on for 11 days. Had four nurses and for a whole month I was confined to my bed. Doctor thinks my recovery a miracle. But here I am and here I am agoing to stay.

The fall was marvelous, no very cold weather nor snow, only now and then a flurry. The 25th of November we had six different kinds of weather in one day. In the morning there was a drizzling rain until noon when at p. m. the rain came down in bucketfuls, one steady downpour for half hour. Clouds parted and sun shone, but only for a few minutes when they closed again. At 4.30 p. m. it was thundering and continued to thunder until 6 o'clock when there were flashes of lightning and very sharp, and at 7 o'clock it was snowing hard, but melted as soon as the sun came out next day.

No snow for hunters who spent their time during the month of November in the woods trying to get a deer. There wasn't as many shot as usual; seemed to be scarce. Our lake is quite low, need rain badly.

Looks winterish when you see snow fences; there is one out in the grove. A bungalow is being built on the lake shore.

The Wilson property, grove, pavilion, dining room, store and a cottage, is for sale, owner's health failing.

How fast time flies. I don't do much, but the days are so short and nights most too long.

Many houses are being built on this street and many more are to be put up in spring. A man from Orlando, Florida, is to build himself a summer home.

Diana's sister has my sympathy. Diana and I corresponded for most 20 years. I miss her letters as well as many others. Those who have lost dear ones have my sympathy, and those who are ill also. I never thought I had so many friends, but now I know. I know a person has to be in trouble to find out just who their friends are. I am delighted to see the Social Corner page overflowing; was afraid it was going out of business, but pleased to see so many getting busy, and such interesting readings. I am pleased to get a chance to write the ex-war nurse. Yes, I think her box quilt will be pretty and I wonder if she would like to make an umbrella quilt, if so, I will be pleased to send her the pattern. I like it quite as well as the butterfly pattern. Wishing our editor and the Social Corner family a Merry Christmas and happy New Year. I will say au revior.

SUGGESTS CARD SHOWER

To Editor and Members of The Social Corner: This will not be a pleasant Christmas for some of our members. We have just heard that Olla has broken her hip and is in the hospital. Will some one send her cards to help pass the time while she is in bed. Her name is Mrs. Laura Jones, Hartford Hospital, Hartford, Conn.

Wish all a Merry Christmas.

AGE IS MOSTLY MEMORIES

Dear Social Corner Editor and Readers: The following remark came from a man of 56: "I am getting to be an old man and it is time to drop out of things. I should not work as I do at present, and I should conserve what strength I have." I will quote an answer.

"What is the hurry to drop out if health and strength are good. As long as a man feels good, well and strong, why give so much consideration to passing years. It is not years that makes a man old, it is the mental point of view; and right living should be as vigorously indulged as in youth. Why draw a drab curtain until it is necessary to your life. Thinking yourself old is going to age you unnecessarily. Better shake yourself loose from this bugaboo. Throw back your shoulders and be a real man or a real woman. As time goes on your experiences are riches, and you live more easily and gain better results if you use your head. Take an interest in everything around you, do things which keep you young, enthusiasm, and a purpose high enough to keep you constantly at it, are essential. Good humor counts big also. I don't know of a more fitting answer or advice to the one who thinks he is old at fifty.

I was asked a short time ago, "Is it hard to grow old?" My reply was, "I am not old yet, but as far as I have gone, it hasn't required any great effort." It is not as nice as to be always young. Much depends upon what you have to remember. If you tramp many fields when you are young, you can sit in your easy chair and tramp them over when you are old. Age is mostly memories, and to have enough memories one must stay young a long time, or many years. Soon you will grow old, in fact, and winter will whiten your hair, but what joy to be alive and young, with companions of your own age. Do you wonder that memory loves to linger over these happy times and places. Dear is the price of memory. Go to sleep; shut your eyes in reverie, and dream of your childhood and young manhood companions. Sing a song as you journey along.

Isn't it pleasanter to look back to the pleasing things of life, such as attending social parties and dances and huskings, and snap up around the chimney in the old farm house, sleigh rides in a H. M. J. sleigh, beauxing your best girl home and the good night or morning. You may guess the final at the door. Isn't those innocent pass times to think of better than selecting your grave clothes or looking into a coffin? Don't get old, and don't cross bridges until you come to them.

An old friend whom I had known many years, whose soul passed into spirit land, two years or more ago, at the age of 93 years. I know for a fact he always maintained the same cheerful disposition. No cloud was so thick or dark that he didn't see a silver lining to it. He was young at 90 years, because he wouldn't grow old, neither would harbor the thought of growing old. He kept active in body and mind, to within two years of his death. I have a letter he wrote to me in reply to mine congratulating him on his 27th birthday. It came on Sept. 24th, the day following mine, the 23rd. His composition and penmanship was superior to many at the age of 50. He was entertaining to both old and young. Some contrast to a man with whom I, with other men, boarded in the winter of 1864 and 65, in the state of Delaware. I don't think Mr. S. ever smiled in his life.

One Sunday morning I came downstairs from our sleeping room. Mr. S. was sitting by a very small corncob fire in a large open fireplace. We exchanged the usual morning salutation, he barely raising his head from his hands, as he rested his elbows on his knees; he seemed to be in a reverie. Someone of the men upstairs commenced to whistle some lively tune. Mr. S. raised his head and asked me if the song was a carnal song that was being whistled? I replied, "I don't know whether it is a carnal song or a tarnal song." Soon the whistler appeared on the scene. The question of the character of the song was asked of him who gave some off hand reply, "Well," says Mr. S., "I don't know where you'll go when you die, if you whistle such tunes Sunday morning." "Do you ever think about dying," asked Mr. S. The reply was that he had never given it a very serious thought, more than he knew he would die when the time came. Mr. S. said, "There hasn't been an hour for the past 40 years that I haven't thought about dying." "You didn't have much time to think of anything else, did you?" was asked.

What pleasure was there in life for such a person? Always groping around in a grave yard, looking into his coffin and selecting grave clothes, cheerful. That man was dead, as you might say, but he didn't know it. He could ask the longest blessing of anyone I ever knew over a breakfast of toasted crackers soaked in water, milk and butter for four rugged timber cutters, and when the dish of crackers, (only this and nothing more), ran low, he would ask, "Susan, any more crackers." "Yes, pa, two more," says Susan. We each paid a good price for board, but had very little substantial food; meat for dinner only. At the end of two weeks we left Mr. S. to his pleasing thoughts.

A number of years ago, in 1889, I was in Danville, Va., on a business trip. During my two weeks' stay there, a noted "back woods" evangelist, the Rev. Sam Jones of Cartersville, Ga., was holding a week's series of meetings, dedicating a new tobacco warehouse. I attended several meetings. In one of his discourses, to illustrate a point, he told a very humorous story convulsing an audience of nearly 5,000 with laughter. On the rostrum with Jones were seated 40 or more deacons and ministers from churches far away and nearby.

While the audience were laughing, not one seated with the preacher, offered, or expressed even a smile. When the confusion subsided, Jones turned to those on the rostrum and said in thundering tones, "Why don't you laugh? You remind me of a lot of tomb stones, with no inscriptions on them." Another laugh.

I wonder if such people sing a song as they journey along, or do they think always about the coming of the death angel?

American Loyality: The tin peddlers of the olden times have nearly all gone to where they will no more sell pumice soap for shaving soap, or a new fangled oil can for an old Dominion coffee pot. The first one that I remember was Lester Appley, more than 75 years ago. He often put up at our house over night, paying in tinware, glassware, mop stick, broom, or anything in his legion of articles for the accommodation. Fifty cents was the accustomed price for supper, lodging and breakfast, and all the hay and grain the horse would eat.

Then there was Peter Morse, "Whistling Tayler," Elias Jennes Darwin Tracy, Amos Bill, Mr. Holdridge, Mr. Tifft and the old veteran, Mr. Neff, of Willimantic. A few years ago the last named gave up the business with his nicely equipped cart for the purpose for which it served. Now, in his declining years, he has taken up the business of collecting old papers, rags, metal, etc. He will give you value received.

The old thoroughbrace cart with leather springs that teetered forward and back, instead of up and down, like an iron spring, must have been consigned to some museum of antiquity. Their disappearance came with the passing of the peddler. Your description of the cart and arrangement of its contents was perfect.

I never saw one, among the many, that didn't have the same style of equipment, outside and in. The peddler's experience was varied and interesting. As a rule he was accommodating and dependable. His wares were mostly exchanged for rags, papers and old metal. Occasionally he had a cash customer. It was not a jolly fisherman as printed in The Bulletin, but a jolly Irishman.

Capricorn: I think I have the sorrowful and pathetic poem written by Mrs. Sigourney of the bell of the wrecked steamer Atlantic.

Lone Eagle: I presume you have my personal letter I wrote to you by this time, telling more of family history. I was then but two months and three days old when the wreck occurred, not two years, three months and three days old as The Bulletin printed it. I am old enough without the addition of two years.

I wish all members of the Corner and those not members, a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

BUSY AS A BEE

Hello Everybody: Did you think I had taken that vacation Sister Rhody prescribed? I have been canning veal, making preparations for a family reunion Thanksgiving dinner, doing all work for my family of five and from three to five hours of chores a day. I haven't been out of yard for over four weeks. If you call this a vacation, I am having one.

Sister Rhody: I shall try your vegetable chowder as I am very fond of soup, chowders and stews. I enjoyed your letter about vegetable gardens. You have my sympathy as I have been all through it myself.

Hope Cobweb: Thanks for household helps, it helps me fix my kettles so I managed to cook Thanksgiving dinner without borrowing. I met you a number of years ago; hope I'll have the pleasure again.

Thanks for all who so kindly sent in Christmas suggestions—Ivy, American Girl and others whose names have slipped my mind.

Sumac: Thanks for letter about lamp shades. Hope to get to city some day and get material for one. Glad you got a prize. Always enjoy your letters about home life. I quite agree with you about going and doing work, but my husband is just the opposite. So you carry "access leaf lard," as Dr. Hedge calls it. I have been also, but last time I was weighed I lost 16 pounds in 12 weeks, so feel there is hope for me.

Betsy Bobbett: I believe we don't live far apart. Hope we can span the space sometime.

PERSIS STIRRED TO ACTION

Dear Social Corner Members: I have been an interested reader for many years, but I must confess to being very negligent about writing. The letters of Quid Nunc and Pernickety have been very interesting but the ones in the last paper which have stirred me to action were those of Improvement and Sumac. I don't know these writers so don't think I am personal in what I say.

Your writing, Improvement, was not inclosed in quotation marks, so I assume the ideas were your own. You say, "Before a child reaches school age he should know how to read and understand simple number work and the foundation facts of geography and history, etc. All of this he will learn as simply and easily and naturally as he learned to talk if he can hear some one talk it each day."

Improvement admits: "this requires time and effort on the part of some one each day."

Can you imagine a busy mother stirring up a loaf of cake or chasing a shirt up and down a wash board to the tune of "seven times five are 35—eight times five are 40" or "Columbus discovered the West Indies in 1492," while baby plays happily on the floor with his blocks? Oh, no, he would never do that he is probably busy with his type writer while his eager mind is absorbing those facts as a sponge absorbs water. I have spent many an hour in a class room putting as much energy into it as I would in sawing a cord of wood trying to instill those same facts into minds that were more like blocks of granite than sponges. But probably my system was all wrong or maybe I didn't catch 'em young enough.

That is my first objection, Improvement. It just can't be did because all children are not parrots, and even parrots are at times pernickety. Not only that, but I wouldn't if it could be done. I agree with you in that a child's training begins at birth. There are many, many fundamental habits that must be formed from the moment that he comes into the world and our chief concern should be that he should get these at the same time he must be given a sound, healthy body that comes only with right habits of eating, sleeping, etc. If we do all this besides trying to teach him how to conduct himself toward those around him, also do all the work of caring for the other members of the family we have all we can manage I assure you.

I am very much against forcing children when too young. What happens to all these infant prodigies we read so much about? Are they brilliant successes in later life? No, they are just as apt to be criminals. And some mother's "little Johnny who is so stupid in school" may be the successful man in later life.

An article I read recently in a magazine raised my ire. A mother wrote how she and her doctor husband trained their baby at an early age to walk by putting an electric heater in back of the baby as it lay naked on the bed and thus it

INDUSTRIAL AND RAIL STOCKS AT NEW LOW LEVEL FOR THE YEAR

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—The stock market mustered enough courage to advance during the early hours of today's trading, but finally lost heart and closed lower. Bonds steadied in large turnover, but corn and cotton were soft, the latter closing 65 cents to $1 a bale. Recent support for wheat was maintained.

The average decline of exactly a point in 90 stocks was sufficient to put the composite in new low ground for the year. Of the three component groups industrials and rails made new lows; utilities held a point and a half above the old minimum. The market was quiet throughout and sales dropped sharply from yesterday, totaling 2,024,520 shares.

Prominent equities, for the most part, maintained a fairly good tone, despite the late reaction, and much of the softness was of the spotty variety. Oil and motion picture issues had to absorb rather active selling. Nearly a score of the former, including Standards of New York and California and Texas Corp., penetrated previous resistance points. Standard of New Jersey sagged under 50 and was off more than a point net. Paramount lost 2 in a large turnover.

The drop in bar silver to a record low, the weakness of cotton and offers of copper at 10 1-2 cents by the custom smelters indicated that rough places in the commodity situation had not been entirely ironed out. Furthermore, there were reports that further cuts might be made in California crude oil prices if curtailment was not more successful. In addition, the weekly retail and wholesale trade summaries were rather negative, and hence incentives for much of a rally in stocks were lacking. In their prices the leaders were a point or two higher, but the shorts refused to be drawn in and the market slipped from early afternoon until the close.

Dun's review says various uncertainties were keeping the business situation obscure, adding the "persistence of commodity price unsettlement remains an unsatisfactory aspect," and that only "isolated instances of steadiness" had developed. Holiday shopping has been retarded in some sections by unseasonable weather, Bradstreet's point out, asserting that the volume of December trade equalled the value of a year ago at only a few centers.

Two and a half per cent call money was a surprise. The rate had held at 2 since Sept. 29 and renewed at the old figure today, only to move up shortly after noon. The rise was generally attributed to withdrawals by banks seeking to increase their holdings of cash. Firmer money would be normal at this time of year, for the Christmas season naturally brings the largest demands for currency.

Weakness of bar silver was said to have contributed to the decline in cotton, particularly in Liverpool, where business from China has been brought to a standstill, because of the break in the metal. The December contract here sold as low as 9.70 cents.

Corn's net losses ranged from 5-8 to a cent, reflecting increased receipts in Chicago and large Argentine exports. Wheat closed virtually stationary. There were reports of cold weather in the southwest and a better export demand was noted.

Bethlehem Steel was heavy in the late trading, sinking 2 points to a new low. Rails showed some irregularity.

One or two point losses in Atchison, Canadian Pacific, Union Pacific and New York Central were offset by advances in Rock Island, Southern Railway, Frisco and Pennsylvania.

U. S. Steel, one of the stocks to rally 2 points, closed fractionally lower. General Motors, General Electric, Westinghouse, DuPont, Kennecott, Radio and American Can closed steady to firm, but American Telephone turned a 2-point advance into a similar loss during the last half hour.

Conspicuous weakness was shown by the "A" stock of Burns Brothers, a New York city coal company, which broke 26 points. The selling was said to represent forced liquidation. Anaconda Copper, Paramount, Fox Film, Eastman Kodak, Transamerica, Standard Oil of New York, Standard of California and Texas Corp. lost 1 to 2.

Foreign exchanges eased. Canadian dollars were quoted at slightly firmer rates, but leading Europeans sagged. The Spanish peseta lost more than a third of a cent.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Active trade in corn today accompanied rapid price shifts that contrasted sharply with an almost deserted wheat market here. Dealings in corn were covered largely by changes of quotations on securities, with holders of corn rather free sellers at times. Chicago wheat reflected the influence of government-sponsored agencies, and was unaffected by word that Winnipeg July delivery had dropped to a fresh seasonal low-price.

Corn closed nervous, 1-2a1 1-8c a bushel lower than yesterday, wheat irregular, 1-8 off to 1-4c up, oats 1-4a 3-4c down, and provisions at 2a25c set-back.

COTTON

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—(AP)—Futures closed barely steady, 13 to 20 points lower; spot quiet; middling 9.85.

MONEY

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—(AP)—Call money firm; high 2 1-2; low 2; ruling rate 2; close 2 1-2 per cent. Time loans easy; 60-90 days, 2 @ 2 1-4; 4 months, 2 1-4; 5-6 months, 2 1-2. Prime commercial paper, 2 3-4 @ 3. Bankers' acceptances, unchanged.

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. is adding machinery to the Dixie plant at Gadsden, Ala., and will increase output to 7,000 tires a day from 6,000. The working force will be increased by about 400 men.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—(AP)—The curb market steadied today, and trading shrank to a volume of only 539,100 shares, or about 70 per cent of yesterday's turnover.

Along with the big board, the list worked higher at times, but was inclined to sag on the late trading. Most net changes were narrow.

Electric Bond and Share was firm for a time, advancing more than a point, but it closed up only 1-8. American Gas and Electric gained a fraction. Associated Gas A sagged 1-2 to a new low, and American and Foreign Power Warrants dropped a point to a new minimum. In light trading, Northern States A gained 3, while Nevada California lost 5.

Oils were soggy, along with those on the stock exchange. Gulf slipped off a point, and Humble and Indiana declined fractionally to new lows. Cities Service closed at 17, off only 3-8. Columbia Oil lost yesterday's gain of a point.

In the industrials, Deere rallied 3 points, Aluminum Co. and Aviation Corp of the Americas, about 1. Driver Harris and Wayne Pump sagged about a point, and Western Air Express tumbled nearly 4 to a new bottom at 14. An odd lot of American Book, which rarely trades, appeared at 100, a gain of 27 3-4 points.

The foreign issues have been extremely inactive in this market this year, but Montecatini appeared for the first time in a long while, at 9, a new low, off 1 1-4.

Investment company issues moved narrowly. United Founders was heavily traded, but closed about unchanged. Goldman Sachs sagged nearly a point.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—After a four-day period of steadily declining prices, signs of an upturn developed in the bond market today.

Attracted by the high yields afforded by issues that have been unduly depressed, buyers were more active than they have been in some weeks in accumulating domestic corporate issues. The railroad list, which had led the decline, was the chief beneficiary of buying interest and gains in some instances were as large as the recent daily dips.

A few utility and industrial issues joined the advance but buying was of a highly selective character and bidding was cautious. Selling pressure was considerably lighter, however, and the average declines were more moderate than in recent sessions.

The turnover held at the highest level of the fall season and for the second successive day exceeded the $12,000,000 mark.

The bond market totally ignored the advance in call money to 2 1-2 per cent for the first time in three months, regarding it as indicating only a temporary firmness in the money market. United States obligations were actively higher, and the average gains were 3-32nds of a point—the best since the group reached a new high level for the year a month ago.

Most of the large gains in the rail group were registered by convertibles and second grade issues. Allegheny corporation 5s of 1949 and 1950, Baltimore and Ohio 4 1-2s, Rock Island 4 1-2s and Chesapeake corporation 5s advanced 1 1-2 to 2 1-2 points. St Paul 5s of 1975 rebounded 2 1-2 and Erie lien issues gained 3 points. Lehigh Valley 4s rose 4, Western Pacific first 5s, 4 7-8, and Frisco 4 1-2s were up 1 1-2. Many second grade issues which as a group have followed the trend of shares closely moved into new lows for the year.

The downward trend of foreign loans was featured by the reaction in Italian bonds. In an unusually large turnover the government 7 per cent loan dipped 3 points and closed 2 5-8 net lower.

The German group was again soft. The 5 1-2s sagged a point, and there were larger declines in bank issues and some of the industrials. Firmness of Argentine obligations was in sharp contrast with softness in other Latin Americans. Bolivian 8s reacted 12 points on a few sales and the 7s dropped to a new year's low at 39, off 5 on the day.

CONTINUANCE GRANTED IN CASE OF STEDMAN'S OFFICE ASSISTANT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 12. — Before Judge Oliver H. Williams in the Friday morning session of third district court was arraigned Harriet H. Stone, alias Evelyn Main, who is alleged to have come to Westerly from Pleasant street, Fall River, Mass., and was the office assistant of Joe Stedman, Westerly printer, at the time of the death of his wife, Alice E. Stedman, when both were held as coroner's witnesses. On complaint of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, she was charged with being a lewd, wanton and lascivious person in behaviour on Dec. 1, 1929. She was arrested on Dec. 12th by Officer Charles E. Button and appeared in court with Mr. Stedman, being represented by Attorney John J. Cooney of Providence.

A plea of not guilty was entered when her attorney waived the reading of the complaint, saying he was not ready for trial, and had the case set down for trial on Friday, Dec. 19th, a week's continuance. Mr. Cooney said that he thought the matter of bail was unnecessary as he agreed to produce her in court and requested that she be allowed to go on her own personal recognizance. He said that she wanted to stay in Westerly as she had found a place in Westerly where she can make a living. She was released in the custody of her attorney.

E. E. Smith, Jr., given a court summons by State Trooper John F. Kennedy, and Murray Diamond, summoned into court by State Trooper Sherwood F. Healy, failed to appear in court and their cases were continued at the regular court session.

Samuel I. Cohen of 114 Empire and 174 Niagara streets, Providence, charged on Nov. 22nd with the operation of his Buick coupe on the Noosenek Hill road between Hope Valley, R. I., and the Meeting House bridge, said he desired to change his plea of not guilty entered a week ago and continued a week to one of nolo. Trooper Kennedy informed the court that a speed of from 68 to 70 miles an hour was clocked and that from nineteen to twenty-one cars were passed by the accused, and two cars at Murray's garage and that the roads were wet. His record was read to show that on Jan. 14th last he was before the state board, his license suspended on July 18th and restored on July 30th and that on Oct. 4th he was fined for speeding. The defendant declared that there was room when he passed autos and traffic was not heavy. The trooper declared that traffic was heavy by reason of the football game traffic to the Yale-Harvard game. Judge Williams stated that he apparently had denied the rights of everyone else and found him guilty, imposing a fine of $100 and costs.

"I will appeal that", said Defendant Cohen and John Pucci continued as his bondsman in the sum of $500 for his appearance in the February term of Washington county superior court.

Two new civil writs were entered as follows:

Peerless Blade Co. of New York vs. Michael D. G. Papalia, book account for $88. Continued two weeks.

Jesse James Tanner of Brooklyn, N. Y., vs. Abraham Klein et al., a suit for $500 for damages to a motor truck in a collision in the town of Richmond, R. I., near the Whitford filling station Nov. 9th. Continued two weeks.

Three months continuance was granted in the state police probation cases against Tracy W. Kenyon and George W. Thayer.

Continued nisi were the cases, Boston Lightning Rod Co., vs. M. Chrenzis and Massachusetts Bonding Co., vs. Lawrence H. Hepworth.

DAMAGE SUIT IS CONTINUED TO NEXT WEEK

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 12—When Washington county superior court adjourned on Friday afternoon at 4:15 the automobile accident damage cases being tried as one, Greta Smith, Cecelia Smith, Hannah Sullivan and James McMillan vs. Edwin H. Tompkins, of New York and Narragansett, R. I., continued to be heard by Judge Jeremiah E. O'Connell and jury and will again be taken up next Monday morning when the newly summoned jurymen are to appear.

Greta Smith on Friday morning continued her testimony on the witness stand as to how fast the open Packard auto driven by Chauffeur Alstrom, for Mr. Tompkins, by whom he was employed and had taken the three employes of the Sturges Narragansett summer home for a drive to Wickford and return by Tower Hill road where the smash occurred in which all were taken to the South County hospital. She said she felt the auto traveling at a high rate of speed, veer to the left, miss a tree and telephone pole and that was the last she remembered of the accident. She said the auto traveled so fast it took away her breath and upon Attorney Flynn's interrogation "Did you get it back again?" Judge O'Connell interrupted. "Well, she's here now!"

Miss Smith was followed by Dr. Gifford, who attended the injured butler, James McMillen, who visited the Tompkins' household where he testified that he and Alstrom mixed cocktails and had two each while they were waiting for a concert to be over and to take the plaintiffs on the auto ride.

Clerk Thomas V. B. Pierce of the second district court, on the witness stand, testified to the chauffeur's being brought before him and in lieu of bail being held in Washington county jail until a bondsman appeared from whom he took the bail.

FUNERAL

John J. Joyce

On Friday morning funeral services for John Joseph Joyce, life-long resident of Westerly and well known granite cutter for over 28 years, who died suddenly Wednesday morning, was held at 8:30 o'clock from his late home, 7 Chestnut street. A high mass of requiem was celebrated at 9 o'clock at the Church of the Immaculate Conception by Rev. J. B. Capesius, S. M.

During the service, Martin H. Spellman sang "Face to Face," and Thomas V. Clancy sang "Calvary."

Interment was at St. Michael's New cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Fr. Capesius. The bearers were George Spargo, James Conway, Timothy Daley and Joseph Rowan of the Stonecutter's union, and Louis Blackburn and Richard Opie of the Modern Woodmen of America.

Saturday evening in Odd Fellows' hall, Porter-Loveland block, Washington county Odd Fellows will be the guests of Narragansett lodge, No. 7, at the Odd Fellows' rooms on High street at a get-together meeting which will be one of a number of social functions being arranged by the county lodges this winter.

The meeting will be attended by members of Mechanics lodge, Hope Valley; Friendship lodge, Carolina; Gibson lodge, Peace Dale; Columbia lodge, Wakefield, and Beacon lodge, Wickford.

For Washington county jury service in the term of superior court now being held in the Union street courthouse with Justice Jeremiah E O'Connell on the bench, nine Westerly men have been summoned to report here next Monday morning. A part of a new panel called from Washington county, have been summoned by Town Sergeant George L. Madison. They are to report at 10:30 o'clock.

The Westerly jurors on the panel are: Charles F. Hammond, Edwin H. Clark, Louis F. Taillon, Harry Maud, Louis L. Matthews, Edward J. Whalen, Samuel V. Maggs, H. Russell Burdick and Edward J. Butler.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Willis W. Clarke was elected commander of Sedgwick post, No. 1, G. A. R., of this city, fifty years ago, and Tristram Cilley was elected senior vice commander. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Norwich Bulletin of December, 1880, are as follows:

Monday, Dec. 6, 1880 — Foster J. Wilson, for several years past in the employ of F. A. Wells Co., clothiers of this city, left last week for Norwalk, where he will represent an interest, with John C. Peckham, formerly of this city, in one of the company's stores. He is a young man of fine social and business qualities and carries the best wishes of a large circle of friends with him from this city to his new position.

At a meeting of Sedgwick post, G. A. R., held at their hall on Friday evening, the following officers were elected for the coming year: Post commander, Willis W. Clarke; senior vice commander, Tristram Cilley; junior vice commander, William M. Perkins; quartermaster, John M. Brewer; chaplain, Joseph H. James; surgeon, H. M. Bishop; officer of day, George S. Towne; officer of guard, S. M. Porter.

Calvin L. Swan, about 15 years of age, had his right ankle stepped upon and severely injured by a horse between 7 and 8 o'clock Saturday night, while coasting on the Elizabeth street hill.

Tuesday, Dec. 7, 1880—The Trinity church fair, which opened at Breed hall last evening, proved to be one of the most interesting and enjoyable entertainments of the kind ever given in this city, and reflected much credit upon the excellent taste and good judgment of the ladies managing it. Refreshments in great variety were furnished and the tables of the fancy department were loaded with novelties in the way of cushions, tidies, pen wipers, etc., etc., of the finest workmanship and most elegant designs.

The judgment for $4,956.55 which Mrs. Mower, widow of General Mower and ex-postmistress of New London, secured in court against her successor in office, William H. Tubbs, she is unable to collect, the sheriff finding no attachable property of Postmaster Tubbs.

At a meeting of the Sunday school workers of Norwich last evening, it was decided to hold a series of normal class meetings in the city the present winter, and the Rev. J. H. James, N. L. Bishop, and the Rev. C. C. Frost were appointed a committee to make arrangements for the first meeting of the proposed series.

Wednesday, Dec. 8, 1880—The ladies of Christ church will meet this afternoon in the lower chapel to make final arrangements for the Japanese entertainment to be given Monday and Tuesday evenings of next week in Breed hall.

The hackmen in this city are paying too little attention to the city ordinances regulating the rate of fare for hacks between the hours of 6 o'clock a. m., and 11 o'clock p. m. They do not keep the rates posted in their hacks as required by the law and insist on exceeding the rates as fixed by the common council. Any citizen overcharged can complain of the offender. The fine is $10.

The Odd Fellows in this city are in such a flourishing condition and so strong in numbers that they deem the establishment of another lodge necessary.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar L. Dennis have returned to the city.

There was a flurry of snow flakes yesterday afternoon.

The cold weather was intensified yesterday.

Large strings of pickerel are being taken through the ice now.

Counterfeit trade dollars are in circulation in this part of New England.

Thursday, Dec. 9, 1880—The attendance at the evening school has shown a steady increase since the opening night. The largest number was reached on Monday evening when 39 were present. The school promises to be the largest ever held in this city.

The week for counting the pieces mailed at the postoffices of the county closed Tuesday night. The count in the Norwich city post office gave a daily average of 5,853 pieces. The whole number of letters mailed during the week was 12,586. The total number of pieces, 35,115. The business shows an increase of 100 per cent over the count of 1878.

The ice men in this neighborhood began to gather in their crop yesterday. Ice hereabouts was said to be eight inches in thickness.

Friday, Dec. 10, 1880—A lot of rock cod and blackfish arrived in this market yesterday from New London, as fresh and lively as if they had just been taken out of the water.

N. D. Sevin of this city was on the petit jury in attendance at the December term of the United States district court, which was dismissed Wednesday at Hartford.

The annual "hemlock raids" for Christmas trees will soon be made. No good farmer will post a watch dog in his lot.

The coal dealers are busy in supplying the orders of their midsummer buyers to whom they agreed to sell coal at the old price until January 1st. This early agreement is proving very advantageous to the buyers.

The Greeneville Literary club are to have their annual ball on New Year's eve.

Several of the merchants are giving their windows a holiday dress. The displays being made are exceptionally fine.

Saturday, Dec. 11, 1880—The Rev. Hugh Montgomery will deliver his last lecture in the Ghastly Foe series at three o'clock p. m. tomorrow. Subject, "Gospel for the People."

The steamer City of Norwich which has been laid up for repairs for the past ten days, went into service again yesterday.

The new ritual adopted by the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows will go into effect January 1st.

E. M. Frazier & Co., began to cut ice on their pond at East Great Plains, yesterday.

Norwich has lost its Music Garden. It is a good loss to this city, whatever it may prove to New London.

William Hill and Frank Allen left this city, last evening, for Florida. They will be absent three months.

POETRY

Pines

These are the trees for hill folk— men that toil
On cabined slopes, men on whose weathered faces
Is carved the story of the flinty soil,
Whose speech is stark like pines in rocky places.
Crowning gaunt hills, where rows of ragged corn
Wrench from earth's scrawny breast the season's yield,
There you will find the pines—tall kings that scorn
The soft rich lowland and the fertile field.

There are no stancher friends of man on earth
Than these bleak pines whose rugged stoic arms
Lift up no leaf to greet the summer's mirth,
Who stand unmoved by winter's dark alarms,
Steadfast through all the years, in sun and snow,
It is not strange that hill folk love them so.

—Anderson M. Scruggs in the New York Sun.

With Reservations

I long to be a gypsy,
And claim the earth as dower;
To live unpent, within a tent,
(If it had bath and shower).

Oh, to be a gypsy,
Sans chattel and sans care,
With my abode, on any road.
(Of course, with dainty fare.)

I sigh to be a gypsy,
And feel the wander-lure,
To leave behind, all things refine
(Except my manicure).

I yet shall be a gypsy,
Such freedom I shall know!
To heed the call, I'd barter all,
(But keep my radio).

—Albert Ford Mullady, in Kansas City Star.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Patient—"Five shillings for drawing one tooth. You earn your money lightly. Five shillings for a few seconds' work."

Dentist—"If you like I can draw it more slowly."—Punch.

The Pastor—So God has sent you two more little brothers, Dolly?

Dolly (brightly)—Yes, and He knows where the money's coming from; I heard Daddy say so.—A. C. L. News.

Newsboy (to gent who has nothing Rome, recently discovered, is appropriate) but I can't change it. Pay me when you are passing tomorrow, sir.

Gent—Ah, but anything might happen before than; I might get run over or fall down.

Newsboy (cheerfully)—Well it wouldn't be much loss, sir.—Humorist.

Employer (furiously)—Why hasn't this job been done? It's nearly a month since I told you to do it.

Office Boy—I forgot, sir.

Employer—Forgot! Forgot! Suppose I forgot to pay you. What would you say?

Office Boy—I should come and tell you at once, not wait a month and then kick up a fuss about it.—Midland Daily Tribune.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOM

V. F. W. AUXILIARY

The semi-monthly business meeting of R. E. Hourigan auxiliary, No. 594, V. F. W., of the U. S., was held at the post rooms, Olympic building, last Monday evening, Dec. 8, with the president, Mrs. Emma Kavanagh, in the chair.

A pleasing report on the Thanksgiving basket was read, netting a good sum for the relief committee, which has numerous calls, owing to the hard times.

Mrs. Peloquin, chairman of the relief committee, reported visiting a needy family and donating shoes and clothing for the children.

The members are all working hard to make a success of the ball which the Veterans of Foreign Wars are to hold. All proceeds from this affair will be turned over to proper authorities for the relief of the unemployed of Norwich.

The annual Christmas tree party for the children of the V. F. W. members will take place on Saturday evening, Dec. 27, at the post rooms.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS

The regular meeting of Sedgwick Woman's Relief Corps, No. 16, was held in Buckingham Memorial Friday afternoon with the president, Mrs. Iola Bjurstrom in the chair. Invitation was read from the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War for corps to attend their Christmas party. It was voted to give a donation to the Salvation Army. Officers were elected for the year 1931 as follows:

President, Mrs. Mary Whiteman; senior vice president, Mrs. Mary Austin; junior vice president, Mrs. Edna Browning; treasurer, Mrs. Grace H. Manning; chaplain, Mrs. Annie Newton; conductor, Mrs. Louisa Nelson; guard, Mrs. Lena Christman; first delegate to the department convention, Mrs. Minnie Fulton; second delegate, Miss Lola Belle Roath; third delegate, Miss Florence Seed. It was voted to invite the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil war and the members of the G. A. R. to the Christmas party on the evening of Dec. 26th.

Patriotic Instructor Mrs. E. Grace Fowler reported the presentation of a flag to the M. E. Sunday school in Uncasville; also there are to be two other flags presented in the near future. The meeting closed with the salute to the flag.

B'NAI BRITH AUXILIARY

There was a very large attendance at the regular business meeting of the Rose of New England auxiliary, No. 40, B'nai Brith, which was held Thursday evening at the Wauregan hotel The meeting was called to order and opened in due form by the president, Bettie Pasnik. A conference of the Council of Woman's Auxiliary Lodges is to be held in New York Dec. 13 and 14. Mrs. Pasnik, who is treasurer of the council, is the delegate from the Rose of New England auxiliary.

Following the regular routine of business, election of officers was held as follows: President, Mrs. D. Trachtenberg; vice-president, Mrs. M. Henschel; secretary, Miss Dorothy Pasnik; treasurer, Miss P. Abramson; monitress, Mrs. A. Pasnik; sentinel, Mrs. M. Cohen; guide, Mrs. A. Bruckner; guardian, Miss S. Nowick.

After the election of officers a joint meeting was held with the brother lodge.

CATHOLIC LADIES OF COLUMBUS

On next Tuesday evening the regular monthly social meeting of Mercier assembly, No. 12, will be held and will take the form of a Christmas party. The assembly hall has been fittingly decorated in keeping with this festive season. A large Christmas tree adorns the stage. Each member will come prepared to exchange a ten-cent gift. Miss Katharine Hallihan and her committee are busily engaged perfecting the entertainment and refreshment part of the evening.

At this meeting Miss Mary Weller, chairman of the Christmas donation committee, expects to have all her donations and will be ready to report

ODD FELLOWS

The regular meeting of Uncas lodge No. 11, was held on Monday evening and current business transacted, with the regular officers in the chairs.

Nomination of officers for the ensuing term will be held at the next meeting, Monday evening, Dec. 15, and it is hoped by the officers that a large number of members will be in attendance.

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS

The regular meeting of R. E. Hourigan post, No. 594, was held last Tuesday evening in the post rooms, Commander Kavanaugh presiding. Much business of importance was transacted. Comrade Burdick was elected chairman of the Christmas box committee. These boxes are to be sent to Norwich veterans in different hospitals throughout the country.

The chairman of unemployment ball committee reported much progress and a large sum would be realized for the unfortunates. An announcement of two new posts to be instituted was made, one in Saybrook and the other in Naugautuck.

COMPANIONS OF THE FOREST

At the next meeting of Nevins Carver circle, there is to be a Christmas party, each member being expected to bring a gift not exceeding ten cents.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

Summoned to Washington by Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of President Hoover's emergency committee on unemployment, Peter W. Collins, of Boston, Thursday gave to government officials details of the comprehensive program which has been launched by the Knights of Columbus to bring all possible relief to the jobless men and women of the country.

Mr. Collins, a former industrial expert of the United States government and later director-general of the emergency commission set up by the Knights of Columbus, which found employment for 500,000 ex-service men at the close of the World war, has been placed in charge of the work being done by the Knights of Columbus in the present unemployment situation.

The calling of Mr. Collins to Washington followed closely receipt by Supreme Knight Martin H. Carmody of a letter from President Hoover expressing his appreciation of an offer from the order to cooperate with the organization being formed by the federal government to deal with the unemployment problem. Mr. Collins held a conference with Colonel Woods, at which he gave the government official full information of what the Knights have done and are planning to do. Among steps already taken by the order are: A supreme directing agency has been set up in New Haven, Conn., to guide the activities of employment officers already established in each of the 48 states. Six hundred district directors have been appointed to direct the work of 2,660 local employment units.

MOOSEHEART LEGION

Mooseheart Legion, No. 124, at its regular meeting Thursday evening in Moose Home, with the senior regent, Margaret Comire, presiding, was honored by the presence of Deputy Grand Regent-at-large Mrs. Heckertheir from Mooseheart, who addressed the gathering in an interesting way. At this meeting officers were elected, the entire slate being unanimously reelected as follows:

Senior Regent, Margaret Comire; junior regent, Mary Edwards; chaplain, Margaret Mehrholtz; recorder, Rose Carter; treasurer, Nora Willet. This is the first time since the chapter was instituted that a senior regent has been elected for two successive terms. The appointive officers, as named by Senior Regent Comire, include: Guide, Teresa Waters; assistant guide, Martha Wunderlich; sentinel, Irene Potts; argus, Georgia Tomaino and pianist, Mabel Goldberg.

The chapter is to have a Christmas tree at the next regular meeting.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

Norwich grange had a class of 18 candidates in the first and second degrees at its meeting Wednesday evening in Grange hall, the work being by Leonard Staubley and Ralph Marsh.

In the competition for prizes offered by Mrs. Ida Richardson for the best collection of pressed and mounted native wild flowers the competition was so close that two first prizes were given, to William Tarbox and Mrs. Abbie Olson. Russell Waldo, an instructor at N. F. A., was the judge.

The grange voted a contribution to the Salvation Army and arranged for two Christmas parties, one on the afternoon of Dec. 24 for children of grange members and the other on the evening of that day for the members themselves.

Officers of the board of directors were elected as follows: President, Leonard W. Staubley; vice president, Telley E. Babcock; secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth W. Murray; treasurer, A. Lee Coles; auditor, Fred F. Armstrong.

Immediately after the meeting the home economics committee, Mrs. Edna Browning, chairman, presented a most interesting program. There were piano selections by Mrs. Abbie Olson and vocal solos by Mrs. Matilda Russell. The speaker of the evening was Miss Ruth T. Russell, home demonstration agent at the New London County Farm bureau, and her subject was Child Health. One of the features of the program was readings by William Tarbox.

Announcement was made during the evening that the grange would conduct an entertainment next week and also arrange for a New Year's dance.

YOUNG FARMER TELLS OF SLAYING FAMILY OF SIX

WILLISTON, N. D., Dec. 12—(AP)—A tangled tale by a 22 year old farmer, told piecemeal and with unexplained variations and gaps, tonight had revealed the slaying of an entire family near Schafer, N. D., but left the slayer's identity and motive obscure.

Bodies of four of the victims and parts of a fifth, all members of the Albert E. Haven family, were recovered yesterday, and search for a sixth, that of Mrs. Haven, was being pressed tonight, after the young farmer, Charles Bannon, had told officers where they were buried.

Bannon told a weird story of how the family was slain by Mrs. Haven with a hammer during a sudden fit of insanity and said he helped her bury the victims, but a short time later admitted that her body, too, was buried on the farm. Despite this, the youth steadfastly denied that he was responsible for the slayings. He was under almost constant questioning while search was being made for Mrs. Haven's grave.

The Haven family had been missing from their home since last February 10, and Bannon and his father had occupied the farm since that time.

FLEW AIRPLANE ACROSS THE ANDES MOUNTAINS

LIMA, Dec. 12.—(AP)—An army airplane, piloted by Captain Manuel Escalante, today successfully flew across the Andes from Lima to Huaraz.

A similar flight attempted yesterday by Lieut.-Comdr. Carlos Zegarra and Army Pilot Francisco Sales Torres was unsuccessful when they were forced to make a landing at Aija.

LAST OF OCCUPATION TROOPS LEAVE GERMANY

SAARBRUECKEN, Germany, Dec. 12.—(AP)—The last foreign occupation troops, a small contingent of 260 men —210 French and 40 Belgians—quitted the Saar region today.

Thus all German soil that was left after annexations by France, Belgium and Poland as a result of the lost war today was free from an erstwhile enemy after nearly 11 years' occupation.

The French and Belgians, whose sole function lately had been to guard the Saar railways, entrained for Bitsche, a garrison town just across the border in Lorraine, which now belongs to France.

A strong police force threw a guard around the Saarbruecken railway station square, but the precaution was unnecessary, for only a few hundred curious citizens had assembled to witness the historic event of the final departure of foreign uniforms from German soil.

There was no demonstration.

Planes Speed Food To Cities

STOCKHOLM—(AP)— Grapes from the Rhone valley and oysters from the British coast travel by night express to Paris. There they are without delay reloaded into the planes of the Paris-Malmo line, and the next day these delicacies are served in restaurants in Stockholm, Malmo, Gothenburg and Oslo.

learned to use its muscles to scramble away from the heat. My oldest child could stand at seven months and walk alone at ten months. The reason in my opinion was mostly colic. Its food didn't agree with it from the time it was born and it was doubled up with cramps and kicking its feet continually. Another reason was heredity. Its father, grand father and great grandfather and nobody knows how many more ancestors could never keep still a minute and be content

Improvement says, "Our school system ———is too slow—and there is no reason why the proper home teaching for all children of 18 months and more of age should not be made compulsory as part of the regular school system."

Just what does she mean by that? Does she mean that we should do as they do in Russia, take the children away from the parents and let the government bring them up?

Her last two paragraphs are very good and I agree with her most heartily except that I think one should be very careful about using ridicule in training a child. Many a sensitive child has been irreparably hurt by the wrong use of ridicule.

Sumac: Your letters struck an answering chord in my heart. I have eight in the family to care for and have no maid. I am very fond of reading and manage to read most of the magazines but books—no,no. I did start one a few weeks ago. You know when I start one I can't leave it alone until it is done. It wouldn't be so bad if I lived way off in the country, but here some one is bound to drop in, and imagine their thoughts when they find me finishing eating my dinner with a book propped up before me and surrounded with dirty dishes. I agree with you about housework but it takes a lot of courage to put that down in black and white. I want my children to have proper food and clothes and pleasant surroundings in the home. I want to enjoy my children while I have them with me and I don't want them to remember me as a constant nagger. I also try to help them with school work and music. I also make most of their clothes—and do all my own cooking except some bread and make some pastry to sell, as work here is very slack. I used to have outside interests being secretary of a Parents-Teachers' association and Community club but gave them up as a waste of time. I would join an organization if I could find one that would fit my purse and my ideas of what a club should be. Your ideas about school were very good. Teachers are too apt to put all in one lump and speak of "the child" very learnedly when we mothers know there is no such thing as "the child" that each is a law unto itself.

Quid Nunc: It was very kind of you to help me celebrate my birthday. Goldilocks and Three Bears would have loved to have had Tiny Tim all to themselves. His uniform suggested many stories to them—but I fear he is very modest.

Does anyone remember—PERSIS?

MONTVILLE

LOANING OF PLATES BRINGS SALESMAN FINE

Frank C. Hamilton, 21 Fitch avenue, New London, was arrested by State Trooper Eric Swanson of Groton barracks Thursday, on a charge of loaning a set of registration plates. He was given a hearing in the Montville justice court Friday afternoon, pleaded guilty to the charge, and was fined $5 and cost by Justice Oscar E. Church. Hamilton, who is employed as a salesman for the Thompson Chev. Co., of New London, had a prospect for a truck from Montville out last week and he liked it so well that Hamilton let the prospect try it over the week end. But the salesman made a mistake for instead of putting SX plates on he left on the XE plates, allowable only to be used for garage business use, such as demonstration and service car and salesmen cars.

Missing Ones Safe.

Mrs. Walter Mognik of Mohegan Hill farm, Montville, who was reported missing with her three children, age six months, six years and thirteen years, early Thursday morning was located Thursday afternoon in Greeneville, by State Trooper James Dygert of Groton barracks. Mrs. Mognik and children were recognized by an operator on the Connecticut Co. trolley who notified the police and they were returned to their farm in Montville. Alarm as to their safety was felt by neighbors and relatives, due to Mrs. Mognik suffering from a mental ailment for the past year.

Farewell Gift Of Watch.

A gold watch was presented Frank Hazeltime, Friday morning by the employes of the Cracker Caddy department of the Robert Gair Co. plant at Uncasville of which Mr. Hazeltime had charge until his resignation which went into effect Thursday evening. Mr Hazeltime has taken a similar position elsewhere.

Will Go To Taftville.

A large delegation of members of Montville post, No. 112, American Legion attended the meeting held Thursday evening at the Community house, with Commandor William Bolles in charge. Plans were made by the local post to attend the next district meeting, which will be held at Taftville, Thursday, Dec. 17. Following the business session lunch of coffee and doughnuts was relished by the ex-service men.

To Visit Woodmen.

Cochegan camp, Modern Woodmen of America will meet Monday evening. Following the business session Chef Albert Taylor will serve a supper to the members of the camp and a large delegation of members from Norwich and New London, who are expected to attend.

Several local basketball fans attended the game between the Plainfield Pros and the Detroit Clowns, in Plainfield, Thursday evening.

Earl Holmes has returned to his home in Uncasville following a business trip to Vermont.

The pupils of Uncasville school are rehearsing daily a Christmas play, The Magic Nut Cracker, which they will present at the school auditorium next week.

LISBON

At the Congregational church Rev. William J. Reynolds preached a thoughtful and helpful sermon Sunday morning on the theme What Is Christianity? He said Christianity is a character and a life—the possession and the manifestation of the life and spirit of Christ. That the healthy Christian life is lived in the world among men and is interested in their every-day affairs. It is lived in the caucus, at the polls, in the shop and the office and around the fireside. There is nothing which concerns the well-being of men that is alien to a Christian. It does not involve belief in the creeds of the past which have become outgrown. It does not demand an absolute acceptance of the inspiration of the Old Testament scriptures. It does demand, however, that a man who would become a Christian should bring his life into harmony with the life and purpose of Christ and accept Christ as the governing power of his life and endeavor through Christ to seek the redemption of the world. Christ's great and consuming desire for the human race is its redemption from sin through love. Unless the human race can put forth a better plan for man's highest good why not accept Christianity and live as Christ lived?

Blissville school house was sold at public auction Saturday afternoon the purchaser being Frank Moriarty of Lisbon bend.

The three-act play, The Little Fixer, given by the Dramatic club of Taftville Congregational church at Community hall Tuesday evening was well attended.

NEW LONDON YOUTH IN BAY STATE USES DERBY FOR BLOW-OUT PATCH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 12.—D. Francis Marston, Waldo Patrick Booth, Alfred Smith, Jr., and James White are in Franklin Mass., where they went by automobile today and where they will attend the Christmas dance at Dean academy tomorrow night. The trip of the quartet was not without incident, however, for while en route to the Massachusetts town a blow-out occurred. The youths were not supplied with equipment necessary to make repairs, lacking especially a blow-out patch. Marston was equal to the emergency for he used the crown of his derby to make repairs. This expedient enabled the autoists to reach the next town where permanent repairs were made.

Smith and Booth will pursue studies at Dean academy upon their graduation from Bulkeley high school. Marston is a graduate of Dean and while a student attained honors in voice culture, also received the "T. S." degree.

I. R. EMLOTT, PUTNAM, HITS ROSEMARY STREET CHILD

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 12.— William Kiley, 3, of 55 Rosemary street, is believed to have been not fatally injured this afternoon when struck by an automobile. The child is a patient at Lawrence Memorial hospital suffering from a possible fractured skull and internal injuries. Advices received from the hospital tonight indicated that the child may recover, but it will not be definitely known for a day or two whether the child has a fractured skull. The automobile was driven by Irving R. Emlott, R. F. D. No. 3, Putnam, employed by the Standard Oil Co., in this city and temporarily residing at 48 Sherman street. Emlott was arrested by Automobile Patrol Officer George Cockell and Patrolman Ernest Opperman, charged with reckless driving and was held in bail of $500 to answer in the police court tomorrow. Emlott was driving a Chevrolet coach at the corner of Crystal avenue and Rosemary street and within a short distance of the child's home, about 5 o'clock. When the child ran into the street he was hit and knocked down. Harold M. Cole, 105 Pequot avenue, was driving at the intersection at the time and picking up the child, he placed him in the automobile and rushed him to the hospital. Frank Nunes, 326 Crystal avenue, was a witness of the accident and he asserted that Emlott was driving at a high rate of speed when the child was run down.

SEEK THIEVING GYPSY IN CAR FROM NORWALK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 12.—The police of Norwalk this evening requested the New London police to be on the lookout for an automobile in which a group of gypsies is riding. Two of the number are women, and one of these is wanted for the theft of $37 from a Norwalk resident.

But two prisoners were locked up at police headquarters this evening, both being charged with intoxication and will be in court tomorrow morning. One of the men was arrested on John street by Patrolman Lawrence Hardy and the other was picked up on North Bank street by Patrolman Michael Dorsey.

JOSEPHINE STEWART, NORWICH, IS SENT BACK TO JAIL

Josephine LaSavage Stewart, alias Mahoney, formerly of Norwich, now a resident at 13 Truman street, where she maintained a room in the home of John Quinn, a cripple who has a police court record on charges of violation of the liquor law, was in the police court today charged with breach of the peace, within 24 hours after she was liberated from the county jail where she served a sentence for intoxication and breach of the peace. Today the woman was fined $10 and costs and returned to jail for a stay of three weeks. After obtaining her release from jail yesterday the woman went to the Quinn residence and last night she engaged in a quarrel with the cripple. Patrolman Louis Wheeler was passing the place about 1 o'clock when the loud conversation of Quinn and the woman caused him to go to the house. When he entered the man and woman were attacking one another with a flow of abuse and Quinn, who held a revolver in his hand, dropped the weapon upon the officer entering. An examination of the revolver showed that it was not loaded. The woman was inclined to be in a turbulent frame of mind and she was taken to police headquarters and locked up.

An offender charged with intoxication did not appear for trial so his bond of $25 was forfeited. He was arrested when he was found down in Williams park last night.

Another man charged with intoxication was given suspension of judgment.

BUMPED DANIELSON CAR— LIEUT. ALLEN HOAR AT FAULT

An automobile driven by Lieut. Allen Hoar, U. S. N., residing at 17 Henderson road, crashed against an auto owned by Ranson Liner, 28 Mechanic street, Danielson, early today and although both cars sustained so much damage that they were towed to a garage, Hoar did not suffer injury. Liner's auto was parked and he was not occupying it. Hoar was driving on Montauk avenue about 1:15 o'clock and near the corner of Pacific street the auto crashed against Liner's car, which was parked on the wrong side of the highway, but with the parking lights displayed. The police were informed of the accident and officers who conducted an investigation did not arrest either Hoar nor Liner. Hoar could not explain the cause of accident other than to assert that he did not observe the parked car.

Noank Driver Blamed

Frank G. Poole, Noank, was arrested early today charged with failing to grant right of way. He will be in the Waterford town court Monday next. Poole was driving along the New Haven turnpike and was on his way to the Rotisserie inn, Station 16. When the auto was opposite the driveway to the inn, Poole changed the course of the car for he intended to drive to the entrance of the road house. At the same time an auto driven by Samuel Blonder and which was en route to New London was about to pass. The two machines crashed. Neither driver sustained injury. Poole was arrested by State Officer William E. MacKenzie.

SIX MONTHS IN JAIL FOR SNATCHING HANDBAG

Walter Deninger, 20, former member of U. S. coast guard and of late residing at 19 Golden street, was in the police court this morning charged with theft. In the role of pocketbook snatcher last night he stole a pocketbook, money and bank book from Miss Flora St. Thomas, of 171 Broad street, as the young lady was walking to her home. Deninger pleaded guilty and was sentenced to six months in jail. He is also wanted in West Warwick, R. I., charged with theft, for several weeks ago, Deninger stole a watch in his former home-town. When Deninger completes his sentence at the county jail here, he will be given into the custody of an officer from West Warwick and taken back there for trial. Miss St. Thomas was walking on Broad street and approaching Hempstead street, about 8.45. She carried her purse, which contained $17, the bank book, a cigarette case and handkerchief and as she approached Hempstead street, Deninger approached from the rear and as he was about to pass, seized the purse. Deninger fled to Hempstead street, then into Federal street, where he outdistanced Miss St. Thomas. The young woman went to a nearby store where she notified the police. Patrolman Ernest Opperman, on duty corner of Main street and Crystal avenue, was instructed to maintain a lookout for the thief and ten minutes later the officer noticed Deninger approaching. The youth was intercepted and as he answered fully the description given him, Opperman escorted his prisoner to police headquarters. When searched, the cigarette case and handkerchief were found in his clothing and when stripped the money, which Deninger had secreted beneath his arm-pit, dropped to the floor. Deninger was taken to the rear of the building, corner of Main street and Crystal avenue, where the pocketbook was recovered. He denied stoutly having knowledge of the bank book. Today Miss St. Thomas had all withdrawals on her deposit stopped.

Mrs. Walter Griffin and infant daughter, of Fishers Island, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Mary E. Fox

The funeral of Mrs. Mary E. Fox was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at her residence, Fog Plain road, Waterford, and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

OBITUARY

Adolph Poissant

Adolph Poissant, 75, of 77 Main street, died last night at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where he had been a patient but a short time, ill with a complication of diseases. He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Philip Duffresne, of this city, and Mrs. Anne Gallant and Mrs. Albina Bauchained, both of Providence. Mr. Poissant had resided in New London only three years. Prior to taking up his residence here, he resided in Philipsville R. I., where he was employed by the Philipsville Wire Co.

Arthur C. Fuller

Arthur C. Fuller, 72, died last midnight at his residence, 126 Hempstead street, after a lingering illness, although Mr. Fuller's condition was not considered serious until about two weeks ago. He is survived by his wife and two brothers. Mr. Fuller was born in Deming Falls, N. Y., but had resided in this city many years. He was for a long time employed by the Corticelli Silk Co., being retired about six months ago when his health started to decline.

Five Will be Deported

The five aliens, Christopher Farrell, Manuel Prada, Jack Gonsalvos, Darniao Teixeria and John Buerch, who were arrested here yesterday by Immigration Inspectors R. W. Kenney and W. S. Bartlett, were taken to Springfield, Mass., this noon. The men, who are fishermen, obtained unlawful entry into this country and will be deported without delay.

Entrances Unlocked

The police last night found additional evidence of the carelessness of employers or employes in closing places of business. Patrolman Henry Hick found the entrance of Beach's garage, 127 Howard street, unlocked and Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey found the entrance to Lathrop's garage, 13 Montauk avenue, unlocked. The officers secured the entrances. Patrolman George McCaskey discovered the entrance to Bulkeley High school unlocked. He secured the building for the remainder of the night.

At a meeting of the Christian Endeavor society of the First Congregational church last evening the following officers were elected: President, Sidney Moon; vice-president, William Caird; secretary, Bertha Sistare; treasurer, Marjorie Lewis.

Dr. Lawler Dead

Frank J. O'Connor, 36 Parkway, has been informed of the death, at Dover, N. H., of his cousin, Dr. John C. Lawler.

To Lower Milk Price

The price of milk is to be reduced one cent by some of the dealers in New London as a result of a vote of the Connecticut Milk Producers' association at a meeting in Hartford yesterday.

At a meeting of Cecelia A. Sweeney post, No. 124, American Legion, held last evening the officers were installed and the ceremony, which was conducted by Edward L. Newmarker, of Rockville, assisted by Commander Pitcher, of Hartford, was the first installation of the post's officers. The officers seated were: Commander, Alice Harrington; vice-commander, Winifred Nagle; adjutant, Mrs. Ethel Fargo; financial officer, Mrs. Lucy Pfannenstell; chaplain, Mrs. Loretta Elwood; sergeant-at-arms, Mrs. Rose Chapman; historian, Mrs. Elsie Moon; publicity officer, Mrs. Florence Hermann.

At the annual meeting of New London Horticultural society last night the following officers were elected: President, H. S. Schlink; first vice-president, Miss Elizabeth Stark; second vice-president, William K. Turner; treasurer, William H. Bowker; secretary, Harriet W. Allyn; financial secretary, William J. Morgan.

The little son of Patrolman and Mrs. Frank Philopena, 30 Henry street, has chicken-pox.

Mrs. Moses Wilcox was in Westerly Thursday.

The meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of the Union Baptist church, will be held at 3 o'clock, Monday afternoon in the vestry. The Missionary society of the church will meet Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock with the president, Mrs. L. P. Allyn, Mrs. Elmer C. Hall and Miss Nellie Beebe will be in charge of the program.

The next to the last whist to be given by the Triple Link Aid association in Odd Fellows hall, was held Thursday evening with 22 tables in play. High scores in bridge were made by Mrs. Albert Wilson and George Johnson; low scores by Mrs. Sadie Phinney of Poquonoc Bridge and Rudolph Donath. High scores in straight were by Mrs. Charles Lorello and H. Reeves, low by Mrs. G. Reeves and Charles Anderson. Following play, gingerbread with whipped cream was served by the committee.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Wm. L. Pickard

The Tifton Gazette, Friday, Dec. 5, 1930, devotes more than two columns on the death of Mrs. Florence Willingham Pickard, wife of Rev. William L. Pickard, D. D., and sister of Mrs. Henry H. Tift of Tifton, Ga., a summer resident of Mystic. Mrs. Pickard had visited here summers and Dr. Pickard supplied the pulpit of the Union Baptist church years ago. The Gazette said: "She was born in South Carolina, March 7, 1862 a daughter of Col. Thomas H. and Cecelia B. Willingham, one of a family of 17 children, 6 of whom survive, three brothers and three sisters. She is also survived by her husband, three daughters, Mrs. Ralph E. Bailey of Cambridge, Mass., Mrs. P. D. Karsten, New Rochelle, N. Y., and Mrs. L. R. Harrison of Tifton, Ga., and by four grandchildren. Mrs. Pickard was educated in a private school in Albany, Ga., and Wesleyan college, Macon, Ga., the Woman's college in Richmond, Va., and Mary Baldwin Seminary, Staunton, Va., where she did three years in post-graduate work and graduated with first honors in art. She was married June 25, 1886. She was a good, faithful and devoted wife of a great Baptist minister, while Dr. Pickard served the following pastorates—Burmingham, Ala., Louisville, Ky., Cleveland, O., Lynchburg, Ga., Savannah, Ga., and last president of Mercer university and Chatanooga, Tenn. Five years ago Dr. Pickard retired from official ministry and they moved to Tifton, Ga. Mrs. Pickard was one of the most noted women of Georgia and had received world wide recognition as an author and an artist. Her most famous paintings are 'Choosing a Crown', and 'The Christ Child and Mother.' Only recently she completed a beautiful painting depicting Samuel in the Tabernacle, the title 'Speak Lord, for Thy Servant Heareth.' They have been shown on many notable occasions and have been viewed by thousands in this and many foreign countries, nearly all of whom proclaimed the paintings inspired, from which beholders received help and inspiration. Mrs. Pickard was no less talented as a writer and equally as well known as an author. Her first book was a story of the old south under the title 'The Ides of March'. Her second book brought her world-wide fame. This is a Bible story of the Holy Land in the time of the Prophet Elijah, title 'Between Scarlet Thrones', which has been translated into numerous languages and is widely used in America and Europe for college students. Her third and last book 'In the Palace of Amuhia' also is a Bible story and bids fair to become as famous and as widely read and used as the second. Through her works of art and writing, Mrs. Pickard received due recognition in Who's Who in America and the International Blue Book published in Europe, Famous Women of America. After her marriage she spent a year and a half in France and Germany studying art, and was proficient in a half-dozen languages. She was a deep student of the Bible which she read fluently in English, German, French, Spanish and Greek. In spite of her literary and artistic work she was a devoted pastor's wife, never neglecting her work as a minister's wife or mother, nor her work as a Christian woman. She became a Sunday school teacher at 16 and was successful throughout her life as a teacher." The funeral services were held in Tifton Baptist church, several clergymen officiating and prominent singers rendering the hymns. The pastor of the church paid a splendid tribute to her life. Following this a short service was held in the First Baptist church in Albany, Ga., where Mr. and Mrs. Pickard were married 45 years ago. The Albany choir sang. The services were concluded in the Albany cemetery where the body was laid to rest in the Willingham lot.

Conferred Degrees

At the special meeting of the grange held in grange hall, Thursday evening, Worthy Master John J. Jones obligated the candidates in the first and second degrees. At the next regular meeting, December 19, the third and fourth degrees will be confered by the women's degree team, Mrs. Margaret Morgan, master.

The repairs on the residence of George E. Tingley on Edgecomb street have been completed. From the observation tower on this residence, one may have the most beautiful view of Mystic, now that the leaves are off the trees.

GREENEVILLE

MONTVILLE MOTHER FOUND WITH THREE CHILDREN

At about 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon local police received a tip to the effect that Mrs. Walter Moznick, 29, and her three children were at the home of a friend in the vicinity of the car barn. Officer Patrick Murphy was detailed to investigate and he brought the party to police headquarters.

Mrs. Moznick and children suddenly made their disappearance from their home in Montville, Thursday morning. Until they were located relatives entertained fears for their safety. It was claimed that the woman was slightly demented and because of that condition it was feared that she might have killed the children and then committed suicide. The absence of the quartet was not discovered until about 11 o'clock, although it was learned that they had left home two hours earlier. A search of the immediate vicinity was made and when no trace of them was found the police were called in. When located, Mrs. Moznick had her 12 year old daughter, son of 6, and baby of 6 months with her.

Speaker On Unemployment

On Monday next, Dec. 15th, the Men's club of St. Andrew's church will meet at 8 p. m. in the guild room. An excellent program has been prepared by the chairman, James Lockhart. The speaker is Mr. H. Holdsworth, who will talk on The Cause and Prevention of Unemployment.

TAFTVILLE

A military whist was held Monday evening by the members of Peter Galian post, No. 104, American Legion at the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah community building. Fort Purple and White had the high score. Prizes went to Mrs. Pingree, Mrs. Thomas Crowe, Mrs. Patrick J. Fogarty and Andrew Frohmader. A series of these military whists is being planned to be held fortnightly after the holidays. The post is to hold a meeting Thursday evening at the Red Cross rooms to discuss plan sfor the district meetings, and the commander desires a large attendance. Important matters relating to Legionnaires and ex-service men are to be taken up.

Mrs. Andrew Frohmader and Miss Agnes M. Dougherty of South Second avenue are in New York.

A number from Taftville attended the military ball at the state armory in Norwich Friday evening.

At the local postoffice the advertised letters this week are for the Ancient Order of United Workmen, Emilien Robidas, Mrs. Germaine Genest, Miss Eileen Thompson and Aurore Hevert.

The members of the American Legion auxiliary are planning to hold a Christmas party for the children of village ex-service men.

The Wequonnoc school orchestra met Thursday afternoon at the school for rehearsal and instruction.

NORWICH RIFLE TEAM WON BY 2 POINTS

At the New London armory Friday evening in the match between the rifle teams of the Norwich Rifle club and the Pioneer Hose Co., Groton, the Norwich club won by margin of two points, 882 to 880, both within a few points of the top score of 883 previously made by the U. S. Coast Guard team in this series.

For Gas Station Hearing

The joint zoning board of the city and town of Norwich has set the morning of Monday, Dec. 22, at 11 o'clock as the time for a hearing on the application of the United States Finishing company for permission to establish a gasoline service station on their property at the foot of Fifth street. It is desired to have two pumps.

NORWICH SCOUTS PLAN TO PUSH BUILDING PROGRAM AT NEW CABIN

Boy Scouts of Norwich anticipate accomplishing a great deal towards the completion of the cabin today (Saturday) according to the local scout headquarters. With the promise of the assistance of four carpenters and a number of scoutmasters and many scouts by nightfall it is expected that the roof rafters will be up and the walls of the cabin now up will be boarded. W. S. Spencer delivered sufficient material Friday to the site to begin work on the veranda and it is anticipated that many scouts will turn out today to help with that job.

Friday the scouts received a gift of fire brick from the Richmond Radiator company and Chandler & Palmer have made drawings for the scouts of the huge fireplace. An effort will be made next week to get several masons familiar with the building of fire places to spend a day on the site and build the fire place for the scouts. Hundreds of stones have been carried by the scouts from a nearby wall and many more will have to be carried before sufficient field stone can be gathered to complete the fireplace.

The scout executive explored the site Friday down to the dam at the tunnel plant with Superintendent Steffanson and talked over a future arrangement for a pier to be built for landing just below the plant's dam. In the spring a cable will probably be placed across the stream at the dam to make doubly sure that any boat coming near the dam will be caught before it can go over. The Boy Scout camp is about a half mile above the present dam on the river and assures the scouts plenty of deep water cruising.

According to the scout executive who spent last Saturday in New York city with Chief James E. West, Deputy Regional Sea Scout Chief Hollbrook will visit this council in the near future to assist the older Scouts of this city with their young men's work. Chief Hollbrook is already on the lookout for a suitable boat to be secured from the navy for the Norwich group of young men now in the Academy who were formerly associated with scouting, many of whom are now carrying on as leaders.

Present plans call for the completion of the cabin in time to have the next Boy Scout Executive board meeting within the building around the fire place with a meal prepared by the scouts. The January training course session of the Scoutmaster's course is also scheduled for the cabin if it can be completed in time.

The scout executive conferred Friday with Morris Sussman about double decker bunks which Mr. Sussman has given the scouts which were removed from a submarine and which Mr. Sussman plans to re-enamel a battleship gray.

The cabin is practically completely furnished now with the exception of 36 bunk pads. Contributions of used clean mattress material is sought that thees bunk pads may be made up cheaply.

Plea For Carpenters.

The Boy Scouts made a plea to the carpenters of the city of Norwich that they help the scouts complete their cabin before the winter snows. If every carpenter will give ahalf day or so of his spare time today or during the next week the cabin can be completed by Christmas. Anyone desirous of helping the scouts can do so by calling scout headquarters at the Thayer building Transportation to the camp and dinner will be provided.

PRESTON MAN INJURED IN STAFFORD CRASH

As the result of an automobile accident just out of Stafford late Thursday afternoon, Ernest Luther of Preston is a patient at the Stafford hospital suffering from a fracture of the skull and four other residents of Preston are suffering from cuts and bruises. The others injured were Mrs. Luther, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Lewis and Miss Mary Lewis.

They were riding in a machine owned by Mr. Lewis and were en route from Springfield to Preston. Mr. Lewis was driving. The machine collided with a truck owned by the Yantic Grain Co., of this city, and driven by Edward Fedell of No. 595 West Main street. Both machines were damaged by the crash.

WILL GIVE CHRISTMAS PARTY AT TAFTVILLE

Canvass of the schools in Taftville and Occum has been made this week to secure a list of all the children of ex-service men for the Christmas party which is to be given for them at Taftville on Dec. 21 by the joint committee of Peter Galian post and auxiliary, American Legion.

The plans are to entertain between 300 and 400 children and the committee is desirous that any who has been inadvertently missed in the canvass will communicate as soon as possible with Mrs. Ruth Sears, chairman of the committee. It is the intention of the committee not to have any child of an ex-service man left out of the Christmas party.

NORWICH TOWN

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist Episcopal church, a successful clam chowder supper was served to a large crowd Friday in Grange hall. William Weaver was general chairman. The supper was planned as the result of Capt. Lucius Wilcox' generous offer to furnish the clams and other things, in response to an appeal for aid to help increase the painting fund at this church. With this in mind he also said that he would provide a man to make the chowder, and be on hand himself to see that things would be done right. This he carried out as promised. Mrs. William Weaver, president of the Ladies' Aid society, not being physically strong enough to carry out the supper plans, the entire arrangements were in charge of her husband. Mr. Weaver was assisted by others in the society and church, in making the event a success; all were grateful to Captain Wilcox and Mr. Weaver for their interest and help in raising such a substantial sum for the painting fund. Mrs. Frederick Ross was in charge of the dining room, assisted by Mrs. Harry Norrington and Mrs. Arthur Fulton. The cake table was in charge of Mrs. Wellington Miner and Mrs. Richard Carter. Waitresses were Misses Virginia Ward, Muriel Rose, Florence Gembel, Doris Rose and Mildred Carter. The chowder was made by Chef Theodore Schultz, while a demonstrator for a popular house provided the coffee. The supper was served from 5:30 on.

Mrs. Frank D. Coles, of Harland road, motored to Willimantic Tuesday afternoon to attend a bridge party at the Masonic temple. She was accompanied by Mrs. Joseph A. Higgins, of Palmer avenue, Norwich. Upon reaching Willimantic, Mrs. Coles called on her mother, Mrs. Ellen Babcock, who is visiting at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Merton E. Phillips, following a stay of three months with her eldest daughter, Mrs. Ella Riley, of Providence. Mrs. Phillips joined her sister, Mrs. Coles, and Mrs. Higgins in attending the bridge.

Held Sewing Session

Mrs. William H. Whiteman, of Norwich Town, entertained 16 members of Home chapter of the King's Daughters' sewing circle at her home on West Town street, Thursday, from 10 a. m. until about 4 in the afternoon. At noon a delicious dinner of chicken with dumpling, mashed potato, mashed turnip, coffee, etc., with pineapple sundae and plum pudding for dessert, was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Andrew Gardner and Mrs. Allen Kinney. Mrs. Edward Briggs is chairman of Home chapter sewing circle, which during the day made 12 baby blankets and other articles for the welfare department of the United Workers. The Needlework guild of Norwich provided the material. The leader of Home chapter, Mrs. William E. Manning, was included in the attendance.

Invited to Jewett City

Norwich Town friends are in receipt of cards which read: You are cordially invited to the re-opening services of the Jewett City Methodist church, Sunday, Dec 14, 1930, at 10:45 a. m. and 7 p. m.

UNIVERSALIST CHURCH PLANS FOR CANDLELIGHT SERVICE

The Church of the Good Shepherd will hold its annual Christmas candle light vesper service Sunday evening, December 21, at 6 o'clock.

A pageant, "Pilgrims From the East," written and directed by Mrs. A. N. Foster, will be given by the young people of the church. An angel chorus of twenty voices will be heard with Miss Mary Gray, as soloist. Preceding the pageant a fifteen minute recital will be given by Edward J. Brennan, violinist, assisted at the piano by Mrs. Brennan. Mr. Brennan is a pupil of Karl Kraeuter of New York city and a well known violin teacher in Norwich.

TWO NORWICH MEN IN JAIL IN NEW JERSEY

Two Norwich men, Julian Falcone, 28, of No. 29 Ore street, and Peter Yeitz, 20, of No. 143 Bromley street, were each recently fined $50 and sent to jail for 90 days at Bellville, N. J. They were charged with having a stolen machine in their possession. The stolen machine, it is said, belonged to a resident of Canada.

The accused claimed the machine was owned by a Norwich garage man, who denied the assertion.

Enjoyed Old Fashioned Dances

An old fashioned dance was held Friday evening in the Leffingwell school house in the town of Bozrah under the auspices of the teacher, Miss Fagan and her pupils. People attended from New Britain, Montville, Norwich, Salem and Preston. Music was furnished by G. P. Spicer and wife of Poquetanuck, Pete Fish, prompter. Nothing but the old contra dances was stepped out such as Portland fancy, money musk, opera reel and others. Midnight was the breaking up hour of dancing Flanigan's reel, everybody saying that they had a rip-roaring good time to be repeated in the near future.

DISTRIBUTED $9,253.46 IN REUBEN WASHBURN ESTATE

Report of the final distribution of the estate of the late Reuben B. S. Washburn, which has been filed with Judge Nelson J. Ayling in the probate court, shows that there was an estate of $9,253.46. Seven children who took an appeal in an attempt to break the will, when they were given only nominal sums under the terms of the will, received $1,000 apiece through withdrawal of the appeal, it is shown in the final accounting. These appellants were Thomas D. Washburn, John R. Washburn, Harry C. Washburn, Margaretta Tubbs, Merideth Yerrington, Florence Seng and Edith Woodworth. They also receive a nominal sum under the will.

After expenses had been paid and the $1,000 settlement, there remains a balance of 2,209.16, to be distributed among the heirs. The bulk of this amount goes to the widow, Annie H. Washburn of this city.

CHINA TO NORWICH TOWN GREETINGS BY RADIO

The family of Owen S. Smith, of Norwich Town was awakened Sunday at 4 a. m. to receive a radiogram of greetings and Christmas love from their son and daughter-in-law, Rev. and Mrs. Edward H. Smith of Foochow, China. "Free radio service on that day from Foochow to the U. S. A." they said, "Will see you next summer!"

Special Christmas Sunday Programs

"Christmas in Picture and Song" will be illustrated at the Central Baptist church Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Beautiful colored slides will be shown depicting the Christmas story. Some of these slides have been made especially for the occasion.

This will be the first of three Sunday evenings devoted to Christmas at the Central church. The second Sunday evening the choir assisted by other musicians will render some of the great Christmas music. The third Sunday evening, Dec. 28th, the pageant The Light of the World, will be given by members of the Central church.

NEW LONDON MANUFACTURER ADDRESSES ENGINEERS HERE

L. E. Whiton, president of the L. E. Whiton Machine company of New London, was the speaker Friday night at a meeting of the Norwich section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, which was held at Grotto hall with an attendance of about 25.

There was also a report from William H. Buck, chairman of the executive committee, who was the section's delegate to the annual meeting of the national organization in New York.

Mr. Whiton was introduced by Mr. Buck and spoke upon "A Survey of Past, Present and Future Business Conditions." His long experience as a mechanical engineer, inventor and manufacturer gave a practical basis for his address, which was listened to with close attention and was given a cordial vote of thanks. Mr. Whiton called attention to the remarkable progress which had been made in the century and pointed out how the research and work of mechanical engineers was a factor in practically every field.

TOURNAMENT FOR NORWICH BOYS WITH AIRPLANES

A city-wide tournament for builders of flying models and scale model airplanes will be held at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. this (Saturday) afternoon at 3 o'clock. This tournament is free and open to any boy in Norwich and vicinity.

Augustus L. Newman, of Providence, New England director of the A. M. L. A., will be on hand and show some moving pictures of the national model airplane meet held at Atlantic City in the summer. He will also have with him the first and second place winners of this meet, and their planes that broke all records for time and endurance.

It is hoped by those in charge that every boy in Norwich will avail himself of this opportunity to try out his plane regardless of how perfectly it may be built. Any plane that can stay up around 30 seconds will stand a good chance of winning a prize. The boys are invited to bring in their planes at 3 o'clock and see what they can do in a contest.

INVITED TO HEAR PLANS IN EMPLOYMENT EMERGENCY

Secretaries of chambers of commerce throughout the state have been invited to attend a meeting in Hartford at the Hotel Bond, on Tuesday, Dec. 16, under the auspices of the state chamber of commerce, when speakers will be Hon. William Phillips of Boston, recently appointed to serve as regional director for New England on President Hoover's emergency committee for employment, and Dr. Royal Meeker, formerly United States commissioner of labor statistics, now associated with Prof. Irving Fischer at New Haven.

Mr. Phillips will speak on the setup of the national committee on unemployment, which, under the direction of Colonel Arthur Woods, has been making a thorough survey of the existing situation and means of remedying it. He will further tell of the plans of his committee and its relationship to local unemployment committees and activities.

Dr. Meeker, nationally-known economist, who has been making a study of the economic phases of this situation, will speak on the subject of "Unemployment—Causes, Palliatives, and Preventives," touching upon loans and other means which have been invoked to meet conditions.

Secretaries are asked to bring with them members of their unemployment committees and community officials who are directly concerned with relief work in their locality.

Will Speak Over Radio

George R. Ashbey of Providence will speak over the radio Sunday evening at 6:10 from Station WEAN. Mr. Ashbey, whose home is in Providence, was a resident of Norwich for many years. He is a member of an advertising firm in Providence and also a director of the company. He has become well known in his work, from his articles in a national publication, and also from the series of lectures on advertising which he has given throughout New England.

WILL SING CHRISTMAS CAROLS SUNDAY AT SLATER MUSEUM

Slater museum is to introduce an interesting innovation for the Christmas season with a period of carol singing at the museum tomorrow (Sunday) afternoon.

In making this announcement and inviting the public to attend and participate in the singing. Mrs. Ozias Dodge, director of the museum, said:

"The time has come when we are all humming Christmas carols. Soon we shall be singing them aloud at carol services in all our churches.

"We are going to sing carols at the Slater museum tomorrow afternoon. The Converse art gallery is trimmed for Christmas. There is a Christmas exhibition of Madonnas and Annunciation angels on the walls of the gallery and at half past four we will turn out the electric lights and light up the candles. Dorothy Stewart, of the Academy orchestra will bring her violin to set the pitch.

"Anyone who likes Christmas carols young or old, will be welcome. The entrance will be through Slater museum."

FEW SIGNS OF IMPROVEMENT IN ECONOMIC CONDITIONS

Summary of World-Wide Review of National Business Survey Made Public by Chairman Julius Barnes—Improvement Noted in United Kingdom, Germany and China—Unchanged in Belgium, The Netherlands, Canada and Japan—Remaining Nations Show Decline in General Conditions——Praise Given Some Amercan Industries For Surmounting the Effect of the Business Depression

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Praise for some American industries for surmounting the effect of the business depression was given tonight in a world-wide review of economic conditions for 1930 by Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the national business survey conference appointed by President Hoover.

Barnes said reports from the chief lines of American business indicated that the "sanguine expectations generally held early in 1930 of greatly quickened trade before the end of the year, have not materialized."

The report pointed out, also, that the depression had existed throughout the world. Some signs of improvement were seen.

"There is evidence of many industries having adapted themselves to current conditions and having successfully balanced production and market consumption," Barnes said in discussing the United States.

"Through many industries," he continued, "runs the evidence that management by various resourceful devices has maintained employment at a higher ratio than the statistical index of operations.

"Even during this recession, the aggregate volume of trade has manifestly been of large proportions and there are indications of individual industries successful beyond the average, either because of special conditions or because of management qualities, courage, initiative and enterprise, which are typically American."

Barnes said some improvement was shown in the United Kingdom, Germany and China, with Belgium, the Netherlands, Canada and Japan unchanged. The remaining nations, including France, showed a decline in general conditions, he said.

Covering in most instances 11 months of the year, the survey showed a continued decline in foreign trade and a 7 per cent drop in retail trade. Postal receipts persisted below 1929 levels.

Short term credit continued in large volume but about 2 per cent cheaper than last year. Excluding refunding issues, 31 per cent less capital was floated during the 11 months. Savings deposits were larger than last year.

The report said Christmas savings of more than $600,000,000, of which an estimated 38 per cent will go to holiday spending, awaited distribution Dec. 1.

Installment buying was lower with agricultural sections leading a "not disturbing" trend toward greater delinquencies. Collections were said to be "holding up well" in most lines.

"For the 12 months of 1930 it now seems assured that the new life insurance written by the legal reserve companies will amount to $18,500,000,000, this figure exceeding by $1,100,000,000 the average for the preceding five years," said the survey, adding that mortgage loans by life companies now total $5,986,000,000.

Heavy declines from last year were reported in construction industries. An increase of nearly $200,000,000 in construction of public works and utilities was met with reduction of more than half a billion in both the residential and non-residential categories. Cement production dropped over 20 per cent though awards for concrete roads increased 5,000,000 square yards.

Sympathetic with the building recession were drops in lumber production, a 50 per cent decline in brick shipments and a 30 to 60 per cent fall in the production of plumbing and heating supplies.

The summary reported that class one railroads, in the face of reduced carloadings, had capital expenditures during the first nine months $125,000,000 greater than last year. The number of new freight cars and locomotives placed in service also increased.

Merchant ship building of $66,000,000 and naval construction of $26,000,000 were reported to be giving employment to 26,500 persons.

The Barnes survey placed the output of commercial planes at one-third last year's though air transportation increased in mileage and carried 53 per cent more persons. Radio sales declined.

Lower industrial consumption, the summary said, more than offset larger domestic and commercial uses of electricity. Gasoline refineries operated at less than two-thirds capacity and both anthracite and bituminous coal production declined.

Pig iron production was 30 per cent lower in 11 months of the year than in 1929. During the same period, steel mills operated at two-thirds capacity. Over the same months automobile production dropped 23 per cent and foreign motor sales 48 per cent.

All the machinery industries declined, the summary said, with shipments of machine tools reaching a new low in November. The drought was reported to have accentuated the depression in farm implements.

Industrial chemicals have maintained production levels during the year with the output of alcohol increasing in the winter months. Electrical manufactures were 30 per cent lower than last year while the boot and shoe industry declined by half that.

The report estimated magazine advertising expenditures for the year at approximately last year's total, with a large increase in the radio field.

"Further improvement characterized the textile industry in October, particularly in cotton textiles," Barnes said. "In practically all branches efforts to relate production to sales are reflected in decreasing inventories."

Most lines of the food industry were reported to have receded, with fruits and vegetables and carbonated beverages the outstanding exceptions. Both hotels and restaurants were said to be doing less business than last year.

CONTEST IN CONGRESS OVER DROUGHT RELIEF PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Republican house leaders face a close contest over the administration's drought relief program tomorrow with democrats and a republican progressive element aligned to support the senate's $60,000,000 measure.

Speaker Longworth is expected to permit Chairman Haugen of the house agriculture committee to propose adoption of the $30,000,000 seed and fertilizer loan fund under suspension of rules. This procedure has been attacked by democrats as "gag rule."

Representative Garner of Texas, minority leader, believes he can muster enough votes to prevent adoption of the $30,000,000 administration measure so that a vote can be had probably Tuesday on the senate proposal.

It requires a two-thirds majority for the republicans to obtain consent of the house to suspend the rules. Under this procedure, no amendments can be offered and the vote will have to be for the $30,000,000 proposal or against it.

PARTIAL PAYMENTS FOR BANK OF U. S. DEPOSITORS

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—For the first time in the history of New York depositors of a defunct bank this week will obtain a part of their deposits without waiting for the affairs of the bank to be settled.

Member banks of the New York clearing house will begin Tuesday to loan up to 50 per cent of the deposits to any one having money in the Bank of United States when it closed its doors last week. The loans will be equally distributed among the member banks.

To obtain the loan, depositors will present bank books, have them checked, and then be assigned to a bank where the loans will be given them. A five per cent interest rate will be charged.

FARMER WAS KILLED BY CHRISTMAS PACKAGE BOMB

SHICKSHINNY, Pa., Dec. 14—(AP)—A dynamite bomb delivered in a Christmas package today wrecked the farm house of Joseph Mastpiekas, 49 about three miles from here. Mastpiekas was killed and his wife, Catherine, was critically injured.

Mastpiekas found the bomb on his porch. It was wrapped in a package bearing holiday labels and trimmings. He took it inside to show to his wife. As he opened it, the bomb exploded, shattering the rear of the house and killing him almost instantly.

12 ITALIAN PLANES PLAN FLIGHT TO RIO DE JANEIRO

ORBETELLO, Italy, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Weather permitting, Air Minister Italo Balbo's flotilla of twelve seaplanes will take off at 8 a. m. tomorrow for Cartagena, Spain, the first stage of a flight to Rio De Janeiro.

However, weather conditions tonight were most unfavorable. A heavy rain was falling, visibility was poor and a 38-mile an hour wind was blowing this side of the Balearic Islands.

Major Giovanni Giuriati, general secretary of the fascist party, and also speaker of the house of representatives, visited the airmen's camp today and made a short patriotic address to the forty-eight men who will participate in the flight.

Miss Winifred Spooner, English aviatrix, was a guest at the officers' mess and after wishing the Italian fliers godspeed hopped off for Paris and London.

The Italian flight will be headed by Air Minister Balbo and four men have been assigned to each plane. They have been trained here for nearly a year in long-distance cruising.

HELD IN CONNECTION WITH A $3,385 PAYROLL ROBBERY

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 14—(AP)—Captured in a downtown hote here with a Boston girl early today, Martin J. Walsh, 41, known to police as "Portland Johnny", and said to be wanted in Boston for a $3,385 payroll robbery there last Monday, was arrested on charges of first degree robbery and first degree grand larceny.

The young woman, a blonde, was said by police to have identified herself as Frances Wadsworth, 24, of 21 Cortes street, Boston. She is held on a charge of vagrancy. Besides saying she had known Walsh two years, she refused to discuss their activities and with Walsh denied any knowledge of the holdup.

BRITISH GOVT. TODAY WILL PAY $94,390,000 TO THE U. S.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The British government tomorrow will pay $94,390,000 to the United States treasury.

Of this sum, says an official announcement, $28,000,000 is for repayment of principal of the British debt to the United States and the remainder is interest.

With this payment the total remittances from Great Britain to the United States since the funding of the British debt amount to $1,35,750,000, of which $202,000,000 is for repayment of principal. The amount outstanding is now reduced to $4,398,000,000.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

GLADBACH-RHEYDT, Germany, Dec. 14—(AP)—Bedlam was unloosed at a fascist meeting last night when the chairman announced communists would be excluded from "free debate" after a number of speeches had been made.

ROME, Dec. 14—(AP)—Charles Peterson, treasurer of Chicago, arrived today to superintend preparations for Italian participation in the Chicago centennial fair. Mr. Peterson already has visited Greece, Jugoslavia, Austria, Germany and Poland.

BERLIN, Dec. 14—(AP)—Fighting near the Berlin police headquarters at Alexander Platz last night resulted in the fatal shooting of a youth by a policeman. The trouble started when a hostile crowd severely manhandled the officer, who was alone. He fired in self-defense.

MADRID, Dec. 14—(AP)—The wife of Major Ramon Franco, noted Spanish flier who escaped from a Madrid prison, was taken into custody yesterday when she voiced objections to the constant police surveillance of her home. After a questionin gat police headquarters she was released and permitted to return home.

GERMAN POLICE IN CLASHES WITH FASCISTS

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—(AP)—German police were kept busy over the week end in handling the usual crop of clashes in which fascists principally participated. At least three persons were killed and two seriously wounded.

At Nuremberg last night about 400 men said to be fascists broke up a theatrical revue, portraying the girls of all nations, because the German representative was dressed as a ragged Cinderella, among the richly dressed maidens impersonating other nations. Both rotten eggs and stench bombs were hurled at the stage, while white mice were set loose on the floor. Numerous arrests were made.

An early Christmas party of the social democratic group at Spandau ended in bloodshed tonight when a number of fascists were found to be mixed in with the guests. Two persons were injured so severely that they were taken to a hospital.

FORMER KING OF GYPSIES IS DEAD IN ROCHESTER, N. Y.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 14.—(AP)—John Nicholas, 58, said to have been king of the gypsies in America, is dead here and relatives have postponed funeral services for ten days in the hope of summoning his father, Yasko Nicholas, believed to be in Jacksonville, Fla., or some city in Texas. The dead king reigned for 19 years. His successor will be elected at a tribal gathering in New York in January, it was announced.

Gypsy death chants attracted thousands of persons to the home here. Traffic was blocked and police reserves were called as men and women fought for places at the windows to witness mourning rites and scenes dating back to the middle ages. The mourning period will continue several days.

FOX HOUND WITHOUT FOOD OR WATER FOR FOUR DAYS

MT. PLEASANT, Iowa, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Without food or water for four days, Bingo, the wiry little fox hound was still alive tonight.

A score of men heard Bingo's whines of misery as they dug to free the hound from the hillside cove-in that has been his prison since Wednesday night. The men believed they would reach the dog soon.

Bingo scurried into the hole after a raccoon. The hunters, stamping about the opening, caused the cave-in and Bingo was trapped, presumably in an underground cavern. He has been saved from suffocation by breaths of air seeping through a fissure in the hillside. His master, Lawrence Mills, has worked almost constantly since Wednesday night.

FATALLY INJURED BY HIT AND RUN DRIVER

MERIDEN, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Anna Olschefski, 8, was struck and fatally injured by a hit and run driver while crossing Broad street highway with her father, early tonight. The vehicle, a light colored sedan, swept the child from her father's grasp as it sped along. After traveling a few hundred feet the machine stopped. The driver looked back and then continued on his way.

Paul Grillo, of Middletown, was hailed and carried the child to the Meriden hospital, where she was pronounced dead on arrival.

FIRE ON TOP FLOOR OF HOSPITAL FOR THE INSANE

QUEBEC, Que., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Fire which blazed furiously for three hours and a half last night, destroyed the top floor of a wing of the St. Michael of Archangel hospital for the insane at Beauport. The wing is used to house male patients, who were safely removed to another wing.

OBITUARY

William S. Ingraham

BRISTOL, Dec. 14.—(AP)—William S. Ingraham, for nearly 40 years treasurer and general manager of the E. Ingraham Co., clock manufacturers, died at his home here today after an illness of several weeks. He was 73 years old.

Mr. Ingraham, a native of this city, left Cornell university, where he was a member of the class of 1878, to engage in the clock business with his father, Edward, and grandfather, Elias Ingraham, over 50 years ago. The latter was the founder of the E. Ingraham Co.

Besides being treasurer and general manager of the clock company for 38 years, William S. Ingraham was identified as an official with numerous local financing, industrial and public institutions.

A descendant of early Colonial families on both his father and mother's side, Mr. Ingraham was born in Bristol on April 25, 1857. He received his early education in the schools of Milford and Bristol, and before entering Cornell, attended Stamford Military institute.

Mr. Ingraham was married twice. His first wife, Grace E. Seymour, whom he married in 1881, died in 1925. In 1928 he married Edith M. Tuttle, widow of Judge Joseph Tuttle, of Hartford.

Showdown Today In The Textile Strike

Riverside and Dan River, Va., Cotton Mills Will Open For Former Employes

DANVILLE, Va., Dec. 14—(AP)—Leaders of 4,000 union workers on strike here are expecting a "showdown" tomorrow morning.

At that time gates of the Riverside and Dan River cotton mills will be opened by the management to former employes who wish to return to work. Reaction to the invitation will determine to a large extent, union leaders say, how much longer the strike will last.

Last night a mass meeting was held at which shouts of rejection greeted announcement of the offer of H. R. Fitzgerald, mill president, to give work to "those of our people who are not at work and whose records of performance entitle them to be considered employes of the company."

"The strike has just begun," some of those attending the meeting, shouted, while others expressed determination to continue the fight.

Increased patrols of national guardsmen will be on duty around the Dan River mill at Schoolfield tomorrow and in the city of Danville a full force of about 90 policemen will patrol the vicinity of the Riverside mill.

No reports of disorder were received today following the bombing last night of a non-union worker's home on the outskirts of Schoolfield. Police continued to investigate the incident.

The explosion, apparently caused by a charge of dynamite, occurred beneath a bedroom occupied by R. L. Edwards and his wife but did not injure either.

REPUTED "BOOTLEG KING" KIDNAPED IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(AP)—James Ward, reputed "bootleg king" of suburban Chicago Heights, was kidnaped from the rear of his home last night, and unconfirmed reports of a $50,000 ransom demand trickled through to police today.

The reports came through underworld whispers, which also dropped the promise of retaliation from Ward's allies. Mrs. Ward declined to tell authorities whether her husband's abductors had communicated with her.

Ward was seized by four men as he walked to the garage behind his house. His wife heard him struggling with his assailants and ran to a window in time to see an automobile starting away. One of the men called to her: 'You'll hear from us later."

Chief of Police Harry B. Stafford of Chicago Heights said today that retaliation for Ward's abduction was certain, whether he was returned dead or alive. He recalled that Ward was kidnaped in 1927 and a demand for $20,000 ransom made. His influence in the liquor gang in the district was so great, however, that he was finally released without payment. He is generally believed to operate in cooperation with the Chicago Capone gang.

PROF. ALBERT EINSTEIN SPENT QUIET SUNDAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Prof. Albert Einstein, whose theories on relativity have baffled the world, was the subject of numerous pulpit discussions today as the German scientist himself spent a comparatively quiet Sabbath. He, with his wife, sails tomorrow night on the liner Belgenland for California, his American goal.

He remained in his stateroom all morning, but emerged to attend a concert of the Metropolitan Opera company this afternoon and made a short address before the new historic society tonight. Between these two appearances he paid tribute at the statue of Caruso.

FUNERAL OF CHARLES W. HILL, FAMOUS NEGRO ACTOR

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—In Harlem, where they refer to the 1930 Pulitzer prize play not by its title but simply as "The Company," funeral services were conducted today for the big, genial black man whose own people months ago dropped his real name and called him after the role he played, "Gabriel."

More than 1,000 persons filled the pews and packed the aisles of one of the Negro section's largest churches, where for two hours and a half eulogies were read, hymns were sung, and rituals intoned over the body of Charles Wesley Hill, the "Angel Gabriel" of "The Green Pastures," Marc Connelly's drama of the Negro's conception of the Old Testament. Hill was killed by a taxicab Wednesday.

MRS. KEITH-MILLER'S PLANE WAS DEMOLISHED IN TAKE OFF

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, Australian aviatrix, today cracked up her plane in attempting to take off here for Washington. The plane was demolished, but Mrs. Keith-Miller was unhurst.

She remained here to await instructions from her advisers who had taken off earlier in another plane. The accident was reported caused by failure of the motor shortly after the plane had left the ground.

"SCARFACE" AL CAPONE IS DUE IN COURT TODAY

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(AP)—"Scarface" Al Capone is due for an appearance in federal court here tomorrow to answer a contempt citation growing out of his non-appearance last winter for questioning about his income. He was in Florida at the time and sent word by his attorneys that he was too ill to risk the rigors of Chicago weather. Government investigators reported, however, that the ace gangster was cavoting about his Palm Island estate with no signs of physical debility.

NARCOTICS FISHED FROM THE SAN FRANCISCO BAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Customs inspectors today fished five sacks containing narcotics they valed at $56,000 from San Francisco bay.

Inspectors said members of the crew of the S. S. Asama Maru dropped the narcotics into the bay after the steamer docked. A Chinese roomboy and the second cook on the Japanese liner were arrested

Three Persons Dead And 32 Are Missing

Re[illegible] Explosion and Burning of Excursion Boat Off [illegible]ami Beach

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Three persons are dead and 32 missing as a result of an explosion and burning of the Eureka II, a see-bottom at Bug Light, 15 miles below Miami Beach, tonight.

One hundred persons of the 135 that departed from Miami this morning on an excursion into the tropic waters near here, were rescued.

Some of the 32 unreported persons were believed to have been rescued by boats and en route to Miami.

The dead are unidentified, due to the fact there was no passenger list carried by the 105-foot vessel, carrying its happy crowd of local residents and winter visitors, when it left Miami this morning.

64 FOOT YACHT PICKS 83 PERSONS FROM WAVES

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Eighty-three survivors of the ill-fated Eureka II, "see-bottom" boat that exploded and burned below Miami tonight, were rescued by the 64-foot yacht Lois Ann, owned by P. W. Miller, of Miami Beach.

The yacht also brought two of the known dead, a man and a woman.

MURDER WARRANTS ISSUED AGAINST FATHER AND SON

WILLISTON, N. D., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Warrants charging first degree murder were issued today against Charles Bannon and his father, James F. Bannon, in connection with the slayings of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Haven and their four children on the Haven farm near Schafer last February.

Charles Bannon is in the county jail here, confessed slayer of the Havens, and the elder Bannon is held for North Dakota authorities at Toledo, Ore., where he was apprehended yesterday after a wide search.

After telling numerous conflicting stories about the killings of the Havens, Charles Bannon made a confession in which he detailed the crime, telling how each member of the family had been slain, after a quarrel over chores. But he insisted he alone was responsible for the killings, Taylor said trial of the father would proceed, however, regardless of Charles' contention.

Full details of the confession are being withheld by Taylor until James Bannon can be questioned.

7-YEAR-OLD BOY DROWNED IN PARK POND IN HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Plunging throught the ice of the Park river this afternoon, Walter Ferguson, 7, was drowned when two girls, one of whom was rescued by a 10 year old boy, escaped a similar death when they fell through the ice of a pond in Pope park. Risking his own life, Alfred Parent, 10 ran out on the ice to rescue Florence Gillin, 9, and Vina Murphy, 7, who fell it at the same time, managed to reach the bank without assistance.

Parent may be awarded a medal for his heroism, for not only did he risk his life, but he was sick, having been snt home from school Thursday and advised to stay away until after Christmas. The Ferguson boy was pulled from the river by George Thynge, who heard his cries for help, after he went down for the third time. St. Francis' hospital doctors worked over him for an hour with pulmotors.

NAT'L ECONOMIC LEAGUE VOTES FOR DRY REPEAL

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. Dec. 14.—(AP)—The National Economic league, which includes in is membership George W. Wickersham, chairman of the law enforcement commission, has voted for repeal of the 18th amendment, J. W. Beatson, its executive secretary, announced tonight.

The league is an organization of 5,500 of the country's most prominent men formed for the purpose of educating and crystallizing public opinion on outstanding issues of the day.

In 1926, 52 per cent. of those participating in a poll of its members voted against repeal of the 18th amendment. In this year's poll, Beatson said, 55 per cent. of those voting favored repeal. A total of 2633 votes were cast in the poll which included a great number of questions. Of these 1440 voted for repeal, 1,090 voted against and 103 did not vote.

MISS EARHART MAKES FLIGHT IN A "WIND MILL" AIRPLANE

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Miss Amelia Earhart, trans-Atlantic flier, piloted an autogiro over Pitcairn field today, in what was said to have been the first flight of the "wind mill" airplane by a woman.

Miss Earhart handled the machine like a veteran, making two perfect takeoffs and landings, and several straight down descents without touching the ground

After a brief flight as a passenger with an official of the Pitcairn Aviation company, Miss Earhart climbed into the cockpit and went aloft alone. She remained in the air approximately 45 minutes. She said the autogiro apparently was much safer than the conventional airplane, particularly in landing.

FIRING SQUAD EXECUTES SPANISH REVOLT LEADERS

Two Had Been Condemned After a Brief Courtmartial—A Number of Other Rebels Have Been Tried and Are Under Sentence of Death—Many Suspects Have Been Arrested—Precautions Have Been Taken Against Plans For a Widespread General Strike in Spain Today

HUESCA, Spain, Dec. 14—(AP)—The Spanish government moved swiftly today to crush the spirit of revolt which flared at Jaca Friday, executing two of the leaders after a brief court martial here and in the meantime rounding up republican and extremist leaders over the country.

When the rebellion was broken yesterday by local troops in a sharp battle near Ayerbe, two of the men captured were Fernyn Galan and Garcia Hernandez, viewed as the outstanding instigators of the movement which followed a summer of disorder over Spain.

Today they looked into the rifles of a firing squad and died bravely.

Closely guarded, the two men were taken in military trucks from the court house where they were tried to an army warehouse on the outskirts of the city.

They refused blindfolds and walked firmly to the wall before which in a few seconds they would lie dead.

Galan smoked a cigaret and made a plea for his comrade. He said he was guilty and deserved his fate but that Hernandez was innocent. But his plea was rejected, and the two firing squads of nine men loaded their rifles.

Galan's last act was to hand his purse, containing 500 pesetas, to the officer commanding the firing squads. "Give that to the poor," he said just before the rifles cracked.

A number of other rebels have been tried here and are under sentence of death, but the local opinion is that they may be permitted to live, since the government has already shown a firm hand and because of numerious petitions may wish to show clemency.

It was learned today that a third leader, Pio Diaz, was killed last night at Jaca when loyal troops entered the town after crushing the revolutionary army outside.

Diaz, a prominent business man and avowed republican, became mayor of the town when the revolt opened and established headquarters in the city hall. On the mast overhead he ran up a flag not seen publicly in Spain since the shortlived republic of 60 years ago—the "republican flag," which bears a bar of purple in addition to the yellow and red of the Spanish national colors.

Just how Diaz was shot was not determined definitely, but it was certain he was not tried by court martial. There was some resistance when the government's troops entered the town and it was held possible that he was killed in the fighting.

Civil guards were put on the streets as a precautionary measure against any outbreak which might follow the revolt and the executions.

Many suspected persons were arrested. The authorities acted similarly in Seville, Valencia and Barcelona.

Precautions also were taken against plans for a widespread general strike tomorrow. It was understood that labor leaders in Madrid, Santander and Bilbao were to meet tomorrow to determine whether workers should walk out in protest against the execution of rebel chieftains.

The little mountain town of Jaca, where the movement began, was quiet today and the government forces were in full control. Detachments of loyal soldiery continued to search for rebels who escaped after yesterday's conflict, believing most of them were attempting to cross the French frontier.

After the executions Huesca was placed completely under military rule and it was announced that communications with the outside world would be severed for the night after 8 p. m.

Shops and cafes were closed and the inhabitants were ordered to remain indoors during the night. Some of the wounded rebels, brought to hospitals here after the battle near Ayerbe, have since died. One, Eugen Largoz, drove a military truck during the fighting.

MAY PLACE WHOLE OF SPAIN UNDER MARTIAL LAW

MADRID, Dec. 14.—(AP)—After a long session of the Spanish cabinet it was indicated tonight that martial law soon might be proclaimed over the entire country to stamp out a revolutionary movement.

The cabinet met to consider the situation created by the military revolt which was suppressed in a battle yesterday and announced it would use every means at its disposal to crush severely "the nation-wide revolutionary movement."

This was regarded as a threat to wipe out radical and republican agitators completely.

The cabinet meeting attracted much attention, for the fact that the ministers were summoned on Sunday, was regarded as important in itself.

TRAGEDY OUTCOME OF OBJECTION TO MARRIAGE

DENVER, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The triumph of a mother's objection to her daughter's marriage was revealed today with the discovery of their bodies in a bedroom of their home.

The girl, Helen Hidinger, 21, was to have been married today to Earl Penna, police said. They believed the woman had killed her and then committed suicide.

E. G. Prowant, the girl's step-father, told police his wife had been in poor health for several weeks and had opposed the match.

He was unable to arouse the women today and called the police. They broke open the locked bedroom door and found Miss Hidinger and Mrs. Prowant, 48, lying dead on separate beds.

Deputy Coroner George Bostwick said Mrs. Prowant apparently had held a pistol close to the sleeping girl's head—there were powder burns on her temple—and then had lain down on the other bed and shot herself.

DIED IN DEATH HOUSE AT SING SING PRISON

OSSINING, N. Y., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Charles Chapin's oft-voiced wish—"I want to die, I want to get it over with"—has come true.

The eccentric, 72-year-old Chapin, one time fire eater of journalism, former city editor of the Evening World, New York, and a man who slew his wife "because it was the only solution of my problem," died shortly before last midnight in the death house at Sing Sing prison.

A telegram was received by Warden Lawes tonight from Chapin's sister in Washington asking that the body be sent there. The telegram said funeral arrangements would be made in Washington after the body arrived.

Warden Lawes arranged to place the body aboard a train for Washington tomorrow morning.

HARTFORD MAN HELD ON CHARGE OF SLAYING WIFE

HARTFORD, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Mrs. Estella Vass, 23, of this city, was shot and killed in her home here this afternoon. Her husband, Peter Vass, 41, was arrested on the street two hours later and held without bond on a charge of murder. Both are West Indian Negroes.

Vass denied he shot his wife. He said they were playing with the weapon when it went off by accident in his wife's hand. The bullet lodged just below the heart.

Police said they had a witness to whom Vass went after the slaying and confided that he shot his wife. A sister of the dead woman, they reported, told them Vass fired a shot at his wife last night during a bitter argument. The shot went wild.

SAYS CLOSED NEW BRITAIN BANK IS "ABSOLUTELY SOUND"

NEW BRITAIN, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Expressions of confidence in the soundness of the institution have followed on the heels of an order issued Saturday restraining the Commercial Trust Co., of New Britain, from paying out deposits.

John C. Loomis, president of the bank, described the institution as "absolutely sound" and said depositors will suffer no loss. He also expressed the opinion that the bank would probably reopen in about a week

TURNKEY SHOT DEAD BY VISITOR TO JAIL

CARTHAGE, Mo., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Othel E. Bray, 59, acting turnkey, was shot to death with his own revolver in the Jasper county jail today by a visitor who, after shooting at two other persons, fled with a woman companion.

Bullets fired at a trusty and John Dyer, 17-year-old son of the regular jailer, George Dyer, went wild. No prisoners escaped.

The killer and the girl upon entering the jail asked permission to see Bill Daggett of Joplin, Mo., who it developed had been released Friday.

Bray turned to the jail record book, young Dyer said. Then the visitor seized Bray's pistol from its holster and fired three shots into the officer's body. Two bullets pierced his heart.

Young Dyer fled to the jail arsenal for a gun. A bullet struck the door as he slammed it. A trusty running to investigate the shooting also was a target but escaped.

SEARCHING IN ALASKA FOR MISSING AIRPLANE

IDITAROD, Alaska, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Unreported since Thursday, when they took off from here for McGrath during a storm, Pilot Matt Nidnimen of the Alaska Airways company, and two passengers were the objects of a search today by air and dog teams. McGrath is about 125 miles northwest of here.

The search planes were piloted by Frank Dorbandt and Ed Young, prominent Alaska aviators. Two dog teams were cooperating with the fliers. Iditarod is on the Yukon river about 125 miles inland from Norton sound.

COMMUNISTS CAPTURE TWO HUNAN PROVINCE CITIES

HANKOW, Dec. 14—(AP)—Capture of two Hunan province cities with a general slaughter of the inhabitants was credited to Chinese communists in reports received here tonight.

Foreign ships plying the Yangtse river near Shansi, reported Lichow one of the important cities of Hunan and Tsingshih had fallen into the hands of the reds, who massacred the population.

The reports said the communists indicated they planned to push their operations north of the Yangtse river and attack the important river town of Shansi in Hupeh province.

JEWELER KIDNAPED AND ROBBED OF $60,000 IN GEMS

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Harry Fine, New York jeweler, reported to police today he had been kidnaped and robbed of diamonds valued at $60,000.

Fine said he was seized in the loop district by two men who forced him into a machine, took the stones, and then released him.

The victim said he is a partner in the firm of Max Fine and Sons, New York.

SAFE ROBBERS GET AWAY WITH $10,000 IN LOUISVILLE

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Robbers blew open two safes in the Kaufman-Straus company store last night and escaped with loot estimated at $10,000 after trussing up the watchman.

The burglary was discovered early today after the watchman, Conrad J. Raser, 71, failed to punch the boxes at the regular time.

GENEROUS RESPONSE MADE TO APPEAL FOR THE NEEDY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 14.—The work of sorting out and classifying materials brought in as a result of an unprecedented response on the part of the public to the appeal of the selectmen for charity, is progressing rapidly in the town hall. First Selectman Adelbert L. French asked for public cooperation and sent trucks about town collecting articles for the needy. In preparation for a large response he had given the free use of three rooms in a block which he owns at the corner of Valley and High streets and the rooms were lighted through the courtesy of the lighting company. The three rooms soon became overcrowded, however, and it became necessary to remove the stuff to the town hall, where spacious tanks have been installed. The distribution of these articles will be made in conjunction with the charitable agencies in the town. About one-third of the town hall is being used in stacking the varied clothing, toys, etc. There are about 200 pairs of shoes, including some 15 pairs of unused stock donated by Benjamin Prag. There are also rubbers and overshoes and even a few sets of gaiters. There are over 100 hats and a similar number of overcoats and any quantity of dresses for women, and men's and boys' wearing apparel. Several pairs of curtains are in the lot. Mandell's shop gave a number of unworn dresses. In one corner are the toys. There are chubby dolls, some of them slightly dismembered, Teddy bears with maybe an ear or an eye missing, automobiles and derricks somewhat out of working condition, but several tradesmen have stepped forward and volunteered to preside over a toy hospital and when their work is completed there will be barrels of joy going out into the homes of needy children. Several women have offered their services in the distribution work.

No Grounds for Starving Claim

H. G. Williams, about 60, of Meadow lane, suffered a weak spell on Walnut street late this forenoon. He was assisted to his home by a group of men to whom he made the claim that his weakness was due to starvation, as he had not eaten in two days. Word of this reached First Selectman Albert L. French, who immediately made a personal investigation. Questioned this forenoon, Selectman French said that the Williams family was one that he had been assisting since taking office as selectman and that Friday he had given members of the family the usual store order for food. At the Williams home today he found some food remaining and was told that Mr. Williams always sat down to eat with the family. He also learned that the elderly man had sustained a shock some time ago. There are two members of the family earning wages and rather than ever complain for the lack of food members of the family had notified Mr. French that they had been getting too much of some foods, such as rice, pork, onions, and the like. "The selectmen have no intention of allowing any of the townspeople to starve," said Selectman French, "and in view of my investigation of this case and the fact that the family has never complained of lack of food, I do not feel that the statement by Mr. Williams reconciles itself with the facts unless it is a condition of health rather than a lack of available food."

OBITUARY

Mrs. Emma Jane Oakes

Mrs. Emma Jane Moore Oakes, 65, wife of Collins Oakes of Westford, died in St. Joseph's hospital this morning during a relapse following a recent operation. The deceased was born in Worcester, Mass. Besides her husband she leaves five daughters: Mrs. J. L. Stone of Kansas City, Mo., Mrs. Edwin A. Buck of Westford, Mrs. Samuel Cole of South Manchester, Mrs. George E. Buck, Jr., and Miss Eleanor Oakes of Westford.

Historical Sketch

The first page of the premium list issued for the annual Willimantic Exposition to be staged at the state armory Jan. 7, 8, 9 and 10, by the Willimantic Poultry association, contains an interesting historical sketch of the Thread City. The history, compiled by Executive Secretary John J. O'Rourke of the chamber of commerce, says in part: "Willimantic was first settled in 1686 by John Cates and was named from the Indian words meaning 'A Bold Lookout,' doubtless used by the Indians because of the hills in the town. The first dam and mill were built at Willimantic Falls in 1796. The location of the city on the main and shortest route of the New Haven railroad from New York to Boston soon won it prominence as a railroad center. Following the trend of motor vehicle traffic there are now five state highways passing through the city and an additional new one will be added in the near future. Its banking facilities and mercantile business are superior in many respects for a city of its size and it is a recognized educational center. There are many diversified manufacturing industries and the city is the central point of one of the largest poultry businesses in New England, an industry which has been aided materially in its progress by the efforts of the Poultry association."

Sixth Annual Exposition

The sixth annual exposition to be staged this year is planned, according to a precedent established in the past, to be superior in many ways to previous shows. There will be exhibits of poultry, pigeons, rabbits, dogs, cats, pets and commercial products supplemented by lectures, demonstrations, entertainments, antiques, curios, ladies' art work, etc. Many cash and ribbon prizes are to be awarded. The curios, antiques and ladies' art exhibit will be located in the reception room adjoining the exhibition hall and will be in charge of Mrs. A. Chamberland and Mrs. Florence Woodworth. An entertainment program will be given each evening under arrangement of the Retail Merchants' bureau of the chamber of commerce. The production class of poultry will be in charge of Prof. David E. Warner of the Connecticut Agricultural college, assisted by a trained corps of production judges. The standard or exhibition classes will be in charge of Judge Howard S. Rich and assisting judges. Wilbur Wood of Mansfield will superintend the poultry division.

The exposition is to open to the public every day from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. It is planned to hold the annual get-together for ladies and gentlemen in the dining room of the armory at 8 o'clock Thursday evening, Jan. 8. The ladies of the Methodist church will serve and Exposition Manager Daniel D. Cavanaugh, president of the association, will be toastmaster.

The Committee

The exposition committee comprises the following: Gardiner H. Hall, Prof. David E. Warner, Fred Glover, Albert E. Anthony, Edwin Buck, Jr., Russell Waldo, Harold Storrs, James B. Fullerton, Frank Fitch, Nelson A. Daniels, John J. O'Rourke, Walter Haven, John Curry, I. M. Johanson, Mrs. George Wraight, Herbert D. Pollard, Judge Eugene W. Latimer and Manager D. D. Cavanaugh.

In the Mansfield town court Saturday, Henry Roberts, 38, of 68 Union street, this city, was fined $10 and costs when found guilty of the improper use of automobile markers. Justice of the Peace Byron M. Houston remitted $9 of the fine, leaving a balance of $12.50, which was paid. Roberts was arrested by State Policeman Henry Zehrer of the Stafford Springs barracks.

FUNERAL

William T. Wood

The funeral services for William T. Wood, who died at his home in Watertown, Mass., last Wednesday night were held in the mortuary parlors at 62 North street at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Rev. David W. Lovett of the Baptist church officiated. Burial was in the Willimantic cemetery. Arrangements were by Avery and Van Zandt.

A new fire alarm box, No. 26, has been installed at the corner of Card and Pleasant streets by Fire Chief Charles A. Reynolds.

Rev. George Svenson of Bohuslan, Sweden, who is traveling the United States in the interest of the orphan home work on the scattered islands off the west coast of Sweden, will deliver an illustrated lecture on Sweden at the Ebenezer Lutheran church Monday evening. Admission will be free and the public is invited.

A large attendance is expected at the weekly meeting of the Willimantic Rotary club to be held with a luncheon at the Nathan Hale hotel Tuesday noon when Dr. C. C. McCracken, president of Connecticut Agricultural college, will speak on The Status of Higher Education in the United States. President McCracken was secured as a speaker by Prof. Benjamin W. Ellis, member of the club.

Rev. W. D. Pardee of New Haven delivered a sermon-address at the morning worship at the First Methodist Episcopal church today.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel A. Shea and family of Providence, R. I., were guests today at the home of her mother, Mrs. Michael Moriarty.

Capt. James B. Fullerton, general chairman of the $500,000 campaign for the new Windham Community Memorial hospital, was optimistic today that the $84,000 needed to complete the objective would be reported in at the final report meeting Monday night. No definite predictions could be made today, however, especially in view of the fact that many of the pledges expected to be represented in Monday night's report are forthcoming from boards of directors of industries or individuals residing out of town and some of the replies may be delayed. A conservative expectancy on pledges now under consideration and amounts actually secured since last Wednesday night is that at least the $500,000 mark will be reached. Tonight's report meeting will be in the state armory and at the usual hour, 6:30 o'clock. A special supper will be served in recognition of the efforts of the team workers from the city and surrounding towns.

Large and lazy snowflakes fell for some time this afternoon and this section experienced its first real snowstorm of the season.

Michael Longo, Arthur McQuillan and Emmett Welch were in New York today, attending the football game between the New York Giants and Knute Rockne's Notre Dame stars.

Miss Inez Paton, chairman of the annual every-member canvass of the First Baptist church, reported at the morning services today that a total of $3,175 in pledges and cash gifts had been received in the canvass made last week. Of the total, about $2,400 will be applied toward the church budget, which amounts to $5,600, and the remainder is for the missionary budget of $1,150. The report, while representing less than one-half of the budget, was accepted as encouraging in view of business conditions. Miss Paton was assisted in the canvass by Miss Ada Bowen, church collector, and a group of 24 workers. Other sources of income and additional contributions to be made during the year will be applied toward the budgeted expenses.

Made Travel Dangerous

Motor travel over the Hartford-New London and Norwich turnpikes was made difficult Sunday evening following the light fall of snow which covered this vicinity. Several automobiles overturned on the Clark and Ryan hills in Marlborough on the Hartford turnpike and another car is understood to have veered off the highway into a nearby mowing lot near the Sullivan farm on the Norwich road. No serious injury to the motorists were reported.

CHAPLIN

BODY OF MRS. LANPHEAR BROUGHT FROM FLORIDA

The funeral of Alida Martin Lanphear, wife of Rev. Walter E. Lanphear, was attended at the Congregational church, Thursday afternoon, at 2 o'clock. It was the largest funeral held in the church in half a century, the mourners filling the auditory, many coming from adjoining towns and more distant places. The service was conducted by Rev. Paul B. Sanger, pastor of the church, assisted by neighboring ministers. Rev. Florence Jones, of Mansfield Center, read selections of scripture and spoke of the life of the departed closing with Tennyson's Crossing the Bar. Rev. W. B. Sandford, of Lansdowne, Pa., a lifelong friend of Rev. Mr. Lanphear, voiced the feeling of the large number present in a tender tribute to the character and personality of Mrs. Lanphear. Rev. Frank A. Fuller, of Putnam, added words of tribute in behalf of the Windham county association of ministers. Rev. John H. Knott, a friend of Rev. Mr. Lanphear for many years, offered prayer. During the service a choir of voices from Mansfield Center, North Windham and Eastford, sang the hymns among the number, Jerusalem the Golden, a favorite of Mrs. Lanphear. Mrs. Henry Buell and Mrs. Archa Walker, of Eastford, sang the duet, My Task. Rev. Mr. Sanger also spoke during the service paying a high tribute to the Christian life of Mrs. Lanphear. The service closed with prayer and benediction by Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones of Mansfield Center church. There were exceptionally beautiful floral tributes. Burial was in the Center cemetery where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Sanger and Rev. Mr. Sandford. The choir sang, Shall We Gather at The River? The bearers were, Merritt Welch, Samuel A. Chappell, Ellsworth E. Weeks and Wilfred E. Burdick. Mrs. Lanphear is survived by her husband, and two sisters, Miss Julia L. Martin and Miss Gertrude Martin of Chaplin. A wide circle of friends has expressed sympathy with the bereaved in their deep sorrow. Mrs. Lanphear was beloved by a host of friends who will ever remember her as one who made friends by her sweet spirit and sunny ways and lived a devoted Christian life; her passing is keenly felt by a multitude of acquaintances.

Rev. W. B. Sandford, of Lansdowne, Pa., who came on to attend the funeral of Mrs. Lanphear, returned to his home, Friday.

J. Wilbur Lanphear, who is employed at the Hartford hospital, was home to attend the funeral of his cousin, Alida Martin Lanphear and returned to Hartford, Friday.

The Christian Endeavor union meeting of five societies will meet with the local society, Sunday evening at 7.30. A feature of the meeting will be a dramatic debate between Rev. William Pardee, of Orange, and Rev. E. C. Prettyman, of New Haven, who are engaged in state temperance work.

HEBRON

Arthur Strickland, 11, grade third, of Hebron Center school, while playing games Friday afternoon at recess, ran against the school house and cut the top of his head open. Mr. Carr, minister of St. Peter's church, and Miss Lillian Degnan motored to Colchester with the boy. Dr. Cyrus E. Pendleton took two stitches and dressed the wound, also dressed the wound again Sunday.

Twelve members of the Ladies' Aid society and five visitors met Friday afternoon with Mrs. Carrie I. Burnham. A quilt was worked on by the members. The color of the velvet for the seat-covers to the Congregational church seats was discussed. Refreshments were served.

About 15 members of the Young Women's club and four visitors met Thursday afternoon with the Misses Helen and Gladys Hough. Following business matters, Christmas booklets, Christmas cards and pictures were made. The cards will be sent to St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic to be used at Christmas time. Sandwiches, cookies and hot chocolate were served. The next meeting will be held in Gilead hall, Gilead, and moving pictures will be shown.

Three tables of bridge were played Wednesday night at the home of Miss Marion Gott. Mrs. Frederick Wyman won highest honors and Mrs. Carrie I. Burnham stood second.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin T. Smith's eldest daughter, Mrs. Nathan Gellert, with her husband motored from Meadow Brooks, Penn., to Hebron, last Saturday and spent Sunday with Mrs. Gellert's parents. They also visited the First Congregational church.

Rev. and Mrs. Howard C. Champe were recent callers in Columbia.

Leslie F. Ward was in Hartford Friday night to attend a salesman's meeting.

Rev. and Mrs. Howard C. Champe and children and Mr. and Mrs. Champe's brother-in-law, Lucius W. Robinson and children, were in Hartford Saturday.

The members of Hebron C. E. society gave the comedy-drama "Lighthouse Nan" in Andover Thursday night. About 100 were present. $22.00 was taken in at the door. The proceeds were divided with Andover C. E. society. The C. E. society is to give this play later in Colchester, also in South Coventry.

Mrs. Winifred Ellis, Mrs. Francis Waldo and Mrs. M. E. Tefft motored to Wethersfield Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Tefft remained, but Mrs. Ellis and Mrs. Waldo returned home Wednesday night.

Robert F. Porter celebrated his birthday Dec. 14.

The board of assessors held meetings in the town record building Tuesday, Thursday and Friday.

Hebron and Gilead church choirs held a rehearsal of the Christmas cantata Saturday night in the chapel of Hebron church.

TYNAN, VILLAGE BLACKSMITH, DIES SUDDENLY SUNDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

HEBRON, Dec. 14.—William Tynan, 54, village blacksmith of Hebron, died suddenly this morning at 2 o'clock at his home. Death was probably caused by heart trouble. Dr. Cyrus E. Pendleton was called but Mr. Tynan was dead when the doctor arrived.

Mr. Tynan was born in Colchester, but has been a resident of Hebron for the past 20 years. He leaves his wife, three brothers, of Waterbury and Hartford, and two sisters.

LAW CHANGES PROPOSED BY JUDICIAL COUNCIL'S REPORT

Eight new recommendations for changes in the judicial procedure of Connecticut and eight proposals for resubmission to the next general assembly, which were contained in the first report of the judicial council but were not acted upon by the 1929 session, are contained in the second report of the council, which has just been submitted to Governor Trumbull.

Jury Less Than 12

The new suggestions are: An amendment to Article First, Section 21, of the Connecticut constitution giving the general assembly power to provide, except in capital cases, for a jury of less than 12, and for verdicts by less than the entire membership of the jury; an act changing the terms and sessions of the supreme court of errors and providing that all terms shall be held in Hartford on the first Tuesday of each month except July, August and September; an act constituting district courts similar to the Massachusetts system in place of the town, city and borough courts and justices of the peace; an act providing for the admissibility of business entries in evidence; an act changing the form of writs in civil actions; an act providing for the hearing of disputed claims by probate courts; an act providing for the transfer of causes of action relating to the same occurrence or transaction brought in different countries; and an act amending general statutes, section 6,431, and providing for a better procedure for the examination of an accused's mental condition before or during trial.

Reiterate Suggestions

The acts contained in the first report and which were not acted upon by the legislature, but which the council has voted to submit for the second time are: An act concerning the improvement in the selection of jurors; an act concerning minor infractions of the motor vehicle law; an act providing that the failure or refusal of a person on trial for crime to testify may be commented upon in the trial to the court or jury by the judge or the attorneys for the state or the accused; an act providing that the state attorney shall be present in the grand jury rooms to examine witnesses who testify in the presence of grand jurors; an act providing for the creation of a state bureau of identification; an act concerning the duties and powers of state referees; an act concerning untrue allegations or denials in pleadings; and an act providing for examination of the qualifications of jurors by the judge.

Six Recommendations Passed

Created in 1927, the judicial council, in its first report, recommended 16 public acts and made six suggestions to the judges of the superior court for the improvement of the rules and methods of procedure in the judicial system of the state. The legislature, in 1929, passed six of the acts substantially as recommended, as follows: An act concerning the suspension of execution of sentence (general statutes, sec. 6,487); an act concerning probation (general statutes, sec. 6,518); an act providing for civil and criminal terms and sessions of the superior court (general statutes, sections 5,329-5,332); an act concerning appeals to the supreme court of errors (general statutes, sections 5,689, 5,700, 2,271); an act concerning divorce actions (general statutes, sec. 5,180); and an act concerning false affidavits or statements (general statutes, sec. 5,674).

Adopted by Judges

The report of the council points out that of the suggestions to the judges of the superior court the judges have adopted three of these practically as made to them and two of the others. One of these was that relating to summary judgment, which is termed in the report, "the most liberal and forward-looking summary judgment act or rule which has as yet been adopted in this country, or indeed on this continent." The judges also have adopted the rules concerning simplified pleading in criminal actions. The council again submits to the judges the recommendations concerning argument upon objections to evidence; expedition in trial; opening statements and leading questions; uniting of motions and demurrer in a single pleading, which have not yet been acted upon.

A new appellate procedure, following closely the suggestions of the judicial council, has been adopted to correct the burdensome procedure heretofore in force. Other suggestions to the judges include rules on the discovery of facts and documents; production and inspection of documents, and a rule providing for the giving of notice by an accused if he intends to rely on the defense of insanity or alibi.

Concerning its suggestion as to the reduction in the number of jurors, the council says that the jury of 12 is purely a matter of historical accident and that in civil cases the number is plainly excessive. It may well be, however, that a man should not be put on trial for his life by less than 12 jurors, the report states. The council believes that a reduction in the size of juries will reduce the expense to the state and the litigant, reduce the burden on the community of jury service and tend to improve the character of the jury by the greater ease in securing a smaller number of competent men. Nine jurors would seem to be sufficient in all cases except capital crimes, the report says. Concerning verdicts by less than a unanimous vote the council reports that the late Chief Justice Taft favored modification of the present rule, as did other judges and legal experts. A change in the present system would eliminate "hung" juries; compromise verdicts formed by one or two obstinate or recalcitrant jurors and result in a better administration of justice, particularly criminal justice, the council believes.

Would Fix High Court

In reference to the proposal to make the supreme court of errors a permanent, instead of an ambulatory court, the council report states that the present system in Connecticut exists in only eight other states; in the remaining 39 the highest court sits in one place. The proposal, it believes, will add to the dignity and strength of the court. The supreme court building in Hartford is the most appropriate place for the court to meet, it believes, and if the plan is put into effect, it would speed the hearing of appeals; bring about a more even distribution of business during the year, save the time of lawyers, including those living at points distant from Hartford, and enable the judges, by reason of more frequent meetings, to exchange views orally, which they now do necessarily by mail.

The terms would be on the first Tuesday of each month except July, August and September and each term would last until all appeals ready for disposition at the beginning thereof were heard. Assuming the number of appeals to be the same as in 1929-1930, 230, the average number for nine months would be 25, varying according to conditions. The cases would be assigned by the clerk, in consultation with the chief justice, in the order in which they appeared on the docket, unless otherwise ordered by the court and lawyers would not have to attend assignment day.

District Court System

The council urges the adoption of the district court system, declaring that the weakness in the present judicial system is in the town, city and borough courts and in the justice of the peace courts, in which the judges are not responsible to any authority during the time they are in office. There is no general organization among the judges of these courts, no uniform practice, no body of traditions, standards or ideals, the council states.

"The abuses in the administration of the law has crept into a number of these courts," the report states. "The general assembly has continually added to the number until they now number 62. One of the reasons for the existence of some of them is the desire to get rid of the justice of the peace court, which by most people is distrusted as a court of justice."

Jurisdiction Of Court

In the proposed act the district court would have jurisdiction of crimes punishable by fine up to $500 or by imprisonment not to exceed one year, or both; in the case of crimes whose maximum penalty shall be a fine of $50, or a jail sentence of 30 days, or both, the court would have final jurisdiction; the trial would be held without a jury and appeal may be had for errors of law to the supreme court of errors. In crimes calling for punishment up to the maximum jurisdiction of the court the right of appeal would be to the criminal court of common pleas in the district, or if there be none, to the superior court.

The civil jurisdiction of the district court would have final jurisdiction in all actions involving $100 or less, subject only to an appeal for errors of law to the supreme court of errors. It would be given final and exclusive jurisdiction in all actions involving $100 to $200 and concurrent jurisdiction from $200 to $1,000 with the courts of common pleas, and where there is no such court, with the superior court.

Council Personnel

Former Chief Justice George W. Wheeler had a major part in the preparation of the report as chairman of the council. The report covers 168 typewritten pages. Since the last report Richard H. Phillips has resigned as a member of the council and has been succeeded by Dean Charles E. Clark of the Yale School of Law, but Mr. Phillips, who is the reporter of judicial decisions of the supreme court of errors, has been induced to continue as secretary. His work is praised in the report to the governor. The other members of the council are Arthur M. Brown, Judge Arthur F. Ells, Judge Ernest A. Inglis, Joseph G. Shapiro, Judge Charles B. Waller, Donald J. Warner and James E. Wheeler. Edward M. Day of Hartford has been named to succeed Judge Inglis, who has resigned from the council.

CHANGING PLANT GEOGRAPHY OF THE UNITED STATES

Award to Dr. David Fairchild, botanist and agriculture explorer, of the George Robert White medal, highest horticultural honor in America, bestowed by the Massachusetts Horticultural society, oldest and most distinguished society of its kind in the country, calls attention to the vast changes in the plant geography of the United States.

Thirty-three years ago, Dr. Fairchild organized the work in the department of agriculture which crystallized in the office of foreign plant introduction, has introduced into the United States more than 80,000 separate species and varieties of the useful plants," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"These new plants have added to the beauty and variety of the public parks and private gardens from coast to coast, and have enhanced the value of agricultural products by millions of dollars annually.

"From the days of the Pilgrims, America's first plant explorers, who found 'Indian baskets, filled with corn, some whereof was in ears, fair and good, of divers colors,' until today when any train or airplane ride, or walk through city parks or countryside reveals immigrant plant life, the plant geography of the United States has been vastly and continually transformed.

"But it was not until the young man from one of the country's first great agricultural colleges, that of the state of Kansas, became identified with the department of agriculture, in Washington, and was called upon by Secretary James Wilson to organize the work of foreign plant introduction that the government engaged, systematically and scientifically, in this basic work of economic agriculture.

Dr. Fairchild engaged in his first searches for new plants to introduce as the agricultural explorer attached to the expeditions of Barbour Lathrop. Then, and since, he and his associates have penetrated jungles, marshes and deserts to discover plants which would yield new food and fruits for the American table, raw materials for American factories, or would add new color and form to our gardens.

"In 1906 after eight years of foreign exploration he resumed charge of the office of foreign plant introduction, an office which has engaged in one of the most adventurous, romantic and useful tasks of any government bureau. He now is attached to it as a special agricultural explorer, with his office in Washington, and a winter home in Coconut Grove, Florida, where in the large federal plant introduction garden and in his own private garden he experiments with the many useful, exotic tropical plants, shrubs, trees and flowers he collects on his pilgrimages to distant parts of the earth. "Under his supervision or with his cooperation more than 30 expeditions have been sent out, with such explorers as Frank Meyer, T. H. Kearney, W. T. Swingle, Mark Carleton, Joseph F. Rock, Neils Hansen, Wilson Popenoe and P. H. Dorsett as leaders. They have brought back plants, shrubs, trees, vegetables, grains and forage crops which have beautified or made more valuable hundreds of thousands of acres of gardens, parks and farm lands of the country.

"Among these introductions were the dry land elm, brought by Meyer from China, now thriving from Louisiana to the Canadian border; superior varieties of the Chinese and Japanese persimmons, once a curiosity, now frequent in American market stalls; the popular sorts of the avocado (alligator pear) which Popenoe found after two years' search among the mountains of Guatemala; the pistache nut of the Levant, and the soy bean of the Orient, now grown on three million acres of land all over the United States.

"The office of foreign plant introduction under Dr. Fairchild's direction has accumulated the most extensive collection of original field descriptions of useful crop plants in existence, the largest seed collection of economic plant species, and the greatest collection of photographs of useful plants in the world.

"Of the plants which Dr. Fairchild personally collected, one of the most important is probably the Feterita sorghum from the Sudan, an important grain and forage crop for Arizona and California, several million dollars worth of which is now being grown annually.

"He also brought in the Persian Gulf dates from Baghdad and the tung oil tree introduction from China, whose nuts furnish the 'wood oil' of the paint and varnish industry.

"It is largely through the initiative of Dr. Fairchild that groves of the oriental bamboo have been established in America.

"More and more do industry, medicine, and food purveyors look to the tropics for sources of supply—such tropical crops as rubber, which makes possible the automobile; quinine, which is man's first line of defense against malaria; and coffee which is to Brazil what cotton is to our southern states. Therefore in recent years Dr. Fairchild and his associates have explored into the more remote tropic jungles and forests. His quest for new plants has led him through the Dutch East Indies and the South Sea Isles, into Siam, New Guinea and Ceylon, along the border land of the Persian Gulf, and he extended, in southern latitudes, to the interiors of New Zealand and Australia."

PRESTON

The Unceasing Workers' Bible class of the Baptist Sunday school met with Mrs. C. C. Zabriskie, Saturday afternoon, with a good attendance. An enjoyable time was spent with readings and songs in charge of Antoinette Costella. Officers for the coming year were elected as follows: President, Myra Wilson; vice president, Jennie Costella; secretary, Florence Pendleton; treasurer, Ernestine Prue.

Hubby Sues Pauline

Declaring that he has been a husband in name only, Hugh C. Leighton, below, has brought suit for divorce against Pauline Frederick, top, motion picture and stage star, in Los Angeles. In the eight months they have been married Leighton charges Miss Frederick has failed to carry out her duties and obligations as a wife. Leighton is Miss Frederick's fourth husband.

In a Montrose school recently a little girl informed her teacher that an airman was flying over Montrose late the night before.

"What was he doing?" asked his teacher.

"Please, Miss, he was looking for his children," was the unexpected answer.

"Looking for his children!" said the teacher, "what do you mean?"

"Daddy said he'd lost his bairns."—Scots Observer.

DANIELSON

MRS. EMMA LAROCHE DIES FROM HEART ATTACK

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 14—Mrs. Emma LaRoche, a widow about 60 years of age, was found dead in bed this morning at the home of her sister, Mrs. Adolphus Tibeault, in Ballouville, where she had gone from her home in Attawaugan for a visit. Dr. F. P. Todd, medical examiner, viewed the body. Heart disease was the cause of death. She had not been in the best of health of late, but there was nothing to indicate that the end was so near at hand.

Mrs. LaRoche was born in this town, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pechie, and had been a life long resident here. Her husband has been dead a number of years. She leaves her mother, Mrs. Sarah Pechie, resident in Plainfield, and the following brothers and sisters: Durfee, of Plainfield, Henry and Frank of Attawaugan, John and Frederick of Dayville, Mrs. John Benoit of Putnam and Mrs. Joseph Aubin, with whom she made her home, of Attawaugan.

Touring in the West

Harold B. Atwood, who, with Mrs. Atwood, is at Tucson, Arizona, in the interest of his health, writes entertainingly of his experiences and impression of his trip to the southwest and of the interesting country in which he now is located.

Incidentally, he has gained 8 1-2 pounds in weight since leaving Danielson a few weeks ago. On the way out by motor good roads—wonderful roads—were the rule until Topeka, Kan., was reached, then the going was not so good. From Colorado down through New Mexico the roads were terrible, he writes, and that he never saw so much dust in his life. An approaching car would stir up such blinding clouds of dust that it was necessary for Mr. Atwood to stop his car, the view of the road ahead being obliterated. Yet the scenery was marvelous.

He says: "I never saw so many dead animals as were to be found along the roads—all killed by automobiles. There was an average of a dead rabbit to the mile on the route through Kansas, and a dozen or more cats, dogs, birds, a wild cat and a horse, all knocked cold by passing cars."

The people in that part of the southwest near where Mr. Atwood is staying do not know what a good road is, he says. "They think a road is good if your car can stay on it at 35 miles an hour."

"Saw more intoxicated people in the middle west driving cars than you could see in the east in several times the period we spent in traveling through. We had to trail several cars the drivers of which were so full that they took the whole road from one gutter to the other."

Mr. Atwood finds the Indians in and about Tucson of special interest. They have their places in the life of the city, numbers of them being employed as hotel clerks and bell boys. He tells of the good hunting there is in territory near Tucson, and of the ease with which gunners get an abundance of quail and rabbits, even while hunting without a dog.

Four Arrested for Taking Laurel

Ernest Logee, his sister, Mary and two of his younger brothers, aged respectively 12 and 14 years were arrested yesterday afternoon in Pomfret for taking Christmas greens on the estate of Dr. F. G. Goodridge. All are residents of Danielson. State Officer H. Theodore Strand made the arrests. Ernest and his sister were released under bonds of $100 each and will make their appearance in court before Justice L. A. Woisard of Danielson next Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, in Pomfret.

It will be charged in court that the tonneau of a large Cadillac sedan with which they made the trip to Pomfret was nearly filled with evergreen and laurel when the state officer came upon them. This is the second set of arrests in a Windham county town within the past two or three weeks for picking Christmas greens without first obtaining permission of the owner of the land.

From now on right up to the holiday state officers will keep a sharp lookout for violations of this law and game wardens, ranging through the county, are also watching for violators.

New Road Only 20 Ft. Wide

One hears that when the state constructs the new concrete roadway through Broad street from Davis park southward the coming spring it will be but 20 feet in width. Broad street is very considerably wider than that, and, it would appear, that Danielson will have much the same sort of problem confronting it as arose in Jewett City this year. It will be recalled that down there the town after some discussion of the matter arranged to have the concrete put in the full width of the street, paying the additional cost. Jewett City has been applauded for his good judgment many times by persons who drive through there.

The Broad street matter is not before this town as yet, and it is difficult at this time to forecast just what the town will do about the proposition. If it should decide against building the full width of the street in concrete, because of the expense, there is the alternative of maintaining heavily oiled strips at each side of the concrete, which will be part of the Norwich-Worcester trunk line, the cutoff for through traffic around the business center of Danielson.

Incidentally, plans for the new concrete roadway through Broad street calls for some alterations from the present grade in the vicinity of Killingly high school and other nearby properties.

To those who might be tempted to do something they should not do—take things without paying for them—it may be said that store forces here are keeping an especially sharp lookout for shoplifters these pre-holiday times. Last year goods were stolen from several stores just prior to the holiday. That experience has made proprietors and clerks doubly vigilant this year.

Wednesday evening a dairy meeting under the auspices of the Windham County Farmers' association is to be held in the incubator cellar at the poultry farm of Selectman John Z. LaBelle at Ballouville. All dairymen will be welcomed to this meeting. The features of the meeting will be based on the new county program for better incomes on dairy farms. It was developed on the figures as shown by a survey by a committee of dairymen of the county and is practical for any farmer to adopt. Mr. Merrill, extension dairyman from the Connecticut Agricultural college, will be present and give a talk on the dairy section of the program. This will include breeding, raising of young stock, disease control and feeding and dairy management. County Agent Raymond E. Wing will take up the development of the program in the town of Killingly and discuss the methods by which it is to be carried out. Every dairyman who is interested in having a larger income on his farm is invited to be in attendance. A county survey has shown that 48 per cent of the farms were receiving gross incomes of less than $1,000. It is believed that the new county program will do a great deal toward making many the farms in this group yield much better financial returns.

The selectmen are still battling away with the difficult problem of distinguishing the worthy from the unworthy in rendering aid to the needy. Every week, about, a case is uncovered where persons are undeservingly trying to get money from the town. The selectmen intend that no worthy person shall go hungry or cold during the winter, and they are equally purposeful that the grafter shall be weeded out. It was suggested to one of the members of the board at the week end that the arrest of some of the persons who are trying to get money from the town while undeserving to receive it, by reason of having sufficient funds to get along, and the preferring of a charge of getting money under false pretence against them might curb their efforts considerable.

Mrs. S. Gingras of Reynolds street will leave Monday to enter St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester.

Monday evening Miss Margaret McBride of Academy street is to leave for Clearwater, Fla., to remain for the winter season.

Coal and cord wood for sale. If you want good, clean coal call Danielson 77-5.—Adv.

In excess of 700 persons paid their personal taxes at the office of the selectmen on Saturday. Monday, with a dollar penalty added, the assessment against delinquents will be $3.00 each.

Hunters out after rabbits Saturday report encountering numerous partridges and cock pheasants in nearby territory. To date they are wintering well, no snow having come to cover their food supply.

Thursday evening members of the Nazarene church are going to Abington to hold a prayer meeting at The Haven.

Alphonse LaPierre of New Bedford visited with friends here and in surrounding towns over the week end.

Members of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., are to have as their guests at their meeting next Thursday afternoon Miss Katherine A. Nettleton, state regent, and Miss Emeline A. Street, state vice regent.

Next Sunday evening the annual presentation of scenes from the Nativity will attract many people to Pomfret from surrounding towns.

Newly elected officers of the Help One Another class of the Baptist church are: President, Mrs Harry Richardson; vice president, Mrs. E. B. Wilbur; treasurer, Mrs. W. J. Craig; secretary, Mrs. Frank Gallup.

WATERMAN CO. NOT TO REMOVE PLANT FROM PUTMAN AT PRESENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 14—Preparations for the establishment of the Waterman Worsted company, in the large modern Devonshire mills at Goffs Falls, N. H., are going forward at a rapid pace, it was learned today, but manufacturing operations at the local plant of the company will not be discontinued for some time yet, has been assurred by an authority of the organization. At the present time the Pomfret street plant is operating night and day on full time schedules in an effort to meet production demands of business orders received during the past season.

As a matter of fact, business with the Waterman Worsted company, is good! And nothing must interfere with its present condition if the manufacturing tempo is to be maintained. In view of this, removal plans first announced several weeks ago following confirmation of the reported acquirement of the New Hampshire plant, have been somewhat altered.

To insure the prevention of a break in the production line everything must be in readiness to commence operations at Goffs Falls mills as soon as transfer orders are received. In substance, this means that large orders for the most part, must be filled and their filling will take place in Putnam because of the presence of necessary machinery.

Only when business returns to normal, will plans for the removal of the Pomfret street plant's equipment be made. Present appearances are that that these operations will not be undertaken for some time as yet, insuring that local textile workers employed at the Waterman mill will not be affected until the latter part of the winter at the earliest.

Loss of the worsted manufacturing concern will be one of the most staggering blows the city's business interests will have to absorb, for the company is Putnam's only manufacturer of worsted fabrics. During the years of its existence it has successfully combated business depression and even when the outlook was darkest, the Waterman company managed to retain at least a part of its large working force.

While those interested in the future of Putnam must reconcile themselves to the ultimate loss of the concern, announcement of postponement of removal to a later date, is indeed encouraging.

PLAINFIELD

The Plainfield Woman's club met recently at the Community house, the president, Mrs. Esther Butler, presiding. There was an attendance of fourteen. At the close of the business session there was singing by the members and Mrs. Bradford, Mrs. Jeffers, Mrs. Exley and Mrs. Briggs read interesting articles from a club periodical. A social hour followed, the hostesses, Mrs. Nolan and Mrs. Alice Gallup serving refreshments. The next meeting will be held at the Community house Dec. 18.

Ralph Rundell is employed as poultryman at the Coventry Poultry farm in Rockville.

Friends of Mrs. William P. Barstow are pleased to hear that she was able to be discharged from Backus hospital, Norwich, Tuesday and is at her home on Pleasant street.

At a whist party Tuesday evening at Grange hall, nine tables were in play. Prizes were won by Mrs. James Muldoon, Mrs. Lena Zurick; gentlemen's, Freddie Eichelberg and Charles Dodge.

Supper And Sale

PUTNAM

LOCAL POSTOFFICE BEGINS TO FEEL HOLIDAY RUSH

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 14—The Christmas spirit being displayed these days is gradually sifting into the local post office in the form of gift packages and season greeting cards. By the middle of the week it is anticipated that the flood of holiday mail will have reached a high point and in order to adequately cope with the situation, Postmaster Archibald Macdonald, this afternoon announced that the postal working force would be increased until after the Christmas rush has subsided.

Mr. Macdonald at the same time appealed for the cooperation of post office patrons who can lighten the holiday burdens of the local mail staff by the strict observance of a few simple rules. Outstanding among his suggestions are the careful wrapping and secure fastening of parcels containing gifts. Another extremely important fact in the proper mailing of Christmas packages Mr. Macdonald said, is addressing them in clear and legible handwriting. With the public holding up its end, the postal service employes will reciprocate by doing their part to insure safe and prompt delivery of the extra mail poundage of the holiday season.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Zaltas of Fremont street, spent Sunday the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Tuber of Norwich.

William Taylor of South Main street, visited Sunday at the home of his parents in Stafford Springs, Conn.

Mrs. B. T. Favereault and Mrs. George Dagneault of Jewett City were the guests of Putnam friends today.

..Attorney Irving H. Miron, counsel for Lewis A. Hoar of Plainfield, former treasurer of the Moosup Trust company is making final preparations today in the case of the state against the Moosup banker, which will be tried at a special criminal session of superior court in this city on Tuesday.

While no plan of street decoration for the business section has been undertaken this year by the merchants, individual store owners have dolled the fronts of their business places with colored lights with the result that Main street during the evening hours is bright with the gay colors of the holiday season.

Boys and girls of school age, have found the making and selling of red-bowed Christmas wreaths a profitable pastime at this season of the year. With the woodlands hereabouts abounding with endless strands of the always popular evergreen foliage, the youngsters have experienced little difficulty in gathering up enough of the raw material, quickly and easily weaving it into hoops and delivering them to ready markets where substantial revenue is being secured for their time and effort.

Saturday's sudden turn in the weather furnished what appeared today, to be a permanent foundation for blankets of ice on all ponds in this section. Ponds were covered this morning with ice formed over night. Indications this afternoon were that skating lovers would be able to vent their enthusiasm for the winter sport within a day or so.

The apparatus at the central fire station is being subjected to winter dust chasing programmes as fireman attached to this unit of the department under the direction of Chief Dumas are giving added lustre to the fire wagons—with the aid of a quantity of silver polish and the spreading of a bit of the so-called "elbow grease."

Fritz King a resident of Eastford, owns and operates a fairly speedy automobile and with his trusty vehicle, he probably "burns up" more dust on the rural roads than does any other automobilist of the little village that nestles in Windham's hills, 18 miles west of here. After a fashion, this afternoon, Fritz attempted a "fade away" number on State Policeman H. T. Strand of Danielson barracks, while he was subjecting his car to a bit of exercise. The state officer who was posting the territory between Abington and Pomfret in search of hunters of the forbidden laurel was attracted to the uncrowned Eastford speed king's emittance from the driveway leading to the estate of Dr. F. T. Goodridge. Stepping out of his machine, Officer Strand flung open his civilian overcoat and after exposing his uniform, ordered the driver to pull over to the side of the road. According to the officer, the driver who later turned out to be none other than Fritz, himself, ignored the summons and promptly undertook to stage a quick getaway. He disappeared behind a cloud of dust, but Officer Strand lost no time in giving chase and before the final screen of dust cleared in front of the King home in Eastford, the speedometer on the policeman's car indicated that the wild dash had taken him over six miles. King was immediately placed under arrest on charges of reckless driving and refusal to stop at the direction of an officer. He will appear in justice court in Pomfret on Friday.

JEWETT CITY

M. E. CHURCH REOPENED WITH SERVICE OF REJOICING

Sunday was a day of great rejoicing in the Methodist church, when services of thanksgiving for the beautifying and improving of the exterior and interior of the church edifice were held in the auditorium. The Baptist and Congregational congregations joined in a union service in the evening. At the morning service, the prelude, An Irish Melody, was played by Charles Helmboldt, violin, George Helmboldt 'cello and Everett Thornton, organ. The services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Carter, who gave a brief talk to the boys and girls, based on the story of Hagar and her son, Ishamael. He expressed his great appreciation for the beautiful flowers and plants, and the splendid co-operation of the church officials and people. Mrs. Adam Medick, Jr., sang The Pilgrimage, by Buck, as a prayer response. The sermon was by Rev. Myron E. Genter, of Norwich, district superintendent of this district. His theme was The place of the church in the social order of today, and of the people's attitude and obligations to the church. It was a powerful and convincing sermon, setting forth of the church as the holy bride of Christ, and into which nothing should enter which is not a real and actual ministry, and which develops a belief in the God of whom Jesus taught. The two other musical numbers in the morning program were a Tone Poem by Penn, at the offertory, and Postlude in E Flat, by Manifold. The altar decorations of calla lilies, calendu'a, white chrysanthemums, aspidito and English ivy were very beautiful and were donated by Whiting's greenhouses, the Jewett City greenhouses, a friend and Miss Jean Burleson.

A splendid recital was given in the evening arranged by the chorister, Everett Thornton, and the pastor, Rev. J. W. Carter. The First Baptist church choir of Norwich furnished several numbers. Mrs. Annie Robertson Cowan, the accompanist and organist at the Norwich church was a former organist at the Jewett City church. Robert Gray, the soloist from Norwich, is the son-in-law of Mrs. Alida Tinker Boyens, of Norwich, a former Jewett City resident and member of the Methodist choir. The program included the following numbers:

Hymn, prayer, selection, Hear Ye My People, Robert Gray, soloist, First Baptist choir; solo, "Dwell In My Heart," Mrs. Adam Medick; violin, Silent Night, Chas. Helmboldt, of Lisbon; solo, "Kipling's Recessional, John McLean; selection, Hark, the Herald Angels Sing, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Robinson; solo, I Come to Thee, Robert A. Gray; greetings, Rev. G. F. Goodenough; solo, Lord I Believe (from The Rulers Daughter), James Royle, of Plainfield; offering, stewards; solo, "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say," Mrs. Adam Medick; violin solo, Charles Helmboldt; greetings, Rev. E. E. Scates; solo, In the Secret of His Presence, James Royle; selection, It Came Upon the Midnight Clear, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Robinson; solo, "I Strive Each Day," John McLean; selection, Let Mount Zion Rejoice, First Baptist choir; hymn, "Silent Night."

History Of The Church.

Prior to 1874 there had been no regular Methodist preaching nor church organization in Jewett City. There was a Methodist church at Hopeville, of which Rev. James Tregaskis was pastor. It was thought best, as there were few Methodists in Jewett City, to unite with Hopeville.

At the annual conference, held at North Bridgewater, March 25, 1874, Mr. Tregaskis was appointed pastor of these two charges. He found but seven members living in Jewett City, but found quite a number who were in sympathy with the doctrine of the church. With that great zeal characteristic of true Methodists, he secured the only available place, Liberty hall, and held his first preaching service, Sunday evening, April 12, 1874. A class and Sunday school were organized May 3, 1874. Revival services were commenced Sept. 13, 1874. Scores of souls were saved under the preaching of Mr. Tregaskis at this time. Thus did God set His approval upon the new movement.

The church was organized Jan. 26, 1875, and trustees and stewards were elected by the quarterly conference at Hopeville. In compliance with the request of the people, Jewett City was made a separate charge, April 14, 1875, and Rev. James Tregaskis was appointed pastor.

Steps were taken to secure a house to worship in. Success crowned this effort. In September, 1875, the foundation of the house was laid, and Jan. 27, 1876, the church was dedicated, Rev. J. H. James preached the dedicatory sermon.

In 1890, during the pastorate of Rev. Ambrie Field, a very pleasant and comfortable parsonage was built. (Extract from History of New England Southern Conference.—Miller.)

During the pastorate of the Rev. M. T. Braley, the church realized a high degree of prosperity.

In 1901, during the pastorate of Rev. H. E. Murkett, the church was raised a few feet, and a large vestry and kitchen were built.

Since the church was organized, 56 years ago, 24 pastors have carried on the work. Their names and years of service are: James Tregaskis, 1874-77, D. J. Griffin, 1877-78, Geo. W. Brewster, 1878-81, Samuel McKeown, 1881-84, Charles H. Dalrymple, 1884-85, D. L. Brown, 1885-86, Walter P. Buck, 1886-88, John Thompson, 1888-90, A. Field, part of 1890, R. S. Eldridge, 1890-92, Ambrie Field, 1892-93, Joseph Jackson, 1893-95, M. T. Braley, 1895-1900, H. E. Murkett, 1900-04, C. H. VanNotter, 1904-07, Edward J. Cory, 1907-09, N. B. Cook, 1909-Oct., 1909, Geo. D. Stanley Oct. 1909--1912, Samuel Thatcher, 1912-17 James B. Aldrich, 1917-21, James A. Wood, 1921-Sept., 1921, L. P. MacLennon, Sept., 1921-22, H. L. Wilber, 1922-24, J. W. Carter, 1924 to the present time.

During the present pastorate—the longest in the history of the church—many improvements have been made to the parsonage. New porch rails, concrete floor in basement, and a fine garage have been added.

In 1926 the board of trustees started a Church Reconstruction fund looking forward to the time when the church building could be greatly improved.

This fund gradually increased until May, 1930, when pastor and trustees invited Dr. David Kendall, of the Methodist Board of Home Missions and Church Extension to conduct a campaign to raise funds for the complete re-construction of the church building. Dr. Kendall spent three weeks in preaching and visiting. When he left he had raised enough money on two-year pledges to warrant the starting of the work.

Monday, Sept. 22, 1930, the work of reconstruction began. Since that time the following changes have been made in front of the church:

New concrete steps and balustrade, fine new porch over entrance, with electric lanterns on pillars, and new sidewalk. The church exterior has been given two coats of paint, of light gray color, with dark gray trimmings. The old windows have been removed and new sash of Gothic design, with cathedral glass, put in their place. The color effect is amber and green. The whole of the auditorium and upper rooms have been repainted and decorated. The walls are a pleasing shade of cream with dark brown stencil. In rear of the pulpit a fine piece of Craftex panelling, in Spanish antique design, replaces the painted wall. The gallery is painted in a walnut finish. The floors have all been stained and varnished, and the pews renewed with two coats of varnish. The old electric light fixtures have been replaced with four large modern ones in the auditorium, and smaller one in rear vestry and hall. A hardwood floor improves the appearance of the church parlor. The whole scheme is made complete by the laying of beautiful carpets down both aisles, and over entire platform.

The present board of trustees is L. D. Hover, A. C. Burdick, James McCluggage, M. H. Bartlett, R. W. Robertson, Harry Davis, G. H. Thornton, W. J. Robertson and Frank Mell. When all pledges have been paid in it is the intention of the board to transform the basement of the church into a larger room for Sunday school and social purposes, and so equip the church for future service.

Plans Christmas Party.

The auxiliary to the American Legion post is to have a Christmas party after its regular meeting tonight (Monday). As the Red Cross chapter room is still undergoing renovation, the meeting will be held in the town hall.

Miss M. A. Burdick entertained the Harmony club Friday afternoon.

MOOSUP

The December meeting of Fidelity Bible class was held in the Girls' club rooms Thursday evening with a good number present. After the business session games and a Christmas tree were enjoyed. Miss Lila Millett, the teacher, presented each member a carnation. A delicious lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Julian Champagne and Miss Gertrude Preston. In charge of the games were Miss Florence Baker and Mrs. Grace Craig.

Mrs. Roy Playdon and daughter, June, have been Providence visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wilson and daughter, Ruth, are in Wilton, Maine, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hudson, formerly of Moosup.

Miss Rose Lawless, who has been spending a vacation in Providence, has returned.

Friends here have heard from Mr. and Mrs. Frank Daggett, who are spending a very pleasant season in Florida.

At the last meeting of Moosup lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 113, election of officers resulted as follows: Carl A. Main, W. M.; William Marshall, S. W.; Irving Tyler, J. W.; Benjamin Dawson, treasurer; Orrin Kenyon, secretary; Raymond Gallup, S. D.; William Rogers, J. D.; Harry Walker, S. S.; Alfred Royle, J. S.; Floyd Main, chaplain; Milo Appley, marshall; Albert Smith, tyler. The auditors elected were Paul Roper, Milo Appley, Horace Burdick.

Emile Despathy, of Willimantic, a former resident of Moosup, was a recent visitor here.

Five hundred head of elk were designated as the maximum number to be killed in 1930 by hunters out of the northern herd of 10,600 in Yellowstone canyon, Montana.

THOMPSON

The Thimble club was entertained by Mrs. Louis E. Converse Thursday afternoon. Mrs. E. Goslin, president of the Webster Woman's club was a guest. The leader was Mrs. Chas. Whiting. Mrs. Bogardus presented the club the Danish doll requested by the state federation for its exhibit. The next meeting is to be at Mrs. Warren Logee's Thursday, Dec. 18 and will be the annual Christmas tree party, and for the children.

The Central Baptist church held its annual business meeting at the home of Mr. L. E. Converse Friday night.

CONN. FRUIT RAISING

In announcing the annual meeting of the Connecticut Pomological society at Hartford this week, the department of agriculture sets forth that "The discussions will center around timely problems relating to the production and marketing of fruit."

There isn't any question but what Connecticut can produce fruit and fruit of a high quality. It can produce it in quantities and in a variety and quality that will satisfy the most exacting tastes, but the point hasn't as yet been reached where it is coming anywhere near producing as much as it can or supplying as large a part of the demands by the people of this state as it should. Thus it seems highly probable that with the discussion dealing with distribution as well as production there should be put forth some of the important requirements in connection with the production of fruit in Connecticut.

Furthermore, the announcement of the meeting directs attention to the fact that among the other speakers will be Dr. R. B. Corbett, agricultural economist of Rhode Island State college, who will discuss trends in apple marketing, and the comment that "Dr. Corbett is expected to surprise many of the Connecticut fruit growers when he divulges what the college has learned from its studies on how and what the consumer buys." The inference to be gained from this is that the fruit growers can expect to get some of that very important information that will be profitable to their business, information which they need.

Connecticut may never reach the top of the list as a fruit producer but there is no reason why it shouldn't raise much more than it does. It is advantageously located as to markets. It has the benefit of good roads. It has a market within its borders that is worth developing. It is known what certain fruit growers are doing, and what they have done others can do. Connecticut holds opportunities which will be emphasized by this week's meeting and the discussions which take place there and the promises are not only for a profitable session but a boost to Connecticut fruit raising. Thus it means much, not only to those now engaged in raising fruit, but to any others who may be impressed by the chance to enter that field.

OIL POLLUTION

Up to the present time those who have done the most active work against the practice of dumping waste oil upon coastal waters have been the communities which suffered from oil-covered beaches and the ports where the oil film has been the cause of damage to vessels and docks, and a general nuisance.

What the oil means to beaches is particularly emphasized in those unusual instances where tankers have been wrecked or forced to discharge their cargo with the result that the black scum has damaged everything it came in contact with and bathing beaches have been put out of commission.

But it is not solely the beaches and harbors which suffer from this oil pollution. Fish and game associations are directing attention to the havoc it raises among the sea fowl. When this oil gets on their wings they become helpless and die and hundreds of them have been counted dead or dying on the surface of the water. They are unable to fly and unable to free themselves from the coating of oil.

It isn't the occasional wreck of a tanker that is responsible for the efforts to stop the oil pollution. Rather does it come from the practice of oil burning steamers throwing the refuse oil in their tanks into the sea. It was a common practice to clean out the tanks in the harbors until a stop was put to it. Now that it cannot be done in the harbors it is done elsewhere but probably with no greater regard for consequences than when it used to be done in harbors.

Inasmuch as the oil burners increase each year it is to be expected that there will be more of this oil pollution before there is less. That shows the need for some effective means of dealing with it before conditions get any worse. For other waste materials, uses have been found, and it seems only right that something should be done with the waste from the oil tanks that will not cause harm to others. The natural course with such matter is to throw it away. There could be little objection to that, provided it did not constitute a menace and nuisance to others. Inasmuch as it does, and also kills sea fowl, to say nothing of fish, the demand that it be stopped is a fair one and entitled to consideration and action.

CUTTING IMMIGRATION

Present-day conditions as to employment lend themselves to the recommendations which have been made that there be further restrictions placed upon immigration. It can be readily understood that when it is impossible to find employment for those in this country who want to work, and when the unemployment is due to more than seasonal conditions, the idea of allowing those from other countries to come in and make the situation all the worse is not a popular one.

It may be that those in other countries will be disposed to stay at home if they knew of unemployment conditions here but, with nothing better to attract them there, they may take the view that this land of promise holds out much greater prospects and make the most of their opportunities to enter, that they may be on the ground for whatever develops. Such being the case it is the purpose of those who believe the bars against immigration ought to be put up for the present to give American citizens, or those aliens already here, the first chance to get the benefit of business revival. They believe they are entitled to such an advantage, and whatever additional restriction is placed upon immigration would be with the object of a limited rather than a permanent check upon immigration.

But when it comes to ridding the country of its alien gangsters there should be no hesitancy in providing the necessary funds. If adequate laws exist, and the chief difficulty now is the lack of appropriations for that purpose, the crime in this country and the part which alien gangsters play in connection with it should bring immediate action. The idea of allowing aliens to come here is for the purpose of taking advantage of the conditions existing here and in the hope that they will become worthy citizens. We stipulate that we do not want the unfit and undesirable. We endeavor to keep them out but when it is found that we have not been successful and it has been disclosed that aliens have become a handicap to the country there ought to be no delay in sending them back where they came from. Deportations are made every year, but not enough of them. Lack of funds is one reason and, inasmuch as it has been brought to the attention of congress, remedial action should quickly follow.

BOY SCOUTS' CAMP

Slow but sure seems to explain the progress that is being made by the Boy Scouts with their cabin on the Quinebaug. They appear to have material enough to produce a sizeable and comfortable camp headquarters. They have been able to complete certain of the preliminaries in the construction of the building and displayed a fine spirit in so doing, but they have been responding to the call to collect toys which can be repaired and made over for the benefit of poor children and are now awaiting that adult assistance which will insure the erection of a stable roof and the construction of a safe fireplace.

The time is rapidly approaching when snow may be expected and if the building is to be closed in before such a damper is placed upon the work there is no time to be lost. It is at this camp that the Boy Scout organization expects much interest to center during the present winter and the coming summer. It is a camp where such activities as have drawn Scouts to winter and summer camps in other localities can be concentrated to the advantage of the members, as well as the organization, and provide an incentive which will be lacking as long as hired camps are necessary.

The Boy Scout troops are doing excellent work for the boys of this and surrounding communities. They are receiving a training that is bound to be invaluable in later years and creating a citizenship which every community needs. There are various attractions in connection with this work which have a strong appeal to the boys and one of these is the camp. Naturally, they are going to be much more interested in what they have had a hand in getting, and the sooner they are able to realize their goal in this direction the quicker will they be able to enjoy the fruits of their efforts. With the boys ready to do a good turn no chance should be overlooked to do a good turn for the boys.

SENATOR OVERMAN

Death is ever making inroads into the ranks of congress. The latest visit took away Senator L. S. Overman of North Carolina, a senator whose name has appeared among the members of the upper house for 28 years, previous to which he was a member of the legislature in his own state.

Senator Overman was a staunch democrat, who rose to commanding committee positions, whose position could always be relied upon as loyal to party, and during the administration of President Wilson he was particularly close to the administration. He had been a senate figure for an unusually long period but could undoubtedly have remained indefinitely.

By his death and the defeat of Senator Simmons, the senior senator from North Carolina, the Tarheel state will soon experience complete new representation in the upper house of congress. Senator Simmons was denied a renomination because of the stand he took in the 1928 campaign when he opposed Smith. His successor will take office at the next session of congress, but the successor of Senator Overman, already appointed by the governor of North Carolina, may be in his seat this week.

Whether the appointment which has been made will be so satisfactory to the voters of North Carolina that they will continue him in office when an election is held remains to be seen. There will exist then, however, a chance for the Tarheelers to decide whether they by any chance desire to continue Senator Simmons in office. They have rebuked him for his campaign attitude, but they will experience the loss of his services and his prestige after the fourth of March, but his many friends and supporters in that state cannot be unmindful of the chance to keep him in the harness which the death of Senator Overman has created. The chance to do so and the willingness to do so are not always the same in North Carolina.

G. W. FULLER, NORWICH DIVER, WAS HIRED TO RAISE STR. METIS OFF WATCH HILL

Last Saturday's Bulletin described the wreck of the Metis which occurred in 1872, off the Watch Hill-Point Judith coast line, where two like maritime tragedies took place last week. In connection with the foundering of the Metis, a correspondent asks The Bulletin to recall the career of George W. Fuller, a marine engineer of international prominence who was engaged to raise the Metis hulk. We do so herewith. Mr. Fuller's commission is described in The Bulletin of July 1, 1873, as follows:

Norwich Man A Master Diver

A few days ago it was stated that the wreck of the Metis had been found, and that Mr. Fuller had gone out with his apparatus to raise it. But it proved to be a canard, as the steamers had only hooked on to a ledge of rocks, in about 120 feet of water.

Mr. Fuller, when he found out what a bite they had had, went to Providence and had an interview with the president of the company and made arrangements to go to work in a systematic manner to find the wreck. Two steamers have consequently been sent out for that purpose, and they will drag east and west with the tide, about half a mile apart, until they find her. Mr. Fuller and his men with his diving apparatus, will be on board the steamers, and when they come to an obstruction a diver will go down and ascertain the character of it, thus saving a great amount of time and avoiding unnecessary delay.

Mr. Fuller left yesterday for his labors and thinks that they will find the wreck inside of a week. He is of the opinion that it is in about 132 feet of water. If it is, it will be at a depth where very few divers would be willing to go to work. But he will raise it, if possible, when found.

From the fact that a careful examination of The Bulletin back files fails to disclose any further reference to the Fuller salvaging expedition, it is assumed that the efforts of the Norwich engineer to raise the Metis hulk were without avail. Other ventures in which Mr. Fuller engaged, both before and after the Metis incident, are mentioned in The Bulletin of Wednesday, May 13, 1891, at the time of his death:

An Electrical Inventor

The death of George W. Fuller at Beechwood, Mass., Thursday, was telegraphed to this city last night. He was a well-known diver and engineer and for many years lived in Norwich. He was a very successful marine diver and performed feats of engineering in different parts of New England and Canada which were a credit to his mechanical skill and ingenuity. He laid the water mains into the lakes at Toronto about 10 years ago.

He formed a company and fitted out a submarine diving expedition to Venezuelan waters to search for the Spanish galleon Don Alcantara which was supposed to have on board a large amount of specie. He could tell thrilling adventures which grew out of his experience as a deep-water diver.

He was interested in electric inventions and worked for several years in this city to perfect an electric light for New York parties.

He was a member of Norwich lodge, No. 12, A. O. U. W., of this place, and was insured for $2,000 in the order. He was also a Mason of high degree, having attained the 32d degree in Connecticut Sovereign consistory. He was a member of Palestine commandery, K. T., of New London, and belonged to the other Masonic bodies in that city.

Mr. Fuller had been in poor health for a number of years. Some time ago to obtain relief from the higher elevation and rarefied air he went to Colorado, but was unable to remain there, and returned east. About two years ago he went to Somerville, Mass., for treatment, and has been gradually failing up to the present time.

He will be buried at Beechwood, Mass., on Thursday. His wife, several daughters and a son survive him.

Much Other Diving Work

Other diving work, which The Bulletin obituary failed to mention, included the raising in 1870 of the schooner C. C. Saddler in the Connecticut river and the raising of two like craft in January of 1871 as well as of the schooner D. W. Baldwin in March, 1871. Engineering work which he did hereabout included the coffer dam on Laurel Hill bridge, the reconstruction of the Air Line bridge at Middletown and the removal of rocks from the channel in Watch Hill bay, all these operations being undertaken in the same year of 1876.

Eight Dynamo Patents

As a result of his work on dynamo electric machines, Mr. Fuller was made a member of the United States Electrical commission in 1884. Of the patents which he took out on these machines The Bulletin records no less than eight, four as of May 25, 1883; three as of Oct. 12, 1883; and one as of March 8, 1884.

Piped From Lake A Mile Away

The Toronto contract, mentioned in his obituary, is thus described in The Bulletin of May 26, 1873:

George W. Fuller, of this city, has received a contract for laying water pipe across the basin at Toronto, a distance of one mile, by which means that city is to be furnished with pure water from Lake Ontario. Mr. Fuller receives his contract over the English, French and United States competitors, although his bids are much higher than some of the others. The pipe to be laid is of iron, made in England, and is 12 feet long and three feet internal diameter. He leaves for Toronto to arrange for the work.

Cut Trench Through Solid Rock

Fuller particulars of this work are given in The Bulletin of Monday, June 2, 1873, as follows:

A week ago we mentioned that George W. Fuller had been given the contract for laying a pipe from Toronto across the basin to Lake Ontario for the purpose of supplying the city with pure and wholesome water. During the past week he has been in Toronto perfecting his contract and arrangements, and will soon begin his work. He estimates that it will take about the three months to complete the job.

Toronto is now supplied with water from a basin which is nearly enclosed from the lake by natural and artificial projections; but as its quality is far from satisfactory, it was thought that purer water could be obtained further in the lake, and for this purpose 4,100 feet of cast iron pipe, three feet in internal diameter and one inch in thickness, made in England, and 1,500 feet of wooden pipe, is to be laid 26 feet below the water surface. The iron pipe is in sections of 12 feet each, and weighs 5,000 pounds to the section; the peculiar joint and flange accounting for the immense weight.

In addition to the deep excavation the entire length, to enable the pipe to be placed below the reach of frost, a trench 600 feet long, 10 feet wide and 10 feet deep must be cut through a solid ledge of rock, under water. This is the most difficult portion of the work, and in its execution several of Mr. Fuller's latest inventions for submarine blasting will be called into requisition. A propeller, of peculiar construction, and a lighter, are to be built near Toronto expressly for this work.

An interesting feature of this work is the fact that specifications of the work were sent to, and proposals invited from, nearly all the divers in the United States, England and France, and Mr. Fuller was awarded the contract. Mr. Fuller did not get the contract by offering a lower price, but because of the manner in which he proposed to do the work. This is a flattering testimonial to a Connecticut's man's enterprise and ability.

Mr. Fuller undoubtedly stands at the head of the American divers, if not of all others; and his many writings, and a variety of apparatus, all of his own origin and manufacture, attest in some measure his qualifications in this difficult department of submarine engineering.

As a result of his work on the Ontario water-supply system, Mr. Fuller received a memorable testimonial from the contractor, and later (in 1876) the award of contracts to build seven piers on the Ottawa river. Possibly the most romantic project in which Mr. Fuller ever engaged was the raising of the Spanish treasure ship San Pedro de Alcantara from the South American waters where she had been gathering barnacles for centuries. The story will be told tomorrow.

YOUR HEALTH

The Annual Physical Inventory

By Seale Harris, M. D., Professor Emeritus of Medicine, University of Alabama, Birmingham, Ala.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

It is strange that men pay so little attention to the human engine, which must have the proper fuel to generate energy for its work; and every part of which must be kept running smoothly, or it cannot carry its load. The locomotive engineer inspects each essential part of his engine every day before it starts on its journey, and every few weeks or months it is given a thorough overhauling. This is done to prevent breakdowns on the road, and to prolong the life of the engine.

The man who owns a fine automobile has it inspected every month or two, and once or twice a year he sends it to the shop for general repairs. Yet the engine upon which depends a man's success in business, and even his life, goes without thought of preventing trouble, with a load that overtaxes its power for year to year, until finally it is wrecked and the load, consisting of business and family affairs, is thrown into the ditch. There is no doubt but that many of the mental and physical wrecks we see about us every day could have been prevented if men and women had looked after their bodies with the same care that an engineer looks after his engine.

Successful men pay thousands of dollars every year for life insurance to protect their families in case of continued illness or death, and insurance is surely a good business investment. The best and cheapest insurance against sickness and death is a thorough physical examination by a competent physician once or twice a year. This examination should be a very thorough one, including a study of the functions of every organ of the body and a survey of the habits of work, recreation, eating and everything in the life of the individual, including mental habits, that could affect health or efficiency. After a thorough examination the physician should then give his patron written instructions regarding his or her daily regimen including diet, work, rest and play, that would prevent disease in that particular individual.

There is no question but that incipient tuberculosis is curable and that diseases of the brain, heart, kidneys, arteries and of the digestive organs may be stopped if discovered in time. Physicians know that usually such diseases have existed for months or years before the breakdown comes, and often the physician is not consulted until it is too late to remedy the damage that has resulted from living an unhygienic life. The old saying that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" should have a corollary to the effect that one day's treatment of disease in its incipiency, which may be found at the annual or semi-annual physical examination is worth months of treatment in a hospital after the disorder has become well established.

The public has been educated to visit a dentist twice a year to preserve their teeth and thus prevent pyorrhea and other mouth infections. Likewise mothers have learned that a monthly visit to a pediatrician for directions regarding the diet and hygiene of their healthy infants prevents colitis and other diseases of childhood. Is it not just as important for both men and women to be checked over once or twice a year and have experts give them advice regarding the amounts and the quality of the food for their daily needs, and at the same time be instructed regarding other matters pertaining to personal hygiene that will increase efficiency and promote longevity.

If one would be efficient and experience the joys of living, he should be regular and systemic in his daily regimen. The man who keeps himself in perfect physical condition is not affected by changes in the weather; but if he should become so occupied in his efforts to succeed whether in business or professional life, that he has no time to follow the simple rules of personal hygiene, he will surely pay the penalty. It is good business at all seasons of the year, to give a little thought and effort each day to the care of the human engine.

CHILD TRAINING

Sharing Our Children's Joys

Mrs. Nestor Noel

"Are you going to the school entertainment?" I asked a mother one day.

"Oh, no, I haven't time," she answered.

"I believe your daughter is to take an important part," I continued.

"Yes. I believe Myrtle's role is rather important," she assented.

She seemed quite indifferent. I do not suppose she really was so, in her heart. When Myrtle was ill, I remember she nursed that child, night and day, and hardly left the sick room more than a few minutes at a time.

I wonder why some mothers show such unselfishness during sickness whereas at other times, they appear wholly indifferent. Is it because their love only awakens when danger threatens the child?

These mothers do not seem to realize that they may lose their children in more ways than one. Sickness is not the only enemy that steals our boys and girls from us. If we show our love for our children only when they are hurt, we may quickly lose their confidence. We must learn to share their joys as well as their sorrows if we want to hold their affection forever. We should play with them when they are little, rejoice in their childish successes and share their later triumphs. I love the sight of a child rushing to mother with each new-found treasure, perhaps a flower or a sea-shell. One can forecast the mother's future influence at once by the way she receives her child. When she enters into the child's interest wholeheartedly, you can see that she is the sort of mother who will always be a real "chum."

You have heard women say, "Oh, yes, it is very pretty. Run along now." If that represents the mother's habitual attitude she is lacking in sympathy, and will not realize that the child is repelled by the coldness back of the words.

I remember when I was at boarding school, I used to notice the mothers who came to take their children home for the holidays or sometimes merely to visit them. No mother came to visit me or share my joys, and so, as lonely children must often do, I used to watch the other mothers hungrily, longingly. I used to wonder in my childish way, which mother I would like to be mine if I were allowed to choose a mother. It was not the over-dressed woman that I chose. It was the one who seemed to be all in all to her children. It was not the one who held them at arm's length and said, "Do not be so rough; you will crush my dress." Oh, no! It was not these I wanted! It was the one whose children rushed into her arms, the one to whom all wanted to talk at the same time; it was the mother who made herself a "chum" that I chose.

I love to see a mother playing with her children. I like to see her link her arm familiarly with theirs as they walk in the woods together. I like to hear her just as eager as they are about the things that give them pleasure. The "play" mother who has shared her children's joys from the first instant of their birth, has a greater chance of keeping their love in later years than the mother who has given them only food and clothing. We may often learn much more about our children by playing ball with them than by watching them through a long illness. The mother who plays with her children is the mother who is dearly loved.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Christmas Around the Globe

Christmas, most universal of holidays, finds housewives and shoppers busy in many lands.

"While the people of other countries do not exchange as many gifts as do Americans, the Christmas dinner basket is as heavily laden in Melbourne, Madrid and Oslo as it is in Miami, Minneapolis and Los Angeles," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"A visitor from Mars might receive the impression that Christmas is Earth's day devoted to eating.

"In England, home of many of our culinary treats, the plum pudding still is the climax of the Christmas dinner. Piping hot, it is carried into the dining room at the end of the meal burning brandy flames licking the sprig of holly that always adorns its rounded top.

"Proud English cooks devote more time to purchasing pudding ingredients than they do to any other part of the dinner.

"Goose, once the English piece de resistance, has been supplanted in many English homes by the American turkey, although goose is still popular. Potatoes, the inevitable sprouts, Cheddar, Cheshire and Stilton cheese, spices, fruit, wines and sauces fill the rest of the market basket.

"Almost the only gift-giving in England takes place the day following Christmas, a bank holiday known as 'Boxing day.' This, although its name may suggest prize-fighting to Americans, is the traditional time to reward servants, and to distribute boxes of small coins to the poor.

"Spanish markets present a bewildering selection of good things. Gaily decorated shops offer nuts from Granada, fresh dates from Tangier, luscious oranges from Andalusia, and long sausages tied in bright ribbons. Turkeys for sale 'on the hoof' are driven through the streets by peasants from the country. The vendors call their ware from door to door.

"Spanish children, however, must wait until the Feast of the Three Kings, in January, to receive their 'Christmas presents.' Christmas dinner in Spain consists of almond soup, truffled turkey with roasted chestnuts, and Spanish sweetmeats and chocolate. Odors of dishes fried in vegetable oil, saffron and garlic permeate the narrow streets.

"Christmas is a 'business' in the mountains of Germany. All year the peasants of the rural districts carve wooden animals, which, with the mechanical toys of German industrial towns, go forth to gladden the hearts of the world's youth. But Germany keeps plenty for its own children, and, with the bulging market basket, the German parent always brings home an arm-load of toys for the Christmas tree.

"In Paris the 'revellion,' or Christmas eve supper, is the gayest Yuletide event. Overindulgence in it may account for the general air of gloom that overhangs the Parisian Christmas day. Oysters and ecrevisse, an appetising crawfish, make up the first course. After that there are many courses, each taken in a different restaurant, each accompanied by a different kind of wine. A cup of coffee at home, at breakfast time, generally ends the celebration. Halles market resembles a busy American department store the week before Christmas—crowds of buyers jostling peasants in smocks from the country.

"Sweden has special Christmas markets in which, by ancient custom, peasants may sell their wares in the public squares. Most picturesque are the booths in which gingerbread cookies are sold. Every Swedish Christmas tree must have its gingerbread Julbocken (Yule goats) and Julgrisen (Yule pigs).

"These little cakes are reminders of the old days when the Thunder God Thor's goats and the Sun God Frey's pigs were sacred. For Christmas dinner the three chief Swedish dainties are lusk-fish, prepared by heating the fish for several days in wood ashes, rice sweetened and flavored with cinnamon, and roast goose.

"Mexicans do not have a Christmas tree, but Mexican parents search the markets for little trinkets, sweets, nuts, and toys for the Pinate—bowl-shaped jars made of coarse, red earthenware. These jars are suspended from the ceiling on cords. On Christmas the children of the household, blindfolded, try to strike them with sticks. The Pinates are made to break easily; a mere touch usually suffices to shower the lucky youngster with gifts.

"South of the Equator Christmas is a summer holiday. Ice stalls, provided with chairs and benches, attracts crowds of perspiring pleasure-seekers in Argentina Brazil and Chile.

"In Lima, Peru, the streets take on the appearance of a carnival, with much gay laughter, jostling crowds and playing of guitars and castanets. On Christmas morning markets are held in the principal plazas of the towns. Gay red peppers, fowl, pigs, nuts, and other edibles are displayed on straw mats on the ground.

"Christmas was hot but enjoyable at the National Geographic Society observatory in desert South West Africa two years ago. Ice cream from the observatory refrigerator was the most popular dish when the temperature was hovering around 100 degrees in the shade. Guests from Keetmanshoop, sixty miles away, did the shopping, bringing a turkey with them.

"In place of holly, mistletoe and poinsettia the seeker of decorative greens in Australia, finds a white flower on the market stalls which, upon withering, leaves a distinctive terracotta red center. This, the Christmas Bush, forms a decorative hedge in suburban areas. The white flowers appear at the height of the Australian summer, our Christmas time."

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14—Senate democrats got especial amusement out of the routine when congress reconvened.

One could see many of them grinning as republicans like Fess of Ohio and Capper of Kansas did the honors for newcomers like Bulkeley and McGill, both democrats, escorting them down the aisle to be sworn in.

It was particularly hard on Fess. As chairman of the republican national committee, he was compelled to escort a man who had completely upset that committee's plans.

Fess is small, erect and dignified. For the reconvening of the senate he had donned the old long-tailed coat and striped trousers. That type dress makes him look even more slender than a business suit.

Bulkeley, a large man, was present to receive his senatorial honors in dark business dress. As the pair rolled down the aisle with Fess' hand on his big companion's arm, it looked like a small harbor tug towing a deepsea steamer to dock.

Miss Spectacle

But the real anticipated spectacle of the first day was lacking in the senate due to failure of Senator-elect James J. Davis of Pennsylvania to put in a claim for his seat.

The press gallery was agog to witness young Gerald Nye's challenge, and Davis' failure to appear that first day took a lot of steam out of the session.

For the moment, the former labor secretary was a member of the unemployed. His cabinet job was filled, his successor sworn in. Davis was without a government job for the first time since March 4, 1921.

His fellow Pennsylvanian, Andrew Mellon, was unchallenged dean of the cabinet in service, the only remaining "best brain" of the Harding cabinet, unless, of course, Mr. Hoover is counted.

Might Take A Tip

So far as the Bystander knows, Davis came to the senate by virtue of the largest plurality ever attained by a senator-elect, almost a million votes.

It would look as though senators desirous of retaining their seats might do well to explore Davis' campaigning methods, other than the cost, while they were about it.

They might learn how to roll up pluralities like that themselves. Not many intra-state political victories for any office ever have been recorded with such impressive figures.

DO YOU KNOW CONNECTICUT?

Q. What is the most valuable fishery resource of Connecticut?

A. Food shellfish, oysters being the most important and lobsters ranking second in value.

Q. What per cent of the area of the United States does Connecticut cover and how does it rank with other states?

A. 1-610th of the total of the United States and 48th in area compared with other states.

Q. Why is the Wethersfield elm tree so well known?

A. It is the largest and probably the oldest elm tree in America, having been planted nearly 300 years ago by Richard Belden.

WOMAN LEAVES TRAIL OF BOGUS TRAVELERS' CHECKS

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 14—(AP)—Police of Westerly and of several nearby Connecticut towns have sent out a call for the apprehension of a middle aged, well-dressed woman, who is said to have left a trail of counterfeit travelers' checks, drawn on a New York bank, in the towns a week ago.

Police say the woman entered Barbour's drug store here and cashed a travelers' check for $20, giving the name of Clara Adams. She left to join two male companions in an automobile bearing New York registration, parked on the opposite side of the street. The trio drove away in the direction of Providence.

A short time previously the woman had cashed a $10 check in a similar manner at Higgins pharmacy in Pawcatuck, just over the Connecticut line. Police have since learned that similar checks were cashed in drug stores in Stonington and Mystic, Conn., and in business places in Norwich and New London.

Police did not learn of the incidents until the checks were returned by the Bankers Trust company, of New York, on which they were drawn, with information that they were counterfeit.

FLIERS ESCAPE DEATH IN PARACHUTE JUMP

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 14.—(AP) — Two naval reserve student fliers, H. W. Gall and L. J. Schreiber escaped death in a parachute leap here today when their plane plunged 4,500 feet after the elevators were torn off by a sharp dive.

The plane landed in the yard of H. S. Heap, northeast Seattle resident, narrowly missing him and his son, Dr. George R. Heap, who were decorating a Christmas tree on the lawn.

PROMINENT FARMER FOUND SHOT DEAD IN BARN

AMENIA, N. Y., Dec. 14.—(AP)—The lifeless body of Harold E. Peck, 38, a prominent local farmer, was found shortly after 5 o'clock this morning in a large barn on his farm. His badly mutilated face and a discharged shotgun by his side offered mute evidence of the manner of his death. Coroner Earl Huscut, of Dover Plains, who viewed the body, expressed a suspicion of suicide though intimate friends of Peck are confident that he met death by accident.

CONVICTS BUILD FOUNTAIN MEMORIAL TO 320 VICTIMS

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—From the embers of the Easter Monday fire at the Ohio penitentiary has risen a memorial fountain to the 320 convicts who perished.

It was designed by architects whose real names have been changed to numbers, and it likewise was built by the convicts themselves.

The new fountain replaces an old one which has been damaged and discolored by winds and rain, and finally was blackened by the blaze that swept the "I" and "K" cell blocks in one of the most disasterous of prison fires.

The fountain is a Grecian urn, Corinthian in style, atop a simple frieze work.

It was George Richmond, who is serving a 20-year term for bank robbery and who is editor of the Penitentiary News, who aroused interest in replacing the old fountain. Warden Preston E. Thomas readily agreed to the project.

"Imprisoned men dread drab surroundings," said Warden Thomas, "and they earnestly seek beauty. The fountain idea became popular."

Many of the prison fire victims were trapped in their cells, beating helplessly against barred doors which guards could not open.

Poultry houses should be properly ventilated in winter as well as summer, Georgia State college experts say.

OBITUARY.

Patrick O'Connell.

Patrick O'Connell, 90, died at 4.05 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Patrick W. Casey, of No. 530 Boswell avenue, after an illness of about one week from the infirmities of advanced years.

Mr. O'Connell was born in Ireland, Aug. 15, 1840, the son of Michael and Julia Casey O'Connell, and was united in marriage there about 63 years ago with Ellen O'Neil. About 13 years after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. O'Connell came to this country and made their home in Wauregan, remaining there for 20 years. He lived in Norwich for 20 years, and has been leading a retired life for some time, but previous to retirement was employed as a stone mason.

Surviving Mr. O'Connell are five daughters, Mrs. Casey and Miss Annie O'Connell of Norwich, Mrs. Delor Gauthier of Taunton, Mass., Mrs. Louis Dion of East Hampton, Mass., and Mrs. Nelson L'Heureux of South Manchester, and two sons, John O'Connell of East Hampton, Mass., and Michael O'Connell of Norwich. He also leaves 21 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. His wife died about 25 years ago.

Mr. O'Connell was a member of St. Mary's Memorial church and was a well known and respected resident of the Greeneville section of the city, the news of his death being received with sincere regret by his many friends.

Arthur E. Fenton.

The death of Arthur E. Fenton, 54, occurred at 6 o'clock Sunday morning at the W. W. Backus hospital after a short illness. He lived at No. 635 North Main street and was latterly employed as an elevator operator in the Lerou building in Main street, formerly the McGrory building.

Mr. Fenton was the son of Charles and Lucy Fenton and was born in Norwich, Sept. 17, 1876, having lived here his entire life. He was a widower. There are three brothers surviving him, Frank Fenton of Brooklyn, N. Y., Harry E. Fenton of Norwich and Edward Fenton of Syracuse, N. Y. All those who knew him were grieved to learn of his passing.

Capt. George H. Rogers

Capt. George H. Rogers, 79, formerly of Norwich, died in Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 6. Besides his widow, a sister, Mrs. Louise Gardner of Charleston, S. C., and a brother, Arthur, of Richmond, Va., survive him. Captain Rogers was a brother of Mrs. Lucy A. Sparks of Norwich, who passed away Dec. 7, 1928.

Captain Rogers went to sea when only nine years old and eventually advanced until he was master of a steamer running from New York to Florida. For the past 15 or 20 years he had been retired.

Seven Children To Divide $1,000

Instead of each of the seven children of the late Reuben B. S. Washburn of this city receiving $1,000, as was reported to have been the terms upon which their attempt to break the will was withdrawn from the superior court, it is stated that the sum of $1,000 is to be divided among the seven. The will was contested on the grounds of impaired mentality and undue influence. It left $2,700 in all to the children and the remainder of the estate, appraised at about $8,000, to the widow, who was Mr. Washburn's second wife.

BURGLAR, INTERRUPTED, ESCAPES THROUGH JUMPING FROM WINDOW

Thomas McMahon, who lives at 155 West Thames street, came home Saturday afternoon just in time to prevent his house from being ransacked by a burglar. The fellow was in the house, turning over the contents of a bureau drawer, according to the report made to the police, but he escaped by jumping out of a second story window and nothing was stolen.

It was reported that the last one to go out of the house Saturday afternoon left there about 4.30 and no one was home until Mr. McMahon returned about 5.30. In the meantime a window was pried open by a burglar who got into the house and made his way upstairs to a bedroom where he was looking over the contents of a bureau drawer when Mr. McMahon returned. It is believed that the noise of the closing of the door when Mr. McMahon entered the house was heard by the intruder who promptly made his escape by jumping to the ground from a second story window.

A man was seen walking away from the house, but at that time, it is understood, Mr. McMahon did not know there had been an attempted burglary at the place.

SHOWS N. E. FORESTS OF PAST AND PRESENT

For an open meeting of the Science club at Connecticut college at New London, Dr. George E. Nichols, professor of botany at Yale, was the lecturer Friday evening upon the subject of North American Arctic-Alpine Vegetation.

Dr. Nichols took his audience on a trip from Connecticut through New England up to Cape Breton Island and Labrador, then across northern Canada to Alaska. Beautiful lantern slides were shown, illustrating the types of New England forests of the present day and of former times before the destruction of the primeval forests.

An illustration of a primeval forest of Connecticut composed of a mixture of beech, maple and hemlock, all large and handsome trees, followed by a picture taken in the same place 16 years later, showing scrubby second growth, presented a striking contrast.

Some of the most interesting slides of Cape Breton Island depicted tree mats 18 inches high and by actual ring count 150 years old. Dr. Nichols explained that the limiting factor governing the height of the plants in the Arctic is the depth of the snow in the winter, because the snow blanket gives protection from the drying effect of the severe winds and the sand blast action of wind-blown sleet.

The Alpine vegetation of the White mountains was illustrated by a series of closeup views of individual plants. These showed the brilliant colors which are characteristic of the plants of mountain tops. Dr. Nichols also showed scenic views of the White mountains, the Colorado Rockies and Mt. Rainier. The sub-Alpine meadows with their carpets of many-colored flowers and the region of the elfin wood, consisting of trees with gnarled and twisted branches of many peculiar forms, were well illustrated.

Tree limit in the White mountains lies around 5,200 feet. The forests in the vicinity of timberline are of the same scrubby sort as those found in the Arctic. Among the most characteristic plants above timberline are various herbs and low bushes which range far to the north, in the United States being found only on the Alpine summits.

In the Rocky mountains, timberline lies between 11,000 and 12,000 feet, varying greatly in elevation with differences in exposure. The most fascinating feature here is seen in the fantastic forms of the dwarfed and wizened trees which form the upper outposts of the forests. These were graphically depicted by numerous photographs. Above timberline are vast expanses of Alpine meadows, the real Alps.

The Cascade mountains of the Pacific northwest are famed afar for their so-called Alpine gardens. These are best developed at the upper limits of forest growth, around 5,500 feet elevation, where they present a gorgeous floral display, unsurpassed for brilliancy and spectacular effect even by those of the Swiss Alps.

Dr. Nichols spoke of the cultivation of Alpine plants and mentioned the wild flower garden at New Haven, which contains about 550 species of herbaceous perennials. Arnica, the Apline goldenrod and cassiope are examples of Alpine plants which grow well under cultivation.

GAVE BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR MISS FRIEDA JAHN

Mr. and Mrs. Carl P. Jahn gave a birthday party at their home on Main street Saturday evening for Miss Frieda E. Jahn. Music, games and dancing were enjoyed by all, after which a supper was served by Mrs. Jahn and Miss Medbery. Numerous pretty and useful gifts were received by Miss Jahn. Those present were the Misses Grace Medbery, Nettie Shea, Mary McGill, Dolly Counihan, Frieda Jahn, Ruth Jahn, Frank Suntheimer, Allan T. Jahn, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick McGill and Mr. and Mrs. Carl P. Jahn.

CALLED FIREMEN FOR BOSWELL AVE. BONFIRE

A telephone call was received at 3.20 o'clock Sunday afternoon by the fire department to extinguish a bonfire set by boys in the rear of the Ideal Service station, No. 646 Boswell avenue. Residents in that section believing that the fire, which was located in a wooded area and close by a small ramshackle structure, might spread and give the department much unnecessary work, sent in an alarm. Deputy Chief Dennis J. Brennan, with a fireman from the central station, responded and put out the blaze with the contents of a pump can. The fire was on property owned by William Kramer.

BOY WITH FRACTURED SKULL SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

It was reported at the Backus hospital Sunday evening, where the child is a patient, that there has been slight improvement shown in the condition of Raymond Jaecnia, 7 years old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ustin Jaecnia, of No. 43 Spring street. The child suffered a fractured skull when struck last Monday afternoon by a motor truck operated by John McComiskey, Jr., of No. 332 Franklin street. The accident happened near the silk mill property on Mechanic street, the boy, according to the driver, running out in front of the machine from behind a horse and wagon parked at the curb.

Bullet Missed Duck Hunter

Max Simon of Deep River had a very narrow escape from being shot last week while hunting ducks on Eustacia island, opposite Deep River. Simon was concealed in a duck blind with several live decoys in front of him. A tug and barge steamed up the river and when opposite the blind a deck hand appeared with a powerful rifle and shot at the ducks. The bullet missed Simon by a few inches. Ellsworth Daniels had been hunting with Simon but left a short time previously.

Elected In Horticultural Society.

George S. Fraser, of Willimantic, was elected a county vice president and Prof. Roland H. Patch, of Storrs, a member of the board of directors at the annual meeting of the Connecticut Horticultural society.

STATE FRUIT GROWERS TO MEET THIS WEEK

The 40th annual meeting of the Connecticut Pomological society will be held in Hartford on the 17th and 18th in the Hartford Women's club building. Leading features of the two-day program will be the annual fruit exhibit showing displays of Connecticut's finest fruit competing for prizes and a special speaking program with addresses by distinguished speakers from many fruit sections of the country on subjects of vital interest to Connecticut fruit growers.

Special programs have been arranged for the women which include a talk by Miss Sarah Root of Farmington on her recent tour around the world. Miss Root's talk will be given Wednesday afternoon at a social hour in which other entertaining features have been planned. Miss Mary I. Barber, director of home economics of Battle Creek, Michigan, will be the principal speaker on the women's program for Thursday afternoon. Miss Barber will talk on "Fruits, Vegetables and Honey in the American Menu" at sessions which will begin at 2:00 o'clock in the blue parlor of the Women's club building.

General discussions, question list, trade exhibits, educational exhibits and demonstrations and the annual get-together dinner are among other special features of the meeting. The discussions will center around timely problems relating to the production and marketing of fruit while the question list is open to all fruit growers on subject of special interest to them.

Speakers on the program include Dr. W. S. Waugh, entomologist at the Winchester Research Laboratory of the Virginia Experiment station, who will talk on "Developments in Orchard Spray Materials and Equipment." John Chandler, president of the Massachusetts Fruit Growers' association will talk on "Some Essential Factors in the Successful Growing and Marketing of Fruit in New England." Prof. J. H. Gourley of Columbus, Ohio, head of the department of horiticulture and forestry of the State university will talk on "The Soil Program in the Orchard."

Dr. R. B. Corbett of Kingston, R. I., agricultural economist of the Rhode Island State college will discuss trends in apple marketing. Dr. Corbett is expected to surprise many of the Connecticut fruit growers when he divulges what the college has learned from its studies on how and what the consumer buys. George H. Rea, of Reynoldsville, Penn., who has been doing some special research work on bee-keeping problems in New York orchards, will talk on "Bees as a Factor in Fruit Production."

Prof. W. D. Whitcomb of Waltham, Mass., assistant research professor of entomology will give an illustrated talk showing how to control the plum Curculio in the apple orchard. H. A. Rollins, extension fruit specialist of the Connecticut Agricultural college, will outline the extension fruit program for 1931. Walter B. Farmer of Hampton Falls, N. H., will explain the need for artificial cold storage on the fruit farm. Dr. Philip Garman, assistant entomologist of the Connecticut experiment station will explain how the peach moth was controlled by parasites and insecticides in 1930.

Returns indicate that the trade exhibit will be larger than ever. The entire hall on the second floor of the convention building has been set aside for displays of fruit growers' supplies.

The annual get-together dinner will be held Wednesday evening, the 17th, at 6:30 p. m., in the Central Baptist church. The dinner will be served by the Kings' Daughters of the church which will be followed by a program of music, speaking and special entertaining features. Among the speakers at the dinner will be Dr. C. C. McCracken, president of the Connecticut Agricultural college; Dr. John N. Lackey, pastor of the church and H. C. C. Miles who will present a brief historical paper commemorating the fortieth anniversary of the society.

SETTLEMENT FOR $8,000 IN WESTBROOK AUTO FATALITY

A settlement of $8,000 has been made in the case of Mrs. Annie J. Hill of Clinton, against F. E. Rathburn, of 277 East 42nd street, New York, the former having started a suit against the latter for $10,000 for the death of her husband. Mr. Hill died as a result of injuries received when he was struck by the defendant's car on the Boston Post road near Westbrook.

The suit was being brought in the Middlesex superior court, and was scheduled for a hearing next Tuesday. Mr. Hill died a few hours after being injured and shortly after having been admitted to Grace hospital on July 9th.

Frank Hill, 53, was a well known butcher of Clinton and was in the habit of peddling meat to customers in the towns surrounding Clinton, where he lived. On the afternoon of July 9th, he had stopped his truck on the Boston Post road in Westbrook and had gone around to the rear end to cut meat. Having cut the meat Mr. Hill stepped from the rear step into the road preparatory to crossing the street. At this moment the machine driven by Rathburn is said to have rounded the corner at a fairly fast rate of speed. Hill saw it and attempted to side step the vehicle, but was pinned against the back of the truck, both legs being broken and badly mutilated.

Coroner L. A. Smith held Rathburn for homicide with a motor vehicle and he faced the superior court in Middletown. He was let off with a small fine however, due to the fact that there was some doubt as to how good the visibility had been at the time of the accident.

NEW COMPUTING METHOD ON INDUSTRIAL FUEL COSTS

Connecticut utilities engaged in the distribution of manufactured gas, according to a recent announcement by company officials, are now in a position to measure for any manufacturer the exact cost and efficiency of the fuel consumed in his plant. The method for determining this and for demonstrating to the manufacturer which type of fuel can be most economically and most efficiently burned for his particular requirements has been devised by the American Gas association. It is the first standardized, universally available system.

The charts utilized by the gas companies for determining fuel costs and efficiency have not been prepared as propaganda or as advertising for gas fuel, but as dispassionate method of making survey of the heat uses and requirements in an industrial plant. If their use indicates that the manufacturer's present fuel and methods are giving him the best possible results, then the gas company knows that he is not a fair prospect for gas.

By means of the charts every cost entering into the use of fuel is analyzed. Every item is charted, including delivery, unloading, storage, ash removal and actual furnace costs. Labor waste, investments and other costs incidental to the burning of the fuel are recorded. To these are added detailed reports, so that at the completion of the analysis, the plant owner has a complete picture of his heating operations. He is able then to locate sources of waste and low efficiency and to determine for himself with the aid of heating engineers exactly what type of fuel will afford the best results at the lowest cost.

WANTED WHEELER FOR U. S. SUPREME COURT

That former Chief Justice George W. Wheeler of the Connecticut supreme court was twice offered appointment of United States circuit judge and twice refused, and that President Wilson wanted to recommend him for appointment to the supreme court of the United States but was unable, to do so because of geographical considerations was revealed Friday night at a testimonial dinner given the retired chief justice by the Bridgeport Bar association.

Homer S. Cummings of Stamford, speaking in tribute to Chief Justice Wheeler, read letters from the two former attorney generals who offered the circuit court appointments to the Connecticut chief justice. Of President Wilson he said:

"He was greatly interested in Justice Wheeler's judicial history and had the highest respect and admiration for his qualities as a man and as a judge. President Wilson would have liked to have submitted the name of Justice Wheeler for appointment to the supreme court of the United States and informed me that he would have done so except for the fact that the geographical objection was too strong to be overcome. At that time New England already had two places upon the supreme court. . . . To have added one more from New England would have so constituted the court that one-third of its total membership would have come from New England, and would have given to a little strip of the Atlantic seaboard four out of the nine justices."

Justice Wheeler refused the offer of appointment to the circuit court, Mr. Cummings said, because "he felt that his duty lay in Connecticut and preferred service in our own court."

Tribute to the retired chief justice also was paid by George W. Wickersham, chairman of President Hoover's law enforcement commission, and by Chief Justice William M. Maltbie, his successor as presiding justice of the court of errors.

Justice Wheeler expressed appreciation of the honors paid him, reviewed briefly some of the advances made in law during his years in the profession and called attention to some recommendations for important changes contained in the last report of the judicial council to the governor.

He praised the self-sacrifice of Mr. Wickersham in accepting the chairmanship of the president's investigating commission. "There is one task which he accepted with his eyes wide open to the hostile criticism which must follow him in whatever was done or said," he said of Mr. Wickersham, "Why did he accept the noncompensable position of chairman of the national law observance and enforcement commission? Why endure all that that place would bring upon him? It was because the president of the United States requested the sacrifice, and his country needed some man who had the moral fiber and the character to stand against the storms which must sweep around and over him. Duty called him. His is not the only act of moral grandeur we have seen since the war days, but I am unable to think of another finer."

SHEPARD SUMMER HOME BURNED AT SO. WOODSTOCK

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. — An estimated loss of $10,000 was caused early tonight when fire of undetermined origin destroyed the well-known Shepard residence on the Senexet road in South Woodstock. The house was purchased early this spring by Joseph Gobin, of this city.

The fire was discovered in the roof of the two and a half story wooden structure by Venon Dupre, a neighbor, who said his attention was attracted by clouds of smoke rising from all corners of the structure. Before an alarm could be spread flames broke through the asphalt-shingled roof and quickly enveloped the entire house in flames.

The fire attracted hundreds of people who gave assistance in salvaging household furnishings and various house fixtures. At an early hour tonight only five fire-bleached chimneys towered above the mass of smouldering embers of what had been one of South Woodstock's beautiful summer residences.

A call for assistance was telephoned to the Putnam fire department but, because of an inadequate water supply, the department was unable to respond. However, a group of firemen under the direction of Chief Alphonse Dumas went to the scene of the blaze with portable fire-fighting equipment and rendered valuable assistance in preventing spread of fire to adjoining buildings.

ADMINISTERED CONFIRMATION AT CHRIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

At the morning service at 10:45 at Christ Episcopal church on Sunday the rite of confirmation was administered by Bishop E. Campion Acheson for a class of 28, which included 13 adults, 12 younger people and three received from the Roman Catholic church. Bishop Acheson also preached the sermon in which he made reference to the controversy a week ago in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York city between Bishop William T. Manning and Judge Ben Lindsey. Under the canons of the church, Bishop Acheson declared that Bishop Manning could have done nothing else in his treatment of Judge Lindsey.

Morning prayer at the service, which had a good sized congregation in attendance, was read by Rev. Dr. Alban Richey of Wilmington, Delaware, father of the rector, Rev. Thomas Richey, who is convalescent after an operation for appendicitis.

The theory reported to the Folk Lore society is that folk tales of giants stalking on seven-league boots probably arose from the custom of using stilts in the marshy parts of Europe, a custom which awed and frightened strangers.

NEEDING MAN-POWER TO BUILD BOY SCOUT CABIN

In the work of building the scout cabin at the winter camp site on the Quinebaug river, the Norwich scout headquarters is finding that they have plenty of boy-power, but are short on man-power to accomplish the work that needs to be done now. Men and carpenters are needed to cut and hoist the roof joists into place. Saturday a dozen scouts went out to the new site from Norwich and carried stone and pulled out nails from old boards. The Baltic troop of scouts also came out to visit the site and assisted in carrying stone for the fireplace. Eagle Scout Nick Tarrant directed the activities of the scouts from Norwich.

During the day several older boys who are not scouts visited the site and among the men who came out and stayed for a while were F. H. Wyant, Russell Waldo, Carl Young and John Sellman.

Another load of outside boards for the roof was secured from a building being torn down in the West Side section and was delivered to the camp. Three full brand new windows were contributed by Fred C. Crowell of 87 Water street.

According to the local office, it is hoped that carpenters and masons will volunteer a day of their spare time this week to help the boys finish their cabin in time for the holidays following Christmas. All scoutmasters, assistants, troop committeemen, members of the executive board of the local council and others interested in scouting are asked to volunteer to go out after work and assist with the building of the cabin.

Because of the shortness of man-power, the scouts accomplished comparatively very little Saturday. A dozen studs were cut and nailed into the frame. Mr. Wyant and Mr. Waldo laid the sill for the veranda. The boarding of the outside wall was begun on one end. And enough stone was collected to raise the fireplace foundation above the floor level. But much of the most important work of all still remains to be done. If the roof and fireplace can be built during this week, the boys will be able to do practically all the rest of the work. But until these two important parts of the cabin are built by men, the work of the scouts will be held up.

Carpenters, masons and friends of the scouts desiring to help should call the local Boy Scout headquarters between 8 p. m. and 9 p. m., according to the scoutmaster, and transportation and a dinner will be furnished those volunteering to go out.

The following are reports made by the reviewing committee of the Daughters of The American Revolution upon motion pictures which the committee has reviewed;

Tol'able David. The film presents a gripping, realistic story of the feud between mountaineers. Too mature for juniors. Family.

The princess and The Plumber. The general tone of this production, particularly that of the love theme, is fine, and gives proof that a picture may be quite delightful without being cheapened by inartistic treatment. Family.

Remote Control. At last William Haines has an amusing, clean comedy. It is high time producers stopped using gangster stories, especially for juniors. Family.

Danger Lights. Dan, a railroad man befriends a tramp who later falls in love with Dan's sweetheart. Much humor is injected into this tragic story which emphasizes every day homely virtues. Family.

Lottery Bride. In this operetta of the north the songs are so skilfully introduced, and the voices so fine that one wishes there were more music. The story is too complicated for a resume. Family.

Tonight and You. A young Englishman enlists in the Royal Canadian Mounted police under an assumed name, to live down a mistake made during the war. The picture is entertaining and the underlying theme is constructive. Family. Junior matinees.

Cohens and Kelleys In Africa. Those who like this series of pictures will enjoy this satire on recent travel pictures. Family. Junior Matinees.

The Passion Flower. An excellent cast including Kay Francis, Charles Bickford, Kay Johnson, Lewis Stone, Zasu Pitts, Winter Hall and Dickie Moore, makes the sordid tragedy of triangle theme too much of a menace to fine standards of living. Not recommended.

See America Thirst. Harry Langdon needs a good story. His pictures used to be funny. This picture makes easy money and law violation too enticing. Not recommended.

REPORTS NOVEMBER WORK OF HUMANE SOCIETY

Connecticut Humane society had 104 new families reported to it in November, according to the monthly report made to the directors at Hartford, 127 other families under supervision, and 25 previous cases reported for previous investigation. There were under supervision 295 children, 257 reported because of medical, moral or physical neglect, 30 because of improper guardianship, three for physical cruelty and 5 were delinquent children in the rural communities. Fifteen undesirable persons were returned to their home state and 44 families were referred to other agencies for further action. Twenty-nine adults were called to attention because of sickness or neglect. Eight were given either hospital or medical care, 6 were cared for by relatives, 9 received aid from the town, four were placed in town institutions and two others were committed to sanitoriums. Two adults were also committed to state hospitals. Twenty-five petitions were filed for the commitment of children to state care. Nine children were committed to the selectmen of towns, one was committed to the county home, one child was placed in an orphanage, a guardian was removed and another appointed and a conservator was appointed for an incompetent aged person.

In the animal department 250 complaints were received charging abuse and neglect of animals and the number of animals that came under care during the month were 882 more than in October. 327 sick and injured animals were attended by the agents and shelter was given to two horses, 52 dogs, and 17 cats. Homes were found for 42 dogs and for 19 cats. One horse, 10 dogs and 2 cats were returned to their owners. There were 1,028 small animals destroyed in the patrol work including 301 dogs, 719 cats and 8 birds. The total number of animals cared for during the month were 5,032.

CHRISTMAS CAROL SERVICE WITH PICTURES SHOWN

Christmas pictures and carol singing made an interesting service Sunday night at the Central Baptist church for a good-sized congregation. About 25 views were shown on the screen, covering the period from the annunciation to the flight into Egypt, with commentary upon them by the pastor, Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt, and the congregation joined in singing the carols, which also were shown upon the screen. The church quartette led the congregational singing. The offertory solo was by Mrs. Olive Adams Potter and the lantern was operated by Joseph S. Adams.

On the two succeeding Sunday evenings this month there are to be special Christmas services at the church.

GIRLS' CITY CLUB TO HAVE COMMITTEES NAMED

The annual election of officers was held at the meeting of the Girls' City club under the auspices of the Woman's City club on Friday evening. The officers for the ensuing year are: President, Dorothy Holmes; vice-president, Irene Combies; secretary, Louise Gagnon; treasurer, Lillian Bergeron. The newly-elected president will appoint the standing committees at a later meeting. A very full business session occupied the entire evening. The circulating library recently started is proving very popular with the girls. There is a box to be packed by ten of the club members for their girl at the Newington home and it will be sent on Monday, together with a gift for each of the Norwich children in the home. The work on the baskets of food for needy families at Christmas is progressing. The meetings on Dec. 19 and 26 will be held in the room upstairs at 8 Washington street, through the courtesy of Miss McKensie. The Tuesday night classes of the club are working on their personal Christmas gifts.

BOY SCOUTS EXCEED LAST YEAR'S TOY COLLECTION

According to the local Boy Scout headquarters, over 40 individual calls were made last week by Boy Scouts to homes all over the city and over ten bushels of toys have already been collected and delivered to the Norwich-New London Poster company on Franklin street, where they are being repaired through the courtesy of Henry H. Vignot.

There are still ten days before Christmas and with the cooperation of the citizens of Norwich the scouts hope to make this year's collection exceed 20 bushels, enough toys for hundreds of poor children. All toys should be turned in before Dec. 20, that they may be assorted and wrapped at the United Workers.

GIANTS SHOW POWERFUL ATTACK AGAINST FORMER NOTRE DAME STARS

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—For the benefit of charity, the great and the ex-great of Notre Dame's brigade of football stars of the past ten years assembled today to furnish another sensational gridiron show but no eleven of them at any time of the game proved a match for the crack professional league team of New York Giants, led by Benny Friedman, Michigan's former All-American quarterback.

The red-helmeted, smooth-working Giants battered and passed their way to a decisive victory, 22 to 0, over the brilliant but somewhat disorganized array assembled especially for the occasion by the master of Notre Dame, Knute Rockne, and his corps of aides.

The game was for the benefit of New York's unemployed, the second charity contest in as many days. Despite freezing weather it attracted an enthusiastic crowd of 50,000 to the Polo Grounds. Former Governor Alfred E. Smith and Mayor James J. Walker were conspicuous in the gathering. Gate receipts were estimated at more than $150,000.

Rockne, bundled in blankets on the sidelines, pulled the strings for a collection of performers whose names have been written large in Notre Dame football history but it took more than that to make any impression on the rugged, hardbitten professionals. The famous "Four Horsemen," Stuhldreher, Crowley, Miller and Layden, with five of the "Seven Mules" in the forward line, started the game. Later on, Frank Carideo, this year's All-American quarter back, and his running mate, Bucky O'Connor, hero of the victory over Southern California a week ago, entered the fray, along with Jack Elder and nearly a full array of the 1929 undefeated Notre Dame team.

It was a brilliant individual parade but the team-work usually so conspicuous in any gridiron performance by a Notre Dame team was missing. Rockne tried at least three full combinations but none clicked or even threatened to cross the Giants' goal line. The fleet Elder failed to get loose and his passes were battered down by a defense in which his old rival, Christian Keener (Red) Cagle, was prominent.

Cagle gave the big crowd a few thrills with several good runs but Friedman's polished and effective performance was the outstanding individual feature. The ex-Wolverine ace, playing only in the first half, scored two of the three Giants' touchdowns and added one extra point with his talented toe. He twice crossed the Notre Dame goal line in the second period, once on a short buck across tackle and, shortly afterward, on a twisting 15-yard dash through the whole All-Star team. Both were the culmination of marches half the length of the field.

The third touchdown was tallied in the third period on a spectacular 30-yard forward pass, Moran to Campbell, who grabbed the ball in the end zone with Harry Stuhldreher on one side and Bucky O'Connor on the other.

In the opening quarter, Stuhlderer was trapped behind his own goal line before he could get off a kick, and tackled by Bill Owen for a safety.

The professional line was entirely too much for the Notre Dame array, despite heroic individual work by bare-headed Jack Cannon, 1929 All-American, Red Twomey, Adam Walsh and other notables. The Giants sifted through so fast that they broke up most of the plays called by Stuhldreber and Carideo before they could get under way. Several times, the All-Stars were set back from 15 to 25 yards in a sequence of three running plays by the hard charging professionals. It was a magnificent exhibition of line play.

BAER MAKES N. Y. DEBUT AGAINST SCHAAF FRIDAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Max Baer, latest heavyweight sensation from California, makes his New York debut in Madison Square Garden Friday night, meeting Ernie Schaaf, rugged Boston battler, in a ten round fracas.

Baer's arrival in the metropolitan sector was preceded by a flood of ballyhoo hailing him as a "second Jack Dempsey." His record shows only one defeat in 27 professional starts and 24 knockout victories. Baer thinks he can stop Schaaf in four or five rounds but that's something the best of eastern heavyweights have tried to do and failed.

There are few other bouts of general interest on the week's schedule. Con O'Kelly, Irish heavyweight, tackles Al Friedman, of Boston, at Boston tomorrow night and Jackie Fields, former welterweight champion, meets Bucky Lawless of Syracuse, N. Y., in a ten rounder at Detroit Friday.

Other bouts on the national schedule include:

Monday—At New York, Lenox S. C., George Hoffman, New York, vs. Raoul Rodriguez, Spain heavyweights, 6.

Tuesday—At Fresno, Paul Walker, New York, vs. Indian Jimmy Rivers, Los Angeles, welterweights, 10; at Indianapolis, Del Fontaine, Winnipeg, vs. Johnny Wagner, Fort Scott, Kansas, middleweights, 10; and Red Holloway, Indianapolis, vs. Frankie Hughes, Kenosha, Wis., junior welterweights, 8; at New York, St. Nicholas arena, Ted Sandwina, Sioux City, Ia., vs. Stanley Pereda, Jersey City, heavyweights, 10.

Wednesday—At Toledo, Ohio, Roger Bernard, Detroit, vs. Jackie Cohen, Rochester, N. Y., featherweights, 10.

Thursday—At Cincinnati, Billy Angelo, Lieperville, Pa., vs. Charles Cob, San Diego, welterweights, 8; at New York, Olympia, A. C., Jimmy Slavin, New York, vs. Miki Gelb, Hungary, featherweights, 10.

Friday — At New York, Madison Square Garden, Joe Banovic, Binghampton, vs. Bob Olin, heavyweights, and Angel Cliville, Porto Rico, vs. Vittorio Livan, Italy, middleweights, each 10; at St. Louis, Joe Lohman, Toledo, vs. Al Stillman, St. Louis, light heavyweights, 10; at Chicago, George Neron vs. Paul Panteleo, Chicago, heavyweights, 10.

RUDOLPH BEATS TABERSKI TO HOLD BILLIARD LEAD

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Erwin Rudolph of Chicago strengthened his hold on the lead in the world's championship pocket billiards tournament tonight by defeating Frank Taberski of Schenectady, N. Y., 125 to 70 in 13 innings. It was Rudolph's fourth successive victory.

Rudolph played sensational billiards and put together one magnificent cluster of 62 for the high run of the match. Taberski, who had given Greenleaf his first defeat last night, had a high run of 46.

This afternoon, Lauri defeated Arthur Woods of New York, 125 to 70, in 17 innings, and Bennie Allen, of Kansas City, conquered Thomas Boatman of Portland, Ore., 125 to 120 in 22 innings.

Rudolph and Lauri will clash tomorrow night in the feature match of the day. In the afternoon, Pasquale Natalie of Chicago meets Boatman, and Greenleaf plays Woods.

The standings:

Player	Won	Lost	High Run
Rudolph	4	0	67
Lauri	4	1	51
Greenleaf	3	1	104
Woods	3	2	63
Taberski	2	3	46
Allen	2	4	35
Boatman	1	4	30
Natalie	0	4	42

ROACH PLAYS BRILLIANT GAME FOR N. Y. RANGERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Johnny Roach, little goalie of the New York Rangers, turned back the Detroit Falcons tonight in their attempt to perform a feat rare in National Hockey league circles, winning two games on successive nights. Mainly because of his play, the Rangers won 3-0 and regained a tie for third place in the American division.

Roach gave one of the greatest goal guarding exhibitions ever seen in New York as he stopped the Falcons time after time when they seemed sure to score. He was credited with 62 saves, half of them in the second period, and many seemed impossible until he made them.

The Rangers took the lead in the first on a goal by Jerwa, former Vancouver star, who was playing his first game for the Rangers. They broke through the worst storm of Detroit shots in the second, Deacon Waite scoring on assists by Keeling and Johnson. A neat pass from Bill Cook to Bun Cook gave New York its third goal in the final period.

Charity In a Big Way

When New York sets out to do anything they do it in a big way. What other city in the world would raise approximately three-quarters of a million dollars for charity in two days? What other city could get customers to pay as high as $50 per seat to sit in the cold to see a football game? But that is what New York did over the week-end. Close to 70,000 saw the Army mule take over the Navy goat on Saturday at Yankee stadium and on Sunday 50,000 more shivered through the Giants-Notre Dame Stars game at the Polo grounds. And all for sweet charity's sake. Those who paid $50 for their seat at that Army-Navy game certainly got their money's worth in the football game alone, to say nothing of seeing the nation's celebrities. It was a gigantic task performed in a gigantic way as only New York can do it.

Pro Football vs. Amateur

In the game between the New York Giants and the Notre Dame All Stars the football enthusiasts had a chance to compare the professional game with the college game. And the outcome was in favor of the professionals. This was really no surprise, for the professional football team has a great advantage over the college team in many ways. The college team must be built of material at hand and there is no chance of picking and choosing from hundreds of good athletes. The professional team that is in need of a good lineman or a halfback can go scouting for him all over the country while the college coach must tear his hair while he prays to the fates to turn up a star in possibly 100 men right in his own little domain. If the fates are not kind he is simply out of luck and must do the best he can, which is more often little or nothing. The pro players have little to worry about and can devote their entire attention to football, while the college man has his studies to attend to besides a dozen other things that take up his time. With the advantage of man-power which is with the pros there is lacking that phase of the game which makes it so alluring and colorful—college spirit. The pros play for a salary and personal glorification while the college player receives nothing other than the knowledge that he has given his best. With this the case the pro player is very careful of himself, a broken leg or an injured side means that his team suffers financially. If he is a star there is a falling off in attendance and his club has to pay him for services they do not receive. It's business with the pro player while it's love of the game with the college man.

The result of yesterday's game was no surprise. Here was the Giants, a hardened team fighting for the lead in the National football race and a team that was in the pink of condition. They were a team that has had hours and hours of drilling to perfect scoring plays. The Notre Dame was a team that while they had the same training they had not the benefit of long practice together. Some of the players had not been in uniform since leaving the college gridiron and naturally they were not in the best physical condition to compete against the hardened pros. There was the lack of perfect timing on their plays, the gauging the speed of the interference and the receivers of passes. In a word, there was the lack of coordination that makes the great football team. The result was no surprise.

Sons Of Rest Repeat.

Sunday afternoon at the Mohegan park the Sons of Rest defeated the Ice House Gang 13 to 0 for the second consecutive win over this team. The Ice House Gang failed to show the spirit this week that they showed last week, while on the other hand the Sons of Rest, just starting to get organized, played a great game, both on defensive and offensive. The first score came in the third quarter by Juber, after Murphy and himself had advanced the ball down the field. The second touchdown was the result of a run by Murphy in the last minute of play. He afterwards rushed the ball over for an extra point. A. Sabitino and M. Quarto, both backfield men, were the leading players of the Ice House Gang, mainly by their great defensive work. The Sons of Rest line was unbreakable, the opposing backs gettings stopped in their tracks. Andy, Rinaldi, and Shannon shone on the line for the Sons, while Walsh, Liberty and Marrinelli starred on the defense. The lineups:

PLAINFIELD RALLIES IN 2ND HALF TO BEAT BALTIC

Sunday afternoon, at Sayles field, Baltic, in a scheduled game in the Eastern Connecticut soccer league Plainfield with a spurt in the second half of the game won from Baltic by the score of 5 to 3. Baltic was leading in the first half by the score of 2 to 1. Vic King of New London was referee and seemed to satisfy the fans and Dudley and Greenhalgh put up a good brand of football on the defense. McMillan, Mathers and Coullard for the forwards, scored Baltic tallies. Lang and Heyes were high scorers for Plainfield who scored 2 goals apiece with Wilkerson. Reds Beat Eagles

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The Providence Reds scored a 4 to 2 victory over the New Haven Eagles here tonight, in a fast Canadian-American Hockey league game, which was marked by few penalties. Although held scoreless, Jeremiah of the Eagles was the outstanding player of the contest.

FINAL 200 MILES AN HOUR DRIVER MAY SEEK AUTO RECORD IN FLORIDA

Capt. Malcolm Campbell, British automobile speed king, has asked the American Automobile association to sanction speed trials, in which he hopes to make 250 miles an hour, some time during January or February at Daytona Beach, Florida.

By Oscar Leiding
(Associated Press Automobile Editor)

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla.— (AP) — Capt. Malcolm Campbell, only living man who officially ever has driven an automobile faster than 200 miles an hour, is expected to come back to the United States for an attempt to better the existing record.

On the 14-mile ribbon of sand, where the late Sir H. O. D. Segrave shot his Golden Arrow at 231.36 miles an hour in 1929, he will try early in 1931 to regain the automobile crown of "King Speed" he once held for 62 days.

He took the title for "the flying mile" from his fellow Britisher, Segrave, in 1928 when he piloted his Napier-Bluebird at 206.956 miles an hour only to have an American, the late Ray Keech, raise the mark to 207.552 miles an hour.

Segrave returned the title to Great Britain in 1929 with a speed that stood rockfast against the assaults last March by Kaye Don, another British champion, in his Silver Bullet.

Captain Campbell will come back to the world-famous battleground of speed with a goal of 250 miles an hour. A special racer has been designed, partly new but with some bits of his old machine.

It will have a motor, called a Schneider cup type supercharged Napier, rated at 1,400 horsepower. Wind tunnel tests have decided the design of the stream-lined body.

The new chassis will have the propeller-shaft to one side, allowing the driver to sit in between it and the frame. There will be a directional fin in the rear and a radiator in the front.

Captain Campbell, expecting to have the car ready in January, as late as November 20 made overtures to the American Automobile association to sanction his trials for the time when Daytona's sands are hard packed, between January 1 and February 15.

Plans for a speed carnival have not been approved by the association but it is held likely that there will be an American challenge to England's land-speed supremacy by Harlan Fengler and Peter De Paolo, veteran speedway drivers, who are constructing a 48-cylinder thunderbolt.

While the association has received official word from only Campbell, it is understood that there may be other American entrants, including a car designed by J. M. White, Philadelphia, who backed Keech with the ill-fated White Triplex that was demolished last year when it carried Lee Bible to death.

TIGHT DEFENSE COUGARS' ACE IN ROSE BOWL TILT

PULLMAN, Wash.— (AP) — If the University of Alabama football team hopes to conquer Washington State college in the annual Tournament of Roses game at Pasadena, New Year's day, it will have to batter down one of the greatest defensive machines in the land.

The Cougars marched through their long and hard schedule without a defeat to capture the 1930 Pacific Coast conference grid championship and it was a rock-bound defense and not a rip-roaring offense that carried them into fame.

Washington State was the toughest team in the coast conference to score against. Only a total of 32 points were tallied against the Cougars in 9 games including an intersectional tilt with Villanova.

An odd feature of the record is that the College of Idaho, a small school in the Northwest conference, did the heaviest scoring against the Cougars.

The Idaho eleven piled up 12 points on two touchdowns in the opening game of the year while Coach "Babe" Hollingbery had his first, second and third teams sitting on the bench.

Southern California, Oregon State college and the University of Idaho managed to register a single touchdown each against the W. S. C. defense in conference games.

California, Montana and Washington failed to score in their clashes with the Cougars.

Probably the most remarkable defensive feat in major football this year was accomplished by the Cougars when they held Washington and Villanova from penetrating inside their 40-yard line.

Quakers Sign Wealthy Player

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Cooper Smeaton, manager of the Philadelphia National league hockey team, announced tonight that the Quakers had obtained the services of a wealthy recruit from Ottawa's amateur hockey ranks. The new player, D'Arcy Coulson, scion of a Canadian brewing family, was expected here tomorrow.

Eskimos Scoreless; Still Up

SEATTLE (AP)—The Seattle Eskimos failed to score a single goal in their first three games this year in the Pacific Coast Hockey league and yet were tied for second place. In the league one point is scored for a tie and two for victory. The team tied two.

COAST TO SEE FIVE NEW GRID COACHES

SEATTLE (AP)—At least five colleges on the Pacific coast will have new football coaches next season.

They are California, Montana and the University of California at Los Angeles in the Pacific Coast conference; College of Puget Sound in the Northwest conference and Gonzaga university of Spokane.

MAROONS WIN OVER HAWKS BEFORE LARGE CROWD

CHICAGO, Dec. 14—(AP)—Before 15,500 spectators, the largest National league hockey crowd of the season, the Montreal Maroons scored their second consecutive victory over the Chicago Blackhawks, 2 to 0, tonight in the stadium.

The Maroon triumph was even more convincing than the score, for between Fat Walsh, Maroon goalie, and his aides, Hoolie Smith, Wilcox and Ward, every Hawks drive was broken up with apparent ease.

Babe Seibert accounted for both Montreal scores, both on solo attempts. The first came in the second period with most of the Hawks up the ice, and the other one occurred under the same circumstances in the third period.

SUNDAY GAME AT EASTHAMPTON STOPPED

EASTHAMPTON, Dec. 14—(AP)—The first attempt to hold an athletic contest on the community playground in violation of a provision in the deed banning Sunday sports on the land, was halted today by officials after they had received a complaint from the donor of the property.

The contest was to have been a football game between the Ramblers and Saddle Hill of Middletown. Word of the scheduled game reached Chauncey G. Bevin, who donated the land to the city in 1923, and upon his complaint the game was ordered called off by First Selectman Merton Weir.

BERNAR ADDED TO ALL-EAST FOOTBALL TEAM

HAMILTON, N. Y., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Milford Bernar, veteran Syracuse university center, was added to the east squad today by Andy Kerr and will leave tomorrow for Chicago where Kerr's players are assembling preparatory to heading for the Pacific coast to meet the west on December 27, in the Shriners' hospital fund game.

Bernar is one of the biggest centers in football. He stands six feet, three inches and weighs 215 pounds.

PRICE IS ELECTED CAPTAIN OF ARMY TEAM

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Meeting in the baggage car of their special train on the way home from New York, this morning, the letter men of the Army football squad elected Jack Price of North Fort Dodge, Iowa, captain of the 1931 football team.

Price has been regular left tackle on the Army team for two seasons. He was 20 years old last month weighs 220 pounds and is six feet, 3 1-2 inches tall. He played through the entire game yesterday in Army's triumph over the Navy.

Price won his appointment as 1928 honor graduate of the Northwestern Military and Naval academy at Lake Geneva, Wis., and entered the academy in 1929.

NEW YORK TAKES POSSESSION OF SQUASH RACQUETS TROPHY

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 14.—(AP)—New York today regained permanent possession of the Locket squash racquets trophy by defeating Philadelphia 7 to 0 in the Tri-City series.

Philadelphia later beat Boston by the same score to take runner-up place.

Yesterday New York won from Boston 7-0 and thus finished the tournament with 14 points to 7 for Philadelphia and none for Boston.

Philadelphia and New York each had won two legs on the trophy until today and Boston one.

AMHERST OPENS TANK SEASON NEXT MONTH

AMHERST, Mass., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Amherst will open its swimming season on Jan. 10 against Massachusetts Tech, here, according to the schedule announced tonight.

The schedule:

Jan. 10, Massachusetts Tech; 17, Worcester Tech at Worcester; Feb. 7, McGill; 13, Colgate at Hamilton; 14, West Point at West Point; 21, Wesleyan at Middletown; 27, Franklin and Marshall; March 7, Williams; 14, New England intercollegiates at Middletown.

PACKERS WIN FOOTBALL TITLE FOR SECOND YEAR

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The Green Bay Packers won the national professional football championship for the second consecutive year today by holding the Portsmouth Spartans to a 6 to 6 tie game. A Packer defeat would have permitted the New York Giants to slip into first place in the league standings and become champions.

For the third consecutive year Indiana university runners captured the Big Ten cross-country championship. Left to right: Floyd James, Clifford Watson, Donald Neese, Rodney Leas, captain; Robert Kemp, Henry Brocksmith, Wesley Shonkwiler.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — (AP) — Undefeated in three seasons, the Indiana university cross-country team completed the job of retaining its Western conference running honors.

Capt. Rodney Leas and Robert Kemp are the only veterans on the team, so Coach E. C. Hayes is looking forward to further conquests. Captain Leas won individual honors in the Big Ten meet, with his teammate, Henry Brocksmith, second.

Purdue, Notre Dame, Ohio State and Northwestern were beaten in dual meets which preceded the Western conference championships.

CHARITY GAME DID LITTLE TO CLOSE BREACH BETWEEN ARMY AND NAVY

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The 31st Army-Navy football clash served its purpose in earning something like $600,000 for the unemployed but there were no indications today that it would lead to any permanent renewal of athletic relations between the two government academies.

When negotiations for the game were completed it was emphasized that it would affect in no way the dispute over eligibility rules that drove the academies apart after the 1927 football game. For the sake of charity, both were willing to bury the hatchet for one game, provided they were given the privilege of taking it up again as soon as the final whistle blew. And that, apparently is precisely what both have done.

It has been generally understood that the Navy was prepared to take the initiative and either force a showdown on the eligibility dispute or take steps toward a reconciliation, but the Army was believed to be unreceptive to any agreement which would not give the Cadets the same free scope in eligibility rules they always have enjoyed.

The game itself was hard fought but there was no evidence of ill-feeling on the part of the combatants themselves. There were a good many penalties but no more than were to be expected in a contest so closely fought.

One incident after the game was significant. Tradition calls for the winning cheering section to march across the field at the conclusion of the game and pelt the losers with whatever missiles happen to come to hand. The losers keep their seats and accept philisophically what comes. Yesterday this tradition was ignored. The Midshipmen remained seated but the Cadets failed to start the customary bombardment.

Although it took a fourth quarter 57-yard dash by Ray Stecker to bring victory to the Army, 6-0, there was no question that the better team won. Army piled up 12 first downs to three for the Navy and gained 182 yards by rushing to 63 for the Navy. Time and again the Cadets marched down deep into Navy territory only to find a scrappy Navy defense in the way.

Navy's one big chance to score came shortly after Stecker had broken loose for his spectacular touchdown. Bowman fumbled one of Bowstrom's long punts and Byng, Navy star, recovered the ball on the Army 25 yard line. Navy tried four passes in a vain attempt to tie the score and possibly win, but the alert Army defense broke up all of them, and Navy's chance had gone.

Grover Whalen's committee on arrangements still was busily engaged in checking up on the financial figures for the game and it was said it might be three or four days before any definite announcement could be made as to the receipts. Estimates placed the total at around $600,000, far below the $1,250,000 it had been hoped would be reached.

TWO GAMES IN CHURCH LEAGUE THIS EVENING

Four church teams begin their league schedule tonight. In the first game the Phi Delta Nu club will meet the Sons of Pericles, who won the title last year under the name of Gamma club. This promises to be a good battle, as the P. D. N.'s are anxious to take over the 1930 champs. The United Church team will have two Y team players, Armstrong and Tubbs in their line-up.

Last year the St. Mary's team of Willimantic was as strong as any team in the Norwich league. Their debut in the Southern New England Church league will be watched with interest. They line up with a veteran team against the Baltic Methodists.

The first round of the league ends January 26. The remaining games to that date are as follows:

January 5—St. Mary's vs. Sons of Pericles, Phi Delta Nu vs. Community Synagogue, Baltic Methodist vs C. B. C.

January 12—Sons of Pericles vs. C B. C., Phi Delta Nu vs. St. Mary's, Baltic Methodist vs. Community Synagogue.

January 19—Sons of Pericles vs. Community Synagogue, St. Mary's vs. C. B. C., Phi Delta Nu vs. Baltic Methodist.

January 26—Community Synagogue vs. St. Mary's, C. B. C. vs. Phi Delta Nu, Sons of Pericles vs. Baltic Methodist.

MONTANA STATE LOSES STAR BASKETBALL TEAM

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP)—The Montana State college basketball team that yielded to few quintets in the country is no more.

The sharp-shooting aces all have been graduated. They were Frank Ward, agile center; Ashworth, "Cat" Thompson, speedy blond forward, and Ward's slightly less famous brother, Orlando Ward, forward.

"Brick" Breeden, smothering guard, who captained the team at its height, was graduated two years ago.

These four, with the aid of strong reserves, won two Rocky Mountain titles, and their passing leaves Coach Schubert Dyche with the problem of carrying on with new material.

LOPEZ GIVEN GOLD MEDAL BY FRIENDS IN FLORIDA

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—A Florida boy has made good in big time baseball and has been honored by his home town.

Alfonso Lopez, 22-year-old catcher for the Brooklyn Robins, has been presented with a gold medal by Juventud Entusiasta on behalf of the Spanish people in Tampa.

Just before the banquet where the medal was presented, the catcher revealed that his new contract with the Brooklyn club calls for $10,000 next season, exactly double what he received last year.

BASKETBALL LEAGUE HAS 200 CITY WOMEN PLAYERS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Twenty-four squads with more than 200 players already entered have been organized in the Birmingham Women's Basketball league for the winter sport.

Teams are entered by commercial establishments, churches, park districts and business schools, Miss Agnes Coughlin, director, said. The league is under auspices of the park and recreation board.

WINTER AND LADOUMEGUE FRANCE'S [illegible] HOPES

PARIS (AP)—Paul Winter, the "Alsatian Strong Boy," is the lone French athlete besides Jules Ladoumegue, 1,500 meters champion, upon whom France is banking for a high place in the 1932 Olympics at Los Angeles.

Winter is a discus and weight thrower. He has twirled the discus 47.92 meters. This throw is three inches further than Clarence Hauser's Olympic record made at Amsterdam in 1928.

TENN. CONFERENCE FINDS PAY TO ATHLETES 'SUCCESS'

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) —While college officials in other conferences are worrying about secret subsidizing of athletes the Smoky Mountains Athletic conference declares a four-year experiment in open tendering of financial aid to athletes is a success.

Recently many prominent educators aroused by various "scandals" in college athletics, have declared themselves in favor of financial aid to athletes similar to scholarships, but officials of the Smoky Mountains conference four years ago decided that the system of prohibiting athletes from receiving jobs, loans or money was a failure.

The conference is composed of seven East Tennessee colleges. W. O. Lowe, Knoxville attorney, is commissioner of the athletic conference.

"It is well known," he says, "that competition between universities for good athletes has become so keen that friends of many universities and colleges are putting up considerable money to pay athletes.

W. O. LOWE

"As a result athletes attend schools which pay them the most money and are encouraged to lie about the financial aid they are receiving.

"Because of local influence of supporters and friends of the school, authorities refrain from trying to find out about their athletes."

Lowe, as conference commissioner, passes upon the eligibility of players.

"Our rules," he explains, "require every athlete to answer the direct question: Is he receiving any money, loan, gift or job or anything of value from any one except his mother or father?"

"Gifts, loans and jobs up to school expenses, about $300, have been approved by the commissioner. Any athlete guilty of making a mis-statement of fact is ineligible for at least one year.

"The rules simply admit that there is no inherent harm in an athlete getting financial help because of his athletic ability. The machinery demands the truth instead of lies."

Colleges in the conference are Maryville, Carson Newman, Tusculum, Milligan, Lincoln Memorial, King and East Tennessee Teachers.

BOW AND ARROW HUNTERS GET OWN DEER RESERVE

BLANEY, Mich.— (AP) —Proponents of the bow and arrow are to have 7,000 acres of Blaney park in which to hunt deer, unmolested by the crack of the modern rifle.

The number of persons who prefer the bow and arrow method of hunting is increasing materially, according to the president of the company that owns the land set aside. They are, however, experiencing difficulty with the competing riflemen.

The bow and arrow hunter depends on skill and stealth in stalking his prey, and the crack of rifles makes it difficult for him to get within proper range.

North To See Tech Cagers

ATLANTA— (AP) —Georgia Tech's 1930-31 basketball team will engage the Knights of Columbus in Brooklyn on December 30, and meet a Temple quintet in Philadelphia January 3. Prior to these games the Yellow Jackets are to meet the Arundel club in Baltimore.

First Tie Game In 8 Years

DURHAM, N. C.— (AP) —The tie game between Duke and Wake Forest this year was the first time a Duke football team has tied a game since 1922, when Presbyterian college and the Blue Devils played a 6-6 tie. The year before the Duke team tied New York university, 7-7.

Bama To See "Red."

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP)—The Washington State College Cougars will live up to their new name of "Red Devils" when they represent the west against Alabama in the Tournament of Roses New Year's day football battle, for they will be outfitted in red from head to foot.

SPORT BRIEFS

John Grabowski, released by the New York Yankees to St. Paul a year ago, is slated to be first string catcher for the Detroit Tigers next season.

Bing Miller, right fielder, now is the oldest man on the roster of the world's champion Philadelphia Athletics. He is 36.

In the 1904 Army-Navy football game Arthur C. Tipton, now a major, made the winning touchdown by booting a Navy fumble across his own goal line and falling on it.

Glen "Red" Jarrett, North Dakota halfback, made at least one touchdown in every game in which he played the last two seasons.

Walter "Dip" Van W[illegible] has been [illegible] coach of all sports at Kentucky Wesleyan college.

Greensboro, N. C., has been chosen as the spring training grounds of the Rochester Redwings of the International league.

Rob Hays, former freshman coach at Wake Forest college, has been named head basketball coach of the varsity team.

D GAS AND OIL, THEN SPEEDED AWAY

New London and state police futile search Saturday night occupants of an automobile, ained gasoline and fuel at station in Niantic and then away without making payment mobile, an Auburn sedan Massachusetts markers, was the station and after a liberal quantity of gas and oil was obtained, the driver speeded away, defrauding the station owner of several dollars. A telephone message was sent to the state police barracks requesting the arrest of the occupants of the auto and a request was also made of the New London police to maintain a watch for the men.

The entrance to the gasoline filling station, corner of Jefferson and Garfield avenues, was discovered unlocked by Automobile Patrol Officer George Cockell. The owner of the station was notified and secured it for the remainder of the night.

Carl S. Howell, submarine base, residing at 131 Bayonet street, was arrested tonight by Patrolman Louis Pine charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. He was locked up at police headquarters. He will not be in the police court Monday for Howell was given into the custody of a shore patrol during the night and was taken back to the base, where he will be given military discipline. Howell had been drinking and during the late afternoon a shore patrol was summoned to the Bayonet street house at the request of Mrs. Howell, for her husband was creating a disturbance. Howell was given good advice as to his conduct, but he did not heed it for at 5 o'clock Mrs. Howell was again compelled to seek relief because of her husband's actions. Officer Pine and a patrol officer went to Howell's home where he was attired only in undershirt, trousers and socks. In that raiment he was brought to police headquarters.

Miss Ella Howard, secretary to City Manager William A. Holt and Miss Elizabeth Roath, assistant city clerk, returned this evening, having spent several days in New York.

Peeping Tom About

Residents in the vicinity of the former United States Housing corporation and Colman street have been annoyed of late because of a "Peeping Tom," for a type of this degenerate has been lurking in that neighborhood for several nights, although his identity could not be established nor a good description of the man obtained. Residents detected the acts of the peeper, but could not obtain a view of the fellow that his positive description could be given. The police were informed of the acts of the peeper and Thursday and Friday nights two officers in plain clothes were detailed to maintain a lookout for the woman-annoyer, but no trace of him was found. The officers have now been taken from this special duty.

The meeting of the city council will be held Monday night but so far as known no matters of more than ordinary importance are scheduled for consideration.

Young, Apply For Lodging

The cold weather of Saturday night and today caused another large number of unemployed to seek lodging at police headquarters and as a result the tramp room was filled to overflowing. Some of the lodgers were respectably dressed and were saving their funds for food rather than for a room in a lodging house. Some of the lodgers were hardly of the voting age.

DEATH CAR DRIVER MIGHT COME FROM MERIDEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 14.—The New London police tonight were requested to be on the lookout for a hit and run driver, for the car he was driving hit and fatally injured a girl of eight on the new state road near Meriden. The markers on the car were not obtained, but it was requested that any driver of a light colored car, probably yellow, be held up and the machine examined for blood stains and dented fenders.

Christmas business in the stores has not thus far been up to normal, but Christmas day being yet a week and a half away there is time for traders to play Santa Claus to the extent of their resources. Merchants say that the women are early traders in the stores, while men wait till the last few days before they make their purchases. If this be true the week ahead should see an improvement in trade.

Waiting For Mayor Morgan

Custom has been in recent years for the mayor of the city to extend greetings to the members of the city council at the beginning of the year and to give expression to his ideas as to the management of the affairs of the people. Mayor Morgan has never yet been known to be devoid of ideas so he may be looked to at the first meeting of the city council in January to give expression to his views. Mayor Morgan held the office of chief executive of the city under the old form of government as well as under the city manager form, so he has had the opportunity to compare the two systems of operating the city. That experience may suggest innovations which he may recommend. One idea that is likely to be introduced is the changing of the date of the fiscal year from the 1st of October to the 1st of January. That change will necessitate an amendment to the city charter and that will come before the legislature which convenes in January. It will change the date for the perfection and adoption of the city budget, to conform to the new order of things. The budget for the year has not yet been adopted by the council, but will be without delay, for it is understood that it has been agreed upon.

Want Community Tree

There is a growing desire expressed for the placing of a Christmas tree that shall be illuminated at the Soldiers' and Sailors' monument on State street. The city has had such in recent years, but this season no provision has been made for it.

Automobiles coming from the westward today brought evidence of the fall of snow for they were well covered with white on arrival here. The wind shifted to the northwest here during the day and the snow did not arrive. The temperature changed late in the day, dispelling all indication of a snow storm.

UP TO GOVERNOR CROSS TO INDICATE GRATITUDE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 14. — New London democrats are anxious to have Gov. Cross appoint some one from this city to office when he makes his selections. They say that New London county stood steadfast for him and that if he favor this section by showing appreciation of the fact that act would be most gratifying. There are several offices with salaries that are attractive to be given out by the governor and if he comes to this section no one favored will be offended. It was at New London that the governor was nominated and here a great deal of interest in his campaign was aroused.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

To a Cat

His whole existence is a dream.
His future is a nine-page scroll.
His eyes are meditative slits
Where one can glimpse the mystic soul.

His every want is tended by
The goddess of the blue-rimmed dish.
His sole philosophy is sleep,
His destiny is cream and fish.

He worships at the human shrine
And offers up a wistful purr.
He bears no gift—but lo, himself
Is gold and frankincense and myrrh!

—Perris Greeley Anderson.

Late Robin

The fledglings are all gone;
The year is at the turn;
On woodland, field, and lawn
The autumn colors burn.—
When hark, upon the eager, listening ear
The sweetest robin-song of all the year!

Hushed is the warbler's flute
Where the still wood grows down
To the blue lake, and mute
The singers of field and town.
But for this gallant one whose shining word
Is like a breath of spring in autumn health.

—Eleanor Halbrook Zimmerman.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Along the western coast of our country one of the interesting sights are the partridge-like birds with striking plumage and prominent black crests that stand above their heads. They are quail some of which are closely related to the quail species in our section of the country.

Most conspicuous of these is the California quail, a plump brown and bluish-gray bird with black and white markings, scaled cape and belly, and a crescent-shaped crest larger at the top than at the bottom. It and its sub-species, the valley quail, frequent the lower regions and are most often seen because of their less secretive habits. They are comparatively fearless of man where they are protected, and gather in large numbers about many of the semi-wild parks of their native haunts.

The mountain, or plumed quail, is a bird of the higher regions, and is more cautious about being seen. It is a trifle larger than the California quail, is much the same in general color, but without the scaled effect and lacking the heavy white line above the eye. Its crest is longer and more slender, and instead of curving toward the front, points straight up or is dropped back in horizontal line. This is a somewhat more northern bird than its relative and used to greater cold, but when heavy snows fall on the mountains it migrates to the lower regions where food is more easily obtained.

The feeding habits of these species are such as to make them beneficial to the land, as their diet consists chiefly of grasshoppers, beetles, ants, and other insects, weed seeds, and wild berries.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

An Imaginary Trip

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written to the Wide Awake circle for a long time, but have enjoyed them very much. We have been studying France, so I thought I would write about a trip to France.

I started by boat from New York and went to Havre, the "haven" or port of Paris. From there I went to Nantes, at the head of the estuary of the Loire. I remained there a few days and then I went to Bordeaux, a port for the shipment of wine, also an important manufacturing center. I then went to Toulouse, a good farming country, where I watched the farmers at their work.

St. Etienne was the next place I visited. From there I went to Paris, a city of great renown. There we saw the broad boulevards and numerous buildings of unusual interest. I also saw some of the great museums where many of the world's most precious works of art are kept.

I remained there a few days and then returned to my home.

DOROTHY BUTLER, age 13.

Our Health Club

Dear Uncle Jed: Our school has a health club. It was organized October 17, 1930. We named it the "Happy Brownies." Each member has a name. Here are some; Rudy Apple, Sunshine Fairy, Johnnie Cabbage, and Merry Milk. We have 14 members.

We have a president, secretary, vice president, sub-secretary, and social chairman. I am secretary. At the meetings we tell health stories, draw health pictures, compose health songs, and poems. We have a health song to the tune of "When It's Springtime in The Rockies."

We hold meetings every Friday afternoon.

We have a chart that we call, "Non-Stop Flight to Healthland." Each child has an aeroplane or dirigible. Every morning if we have brushed our teeth, have a handkerchief, clean nails, neck and ears, we fly a certain distance to represent the day. When anyone gets across the chart first he gets a gold star. I have two stars.

I hope more members of the health clubs are Wide Awakes.

RUTH ABRAHAMSON, age 12.
Preston.

Happy Health Brownies

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about our health club. Our club was formed Oct. 17, 1930. We have 14 members. The name of our club is "Happy Health Brownies." Our secretary is Ruth Abrahamson, sub-secretary, Emily Panus; social chairman, Peter Niewcaroski; vice president, Reginald Lewis, and I am president.

Each of our members has a health name. Some of them are Johnny Egg, Merrie Tooth Brusher, Johnnie Lettuce, Merrie Banana, Jackie Cabbage and Rudy Apple.

At our club meeting we tell health stories, and sometimes make health posters. We have made up a song. It is as follows:

When it's eight o'clock in the evening,
Then it's time to go to sleep;
We'll brush our teeth before we go,
Then up to bed we'll creep.
We wake early in the morning,
When the sun is shining bright;
And jump into the bath tub,
To start the whole day right.

It is sung to the tune of "Springtime in the Rockies."

At our next meeting we will elect officers. We meet every Friday at our school.

FLORENCE BRAND, age 12.
Preston.

The 4-H Roundup

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing this letter to you to tell you about the 4-H roundup at Samuel Huntington school, Norwich Town, Connecticut, November 2, 1930. My brother and I went with our neighbors at night. There were two people at the door giving out programs to those that came in. The New London county orchestra played for us. Mr. R. Whaples and Mrs. E. Grover were giving out prizes. Some of them were ribbons, sewing machines and silver cups. I received a button that says 100 per cent 4-H club, for I had a good garden. After the prizes were given out there were movies. I enjoyed it very much and I hope you do, too.

NO NAME.
Preston.

Effect of The Sun's Heat.

Dear Uncle Jed: I will try and tell you of the effect of the sun's heat. You know that some things are more easily heated than others. As you go out into the sunshine on a warm day, notice which things feel warmest, the grass, the wood, the soil, the rock or metals. In the evening these things have cooled. The sun's rays go through some substances without heating them.

Air is a substance, but little heated by the sun's rays. But when these rays have heated up the earth, then the earth gives off heat rays that warm the air. The air is heated by the earth more than by the sun's rays.

A Little Dog.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have a little dog and I am going to tell you about it in this letter. He is white and he is an Eskimo Spitz. He is a pretty dog. I had the dog from October. He likes to stand on his hind legs. He lays down and makes believe he is dead. When I call him he jumps up and runs after me. When I come from school I often find him in the barn running after the cats and goats. When I lay down on the ground he bites my hand. Then I run in the barn and he finds me. He always follows me when I go to school. His name is Jack.

A Close Escape.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day when it was very warm, may mother told my sisters and me to put on our bathing suits because we were going swimming.

We put on our bathing suits and went swimming. When we reached the river some of my mother's friends were there. My sisters and I had to stay near the shore in order that we might not get drowned. My mother and one of her friends went farther out. One of the girls stayed on shore because she had been sick and did not feel well enough to swim.

The girl that was swimming with my mother happened to push her into a hole. The water was over her head. The girl that was on shore jumped in with all her clothes, and pulled my mother out safely. I was the happiest boy that ever lived to see my mother brought to shore alive.

Story of Tea.

Dear Uncle Jed and the Wide Awakes: Although people under 20 shouldn't drink tea I am going to tell you about it.

Tea as it appears in commerce is the prepared leaves of a small bush (Thea Sinensis).

Teas are classed commercially according to region of their production as: China, Ceylon, India, Assam, Japan, Formosa, Java; according to method, giving sun-dried, pan-fired and basket fired.

The different colors and kinds include:

A. Green—gunpowder, Imperial, Hyson, Caper, etc.

B. Black—Pekoe, Oolong, Souchong, Congue, etc., and according to the quality, depending on the age of the leaf.

Brick tea is a low grade of sweepings and trash and is not salable in the United States, but is used extensively in Thibet, Russia, etc.

Soluble tea, or tea extract and tablet tea are of little commercial importance.

Tea is grown in hilly sections of Asia, China and countries of a warm climate.

In some places tea is picked only twice a year, but where the climate allows, it is picked frequently.

Black teas are the leaves of the tea bush allowed to wither and ferment over a charcoal fire. Green tea is picked and dried immediately, not being allowed to ferment.

Tea is popular because of its pleasant taste and its stimulating effects due to the theine or caffeine contained in it. The United States and Great Britain use most tea outside of the producing countries. Also, much tea is shipped overland to Russia, which is a good customer. Caffeine in tea and coffee is dangerous to young folks.

Sumatra.

Dear Uncle Jed: In school we are studying a problem based on strange homes of many lands for our English work. Today we were required to write a composition about a strange home and to see if any of the members of the class could guess the name of this home.

As I was traveling around the world I came to an island south of India and China. On this island I saw many strange homes.

The houses are large and beautiful and are built something like ships. The people living in them moved from the mountains to this island. They settled here and built their homes so that the enemy would not think these houses were dwellings. No doubt they would think they were ships sailing on the Indian ocean.

These houses are built of teak poles and very large palm leaves are used for covering the roof.

On this island there is much gold, tin and copper. This was the most interesting place I visited on my trip. I would like to go there again sometime as I know there must be some things that I did not see.

This island is called Sumatra.

My dear Uncle Jed: I have two little fluffy kittens. They like me very much and I like them. They like to play with a ball. They catch mice and rats. When I go out sometimes they follow me. I give them milk and they like it very much and other things. I have a dog named Maday and she loves to play with the kittens. And they like to play with her. And I have five little chickens. And I have two pet rabbits.

Making Butterscotch.

Dear Uncle Jed: This vacation I asked my mother to make some butterscotch. She said I could. I put everything on the stove to cook. About 15 minutes later we could smell it. Oh, it smelled good. It cooked in a few minutes after. I put it in a pan in the hallway. Ten minutes later I went to see if it was hard. It was hard so I tried to take it out of the pan. It was stuck so I couldn't take it out. I took a screw driver and a hammer and I hammered hard on the screwdriver. It broke the candy. Something else happened. I made a hole right through the pan.

At The 4-H Roundup

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my second letter to you. I am going to tell you about the 4-H roundup this year. Mr. Lewis took us to the roundup. It took a long time to get there. When we got there we went into the big school. It had just started. We got the program and went in. Paul Holdridge talked about poultry and Mrs. Woodmansee spoke about canning. Mr. Whaples gave out prizes. When the prizes were all given out a magician showed us some tricks. Later there was a movie. When it was over we went home.

My First Thrilling Ride

Dear Uncle Jed: Have you ever been in a roller coaster? If you have you must know the funny feeling one gets. Well, let me continue with my first ride. I was a visitor at an amusement park this summer. We tried different rides, and so forth, but saved the roller coaster for the last Now. I wasn't very eager to ride one, but when they all teased, I consented. Our tickets bought, our places found, and I looked at the steep incline we would climb. Then and there I decided to get off, but it was too late. The warning, "hold tightly," and off we went.

Slowly we climbed, and I thought my heart would burst, it was beating so hard. The top! Down we went, up again, steeper and bigger hills, one right after the other until the biggest one was reached. At the top of this hill I knew enough to fill my lungs with air, shut my eyes and hang on! And then down we went, the hill seeming endless. Gradually we slowed up and finally stopped. My head was swimming and when I stood on the firm ground again, I breathed a sigh of relief and vowed never to try it again. My two feet on earth is near enough to heaven for me.

My Visit To Grandpa's

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you and the Wide Awake circle about my visit to grandpa.

Last school vacation I went to visit my grandma and grandpa. They were both very good to me. They live in Westerly, R. I., on a farm.

In the morning I would get up early to feed grandpa's chickens. I never fed the pig as grandpa was afraid I would get bitten by him as he is a very cross pig, like all pigs are when they are hungry. Well, after grandpa went off to work, I would help grandma. I dried her dishes and dusted for her. I would like to do lots more for grandma, but she thought I was too young to spend my time all on work. She would tell me to take the dolls and toys and play awhile, so I would always do as grandma told me, like all little girls should do. I stayed with them three weeks and I had to come home for school was ready to start. But this school vacation I am going to go early to grandma's and grandpa's as they like me and I love them, too. I hope all little girls are kind to their grandma and grandpa.

A Story

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to tell you of a wonderful story my father told "The Gang" the other day. It is a very exciting story from beginning to end. It is as follows: There was once a very rich man who lived on a high bluff near the sea. He had a very magnificent mansion surrounded by beautiful trees and bushes. Everyone thought he was very wealthy through some inheritance. This man was a very peculiar person and seldom seen. When sighted he tried to conceal himself. He had lived there for about a month when a dreadful thing happened. A lady who was selling magazines called on him. She rang the bell several times, but no one answered. She took a peek in the nearest window and was horror stricken on preceiving a dead man on the floor face upward and nearly black. She hurried away and as soon as possible notified the police. Detectives soon investigated the case and found he had been strangled to death and had been dead for about four days according to the clock. He was lying on the corridor leading to the staircase. Nothing much of the mystery was solved, but soon after several other cases similar to it had been reported. Some other rich man had gotten a letter saying, "I will kill you tonight." The detectives and police got their orders to be stationed somewhere in or out of the house. About twelve o'clock a dark shadow crept toward the house. He entered and no one stirred. He crept down the hall; no one stirred. Suddenly two detectives sprang upon the intruder. The next day they found out he was "Red Casey", a very wise and noted gangster. He was put on trial, found guilty of murder and died in the electric chair.

My Trip to The Seashore

Dear Uncle Jed: I would like to tell you about my trip to the seashore. Last summer our family went to the seashore for a few days. We rented a cottage. The first night I went out on the porch and saw the waves dashing high, and I saw the lights from a number of ships going by. The next day we all went in bathing. The waves were quite rough. I took hold of the rope and tried to swing on it. A wave knocked me over and I let go of the rope. Mother had to pick me up. I didn't try that trick again. We enjoyed the trip very much.

Jewett City Viaduct.

Dear Uncle Jed: As this is my first story to the Wide Awakes I really am at a loss as to what I should write, so I will tell you about the opening of the viaduct at Jewett City. Last summer I went on an extended vacation to my grandmother's home in Jewett City. While I was there the construction company began operations on the overhead bridge over the railroad track north of Jewett City.

At the same time the overhead bridge south of Jewett City was in construction. This bridge covers a large tract of land, also crosses the N. Y., N. H. and H. tracks and the Quinebaug river, ending in the next town which is Lisbon. The two bridges were connected by a new concrete highway running through the entire length of Jewett City. While I was visiting my grandmother I took much interest in this work as the new highway crossed my grandmother's home. Each day I went and watched the men at work. Thanksgiving day I again visited at my grandmother's home. There was a great deal of difference in the looks of the town then as the highway, the viaduct, and overhead bridge were completed. There was a parade to celebrate the opening of the viaduct. I rode in our car over both the bridge and the viaduct the day of the opening. That will be something to remember. Some day when the Bulletin is writing about what happened 50 years ago and they are writing about this work I can say that I crossed both bridges on their opening day.

Storm Killed Birds.

Dear Uncle Jed: I wonder if you have as many pheasants and small birds as we have. There is a law on pheasants. We have 29 1-2 days to hunt them. Sometimes there are so many pheasants they destroy lots of grain. We have prairie chickens. They are a little smaller than pheasants and look like buff bantams. A few days ago there was a bad storm went through some of the western states. After the storm was over you could go out and pick up bushels of pheasants and other kinds of birds that were killed and frozen to death by the snow, sleet and rain.

An Imaginary Story.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am sending you an imaginary story that I hope you will enjoy. The title is "My Scare."

I had just finished my home work in geography and was trying to think of an experience story for the next day's composition period when bump, bump, bump.

I was frightened. I jumped up and then heard another bang. I walked quietly into the living room. There I saw the big cat. He had just broken my mother's good vase and was now trying to play the piano. I grabbed the cat and threw him out where he could not give me any more scares, for I had had enough, but I had a good experience story for the next day's composition period. I am a girl of 10 years old. I am in the seventh grade.

Our Play.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have read the stories in the Norwich Bulletin, and now I am writing you a story for the first time. It is about our Thanksgiving entertainment.

We had as our visitors another school. They entertained us with a selection of poems and a play entitled "Three Mince Pies." Our parents were also invited and they enjoyed the entertainment very much.

We then entertained our visitors with poems, a Thanksgiving song and a play "The First Thanksgiving Day." After playing some Thanksgiving games we all went home, ready to enjoy our Thanksgiving holidays.

At The Roundup

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write to you about the 4-H club roundup. All of the clubs of New London county met at the Samuel Huntington school and the ones who did the best club work received a prize or medal. There was music and singing and a magician performed. The last thing they had was moving pictures. Later they played games. This was the third 4-H club roundup held in New London county. I expect to go again next year.

Chic Winter Dresses

PARIS, Dec. 14—(AP)—Paris is buttoning herself up the back in new and devious ways this winter.

One of the martest models of heavy black silk crepe fastens up the back with a score of small black buttons the size of a filbert.

The rippling tail of the blouse is finished with a narrow band of ermine.

An evening dress of black crepe laces up the back, from the base of the decolletage to the hipline, like an old-fashioned corset. The model, which is designed along simple lines, flares slightly from the knees to the hemline, terminating at the instep.

Stumpy Learns A Useful Trick

A thing of seeming small account
May to importance yet amount.
—Old Mother Nature.

Little things often prove to be most useful, even more useful than some bigger things that seem more important. It is so all through life. You never know how soon some bit of knowledge may become of the greatest possible use to you. So never overlook and never scorn little things.

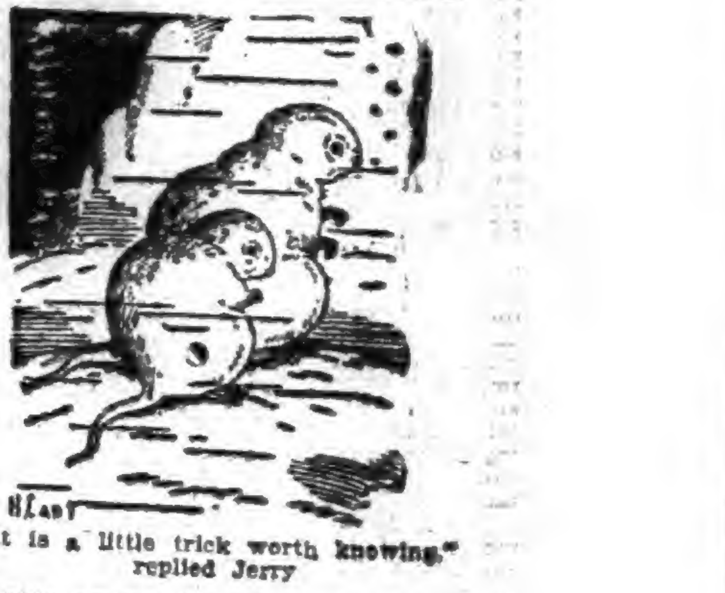
Jerry Muskrat had told Stumpy, his three-legged son, that he would show him a way to breathe under the ice without going to the bank where almost always a little air is to be found under the ice. Stumpy reminded Jerry of this as they were preparing to go look for some roots of water plants in the mud at the bottom of the Smiling pool. "You said that if there wasn't any air under the edge of the bank beneath the ice there would still be a way to breathe. I don't see how that is possible," said Stumpy.

"It is a little trick worth knowing," replied Jerry. "There are many little tricks that come in handy all through life. This is one. It might save your life sometime."

"I'll take your word for that," replied Stumpy. "Now what is the trick!"

"You follow me outside and do just as I do," said Jerry. "I am going to let my breath out, but notice just where and how I do it and how I take it in again. Then you do the same."

He led the way outside and Stumpy followed. Instead of heading for either bank Jerry swam straight up to the ice that covered the Smiling pool, making a sort of roof. Any way that is what Stumpy called it, and I guess Stumpy wasn't far wrong. Straight up to the ice swam Jerry and put his nose against it. Then he let out his breath. The air made a little bubble against the ice, for of course it could not escape. Jerry waited. Then he took in that bubble of air; took it back into his lungs breathed it in.



"It is a little trick worth knowing," replied Jerry

Now an interesting thing had happened. When he had let that air out from his lungs it had been impure, bad. All the goodness of it had been used up. When that bad air had formed that bubble against the ice it had there become purified again by the freezing of the water just there. So it had become good to once more take into the lungs and Jerry had drawn it in. Jerry didn't know how that air had been made good again and he didn't care how it had been done; it was enough for him that it had been done.

Stumpy tried it. He did just as Jerry had done. He had a queer feeling when he let his breath go. He had a feeling that he never would get it back again and so would drown. But when he drew that little bubble in again he knew that all was well. Of course he couldn't say anything there under water, but just as soon as he was back in the house he began asking questions.

"Where did you learn that trick!" he asked.

"Oh," replied Jerry, "that is an old, old trick. It has been handed down in the family. Here in the Smiling pool there is seldom need of using it, but if you should leave the Smiling pool and make your home in a larger body of water where your house was some distance from the nearest bank that little trick might come in very handy."

"Does it always work?" inquired Stumpy.

"I've never known it to fail," replied Jerry.

"I don't think I like this roof on the Smiling pool," said Stumpy.

"I do," replied Jerry. "By and by there will be dreadful storms and the weather will get terribly cold, but we won't care. It is always the same under the ice. We can go and come as we please no matter what the weather may be up above. I am always glad when Jack Frost covers the Smiling pool. You will be, too, when you are more used to it."

"Perhaps," said Stumpy, but it was plain that he doubted it.

WASHING THE RANGE

The modern enameled gas range will long remain new and shiny if it receives a daily washing off with mild soap and warm water. Spills should always be removed at once. The grids of the stove can be lifted out and washed in hot suds. They should be thoroughly dried before being returned to their places.

PREPARATIONS FOR CHRISTMAS KEPT BUSINESS GOOD LAST WEEK

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Busy preparations for a merry if economical Christmas, and constructive plans for the new year, kept business from worrying overmuch about the state of its health during the past week.

Reports from industry toward the close of the year must be interpreted in the light of the normal downward trend which appears with the approach of the annual inventory period. The steel industry, however, maintained operations on a fairly even keel, around recent low levels. "Iron Age" placed ingot output at 38 per cent of capacity, against 39 a week previously.

Retail trade has suffered from adverse local influences in spots, but reports from many cities state that the volume of merchandise being purchased compares favorably with last year, although a preference for lower-priced items tends to restrict the dollar turnover, in comparison with recent years.

The steel trade is beginning to feel the influences of first-quarter inquiry from consumers. The railways are manifesting more interest in equipment purchases, and a few motor manufacturers are fairly active. The United States Steel Corp. reported an increase in unfilled tonnage for November of 157,871 tons, the largest November gain since 1925. The price structure for steel products appears to have been bolstered fairly successfully, although reductions in the prices of wire rods and plain wire carried Iron Age's composite price off a little.

Reports of building contracts let during the first few days of December showed a substantial gain from the extremely low levels of November, and came close to the volume of this time a year ago The latest report of freight car loadings was for Thanksgiving day week, and the holiday carried the total to a new low for the year, but the decline was somewhat less than has usually been experienced in that week. Electric power output, as reported for the first week of December, showed a somewhat less than seasonal gain over the holiday week, but with a decline of 3.9 per cent from the like week of last year, made a more favorable comparison than the first three weeks of November.

With the notable exceptions of steel products and wheat, commodity prices slipped substantially here and there. Cotton, influenced by weakness in the foreign markets and report that consumption of cotton goods in November fell below production for the first time in five months, dropped below 10 cents a pound, recording the lowest price since 1915. Silver dropped close to 22 cents an ounce, a new historical low, and a reduction of about 23 per cent since the first of the year. This was an adverse influence on the purchasing power of the far west, and consequently a contributory influence in the decline of cotton. Copper Exporters reduced its price from 2.30 to 11.30 cents a pound, C. I. F. European ports, indicating that the recent advance from a domestic price of 9 1-2 cents to 12 cents had been over-rapid.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—New municipal financing scheduled for award this week amounts to $43,705,-576, compared with public offerings in this group of $16,939,000 last week, the Bond Buyer reports. The largest issue to be placed is $15,000,000 City of Philadelphia 60-year bonds, callable in 20 years, to be placed Monday. Boston will sell an issue of $6,680,000 4 and 3 1-2 per cent bonds Tuesday; Houston, Texas, $3,730,000 improvement bonds Monday; Atlantic City $3,250,-000 tax revenue notes Thursday; Providence, R. I., $3,000,000 in 4s Friday; New Rochelle, N. Y., $2,071,000 improvement bonds Tuesday, and Salt Lake City $2,000,000 tax anticipation notes Wednesday.

John J. O'Brien, president of Standard Gas & Electric Co., announced that the company's construction budget for 1931 will total $43,596,257, including an additional generating unit of 35,000 kilowatts capacity at the Riverside plant of the Northern States Power Co. in Minneapolis; a hydro-electric station of 40,000 kilowatts capacity for the California-Oregon Power Co., and two transmission lines connecting the Minnesota Valley steam plant at Granite Falls, Minn., with other parts of the Northern States Power Co. system.

The Kroger Grocery & Baking Co. announced that beginning Monday, Jan. 5, it will use the 13-month calendar and will operate under 13 periods of four weeks each, each period consisting of 28 days. The announcement pointed out that the arrangement will aid in making more accurate comparisons of sales, will eliminate split payrolls and will aid in establishing the basis for a more accurate cost system.

New bond issues scheduled for offering tomorrow include $6,000,000 first mortgage and refunding 20-year 5 per cent gold bonds, series B, of Virginia Public Service Co.; $4,134,000 City of Baltimore, Md., 4 per cent bonds, due 1936 to 1957, and $3,750,000 West Texas Utilities Co., first mortgage 5 per cent bonds, due Oct. 1, 1957.

Mark Wolff, statistician for Hammershlag, Borg & Co., has prepared a comparison of the declines in the share market for 1929 and 1930 showing that in terms of percentage the decline this year has been almost as severe as 1929. "If 1929 history can be depended upon to repeat itself the stock market may be very close to the bottom," he says, but adds, "it is questionable whether such mechanical means are reliable in a market which is made up of situations."

PACKER BROTHERS RETIRE— OVER 50 YRS. WITH N. H. ROAD

Amos and Giles Packer, brothers, employed as crossing tenders on the Spicer avenue crossing of the N. Y., N. H. and H. railroad retire today (Monday) on a pension after over 50 years of service on the railroad. Amos Packer retires when his trick is over at 3 o'clock and after the 11 o'clock trick Giles Packer retires. Amos Packer was born in Ledyard, May 18, 1856, the son of Denison Packer and Mary C. Packer. He entered the service of the railroad on Oct. 20, 1875, at the age of 19 years. At first he was employed on the road-bed from New London to the Stonington section. He was also employed as section foreman on the old Groton road for several years. At the time the new road was built from Midway, his work was to surface the tracks and bring them up to grade. This was first done in 1889. He remained as foreman for a number of years and resigned and then served as tender at Mystic drawbridge for 14 years. From there he was transferred to the Spicer avenue crossing, as tender, since 1920. He has been a resident of Groton for the past 14 years. His wife was Hattie R. Clay and they were married in June 1877. He has seven children, 10 grandchildren and three great grandchildren. He relates some very interesting incidents in connection with his long years of service with the railroad. He plans to take comfort for a while, as he has not had a vacation since he has been employed on the road, for 55 years.

His brother, Giles Packer was born in North Stonington, Jan. 16, 1853. He entered the service of the N. Y., Providence and Boston railroad at the age of 15. He went to work as trackman on the section between Mystic and Groton, under Division Roadmaster Francis Bradley. At that time there were single tracks and when they changed over to double tracks, from Stonington to Groton, he assisted with the construction work. He remembers when Mystic bridge was a single track and then was changed to a double track and a new bridge was built. He was employed in operating the Mystic bridge by hand power for over four years. From bridge tender he was transferred to lamp tender at the Midway yard. He was employed there for ten years. He then served as bridge tender at Mystic, until the service was discontinued and was then transferred to the Spicer avenue crossing. His home is in West Mystic. He has three children and one grandchild. He also remembers when the trains were ferried across the Thames river on the boats Groton and Thames. The places of the Packer brothers at the local crossing are being taken by William Black of Mystic and Frank Batty of Providence. They were two of the best known railroad men in the employ of the New Haven road in this vicinity.

Edward Mahoney has returned from New York.

Thomas McGown has returned after spending a few days in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Ricardo Morressetti and family of New London have been visiting local relatives.

Miss Hazel Trahan has been entertaining Miss Irene Pollard of Mystic.

The Reading club will meet with Mrs. Jennie Ashcroft Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. John Palin of Providence spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harris H. Park.

Mrs. William J. Ellis is ill at her home on Pearl street.

Plans are being made for the third in a series of ten pinochle parties to be held in the Legion hall under the auspices of the auxiliary to Harrison Morton Ward post. The committee in charge is Mrs. Gertrude Rogers and Mrs. Flora Goodwin.

William Tourjee has returned from a business trip to New York.

Christmas Stories Told

At the Sunday morning services of the Baptist church the pastor, Rev. Ernest F. Weise took for his subject What Price Prosperity? At 4 o'clock the annual vesper services of the World Wide Guild was held. A pleasing program was given under the direction of Mrs. Beret Jenssen and Mrs. Helen Weise. In the evening, Henry Van Dyke's story of The Other Wise Man was told in pictures. There was also special music by the choir.

At the Methodist church the pastor, Rev. Robert J. Chrystie, Ph. D. told an original Christmas story. Cora's Christmas Crown. Miss Mildred Chesebro was soloist.

FRENCH MISSION ENDS IN CATHOLIC PARISH

At the four masses Sunday in St. John's church, Uncasville, Rev. Father Thomas Lynch and Rev. Father Terence P. Finnegan offered the holy sacrifice. There is to be an anniversary high mass this (Monday) morning for Mrs. Michelina Brycky; there will be an anniversary mass Tuesday for Harry Chopitany. The first communion class will receive instructions this (Monday) afternoon and will receive first communion next Sunday at the 8:30 mass. The pastor instructed all the children who are to receive first communion next Sunday to meet at the church no later than 8 o'clock. There will be instructions for the upper grade children Wednesday afternoon. The French mission, which has been conducted for the past three days by Rev. Father Berard of Fall River, Mass., came to a close Saturday evening. Father Lynch commended all who had cooperated in making this mission such a success. The Polish mission will open next Monday evening, Dec. 22, and will continue for three days. The pastor urged the Polish-speaking people of the parish and their friends to make this mission as faithfully as have the English and French-speaking parishioners.

The Doctrine of Salvation was the theme at the 10:45 a. m. Sunday services at the Union Baptist church, of the pastor, Rev. Raymond J. Bates. Sunday school at noon was in charge of Elmer Schroder. At the 6:30 p. m. C. E. meeting Mrs. Percy Allen, the leader, took for her subject How to Make Others Happy. The C. E. meeting was a rally meeting for the union meeting which was held last evening at 7:30 in the Mohegan church and the sermon was delivered by Rev. Wilbur Stevens of Montville Center church.

Maple camp, Royal Neighbors of America, held a well attended meeting during the week in the lodge rooms at Palmertown. Plans were made to run a dance in the new Uncasville auditorium in the latter part of January.

Mrs. Annie Koninski, who has been a surgical patient in the Lawrence Memorial hospital, New London, for the past two weeks, returned Sunday to her home in Uncasville.

FORMER GANGSTER SHOT DEAD IN PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 14.—(AP)—James Smith, 27, a former gangster who police said had tried to "go straight," was shot to death near the Delaware river front today by an unidentified assailant.

The slayer, who apparently was lying in wait, shot him from behind. One bullet pierced his brain and another shattered his spine.

Police records showed Smith had been arrested several times prior to 1925 as a bandit suspect, but never convicted. Since that time, the authorities said he had been "out of the racket" and had been working as a stevedore.

OVER 50 ACCIDENTS REPORTED ON ICY ROADS NEAR WILLIMANTIC

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 14—A brief storm of light, wet snow that fell early this afternoon quickly froze over, leaving the highways covered with a treacherous ice and piling up a great loss in automobile property damage and a number of personal injuries in this section of the state. The district between Stafford and Willimantic seemed to be particularly hard hit and over 50 accidents were brought to the attention of the state police at the Stafford Springs barracks.

The entire force, headed by Lieut. Russell I. Harmon, was called into duty investigating the innumerable accidents. Several arrests were made and at least two people received treatment in hospitals. The hills on the Stafford-Willimantic road, Chestnut hill on the Somers-West Stafford road, Rockwell hill, on the Bulkley highway in Stafford and Talcottville bridge on the Stafford-Hartford road in Vernon were the scenes of most of these accidents, as many as ten cars being lined up against the state fence at a time with many more waiting to get through the traffic jam.

Roadster Burns

Shortly before 2 o'clock, a roadster owned by the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting Co. and driven by Daniel O'Brien of South Coventry skidded into a coupe driven by Arthur Ayer of 23 Tanner street, Manchester, at Day's corner near the Coventry station. As a result of the collision, a coil in the roadster was shortaged and the entire machine was badly burned. The Ayer car suffered considerable damage and Ayer was arrested for failure to notify the vehicle department of a change in residence address, this violation being revealed in the investigation made by State Policemen Charles F. Hill and Victor J. Clarke. Thomas Flaherty, who was in the O'Brien car, received treatment at St. Joseph's hospital for a cut on the head.

Norwich Car Overturns

At 2 o'clock a sedan driven by Theodore Kruss, of 12 Regina street, Norwich, skidded on a curve in Merrow and ran into an embankment where the machine turned over and was almost completely ruined. Kruss, his wife and two children were unhurt.

At Mansfield Depot, near the state training school the coach driven by Earl Paulson of West Willington skidded about 3:30 o'clock, struck an embankment and suffered the loss of a rear wheel. A sedan driven by Harry Burday, got out of control and ran into the damaged coach, adding a little more damage. The accidents at Merrow and Mansfield Depot were also investigated by Officers Hill and Clarke.

Arrested for Reckless Driving

An arrest on a charge of reckless driving was made in a skidding accident about 2 o'clock on the Stafford-Willimantic road a short distance from Stafford Springs in the town of Ellington in which a coach tore down about 25 feet of state fence and came to a stop with the front end heading off the embankment for the river. George B. Tourtellotte of 33 Kenyon street, Springfield, Mass., the driver, was arrested by State Policeman Thomas Abbotts. Miss Mary Levine, also of Springfield, sustained a cut on the head.

While traveling from here to Milford, where she is a school teacher, Miss M. Tharsilla Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Sullivan of Ash avenue, this city, was forced off the road at Katzman's corner on the Columbia road and the coach she was driving crashed into the state fence. Miss Sullivan was able to continue the journey, however. This accident happened about 3 o'clock.

Two Cut In Crash

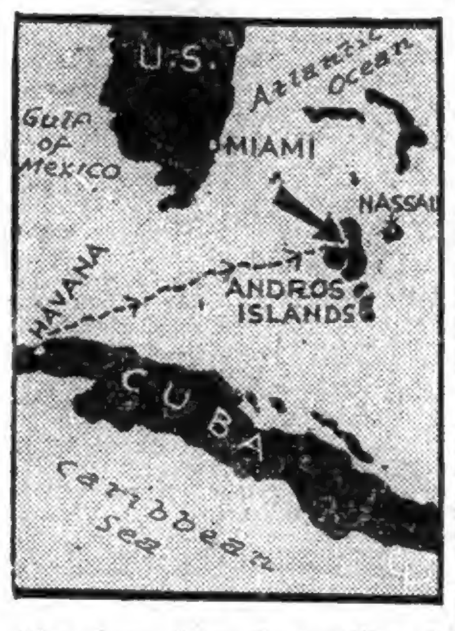
A new sedan driven by Mrs. Mary E. Conway of Melrose, Mass., was completely wrecked after skidding and turning over twice about 2:45 o'clock near Crystal lake on the Stafford-Somers road. Mrs. Conway sustained a cut and a severe shaking-up and her husband, John Conway, was given treatment for a deep cut on the thigh which required nine stitches to close. James H. Hall, another passenger, suffered contusions. No arrests were made by the investigating officer, State Policeman Henry W. Zehrer.

Three Cars Collide

A three-car accident was investigated by Officer Zehrer on West Main street in Stafford about 3:30 o'clock. A sedan operated by Waldemar Ekstrand of Stafford Springs skidded, turned around twice and struck a sedan driven by Vito Dalla Cortes of Rockville, smashing the front end of this machine and skidding again into a new roadster driven by Joseph N. Sura, of New Britain. The Ekstrand car, a new machine, was badly damaged, as were the other cars involved.

One of the most severe accidents reported this afternoon took place in West Stafford about 4 o'clock and involved two trucks and a touring car. A delivery truck operated by Edward A. Foley of 193 Spruce street, Lawrence, Mass., and owned by a Lawrence newspaper, came down a grade on the Crystal lake highway and when the driver applied his brakes, skidded into the front end of a light truck driven by Edward Champagne, of Stafford and owned by Elias Serror of 167 Main street, Stafford. The latter truck, which was coming in the opposite direction, was forced off the road, clearing the path for the skidding Mass. machine, which struck a LaSalle touring car, also coming in the opposite direction and driven by Donald H. Lawson of 700 Main street, Hartford. All three machines were quite badly Mass., who had been asleep in the rear damaged. Charles Norton of Lawrence, of the Foley truck was badly shaken up and was taken to the Johnson Memorial hospital, where he will return Monday for an X-ray to determine internal injuries. Foley was arrested by Officer James A. Buckley on a charge of reckless driving. Officer Buckley having been an eye witness to the accident.

Island Saves Flyer



Map above shows the location of Andros islands, in the Bahamas, on the larger of which Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, Australian flyer, landed safely after she had been forced 150 miles off her course during a storm on her flight from Havana to Miami. No word having been received from the aviatrix for several days, due to the remoteness of the island, hopes for her safety had been abandoned.

TWO RUNAWAY BOYS FROM R. I. ARRESTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 14—Two boys, Louis Petrus, of Narragansett Pier, and Louis Marchetti of Cranston, R. I., who escaped from the Rhode Island School for Boys a week ago Monday were taken into custody near Stafford Springs Saturday by State Policeman Kenneth Stevens. The boys were later returned to the school in charge of an officer of the institution.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

It is more than sublime entertainment, D. W. Griffith's production, Abraham Lincoln, now playing at the Palace theatre where it has thrilled hundreds and will play through Tuesday. It is more than the mere marshalling of interesting facts into a patternwork of sympathetic romance and vivid drama; it is the life of Lincoln, not merely the apotheosized saint of the copy books, nor yet the Lincoln of the lusty jokes and tragic moods, but the man of destiny, the mystic and the prophet.

Sheer lyrical poetry creeps into those rich passages of romance which show Lincoln and the unfortunate Ann Rutledge tasting the first fruits of their soon-to-be-ended love. If it is true that there is a growing literature of the screen, this scene will easily find its place of tragic beauty.

The picture opens simply with a symbolic passage showing the evils of the traffic in Negroes and then takes up the Lincoln saga at the birth. This scene is reproduced with remarkable fidelity and feeling. Lincoln is next seen during the time of his clerkship in a country store and from there on moves rapidly to his courtship of Ann Rutledge until she dies; to his jilting of Mary Todd and their subsequent marriage with its many amusing domestic bickerings.

The death of Lincoln by the hands of an assassin must rank as one of the greatest scenes of a tragic nature ever filmed. Here Griffith toys with suspense and makes the spectator a living part of that real audience which heard John Booth's cruel shot at Ford's theatre.

The role of Lincoln is played by the master of the talking screen, Walter Huston, and surrounded by the greatest cast ever assembled, a bill of peppy shorts make this ideal entertainment.

Broadway Theatre

Just imagine making loving, romance, fifty years hence. Just how it is done is seen and heard in "Just Imagine," the DeSylva, Brown and Henderson Fox Movietone comedy with music now current at the Broadway theatre.

The authors of "Sunny Side Up" have looked far into the future in this production and projected on the screen their ideas of the world and romance in 1980. Famous for their great popular song hits and stage successes, DeSylva, Brown and Henderson have provided a generous number for "Just Imagine," and the tuneful score is one of the many reasons why capacity crowds are flocking to see this picture. NEW COLONIAL PLAN BOASTS CONVENIENCE

This colonial type house is attractive in appearance, roomy and arranged for comfort and convenience.

To the left of the entrance hall is a large living room with a fireplace centered on the side opposite the entrance. The rear porch, built into the house as it is, has an attractive view of the garden. In the summer it is an ideal spot, while in winter it is well sheltered. It can readily be glassed in for a sun porch or afternoon tea room during the colder part of the year.

A bedroom in the left wing with bath is suited for use as a guest room.

On the second floor is a large master's bedroom with dressing room and private bath. Two more bedrooms and a sunlighted hallway complete the floor layout.

The house should face east making the morning sunlight available for breakfasting in the kitchen alcove and also in the dining room. This faces the porch and end of the living room to the west to receive sunlight up to the end of the day.

The exterior is of whitewashed brick. The woodwork and trim are painted white and the blinds are dark blue green. The roof may be either slate or shingle.

A lot 100 by 150 is most suitable for this house. However, it may be placed with the narrow end to the street on a lot 60 or 75 by 125. The cost probably would range from $9,000 to $11,000 in most sections.

BUILT-IN BOOKCASES ARE AN ATTRACTIVE FEATURE

It has been said that except for living man there is nothing more wonderful than a book. Yet, despite one's fondness for books they must be accessible to be inviting and thoroughly enjoyed. Bookshelves supply the desired accessibility and take on the decorative qualities of a bright-hued hanging or a rich tapestry.

By the simple expedient of cutting two arched recesses in one wall the corner illustrated has been transformed from a mere joining of two plain walls into a delightful spot in which books form the principal decorative note.

In these unusually effective shelves, books fill the two lower compartments while the upper rounded ones can be used for the display of knickknacks such as pottery, figures, ship's models or green vines. An arched doorway in the adjoining wall matches the architectural note of the bookshelves.

The feeling of stability and permanence which built-in equipment gives a room makes book nooks a particularly helpful arrangement in the room which does not have a fireplace. Still, built-in bookcases are a most attractive supplement to the hearthside.

Children's books might occupy one of the cases or, at least, one shelf. This will give younger members the feeling that they are truly an integral part of the family and will encourage group reading.

Books reveal the tastes and interests of a family and add personality and a home-like quality to rooms in which they are stored. Then, too, the tones and lines of books in shelves give an effect very similar to that of an old tapestry. These "book tapestries" quickly make rooms seem richer, brighter and more interesting.

Now that books are no longer considered as belonging in the living room or library alone bookshelves of the type sketched can be built into hallway or bedrooms and even into the walls of the basement recreation room.

In the remodeling of a home few features can aid so much at so little expense as shelves for books. Although the built-in type is more compact, taking up none of the actual floor space, shelves built against the walls will serve their purpose very efficiently.

LOW TEMPERATURE BAD FOR PAINTING

The question often arises in the mind of the home owner as to when it is too cold weather to paint. This is a difficult question to answer definitely though it is one that nearly every amateur painter asks of himself or some one else.

It would be absurd for anyone to try to set a fixed date before which it is possible to paint with safety and after which it is impractical. The nearest approach to the solution of the problem is to state the weather conditions that are unfavorable to successful painting.

When the temperature drops to forty or thirty-five degrees exterior painting cannot be done with safety. This is not through any fault of the paint, but because the moisture that is usually present in the atmosphere condenses on the freshly painted surface. Even though the job does dry eventually the durability and life of the paint are frequently impaired. This applies whether the drop in temperature occurred during painting or before the paint was dry.

If it is absolutely necessary to do outside painting at doubtful temperatures be sure that the painting is done while the sun is warm. If such precaution is taken the paint will frequently be dry to touch before the moisture has had a chance to accumulate. This is also the safest practice in sections of the country exposed to early and late frosts. The use of boiled oil is often beneficial as an aid to quick surface drying.

CLOSET ACCESSORIES SHOW MODERN TREND

Now that accessories manufacturers have discovered that closets can be organized just as effectively and efficiently as offices and stores, great progress is being made in devising closet accessories which make it much easier to give proper care to the hanging of clothing and the storage of such items as shoes, raincoats, dressing gowns, kimonos and the like. Moreover, they also are making it possible to keep an unbelievably large number of articles in a relatively small closet and yet make it quite a simple matter to get at them.

Overhead rods with hangers designed to go with them were the first to appear. Now they have rods equipped with attachments making it possible to unfasten one end and swing the whole thing out into a room, eliminating the necessity for pushing one's way into a closet when in search of something. Even closet cupboards are being devised now which swings on hinges, not only making it possible to use both sides, but making each of these sides more readily available than before.

Due to the relatively low cost of these closet accessories there seems to be no reasonable excuse why any normal home should be without them. They make for greater convenience, less confusion and maximum use of space, while at the same time they reduce fire hazards to a minimum. Most closets now have lights installed, both for convenience and safety, but now that one can swing fixtures and even closet cabinets out into the room even these are not so essential as once they were.

KITCHEN COMFORT IS NO LONGER DREAM

The colorful kitchen has long since ceased to be a novelty. So quickly did this room respond to the encouragement it received to blossom forth, that it is a rare kitchen that still holds forth in the drab bleakness once so prevalent.

Actual modernization, however, is another story. It was easy enough to acquire a few cans of paint, rather fun in fact, and daub around enough to change the kitchen's expression. But, kitchen comfort, which is even more important than kitchen aesthetics, comes from the equipment; and nowadays kitchen equipment offers the last word in service.

The gas or electric range, for example, in its newer guise, is the acme of efficiency. Its features of comfort are rivalled only by its labor-saving ones, a happy combination of virtues with a similar purpose.

The oven insulation of the more modern ranges makes all the difference between a comfortably cool kitchen and one that is disagreeably hot, even in winter. It is a feature of consideration for the cook as well as for the oven's contents, since a well insulated oven bakes and roasts better with the even heat made possible.

The temperature control is another addition to the modern oven which makes for unequalled freedom from oven watching. It gives hours of leisure that otherwise could not be easily be managed. This oven heat control operates at a constant given temperature. There is no work attached to it. It merely needs to be set at a required temperature. For instance, if it is desired to bake a cake at 375 degrees the temperature of the oven, when regulated, will remain at 375 degrees as long as the gas is turned on.

The temperature control is usually an attachment on the oven in the form of a wheel. Indicated on the control are a number of measured oven heats for every kind of oven cooking. Once the food is placed in the oven and the regulator is set there is no need for waiting around the kitchen to watch the progress of the food. The heat will remain steady at the appointed heat until it is shut off at the proper time.

RIGHT KIND OF VARNISH SHOULD BE CHOSEN

So many places about the house need varnish protection, that it is wise for the homemaker to be well posted on how these jobs should be done. Floors, woodwork and furniture all call for the varnish brush and unless the right type of varnish is used in each case and the right method of brushing is followed, the surface will not appear well nor will the wood last as long as it should.

A varnish that is intended for the furniture will not be serviceable on the floor where a tough and elastic product is needed for protection against foot traffic. And the reverse is true, since floor varnish is unsuitable for articles not subjected to hard usage.

You must also consider, before selecting the product, whether you want a shiny or a dull finish, as there are both flat and glossy varnishes. If you prefer, you can get a high polish by rubbing. This requires the hand of an expert, as it takes a deal of practice to get the desired effect without cutting through the varnish. The varnish used for the rubbed finish should be hard and rather brittle, and the surface of the wood hard and dry. In any case both the varnish and the room must be warm. The most favorable temperature is about 70 degrees.

The brush should be full but not dripping and the varnish applied quickly on a small area and first brushed crosswise of the grain of the wood. Then, to even it out, it must be brushed with the grain. Excess varnish should be removed with a fairly dry brush.

The careful worker will watch out for runs, sags or wrinkles as the varnishing proceeds, sothat these imperfections can be corrected before hardening. The best way to run them down after they have hardened is to use a wet cloth which has been wiped over a piece or soap and then dipped in a little dry pumice. This will not spoil the smooth surface of the varnish film, as the soap makes a paste of the gritty pumice.

SOME HOUSES SHOULD HAVE ORNATE PAPER

In decorating the Georgian house with the brick walls and arched windows one must take care to choose quite ornate wallpaper. The inside of the house needs design for contrast and there is no room for quaintness here.

In the foyer one might well decide upon a Japanese paper with a metallic gold overlay and glowing orange lights in it.

The large living room needs a rough textured paper with climbing vines and brought plumaged birds. Some of the feathers should be orange to repeat the hall colors. This must be in a good quality though so that the walls will be rich toned rather than garish.

The good sized dining room may have a scenic in ivory tones to harmonize with the more formal furnishings.

One bedroom upstairs in this imaginary house, opens off the orange and gold hall, so in its we choose a paper with a deep cream ground, and a gray design in green and black, yellow and orange. It sounds a bit strong, but it isn't really, for it is well drawn an dthe colors used carefully. In here the woodwork is deep cream. In face it would be interesting to plant all the bedroom wood to match the paper used, except the master bedroom. Here an orchid paper with rather bold colors—rose, gray, green and French blue—requires woodwork of soft gray. For the nursery a blue and rose paper, very delicate and a soft rich texture will give the colors depth and purity. The guest room may have a flesh pink ground with deeper pink flowers and chartreuse green.

PLENTY OF WARMTH ESSENTIAL IN HOME

It is now generally recognized that relaxation and rest are elementary requirements of the human body. Lack of these opens the door to the attack of disease germs, of which many are always present in the human system ready to pounce upon weakening tissues.

When the human body is fresh and well-fed, cold weather seems only to invigorate. But continued exposure to low temperatures robs the body of its necessary relaxation and rest and quickly lowers resistance to disease. It is for this reason that plenty of even warmth and freedom from cold drafts is so essential in the home, because it is there one should expect comfort and relaxation after the day's work is done.

It is a significant fact that the span of human life has increased as heating systems have improved. In the last two centuries heating and ventilating systems have greatly improved, and we find that in this time the average lifetime has increased twenty years. The extent to which improved heating systems have been responsible for the increase in human life spans is difficult to estimate, but it is safe to say they have been one of the most important factors.

HOME MODERNIZED BY MOVABLE LAMPS

Do you remember, not so long since, how folks glorified in the large center chandelier, with its glare of powerful light? But it was short-lived. Who could enjoy quiet conversation or get relaxation under its penetrating glare?

Let there be plenty of light, but let it be so planned and shaded that it does not disrupt the inviting atmosphere and color harmony so carefully planned and labored for.

A living room where the household can read, chat or do needlework needs only spots of light, intelligently arranged. To this end movable lamps have proved of great assistance. They should be of a height and size which will not interfere in the daytime with the general decorative arrangement and design.

NOISY WATER-HAMMER CAN BE AVOIDED

A good contractor knows how to install a system that will be free from the noisy water-hammer. He will so install his pipes that there will be perfect circulation of hot water. Furthermore, a good master plumber will insulate the hot water pipes in the walls and under the floors, thus saving approximately 25 per cent in fuel in a circulating system.

Three hours have been cut off the Berlin-London air mail route by installation of guide lights through Belgium, thus doing away with a stop at Cologne to await daylight. Letters mailed in Berlin at 8 p. m. are delivered in London next morning.

TRIAL OF AUTO DAMAGE SUIT TO BE RESUMED IN SUPERIOR COURT TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 14.—The last of the Westerly adjournment of the November term of Washington county superior court will continue this week at the Union street superior house with Associate Justice Jeremiah E. O'Connell, of Providence, on the bench this Monday morning. A jury, of which George W. Hoxie, of Charlestown, R. I., is foreman, will continue their hearing of the automobile damage case of four plaintiffs, Hannah Sullivan, Greta Smith and Cecelia Smith, of Providence, and James McMillan, of New York, vs. Edwin H. Tompkins, of New York city, and all parties having been summer residents the past season at Narragansett, R. I.

A new venire of jurymen will also be present at court, having been summoned to report at 10:45 a. m., Monday, for jury duty this week, and Jury Commissioner Arthur P. Sherman, of Portsmouth, R. I., will also be present to listen to their qualifications.

With the disposal of the automobile damage case involving the summer residents of Narragansett and their return to the court room from their jury-room consideration of the case, the jurymen will be paid off by Deputy Court Clerk Mrs. Edna H. Treat and they will then be discharged from further jury service this term.

The action at law, Wilfred A. Maine vs. Murry G. Penn, with Attorney Roche for the plaintiff and Attorney Baker for the respondent, will be the next case on the Westerly trial calendar for jury consideration. This case was first set down for trial last Friday and then set down for this Monday beginning. It is expected this case will take several days.

On Wednesday for jury hearing has been set down the case of John S. Fenner vs. Henry H. Crandall, administrator. When interrogated by the Westerly attorneys as to the probable length of this Westerly court sitting, Justice O'Connell declared that he would now remain here until just before the Christmas recess.

Should all cases ready for jury hearing be disposed of, Judge O'Connell has declared his intention to remain in Westerly to take up equity case hearings to the court when the services of jurymen would not be needed. Several Westerly lawyers at the first calling of the Westerly trial calendar stated that it seemed almost impossible to get their equity cases before the court, as by the time the criminal matters and the jury cases on civil matter were out of the way it was time for court to adjourn. "I appreciate the situation," said Judge O'Connell, and continued, "you Westerly lawyers do something about it. I am ready to help you out, if I can."

NEW HAVEN MAN APPEALS CASE TO SUPERIOR COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 14.—In a late Friday third district court special session before Judge Oliver H. Williams, Edward A. Smith, of New Haven, apprehended by a trooper of the Hope Valley barracks of the state police for motor vehicle law violation on the Nooseneck Hill road, was found guilty of operating his car at a rate of speed greater than reasonable and proper. He was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $50 and costs. He gave notice of appeal and the case was continued to the February term of superior court for Washington county which convenes at Kingston, R. I., on Feb. 16.

Ellsworth D. Goldsmith, former Westerly resident, and now residing in Alhambra, suburb of Los Angeles, Cal., writes Westerly friends of the continued cold weather being experienced in that warm climate.

August VanLoeven, of Providence, former chauffeur and engineer at the Westerly hospital, was a Westerly visitor on Saturday to say good bye to friends before proceeding to West Palm Beach, Fla., where he has accepted a position as engineer at a Florida hotel.

Miss Margaret W. Grant returned on Sunday afternoon to Putnam to resume her duties as ticket clerk at the station of the New Haven railroad, after being the week-end guest of her sisters, the Misses Elizabeth M. Grant and Sarah J. Grant, at their home in Westerly.

Saturday night at about 7:15 o'clock several blasts were sounded on the fire whistle on the central fire station headquarters building on Union street. The short blasts were due to repairs being made to a broken wire on a circuit discovered when the 7 p. m. test blasts were made.

With favorable weather the past week employes of the Westerly highway department have practically completed the building of a new stretch of highway between Granite street and Park avenue, leading to the new Junior high school building, including the building of sidewalks. The completed stretch with the exception of oiling extends from Granite street to the school entrance and the strip from the school remains to be finished to Park avenue.

"Timkin, No. 1111," locomotive on trial on the Shore line of the New Haven railroad, has been an almost daily passer at the Westerly station, one day being east-bound and the following day west-bound. On one west-bound trip over 150 freight cars were hauled, some being empties.

Westerly Station Agent James J. Flaherty, of the New Haven railroad wife, daughter and son, left Westerly Sunday morning for Providence and Pawtucket, R. I., for a visit with relatives and friends at their former home.

Fayette F. Freeman left Westerly on Sunday morning for Boston and a visit over Christmas and to join his wife on a visit with relatives in Gardiner, Maine.

John Smith and sister, Miss Jeannie N. Smith, were Westerly Sunday motor visitors in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., where their sister, Miss Jessie L. Smith, is passing a month's vacation for the benefit of her health.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Milner have returned to their East avenue home from a visit in Wauregan with Mr. and Mrs. James Arthur Atwood, Watch Hill summer visitors, and occupants of different cottages in previous seasons.

George E. Leonard, of the drafting room of the C. B. Cottrell & Sons Co., on the second week of his annual vacation, is the guest this week of relatives and friens in Newport, R. I.

James Duffy, of Hartford, former resident of Pawcatuck, arrived in Westerly Sunday morning from New London to visit with relatives.

Westerly Police Patrolman Leroy H. Norman is enjoying the second week of his annual vacation.

BASEMENT BOILER USEFUL

The ingenious home owner who plans the adornment of his basement with the same care he devotes to other parts of the household may now obtain a specially designed boiler in any color to harmonize with the color scheme he has selected. This boiler, built for use in connection with automatic heat, combines new features of construction with the decorative effect and provides for a rapid transfer of heat from the flame to the boiler with a minimum of fuel consumption.

AUTUMN PLANTING

There is no hard and fast rule for autumn planting, as each part of our country affords different opportunities. Some portions enjoy a long open fall in which much can be accomplished; others can plant through most of the winter months; while those in the arid and northern regions are able to do little after the middle of October.

A cleaned garden in the autumn will offer an easier garden in which to perform the multitudinous tasks that confront us in the early spring.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Bridgeport Hardware Mfg. Corp. Bridgeport.

The business was started by Willis F. Hobbs and one associate in 1895, for the manufacture of shears and scissors. The initial capital of $12,000 was dissipated durling the first few years and very little progress was made until after the seventh year when Mr. Hobbs bought out his partner and re-organized the business for the manufacture of a variety of mechanics tools.

With the re-organization, additional capital was secured and Harry B. Curtis became associated with the company as treasurer. For the first few years after the re-organization, business came slowly but gradually improved until today the company does an excellent business. The capitalization is $800,000, of which $650,000 is outstanding.

The company now manufactures an extensive line of mechanics tools including nail pullers, box opening tools, hammers, hatchets, chisels, non-skid screw drivers, smooth point screw drivers, wrenches, pliers, and their own specially designed Boy Scout ax approved by the Boy Scout association.

Although feeling the effects of the 1929-30 depression with other industries, the company's business is now gradually improving. They now fully expect a satisfactory volume of business by 1931.

The present officers are: Willis F. Hobbs, president, Harry B. Curtis treasurer; John F. Windsor, secretary.

Norwich, Dec. 13, 1930.

THE CHELSEA SAVINGS BANK VS. Angelo Chioda, et als. Superior Court, New London County, Dec. 12, 1930.
Upon the complaint of the said The Chelsea Savings Bank, claiming, for the reasons therein set forth, a foreclosure and possession of said mortgaged premises, now pending before this Court, having been returned thereto on the first Tuesday of December, 1930.
It appearing to and being found by this Court that Angelo Chioda, formerly of Norwich, Connecticut, one of the defendants in said action, is gone to parts unknown and that notice of the pendency of the complaint was given as required by order of notice heretofore issued, and now the plaintiff asks for a further order of notice in the premises.
Therefore Ordered, that notice of the pendency of said complaint be given by publishing this order in The Norwich Bulletin, a newspaper printed in Norwich, Connecticut, once a week for two successive weeks, commencing on or before the 12th day of January, 1931.
By Order of the Court,
WILLIAM H. SHIELDS, Jr.
Asst. Clerk of the Superior Court for New London County.

CHILDREN TO LIVEN HOOVER YULETIDE; TREE OF THEIR OWN

With their baby sister Joan, Herbert Hoover III (left) and Peggy Ann Hoover will have a Christmas tree of their own in the White House. Here Mrs. Herbert Hoover, their grandmother, is welcoming them to Washington.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14—(AP)—It will be a children's Christmas at the white house this year.

The three little grandchildren of President and Mrs. Hoover will celebrate the holidays in the executive mansion—and they are to have a Christmas tree all their own.

Special quarters have been arranged on the third floor for Peggy Ann, Herbert III and Joan, children of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Jr., and each child has a separate room.

Peggy Ann is four years old, Herbert III is three, and Baby Joan is eight months old.

Their stockings will be hung Christmas eve in a big sunny nursery overlooking the white house rose gardens and fountains.

The children's Christmas tree will be in the nursery quarters—and their grandfather probably will play Santa Claus for them Christmas morning.

The children's tree will be the center of a celebration to precede distribution of gifts from the general family tree in the east room or in the president's living quarters.

This is the first Christmas since the Hoovers entered the white house that their grandchildren have been with them—and the first Christmas since the Roosevelt administration that children have enlivened the presidential family celebration.

The children are to live with their grandparents while their father is recovering from an illness at Asheville, N. C.

SMALL FURNITURE OF UNIQUE DESIGN FAVORED

NEW YORK, Dec. 14—(AP)—The spirit of '76 has soaked through some of the small pieces of furniture especially in evidence for Christmas gifts.

The drum motif, emblem of colonial troopers who immortalized '76, is a favorite with the house decorators this season.

Drum tables, ostensibly made of the skeleton of the old drum of colonial type, are a novelty in gift furniture departments.

So are lamp shades of parchment which resemble drums. The lamps themselves are eight-inch high China drummer boys in the uniform of George Washington's campaign days.

Christmas gift furniture includes various forms of period cases for radio instruments.

You may have your radio tucked in the middle drawer of a Governor Winthrop writing desk if you wish, or concealed in the top of a drop leaf table.

There are drum tables which hold both radio and phonograph. Nobody would know that they weren't ordinary drum tables with drawers full of miscellaneous objects.

The radio furniture designers have borrowed early American highboys, occasional tables, tambour desks and French consoles and commodes also as hiding places for wireless apparatus.

Drawers which let down instead of pull out conceal the dials completely.

Lace Trimming

PALM BEACH, Dec. 14—(AP)—Never were hats more flattering than those noted in early displays of straw hats here. Baku continues in favor while the introduction of lace trimming adds feminine allure.

Importance also is attached to the adornment of the crown, many hats having a band of lace or ribbon midway up the crown.

For evening wear there is a tiny black lace cap, with a frill at the back. Berets in loosely woven fabrics for sports wear.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Forced Learning.

The intelligent young mother of today is much impressed with the need of teaching the toddler to help himself.

In consequence she frequently expects far too much and forces him laboriously to struggle with buttons, water-taps and shoe strings long before he is interested in handling these things.

Whenever a child is forced to do something in which he is not interested and which requires of him a great deal of conscious effort he is likely to acquire distaste for the task. Six months or a year later he would do the same things eagerly and competently at the first trial.

The distaste which a child thus acquires later on prevents successful accomplishment. The little child who is forced to go through the motions of self help before he is interested in them may really be slower in learning to wait upon himself than the child whose mother gives no particular thought to the matter.

The same principle holds good for forcing children to learn reading at an early age. Some children learn to read without help at the age of four or five.

Others are not psychologically ready for the task even when it is already included in the school curriculum. In many schools the time when the child is taught to read is set not by his age but by his own evidenced interest in learning to do so.

All forced learning is uphill work. The time to teach a child anything is when he himself is eager to learn.

PARIS FAVORS MODERN STYLES SHUNS BYGONES

PARIS, Dec. 14—(AP)—Order books at the leading style houses tell a tale of smartly dressed women's disdain of picturesque or period clothes.

"We want to be our modern selves" is the gist of the judgment of the most sought-after clients of the best dressmakers.

Those few, capable of making or unmaking styles, are consistently refusing to have anything to do with period clothes for street wear.

There may be a dash of Directoire in coats and a pinch of Empire in afternoon dresses, but if the percentage of period in a model is enough to earn for it such adjectives as "quaint" or "old-fashioned" the cream of the customers will have nothing to do with it.

For evening dresses women are a little less strong-minded, but the tendency is definitely away from models too obviously identified with an earlier period than 1930.

ZIG-ZAG EDGES SMART FOR DAYTIME FROCKS

PARIS, Dec. 14—(AP)—Daytime and sport frocks are going zig-zag.

Many of the newest models have cuffs, necklines, blouse and coat hems finished with a saw-tooth edging, which is very smart on informal frocks.

One model, designed of dark green and white figured wool crape, has a zig-zag collar line, back of which a white facing, half an inch wide, is laid for contrast.

WOMEN PLAN RELIEF FOR INDIAN TRIBES

DELAND, Fla., Dec. 14—(AP)—Aid for the American Indian is the goal of a new women's organization.

Marion Campbell of Cleveland, Ohio, is the founder and head of the new group, the Woman's National League for Justice to the American Indians.

The organization, first of its kind, Miss Campbell says, is now relieving sufferers of the seminoles of Florida. Already, she says, it has the promise of a 1,200 acre reserve on high and dry land from Barron G. Collier of New York, who owns a whole county in Florida.

MRS. HOOVER TO GIVE FOOD BASKETS TO POOR

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14—(AP)—Several capital poor families this year will set their Christmas dinner tables with food distributed by Mrs. Herbert Hoover.

The president's wife will hand out the first baskets of food at the Salvation Army hall the day before Christmas. Nearly 600 baskets, each containing enough for five persons, will be given away by the Salvation Army.

Mrs. Hoover will be accompanied by several white house aides in uniform. A large Christ-aides in uniform.

HOLIDAY TEAS AND BALLS TO HONOR CAPITAL DEBS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14—(AP)—Social gaiety of the capital younger set will reach its climax during the holidays.

Tea dances and balls honoring debutantes crowd the calendar. Christmas night the annual midshipmen's and cadets' ball will be attended by debutantes. Uniforms from Annapolis and West Point will mingle with resplendent gowns.

Vested choirs singing in the lobbies of the leading capital hotels on Christmas eve will offer contrast to the gay music and garb of the dancers.

Send Out 1,000,000 Leaflets

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 — (AP) — More than a million leaflets dealing with various phases of child training and education are being distributed by the national congress of parents and teachers. Thirty-five subjects are discussed.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

A delicious luncheon dish consists of scrambled eggs with a border of warm asparagus.

Dry silver polish will brighten up the brass bed.

Sprinkle fine salt evenly on the sill underneath the sash so the window will not freeze shut.

To keep velour hats in good condition rub them with a piece of velvet the way of the nap.

To distinguish good mushrooms from bad, sprinkle a little salt on the gills. If this turns the gills black they are fit for food; if yellow, they are poisonous.

Laundry starch pasted on the wrong side of a carpet where edges curl will put a stop to this. Turn the curled edges back while wet with starch and keep smooth until dry.

When painting the ceiling, purchase a large, hollow, rubber ball, such as children play with, cut it in half and slip one half over the brush handle to catch the paint drippings.

No matter how much gas you burn, you can not raise the temperature of water above 212 degrees Fahrenheit, or boiling point. Therefore, when the boiling-point is reached, reduce the flame. This effects a saving.

To keep stored silver bright, before putting it away it should be carefully washed, polished and placed in flannel bags. Colored flannel is best, as the chemicals used to bleach the white flannel are liable to tarnish the silver.

When making molasses cookies try mixing the dough the last thing at night, ready to roll out, and putting it in the ice chest until ready to bake in the morning. The dough will be so cold that little flour will be required. It can be rolled easily, and cookies will not stick.

When frying doughnuts set a colander on large strainer into another pan and put the doughnuts in this to drain and cool. Alway let them get cool, but not cold, before putting them away and keep them in a tightly covered stone jar.

FROSTING

If frosting thickens before it cools, it will harden on the cake. If it hardens and is still warm, add two teaspoons boiling water and beat until cold. If frosting fails to thicken and is cold, add one-fourth cup sifted powdered sugar and heat until the sugar has thoroughly blended.

BLUE IN THE KITCHEN

A new shade of very bright blue is seen in kitchen earthenware. Sets of mixing bowls, cereal boxes, pitchers, covered butter dishes are just a few of the good-looking and practical utensils to be found in this gay color.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Use a camphor stick on your lips when chapped. Cold cream will soften the skin and render the lips less susceptible to the trouble.

Blackheads may be cured by bathing the face with warm water and a bland soap using a complexion brush and scrubbing thoroughly the affected parts. Rinse in warm water—then in cold water.

Sleeping out of doors is more restful than sleeping indoors. The head should not be inclined on a pillow but should lie flat. A pillow is not necessary, and many find it tends to round shoulders.

If a setting lotion is not available use luke-warm water in which a pinch of sugar has been dissolved, a small lump to a quarter pint of water.

Always set the waves in exactly the same position each time the hair is waved.

LUXURIOUS AND LOVELY

The beautiful deep ecru filet lace made in Spain is much in vogue at present for tea, luncheon and even dinner cloths for most formal occasions.

LIGHT UPPER

A black velour suit has the loveliest dress, made of a skirt of the velour, with the front panel extending up almost to yoke line and buttoning onto a green, off-white brocaded satin blouse.

COLOR SCHEMES

An important, general rule, which should be followed in planning the color scheme for any room is as follows: use warm tones in rooms with north or east exposure, and cool shades in those which face south or west. The warm colors are red, yellow and their variations; and cool colors are blues, greens and gray. This rule guides the homemaker in selecting the dominant colors, but small contrasting accents in shades of the opposite type may be introduced.

A BIT OF CANDY

The next time you start out on a shopping tour put a few pieces of candy in your handbag. Sugar is one of the world's greatest energy foods, and it's simply marvelous how a couple of pieces of candy in the midst of a long afternoon in the shops will drive away that exhausted feeling, giving you plenty of energy to carry on.

PEARL BRACELETS

Whether you want a long strand of pearls or a short one, a new necklace shown for fall obligingly fills either order. It is ensembled with a bracelet to match which may be clasped to the necklace itself to lengthen it. Both pieces are of woven pearls decorated with rhinestone motifs. The bracelet finished with clip ends is easily attached to the ends of the necklace, changing the 18-inch strand to one of 30 inches in length.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Bouclette blouses are frequently worn with woolen suits.

Tiered skirts are featured not only for lace but other gowns.

Black with green is one of the season's favored color schemes.

Knitted costumes are often horizontally striped and are greatly given to ribbing.

Woolen stockings so chic-ly lace in some instances and combine both beauty and warmth in their fancy weaves.

Persian lamb is both popular and important this winter, being extensively used as a suit and coat trimming and for accessories.

LINEN IS FAD

The fad for large handkerchiefs for afternoon and evening continues, but instead of the sheer type of plain or printed chiffon a new note is the big kerchief of very fine linen or batiste bordered widely with lace. The chiffon handkerchief, however, is still in the running and has not been displaced.

WITH A FEATHER

A felt hat for the junior miss is not complete this season without a quill or small flat feather placed upon the side.

CREPE DE CHINE

After so many seasons of flat and canton crepes, crepe de chine is the new selection for lighter weight silk frocks and ensembles. Perfection of texture has been achieved in this practical silk, it now being soft, light and so supple it literally melts in the hand. Hence it shirrs, presses into soft, fine pleats, and is amendable to the most subtle handling of flares.

Because the fine yarns are now so closely woven as to eliminate the former attributes of slipping, crepe de chine is said to be stronger. It is much used by the couturiers in plain and in pirinted patterns.

EVENING SLIPPERS

While the colored evening slipper retains its prominence, matching the handkerchief, a new revival is the slipper of silver kid. Lanvin made much of silver in her latest collection and echoes of this are seen in and about Paris. Silver slippers are the obvious selection with gowns of many types and colors.

VELVET PAJAMAS

A unique idea is carried out in velvet lounging pajamas for the trousers are of Roman striped chiffon velvet with bright colors on a beige ground while the jacket is plain with a border of the stripes.

LAUNDRY HINTS

To restore black silk, sponge it with clear, strong, cold tea. Iron while the silk is still damp.

Vinegar used in water in which bright pinks and green cotton materials are rinsed makes materials of these colors brighter.

To remove stain left by chocolate ice cream, sprinkle the spot with borax, and soak the cloth in cold water, then in boiling water.

To remove a scorched spot from white linen spread over the spot a paste of the juice pressed from two onions, a quarter ounce of white soap, two ounces of fuller's earth and a half pint of vinegar. Mix and boil till thoroughly blended.

FOLDING SCREEN

With a little ingenuity a folding screen—one of the most charming decorations for any room—can be made at home. Three thin rectangular boards, smoothly planed, may be neatly covered in fabric or wall-paper, applied with glue, and then the boards can be joined by simple hinges.

If wallpaper or appliqued prints are chosen as decoration, the next step is to wax the flat surfaces lightly (in case an antiqued effect is desired).

TO RENOVATE RIBBON

When pressing black ribbon, put it in cold water, then straighten it out and press immediately with a hot iron. The stiffening will remain almost as if the ribbon were new.

BRASS POLISH

Vinegar and salt make a fine polish for brass and copper. Put salt on a soft cloth that has been dampened with vinegar and rub the object to be polished. The same combination is one of the best cleaners for the inside of flower vases that have been stained.

GLOVES

When buying gloves be sure to have your hand measured. Small gloves are not flattering to the hands and do not wear well. Large gloves are not comfortable and look untidy because of their looseness. Have the gloves tried on and always afterward put them on carefully, working them on the fingers slowly rather than tugging them on. Peeling the glove off the hand lessens the strain on them. Powder helps to keep the gloves soft. No matter what the material, if you want them to last they must be washed or cleaned often. Gloves wet with rain, snow or perspiration should always be left in the air to dry before being laid away, otherwise the leather may mildew or spot. Leather should never be dried quickly by laying on a hot radiator or register, for it becomes stiff and weakened.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Eight per cent of the automobiles registered in Illinois are owned by women.

Dairymaids in Norway live all summer alone while watching cows on highland grass slopes.

Mrs. Anna Smith, aged 85, of Flushing, N. Y., recently enjoyed a flight in an airplane. Her first ride was in an ox cart.

Miss Jennie E. Beam, of Pittsburgh, Pa., has charge of the personnel of one of the largest public utility companies in the world.

Miss Anna May White, who recently sailed from New York to take up a missionary post in the Belgian Congo, is the first unmarried missionary to be sent on an African mission by the Methodists.

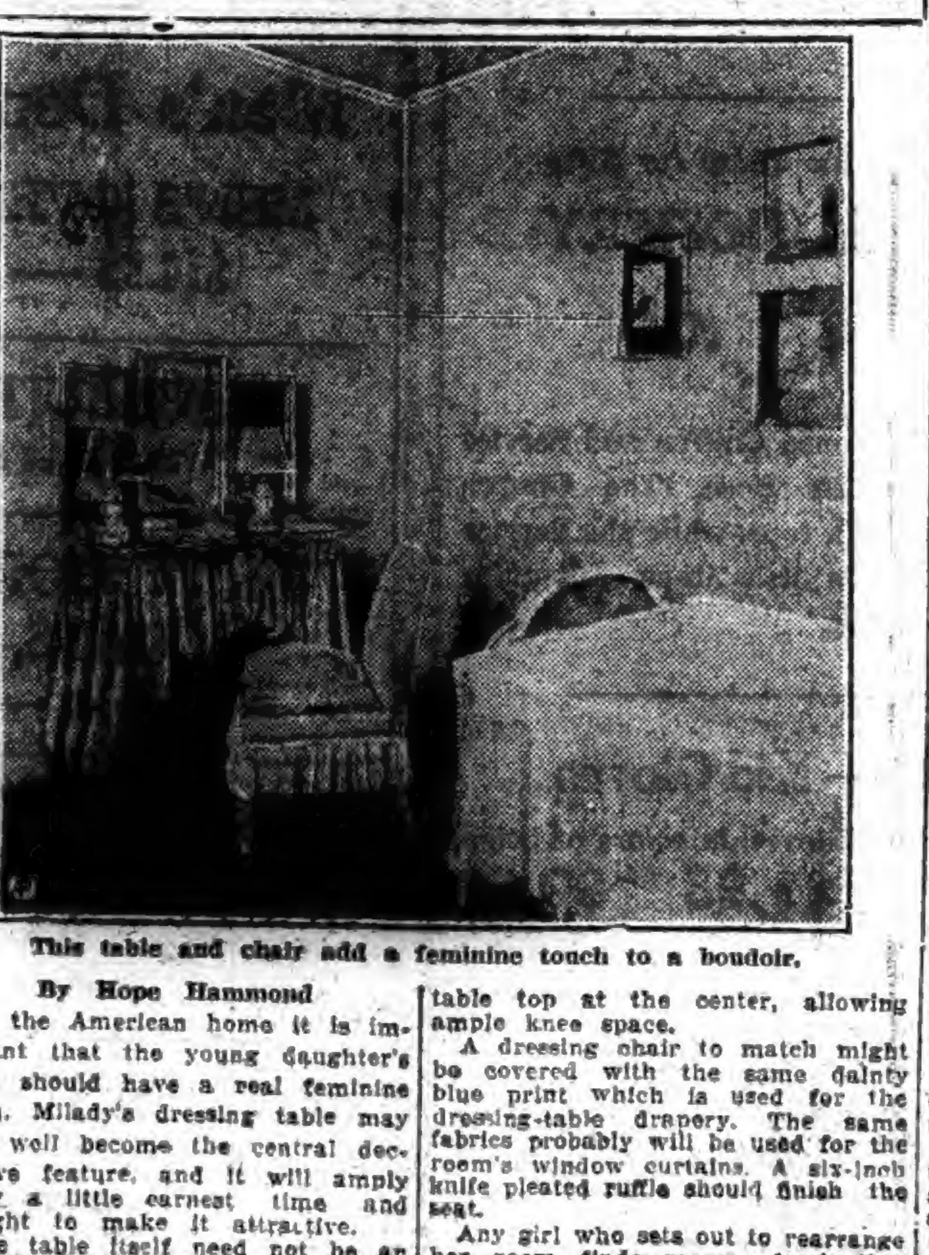
Japan has upwards of 26,000 women telephone operators. In spite of the increasing installation of automatic systems, the number of women employed in private and public exchanges increases yearly.

RECIPES

Simple Plum Pudding: Grate one cup each of carrot and potato. Add one cup each of sugar and flour, creaming into the sugar half a cup of butter or finely minced suet. Prepare half a cup each of seeded raisins and currants and flour them before adding to the mixture. Stir one teaspoon of baking soda into the potato before adding it to the other ingredients. Use one teaspoon of cinnamon and half a teaspoon each of cloves and grated nutmeg. Grease a mold or can, cover tightly, and steam for three hours. Serve with a golden sauce made of one cup of powdered sugar and one-third cup of butter beaten to a cream. Add the yolks of three eggs and beat vigorously, then add the juice of a lemon and half the grated yellow peel. Beat the whites of two eggs stiffly and stir into the beaten mixture, then set in a pan of boiling water and stir for several minutes. It should be very hot, but do not boil. Use at once.

Quick Dumplings: Break one egg into a dish, beat slightly, add one cup of milk, beat again, add one and one-half cups of flour, or enough to make a stiff batter, with one heaping teaspoon of baking powder and half a teaspoon of salt mixed, beat up quickly, drop onto partly cooked chicken stew by tablespoons, cover and wrap a towel around the top of kettle to prevent escape of steam. Boil for 15 minutes. Serve immediately.

DRESSING TABLE BRIGHTENS GIRL'S ROOM



This table and chair add a feminine touch to a boudoir.

By Hope Hammond

In the American home it is important that the young daughter's room should have a real feminine touch. Milady's dressing table may very well become the central decorative feature, and it will amply repay a little earnest time and thought to make it attractive.

The table itself need not be an expensive piece of furniture, but it should have first class mirrors preferably hinged on three planes. It also should be well lighted, with lamps that serve their primary practical purpose adequately.

From the decorative standpoint, the table's skirt is the most important note. A blue-flowered skirt with scalloped border is one excellent idea.

Under the scalloped border a finely pleated peach ruching should appear. The whole skirt should rise gradually within nine inches of the table top at the center, allowing ample knee space.

A dressing chair to match might be covered with the same dainty blue print which is used for the dressing-table drapery. The same fabrics probably will be used for the room's window curtains. A six-inch knife pleated ruffle should finish the seat.

Any girl who sets out to rearrange her room finds many fascinating problems in walls, pictures, lighting and draperies. Perhaps the first advice to give her is not to be afraid but try things.

In such experimentation she is expressing herself, and the result will be to endow the room with a personality—which is the highest achievement of the decorator's art.

In arranging a room the color scheme is of primary importance. Character of the furniture comes next. The secret of success lies in choosing one style of thing and sticking to it.

Shoulder of Lamb

Stuffed Shoulder of Lamb
Mashed Potatoes
Creamed Carrots and Peas
Bread Currant Jam
Head Lettuce Russian Dressing
Peach Pudding Cream
Coffee

Stuffed Shoulder of Lamb—Shoulder of lamb (about 5 pounds), 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon paprika, 1 cup water.

Have shoulder blade removed from lamb, leaving pocket which can be stuffed. Add the stuffing and sprinkle lamb with flour, salt and paprika. Fit into baking pan. Add the water. Bake 15 minutes in hot oven. Cover with lid, reduce the heat and roast two hours. Baste frequently during the roasting.

Stuffing—4 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons chopped onions, 2 tablespoons chopped celery, 2 cups bread crumbs, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon paprika, 2 tablespons chopped parsley, 2 tablespoons hot water.

Heat the butter in frying pan. Add the onion and celery and cook slowly until browned. Add rest of ingredients. Mix lightly with fork.

Russian Dressing—1-2 cup stiff mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons chopped ripe olives, 2 tablespoons chopped dill pickles, 2 tablespoons chili sauce, 2 tablespoons catsup, 1 tablespoon horseradish, 1 tablespon lemon juice, 1-8 teaspoon salt.

Mix ingredients and chill. Serve on head lettuce or tomato salads. When adding chili sauce to this dressing, it is best to pour it into strainer and use only the thick part.

Peach Pudding—2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1-3 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup sugar, 1-4 teaspoon nutmeg, 1-2 cup peach juice (from can), 2 eggs, 1 cup diced peaches (canned), 4 tablespoons butter, melted.

Mix the flour, baking powder, salt, sugar and nutmeg. Add peach juice and eggs and beat 3 minutes. Add rest of ingredients. Pour into shallow, greased pan. Bake 20 minutes in moderately slow oven. Serve warm and cut in squares. Other canned fruits can be used instead of peaches.

HOME LIFE AND HABITS OF SECRETARY AND MRS. W. N. DOAK

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14—The incoming of William N. Doak into the Hoover cabinet, as secretary of labor, brings Mrs. Doak into the limelight of high official society. In every day parlance Mrs. Doak fits right well into those classified as "dainty"; or if we want to drop into French phrases, we would say "petite." For if Mrs. Doak stands much above 5 feet in height or weighs over 100 pounds we miss our guess. She is a pronounced blond—we may safely add in her own right. She is fond of wearing soft pastel shades, of also white, all of which are very becoming to her. She sings well, and has what is known as a pretty parlor voice.

To get a glimpse of the real Mrs. Doak we must get it from the view point of the Doak home life and habits. And to do that we must put "Polly" Doak, the lady of the curved beak and gay plumage, also in the spot light, together with a beautiful white collie for they are inseparable companions of the new lady of the cabinet.

The Doaks are animal and bird lovers. Especially of "Polly" Doak. You all remember, how a few weeks ago, when Mr. Doak's name was brought to the foreground of cabinet predictions, how Polly Doak came in for a share of the family prestige. You recall, because we all "wrote polly up" at that time, how Mr. Doak strayed into a bird store one day to buy seed for his canary, and Polly crawled and climbed up on his shoulder and whispered softly in his ear, "Pretty man, Polly loves you." That settled Polly's future, for Mr. Doak completely "fell for" her blandishments, and marched out of the store with Polly on his shoulder and the bird seed in his pocket.

Then take dogs. The Doaks always have a pet dog, or more than one. It's always a white wooly dog, too, whether of high breeding or just a stray mongrel that appeals to them. I recall when we, and by we I mean the Doaks and myself, lived in the same hotel and had apartments side by side. One day Mrs. Doak came home bringing a decidedly bedraggled very small white curly-haired poodle. It was a waif and a stray, but snuggled appealing up to Mrs. Doak she left her car, so it was immediately adopted. I forget its name, but know it was thereafter a dominant member of the Doak family. It was not young even then, and may now have gone the way of all dogs, for we find the Doaks have a beautiful big white collie, of the same breed as the famous Coolidge collies, which shares the family honors with Polly Doak.

Perhaps that gives you an idea of the new secretary of labor and his wife. In their home life, for they have a delightful house a few miles out of the city, but come into town for the winter, putting up at some hotel. Mrs. Doak does not assume to be familiar or know it all, when it comes to high official and cabinet social life. She is ready to follow not to lead. That insures her becoming a social favorite, and Mrs. Davis, wife of the retiring secretary of labor, who now becomes senator, has taken Mrs. Doak right under her experienced wing, and blazed a social trail of distinction for the new cabinet lady.

And what does Mrs. Doak think of it all? Well, she has not told me, but I judge she still thinks William N. Doak, and Polly Doak and the big white collie are about the best things in the world today.

Conecticut Notes

One of the most important social events of Washington high political circles the past week was the coming out party given by Assistant Secretary of the Treasurer Walter E. Hope and Mrs. Hope in honor of their daughter Marian Talcott Hope, now a student at Bryn Mawr college, after having graduated from Miss Walker's school at Simsbury.

Among the long list of distinguished assistants at the tea was Mrs. Philip B. Stanley, of New Britain, a sister of Mrs. Hope. The young debutante wore a gown of pale turquoise blue made long, and with short very full sleeves. She carried a bouquet of pink roses. Mrs. Hope was dressed in black chiffon with touches of turquoise blue.

Guests at a very elaborate luncheon given this week by Mrs. Frank Clinton Henry included Mrs. Hiram Bingham and Mrs. E. Hart Fenn.

Among the patronesses of the gay ball to be given in the series of bachelor's cotillions, are Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. Hope, who have as their house guest Mrs. Philip Stanley of New Britain.

Mrs. Hiram Bingham, wife of the senator, will be a patroness of the concerts by the New York Philharmonic orchestra which will be given on the evenings of December 16, 27, March 10th. Mrs. Bingham is ranking member on the committee of arrangements, standing next to Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, chairman.

Attending the reception at the National Women's Country club given by the League of Women Voters in honor of the directors and officers of the league were Miss Katherine Luddington of Old Lyme and Miss Mary Buckley of Hartford.

WEARS WEDDING GOWN MADE 40 YEARS AGO

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14—(AP)—Her mother's wedding dress, made 40 years ago, was worn by Miss Elizabeth Mack Engle when she became the bride of Dr. George Bond Ridout. The dress was of ivory satin and brocade. The tight bodice and train hung from the waist. The tulle veil was draped from a headdress of rose point lace.

Norwich 100 Years Ago

From

THE NORWICH COURIER

Announcement was made in The Norwich Courier of December 15, 1830, one hundred years ago, that an hourly stage would be run between the "post office at Norwich and the post office at Norwich city, by the way of the Falls, until further notice." The stage trips began that morning and the fare was 12 1-2 cents. Joseph Hyde was in charge of the stage service. Needham Slate had inserted in the paper a notice reading: "The subscriber informs his customers that one year's pay for newapapers becomes due on the 22d of Dec. inst. All persons who have taken newapapers of him three months or more, are requested to make payment immediately."

An advertisement inserted in the old newepaper by Joseph Chester, reads: "I have lately received a new supply of goods from New York which I will sell cheap. If that is not cheap enough, I will sell them cheaper. Those that owe me are particularly notified that I will attend to the settlement of accounts every day (Sundays excepted) until the first of January next—after that I shall probably sue some folks! Be particular."

"To let and possession given immediately," reads another advertisement, "The blacksmith's shop, situated in East Chelsea, with two forges, ox frames, and all necessary tools for blacksmithing. A man who is good at shoeing will find good encouragement. None others need apply." Joseph B. Palmer is the man who had the above blacksmith shop for rent.

S. P. Robinson informs the public that he "has taken the shop formerly occupied by Messrs. Waldo & Davis, where he will carry on the carriage making business. Particular attention will be given to repairing and all work warranted to be done in the best manner. A portion of the public patronage is especially solicited."

Another carriage maker of those days was E. Y. Waldo whose advertisement states that he "is constantly manufacturing, at his shop in East Chelsea, on Toll Bridge street, one door east of the Universalist church, gigs, barouches, pleasure and business wagons, also gig and wagon harnesses, gentlemen's and ladie's riding saddles and bridles. N. B.—Wanted—two active lads, 14 or 15 years of age, as apprentices to the above business."

POETRY

I Have No Fear

I have no fear that I shall cease to be,
When I slough off this mortal coil of flesh.
I'm not a fly held in a spider's mesh,
To be devoured and end mortality;
For when my bones shall mold beneath the sod,
And when my blood returns again to earth,
My liberated soul will have its birth,
And I will live eternally with God.

However long or short my earthly stay,
It matters not to me. Why should I care?
A century of time is but a day;
So why should I be worried or despair,
If I be called to leave this house of clay?
I shall not die; my soul shall live elsewhere.

—Guy E. Talbot in Presbyterian Advance.

An Agent's Creed

I believe in the company I am working for,
And in my ability to get results;
I believe in working, not weeping,
In boosting, not knocking,
And in the pleasure of my job.
I believe that a man gets what he goes after,
Providing he goes after it the "Right Way."
I believe that one deed done today is worth
Two deeds done tomorrow, and that no man is down and out until he has lost faith in himself.
I believe in today and the work I am doing,
In tomorrow and the work I hope to do,
And in the sure reward which the future holds.
I believe in courtesy, in kindness,
In good cheer, in friendship,
And in honest competition.
I believe in not being afraid of what is going to happen.
I believe there is something doing, somewhere,
For every man ready to do it.
I am ready right now.

—F. J. Pope, agent, Newcastle, Ind., in the Express Messenger.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Waiter, you have spelt 'cotellette' with one 't.' Your French is not good. There should be two t's."

"Thank you, sir. Another tea. That means another shilling, sir."—Hummel.

Caller—When is the best time to see Mr. Smith?

Stenographer—That's hard to say. He's grouchy before he has his lunch and afterwards he has indigestion.—Pathfinder.

Bird Fancier: "That bird won't fly. All he wants to do is sit down."

Sweet Young Thing: "Oh, it must be one of those stool pigeons!"—Union Pacific Bulletin.

"I held him with both hands and punches rained on punches."

"How could you punch him if you held him with both hands?"

"I didn't—he punched me."—Travaso.

Rural Doctor (meeting patient)—"I've—er—taken the liberty of sending in my little account again."

Patient—"Is that so? Well, acting on your advice, I'm avoiding business worries for the present."—Humorist.

A French mayor, who, after making a tour of England, was about to depart, and was thanking the lady mayoress of a certain Midland city.

"Madame, I sank you very moch for your 'ospitality on vich, I fear, I have very much cockroached."

"Not at all, m'sieu le maire," said the lady with what gravity she could command, "but surely you mean 'encroached'?"

"Vraiment! Eet is my mistake," exclaimed the French gentleman, "I had forgotten I was talking to a lady."—Bystander.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Delaney have returned to their home at Providence after spending the week end with Mr. Delaney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Delaney on Eighth street.

Men's Club Meeting

The December meeting of the Men's club of St. Andrew's Episcopal church will be held this evening in the guild room of the church. A special program has been arranged and several of the local talent will entertain the large number that is expected to attend. President James Lockhart wishes to extend an invitation to any one in this vicinity who desires to attend. The club has been fortunate in securing the services of H. Holdsworth as the speaker of the evening and his topic is one that is confusing the whole country "The Cause and Prevention of Unemployment." Mr. Holdsworth has spoken several times at the meetings of this club. Refreshments will be served by the members of the entertainment committee.

Miss Delia Shea and John O. Shea of Jewett City spent the week end with their cousin, Mrs. Michael Shea of North Main street.

Stephen Shegoda and Henry Mileski spent the week end with relatives at New Britain.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold McNight have returned to their home at New Bedford after spending a few days with relatives in Greeneville.

At Sister's Funeral

Patrick Sullivan has returned to his home on Sixth street after attending the funeral of his sister, Mrs. Charles H. Vaughn which was held from her home at No. 381 Fountain street, Pawtucket, R. I. Friday morning. Burial took place in St. Mary's cemetery in this city.

TAFTVILLE

Lionel Morin, a former village resident, and his friend, William Hartmann of Albany, N. Y., visited Taftville relatives over the week end.

Committees have been appointed and are at work on the annual Christmas tree party of the Taftville Congregational church school.

Charles Adams, Jr., of Danielson spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Adams and family of North Third avenue.

Flat cars piled high with Christmas trees have been passing through the town daily, bound for the New York markets.

Albertus Magnus college in New Haven presented in the college theater Sunday evening "A Mystery Play in honor of Christ's Nativity" by Robert Hugh Benson. The play, which is becoming a tradition, was directed by Miss Madalene Downes Carroll.

In the cast Miss Mary Riordan, of Willimantic, had the part of Mary and Miss Nora Booth of New London played the part of Uzziel, a merchant. Miss Riordan was also on the decorating committee.

SNOWFALL SENDS CARS SLIDING ON HIGHWAYS TO WEST AND NORTH

Numerous reports were received in the city early Sunday evening of numberless automobile accidents along the highways in the western and northern sections of the state, especially on the Marlborough and Willimantic-Stafford Springs roads. The state police at the Groton barracks said that there had been 78 accidents reported on the Marlborough road up to 7 o'clock in the evening and close to that number were reported occurring on the Stafford Springs highway. All of these accidents, it was reported, were due to the light fall of snow, which had melted and then frozen, making the highway surface very slippery.

Norwich and its vicinity apparently went scot-free, as no reports of any mixups were made up to a late hour Sunday evening. The flurries of snow here did not in any way make driving conditions perilous. There was no need of chains or extra-cautious driving on the part of motorists, but according to drivers who had traversed the above-mentioned highways, it was extremely difficult to proceed there.

Reports were current here Sunday evening that machines on the Marlborough highway piled up on the road as fast as they came along on some of the hills and machines which were without chains were seen to slip and slide along. The same conditions prevailed along the Willimantic-Stafford Springs road.

A number of Norwich drivers were listed among those who had their machines damaged on the Willimantic-Stafford Springs highway Sunday evening, but none of them or their occupants were injured, according to reports. It was reported by them that it was extremely difficult to keep the machine from skidding off the highway and into the ditch and that many cars turned completely around owing to the poor traveling conditions. They said the snow was accompanied by both rain and hail. The Norwich machines were only slightly damaged.

Several machines passing through the city Sunday evening were covered with snow and sleet to the thickness of an inch or better. It was noticeable that many of the radiators had icicles hanging to them as long as six or seven inches.

RETIRES AFTER 21 YEARS IN BUSINESS IN CITY

Twenty-one years in active and successful business life in Norwich were closed Saturday night by Miss Mary P. Clapp, proprietor of the Woman's Exchange and Tea Room at 65 Broadway. Miss Clapp is retiring from business as she feels unequal to the taxing strain of continuing it longer and she will make her home with her mother, Mrs. W. W. Clapp, at their residence on Salem turnpike, East Great Plain, where they have lived for a number of years.

Miss Clapp established the Woman's exchange 21 years ago last April at the office of her father, the late Dr. W. W. Clapp, a well known dentist, on Franklin square. In September, 1915, the business was removed to the Broadway location where it has been ever since. At that time also the tea room was added and the stamping, embroidery, art goods and novelty department was enlarged, the whole enjoying such patronage as to make it a marked success through the years, and many patrons have expressed their regret at learning that Miss Clapp was to retire. The Woman's Exchange, however, is to be carried on by Mrs. Tannar at another location.

SHETUCKET SIGN IS SUBJECT TO CRITICISM

The sign in Shetucket street which was erected at the time that thoroughfare was changed to a one-way street and is located on an electric light pole on the westerly side of the street has been receiving considerable criticism of late. It is claimed by many that it isn't any wonder that out of town drivers enter the street from Main street, especially at night, as there is no light on the sign and it is not easily seen. The sign is a considerable distance from the crosswalk at the junction of Shetucket and Main, and at a point where motorists would least expect it to be. Several machines had to be stopped Sunday evening by the officer on the beat and told of their error.

STREETS TO BLAZE WITH CHRISTMAS LIGHTS

Various merchants in the central portion of the city have helped to create a seasonal atmosphere with the addition of Christmas decorations to the front of their stores. As has been the custom in past years the Reid and Hughes Co. has set up three large Christmas trees against the front part of their store on the second story, which will be lighted in vari-colored lights and remain there until after the holidays.

Several other stores have effectively arranged ropes of laurel about the fronts of the buildings, while additional merchants will in the not distant future do similar decorating. The stringers of lights, erected in the principal streets of the city by the gas and electrical department are to be lighted for the first time this (Monday) evening and are to be lighted each night from 5 to 10.30.

A check-up on pine seedlings planted last year in Florida is to be made by the state forest service.

SAINTS, FRIENDS OF GOD, FR. REILLY'S SERMON THEME

Rev. John J. Reilly, the junior assistant pastor, who is preaching a series of sermons on the various devotions of the Roman Catholic church, spoke Sunday at the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church to the customary large congregation which crowded auditory and galleries. His theme was the reason of the Catholic's devotion to the saints and why he venerates their statues and relics.

Every Catholic is taught from the first, he said, that to God alone belongs his adoration. If he seeks the intercession of the saints it is purely as the friends of God. When he venerates the saints, it is not because they are God, but of God. They, in a measure, reflect God's love and beauty. The saints cannot help us with the strength of themselves. God knows our necessities, but often will not aid us without the cooperation of the saints. These are they who chose the better part; and the preacher described with characteristic beauty of imagery and phrase the effect on the heart of God of the petition of one of these, His saints.

Father Reilly recounted an incident during a recent famed game at New Haven when a Catholic college nine taught a lesson in baseball to Yale. As the player threw the winning ball, there was the flash from his breast of a little gold medal of Our Lady of Victory. Last week, those who have been quoting "Notre Dame" were not all aware that they are the French words for "Our Lady," or that the colors of the Fighting Irish, blue and white, are the colors associated in legend and art with the Blessed Virgin.

Women are given credit for being more devotional than are men; but this is not always so, and no man need feel strange or alone in his devotions in this state, with its over 500,000 Catholics, in the nation, with its 22,000,000, or in the world with its over 300,000,000. Even though these are greatly outnumbered by others, he said, the soul need never feel alone, in its struggle here on earth, when conscious of the hosts of saints in heaven, but must feel drawn closer to God through those who are God's saints.

Giving special effect to Father Reilly's beautiful sermon, Organist Henry J. LaFontaine had the junior choir sing at the consecration, "Jesus, Keep Me Close to Thee." Little Mary O'Connell, a Church street girl, sang a solo in one of the hymns very prettily. Father Reilly assisted Rev. James E. Dargan, who read the mass, in giving holy communion to a great number of penitents.

NORWICH TOWN

THIRD SERMON ON ADVENT BY PASTOR OF CONG. CHURCH

At the First Congregational church Sunday morning the pastor Rev. Wilfrid M. Wilton, preached the third in a group of sermons on "Advent." "Welcoming the Advent," was the theme. This covered three of the four Sundays during that period before Christmas. The introductory sermon was on The Coming of the Kingdom, Sunday November 30th, while the second sermon was on Bringing In the Advent. Rev. Mr. Wilton read for the scripture lesson Sunday the 19th chapter of the Book of Job. The first lines of the 25th verse, were the text. For I know that my Redeemer liveth.

In pleasing voice, Mrs. Wilfrid M. Wilton, contralto, as an offertory solo, finely interpreted La Piere de Jeanne d'Arc, by Gounod, the organist, Herbert L. Yerrington, accompanying.

"How to Make Others Happy," was the theme assigned to the Young People's C. E. service Sunday evening.

When the junior and intermediate C. E. societies hold a meeting in the Congregational chapel Tuesday afternoon the intermediates will discuss the topic, Jesus In Sacred Hour, and How Christmas Is Celebrated In Other Lands.

Dorcas Home Missionary society of the Methodist church, will hold its December meeting with the president, Mrs. William Weaver, Huntington Green, Thursday afternoon.

Scouts Honor Bennett

The John Mason Troop 2, Boy Scouts, connected with the First Methodist Episcopal church held a meeting Friday night with an attendance of 16. The program was in charge of the scoutmaster, Rev. George Warren Potter. Patrol Leader Arthur Bennett of the Stag Patrol was made a first class Scout at the recent court of honor. Patrol Leader Bennett also had five merit badges awarded him. In view of these facts, also the fact that he is 17, the troop voted unanimously to ask Scout Executive John Sellman to issue to Scout Bennett a warrant as Junior Assistant Scoutmaster. The five merit badges bring 100 points to the Stag Patrol, which makes the standing of the interpatrol contest as follows: Stag Patrol 577, Flying Eagle Patrol 475, Wolf Patrol 429. A committee to gather toys for needy children was elected and consists of Scouts Frederick Ross, Leon Ladd and Robert Brown. The Flying Eagle Patrol volunteered to secure the greens for decorating the church for Christmas. Scout Clayton Rose is the leader.

Saturday morning the Wolf Cub Pack connected with the church held a meeting with an attendance of 18. The cubmaster, Rev. Mr. Potter was helped in the meeting by two assistant cubmasters, Edward Jordan and Frederick Ross. Following the song and setting up periods, the Cubs played a game which aroused much interest and demonstrated how much a Cub depends on good hearing.

Heard Story of Liberia

"The Story of Liberia" was the subject of the stereopticon lecture given by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Potter in the Methodist church Sunday night. The stereopticon was operated by Ralph Smith and over 40 beautiful pictures were shown. The lecture told about the small and little known republic of Liberia which might be called the geographic center of the world, bordering the Atlantic. Liberia, patterned after the constitution of the United States, in its government, is the only republic in Africa. It was founded by Negroes from America and fostered by the American government. It is of special interest to Methodists as it was the site of the labors of Melvin B. Cox, first foreign missionary of the Methodist Episcopal church.

At the morning service the pastor preached on the theme, "God's Children." The girls' vested choir was assisted by Mrs. Harry Norrington, Mrs. Lewis Irish and Miss Florence M. Bennett in the anthem, "Glory to God." Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich played at the morning service and the assistant organist, Doris Rose played in the evening. The C. E. meeting considered the topic: "How To Make Others Happy."

L. M. Crandall to Speak

The John Mason Community club is to meet in the vestry this (Monday) evening for the first winter session. Louis M. Crandall will be the speaker his subject, "Twins." Tuesday night the Scout class in wood carving and leather work in charge of Harry Norrington will be held in the vestry at 8. The Boy Scouts will meet Thursday evening this week on account of the supper which is to be given in the vestry by the C. E. society.

During the past week the wall in front of the church and the stone steps have been put in condition by Harold Rose. The work adds to the general appearance of the church. A pretty winter garden of red and white berries with green leaves surrounding a small fir tree has been arranged on the West Town street side of the church by Mrs Harold Rose.

AUTOMOBILE STOLEN WHEN PARKED ON WILLOW ST.

A Chevrolet coupe, reg. No. 118,152, Conn., was stolen early Sunday evening on Willow street where it had been parked by its owner, Woodrow Guile of No. 120 Fountain street. The theft was reported to Sergeant John Casey, who is at the desk at police headquarters in the absence of Capt. Thomas Murphy, and he, in turn, informed the state police at Groton barracks, who sent it out on the teletype to all points in Connecticut. The machine is painted blue. The owner reported his loss at 9.30 o'clock.

CAT TREE-SITTER IS RESCUED BY FIREMEN

A cat, which had been perched in a tree in front of No. 261 Washington street since Thursday, was rescued by members of Squad A. of the fire department shortly after 10.30 o'clock Saturday morning. One of the firemen went up the tree with climbers and brought tabby down to terra firma. A resident in that section called the police, who referred the matter to the fire department.

INDIAN DESCENDANTS CLAIM LAND UNDER 200 YEAR OLD DEED

The $1,000,000 damage action brought by Edytho B. Gray of Groton and others against the town of Norwich and the Masonic temple corporation of Norwich tends to reopen a controversy which was believed settled nearly 200 years ago. The action seeks to obtain a court order for the return of the Royal Burial ground of the Mohegan Indians. The plaintiffs claim to be heirs under the law of Uncas, old Indian chieftain.

Perhaps the most important problem confronting the colonists in the latter half of the seventeenth and first half of the eighteenth centuries was the Indian land dispute, and Connecticut colonists found themselves surrounded with a group of claims, deeds, sales, guardianships, which seemed to contradict each other at every turn. The legality of the claims and the final dispute was believed settled in 1743 by an act of the King's Privy council commissioners which upheld the claims of the colonists against the Indians.

With this ruling, the litigation over the Mohegan lands ended and although other reservations were allotted to the Indians at different times by the state, the Indians finally became extinct until there is not at the present time, a pure blood Indian in the state although the state census in 1900 gives 143 Indians.

Uncas Made Sale.

The beginning of the long controversy dates back to 1659 when Uncas, chief of the Mohegan tribe, sold a nine mile tract of land to the town of Norwich. The same year Uncas deeded the remainder of the Mohegan lands to Captain John Mason and this deed as understood by the Indians and interpreted by the Colonists marked the beginning of many future disputes.

It has been estimated that when the first English colonist came to Connecticut there were about 5,000 Indians here and although most of the tribes were forced to pay tribute to the stronger tribes in the east, the Pequots who could muster about 500 warriors were never bothered. The Pequots occupied the southeast portion of the state.

The Rise Of Uncas.

The death of a sachem brought to the fore a claimant to successorship who was destined to play a big part in the early history of the state, Uncas, a sagamore of the Mohegans claimed the leadership and was opposed, and forced to flee after an open battle. He returned, however, and collecting a small band of warriors sought to build up his tribe. Historians give little distinction between Mohegans and Pequots, as both came from the same origin. With the accession of Uncas, however, a clearer distinction was made as this chief, seeking protection for his small band, allied himself with the colonists. This act, although considered trivial at first, later became an important one, as Uncas long remained the friend of the colonists and rendered invaluable aid in the early struggle in the state. This band became known as the Royal Mohegans.

Deed To Capt. Mason.

Claiming the land by virtue of his royal birth, he allowed the colonists to reside on his domain and later sold various portions of it. The portion deed to Captain Mason, however, caused many disputes.

When the colonists began to encroach more and more upon the land of Uncas, the chieftain called a halt and the colonists claimed the land by virtue of the deed. Uncas, however, contended that he had not given the land outright to Captain Mason, but had only given it over to him for protection and proof that Dutch and French settlers would never be allowed to purchase it. Mason also claimed the deeded land as his, but the colonists, contending that he had acted as an agent of the colony in purchasing the nine mile tract, the remainder, acquired later, belonged to the state.

Much Litigation.

The subject of many hearings, both in this country and in England followed. Decisions were made and rejected by either the colonists or the Indians until the decree of 1743. This decision gave a portion of land to the Indians which was to be theirs until the race became extinct. This reservation included the so-called Royal Burial ground what is now Norwich. The burial ground was originally sixteen acres, but the plot now designated as the resting place of the royal warriors measured 50 by 30 feet. The remainder of the plot has been cut up into small plots of land, long considered the property of individuals. The Masonic temple in Norwich is one of the pieces of property now located on the disputed territory.

Descendants of Uncas grant that after the final dispensation of property, various Indians later sold plots to colonists, but the Royal Burial ground was not held the property of individuals but was set aside forever as a cemetery. Despite the claims of Norwich that the land was legally bought and value given for it, the present plaintiffs assert that the land never could have been legally sold.

The cemetery was given little attention and tombstones over the graves of many warriors were misplaced. About 20 years ago, women of Norwich, becoming interested in the small plot for its historical significance, subscribed to a fund for the erection of a memorial and a granite pillar was placed at the grave of Uncas. The little plot was preserved by four stone posts at each corner and an iron chain joining the posts now marks the Royal Burial ground, the original of which is the cause of the present action for damage.

WINS JURY VERDICT AGAINST COLCHESTER MAN

Johann Oscar Sodesten, of East Hampton, was awarded damages of $900 from Clayton R. Root of Colchester, by a jury which heard his action in Middlesex county superior court at Middletown, and reported its verdict Friday afternoon, after a short deliberation.

The case was a result of an auto accident involving the principals in the court action. Sodesten claimed damages of $3,000 and Root, in a counter claim, asked $5,000 and treble damages of Sodesten. The jury reported its verdict for the plaintiff in both his claim and in the counter claim, with judgment to collect $900.

It was Root's third reversal in court on actions which resulted from the accident that occurred Dec. 1, 1927 at East Hampton.

Westbrook Judge Retires

Justice Herbert M. Baldwin of Westbrook, who has probably heard more legal cases than any other justice in Middlesex county in the past few years, or since the location of the state police barracks at Westbrook, retired from the duties of the office on Thursday, having reached the age limit prescribed in the statutes at which a jurist can serve.

He will be succeeded by other justices recently elected and qualified. His term of office has only been exceeded at Westbrook by one previous incumbent, the late Carlos H. Chapman.

DENIES SOVIET PROPAGANDA AGAINST THE UNITED STATES

Boris E. Skvirsky of the Soviet Foreign Office Makes Denial Before the House Communists Investigating Committee—Disclaims Membership in American Communist Party—Says the Russian Program is to Build a Class-less Society

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—A flat refusal by Secretary Stimson to permit state department officials to testify publicly brought to a dramatic close today the house committee investigation of communism.

After hearing a vigorous denunciation of anti-Russian propaganda of Tsarist Emigres from Boris E. Skvirsky of the Soviet foreign office, who just as emphatically declared there was "no such thing as propaganda against the United States" by his government, Chairman Fish called A. Dana Hodgdon, chief of the visa office.

"The secretary instructed me to say I am not at liberty to testify in open session since such testimony if published would be contrary to public interest," Hodgdon said.

Fish said he subpoenaed Hodgdon because Stimson had refused to permit publicity of secret testimony by John F. Simmons, former visa chief, and Robert F. Kelley, head of the Eastern Europe division.

The committee refused to take Hodgdon's testimony in closed session and directed Fish to ask Stimson in writing to indicate objectionable parts of the secret testimony on how the visa system is administered. No other hearings are anticipated Fish said.

Skvirsky testified that most Russians entering the United States are "monarchists carrying on anti-Soviet propaganda activities," later adding that "they are permitted easy entry for some reason." Emigration of Soviet citizens is not encouraged, he said, because all labor is needed for the five year industrialization plan. He estimated less than 1.00 Soviet citizens are in this country.

The Russian emigre groups seem to have definitely included the United States in the scope of their vicious activities and adventures against the Soviet "Union," Skvirsky said, adding that their object is "to build war psychology and destroy American-Soviet trade."

Skvirsky is director of the Soviet Union information bureau. He said it served as a clearing house for information on Russia for the American government and business men and published a monthly summary of economic and other useful information called "The Soviet Union Review."

Skvirsky said he discussed the anti-soviet activities in this country "with great reluctance."

He added that he had tried to make for a better understanding and that it was a great "satisfaction" to have contributed to making Russia the sixth best foreign customer of the United States.

Replying under questions by Representative Bachmann, republican, West Virginia, that the American communist party was connected with the Russian party, Skvirsky steadfastly refused to say what the program of American communists was.

"You will have to ask an American communist," he reiterated. "I do not belong to the party here. In Russia the program is to build a class-less society."

The witness told of getting visas for American senators, representatives and in one case, a diplomat. He denied emphatically the implications in the documents laid before the committee by former Police Commissioner Grover Whalen of New York city and termed them forgeries. In no case have American officials even suggested "misconduct or impropriety" on the part of Russian visitors to this country, he said.

EXPLOSION ON FRENCH FLOATING PENITENTIARY

LA ROCHELLE, France, Dec. 15.—(AP)—A blinding explosion shattered the bow of the floating penitentiary La Martiniere today, killing her fourth engineer, severely wounding a fireman and giving 500 convicted criminals a respite of several weeks before they depart for Devil's Island.

The sinister black and yellow craft was being overhauled in preparation for sailing February 1 for the island when Ferdinand Cuissard, the fourth engineer, entered a forward cage bearing a lighted lamp.

There was a terrific explosion of gas which had accumulated in the hermetically-sealed cage for weeks, and Cuissard's body was blown to pieces. Parts of it were found 150 feet away.

The fireman, Alphonse Lemichoir, was flung overboard into La Rochelle bay. He may recover. The entire forward deck, an area of 100 feet square, was wrecked and bolts in her steel hull were loosened, causing leaks.

The steel bars and inch thick on one of the cages reserved for especially bad prisoners were twisted. Two special cells in which some prisoners are confined on bread and water were undamaged.

The ship stood in La Pallice harbor—an American base during the World war—and the explosion was plainly heard by convicts quartered in the penitentiary on the Isle of Re, five miles away. Through underground channels the convicts knew within an hour what had happened and that their trip to Devil's Island would be postponed for several weeks.

A company of Senegalese soldiers mounted guard around the Isle of Re tonight as a precaution against a possible outbreak.

PARENTS SHOT TO DEATH BY THEIR 28 YEAR OLD SON

NASHVILLE, Ind., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Mr and Mrs. Lee Brown were shot today by their son, Paul 28, who then set fire to their farm home near here. Chester Bunge, a farm hand who was wounded by the young man, said the Browns and their son perished in the flames.

Bunge was brought to a hospital here. He is in a serious condition. Neighbors summoned by Bunge were unable to enter the burning farm house because of the flames.

Young Brown was a student at Purdue university a few years ago. He had studied electrical engineering and had been working on an electrical device at his father's home. He is believed to have become deranged.

TRANUILLITY FOLLOWS RECENT RIOTING IN CUBA

HAVANA, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Cuba remained tranquil today, the rioting of last week and the week before apparently forgotten.

Several extra reserves of police which had been held in precincts where trouble has occurred most frequently were taken from their posts this morning and troops which had been held in readiness for fresh outbursts were allowed to return to their barracks.

While there was a notable lifting of tension in all quarters, the government took advantage of the breathing spell to concentrate on the solution of student problems. It was stated that plans were under way which would, it was hoped, bring a definite end to the unrest at the national university and normal schools and permit these institutions to be reopened soon.

DEMANDS RESIGNATION OF PRESIDENT OF BAR

HACKENSACK, N. J., Dec. 15.—(AP)—A demand for the resignation of Ralph W. Chandless as president was presented today by 22 members of the Bergen County Bar association.

They said they would withdraw if the former senator had not presented his resignation by Dec 17. Chandless was elected president after his expulsion from the senate on charges of conduct unbecoming a member. A public statement accompanying the demand expressed "moral indignation" and said a substantial proportion of the bar "will not support discredited leadership.

HUNTING FOR PRESIDENT OF BINGHAMTON, N. Y., BANK

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Dec. 15—(AP)—Andrew C. Horvatt, president of the State Bank of Binghamton which closed today, was being both hunted and investigated tonight.

Extra police were thrown around the bank, located in the Slavic section, as bank examiners and Thomas J. Mangan, vice president, worked over the books.

The scope of the investigation extended even outside the state department of banking. Certain aspects of Horvatt's disappearance, the Binghamton Press, said, interested federal authorities.

SECOND CAPTURE OF BURGLARS IN NYACK, N. Y.

NYACK, N. Y., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Burglars must use more speed in Nyack, N. Y.

Today, for the second time in a week, four burglars who entered a department store were captured within a half hour after they left the premises. They had loot valued at $10,000.

Four expensive coats had been lost from the overburdened auto in which they were fleeing.

Last Monday four men with a $2,-500 loot taken from a men's clothing house were arrested on a ferry within 30 minutes after they left the scene of their crime.

$84,050 STOLEN SECURITIES HAVE BEEN RECOVERED

HUTCHINSON, Kans., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Recovery of $84,050 in securities stolen from the American National bank in a holdup here November 26 was announced by bank officials today. The manner of recovery was not disclosed.

Other loot, including $32,500 in currency, Liberty bonds totalling $5,400 and blank Travelers' checks, has not been recovered.

One of the robbers was reported to have been identified by a photograph as officials continued investigation of the robbery.

PRISONER ACTORS WOULD PERFORM FOR CHARITY

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—With all these charity football games, charity movies and so on all over the country, the prisoners on Welfare Island want to put on a benefit performance that strikes close home.

They submitted a petition to the warden today for permission to give their Thanksgiving production on Broadway and turn the proceeds over to their needy families. Prisoners whose terms will expire in the meantime promised to return to help out.

The proposition was taken under advisement.

ITALIAN PLANES AE READY FOR SOUTH AMERICAN FLIGHT

ORBETELLO, Italy, Dec. 15.—(AP)—A powerful flotilla of 12 Italian seaplanes is expected to leave on the first stage of a flight to South America shortly after dawn tomorrow.

Late tonight General Italo Balbo, air minister and official in charge of the adventure, said that weather conditions had improved greatly over the Mediterranean. He ordered the crews out 5:30 a. m. and said that only a return of bad weather would delay the hop-off.

FOUR SLAYERS TO BE EXECUTED IN CHICAGO FEB. 13

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Friday Feb. 13, 1931, is an unlucky day for four convicted killers.

Under sentence of death, all four will be electrocuted that day unless reprieves are granted.

Two were sentenced today for slaying a restauranteur. They were Frank Bell and Richard Sullivan.

Previously sentenced were Charles Rocco and John Popescue, found guilty of fatally shooting Courtney Merrill, South Chicago banker

CANTON, Dec. 15—(AP)—Authorities here said yesterday recent disorders on the Island of Hainan were caused by the same groups of communists who attempted to gain control of the government several months ago but were defeated by a force of Canton soldiers.

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 15—(AP)—The pope today granted an audience to the Jesuit Father Giachino Villalonga, an apostolic visitor from the Philippines, and asked him several pertinent questions about conditions on the islands and the progress of Catholic education He imparted the apostolic benediction.

HUNGERFORD HOSPITAL FORMALLY DEDICATED

TORRINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The new Charlotte Hungerford hospital erected at a cost of about $1,500,000, and described as the most completely equipped hospital of its size in the world, was formally dedicated tonight. Messages congratulating Torrington on its new institution were received from President Hoover and Governor John H. Trumbull.

A gift from the late Uri T. Hungerford in memory of his mother made the new hospital possible. The building is seven stories high above the street level. It has a sub-basement of two stories and a basement which is also two stories high.

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, of Brooklyn, the principal speaker at the dedication services tonight, described Mr. Hungerford's gift "as the last word in the right use of wealth."

STATE OF INTELLECT REFLECTS CONGESTION

HARTFORD, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The world of today was seen inextricably bound in a paradoxical congestion reflecting its state of intellect by Gilbert K. Chesterton, English novelist and essayist, who lectured here tonight. There is congestion in modern streets and no one can move, he said, because we have too many fast-moving machines, and it is a paradox because it is produced by machines designed for speed. In a humorous vein, Mr. Chesterton foresaw the day when there will be whole villages and settlements on wheels and the chauffeur will have time to plant cabbages about his car. Mr. Chesterton characterized the situation as a "psychological blunder" peculiar to this age and maintained that barbarians in a dark age knew more about psychology.

EIGHT FATAL AUTO ACCIDENTS WEEK OF NOV. 29 TO DEC. 6

HARTFORD, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Eight persons were killed in automobile accidents in Connecticut during the week of Nov. 29 to Dec. 6, it was announced by the state department of motor vehicles today, raising the total number of fatalities from this cause since Jan. 1 to 386. The number killed is 60 less than on the same date last year.

A total of 338 accidents, of which 225 were within city limits, were reported to the department during the week, as compared with 600 accidents of which 327 were within city limits in the same period last year. Manchester and Waterbury each reported two fatalities during the week, Allingtown, Groton, Stratford and Westport, one each.

RADIO TALK BY PRINCE OF WALES AT 4.40 P. M. TODAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Extensive networks are to be set up tomorrow to carry the Prince of Wales' third radio talk this year.

The prince will speak from London at 4.40 p. m. (E. S. T.) for about 20 minutes, and his voice will be brought to America by short waves and retransmitted by two chains. He will be addressing the Incorporated Sales Managers' Association of the United Kingdom.

ORDINANCE PROVIDES FOR CHICAGO SUBWAY

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—(AP)—An ordinance providing for Chicago's first subway was passed by the city council today and promptly signed by Mayor William Hale Thompson.

The subway, if built as provided, will stretch from North avenue to Roosevelt road, a distance of three and one-half miles, cutting through the Loop on State street. The cost has been set at $45,000,000.

WATERBURY MOTORMAN WAS CRITICALLY INJURED

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Edward Goddins, 37, Waterbury, a motorman employed by the Connecticut company, was critically injured tonight in a collision between his trolley car and a truck in Mt. Carmel. His name was placed on the danger list at New Haven hospital. Goddins was pinned beneath the control box of his car.

MELLON OPPOSES CASH PAYMENTS TO WAR VETS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—(AP)—Secretary Mellon is opposed to the proposal of Representative Fish, republican, New York, that the government pay World war veterans 25 per cent of the cash value of their adjusted compensation certificates as an unemployment relief measure.

Martial Law in Force Throughout Spain

New Military Revolt by Av[illegible]tor-Insurgents Crushed [illegible]ter Bombardment

MADRID, Dec. 15—(AP)—Loyal [illegible]anish artillerymen turned their guns on aviator-insurgent stoday and crushed in a half hour's bombardment a new military revolt, the second in Spain in four days.

About 30 of the insurgents were captured, but the leaders, said to have included Major Ramon Franco, Spanish flying ace, escaped in airplanes, presumably headed for the Portuguese border. Franco landed at Lisbon tonight and surrendered to Portuguese authorities.

In the meantime the government proclaimed spain in a state of siege, with martial law in force throughout the country.

Before they surrendered the mutineers had proclaimed Alcala Zamora "president of the republic," announced the setting up of a revolutionary committee and flooded Madrid with circulars threatening dire consequences to any who opposed them.

Alcala Zamora, a member of the 1923 cabinet which preceded the dictatorship of General Primo de Rivera, was arrested yesterday in a wide roundup of suspected persons following Friday's abortive revolt at Jaca.

Strikes and disorders broke out at Bilbao, Santander and San Sebastian during the morning.

At San Sebastian two policemen and a number of rioters were killed, the central telephone office was demolished and stores, cafes and restaurants were closed for fear of mob violence.

One man was reported killed at Bilbao, where policemen charged a mob of demonstrators who had proclaimed a republic.

The censorship once more prevented knowledge of any but the most meager details, and these from official sources, from filtering out of Spain. There was every indication, however, that although high excitement prevailed throughout the country, Barcelona, Valencia and most of the larger cities remained calm. Madrid was tense, but there was no disorder.

SPAIN'S FUGITIVE AVIATOR SURRENDERS IN PORTUGAL

LISBON, Dec. 15— (AP) —Major Ramon Franco, noted Spanish aviator who was one of the leaders in the revolt of aerial forces at Madrid today, landed tonight at Averso airdrome and surrendered to Lieut. Prito Paise of the Portuguese air forces after first attempting to flee.

With Franco, who recently escaped from a Spanish jail and since has been sought widely, were Captain Reyes and a mechanic named Rada.

Another plane landed at Gouvea and the pilot, Captain Pastor, surrendered to local authorities.

All four were taken to Lisbon under military escort. Franco was interviewed at the war office.

Two other airplanes brought fleeing Spanish aviators to refuge in Portugal.

One, carrying a pilot and General Llana, crashed at Moita and the occupants were slightly injured. They also were brought to Lisbon.

The fourth machine came down at Amadhra and its occupant, Captain Roa, surrendered.

SPANISH FOREIGN LEGION CALLED OUT OF MOROCCO

GIBRALTAR, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The Spanish government has called part of the famous Spanish Foreign legion out of Morocco to combat the revolutionary spirit at home.

19 LUXURIOUS HOMES DESTROYED BY $800,000 FIRE

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Flames blown by a 40-mile wind destroyed 19 luxurious homes lining the ocean front at Malibu Beach early today before being put out by firemen and film personages who owned several of the houses.

It was the second disastrous blaze in less than a year at the fashionable resort and the loss was estimated by fire officials at $800,000. A previous fire destroyed nine homes.

The brisk off-shore breeze, which threatened to spread the flames throughout the mile long row of more than 100 houses, was blamed for starting the fire. Officials said it snapped a high tension wire, which fell on a tank of gasoline in the home of J. B. Fredericks, real estate executive, causing an explosion.

Most of the houses were vacant, the owners having moved to Hollywood for the winter. Among the film people still occupying their houses were Marie Prevost, actress; Dave Butler, film director, and George De Sylva, song writer.

DANIEL FROHMAN ON HIS WAY TO RECOVERY

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(AP)—Daniel Frohman, dean of theatrical producers, was on his way to recovery today from injuries he received when a taxicab ran him down yesterday.

Dr. George Schwartz, his physician, said Frohman had a comfortable day and would be able to leave the Park East hospital in two weeks.

An X-ray examination showed a fractured collarbone as well as dislocated shoulder and lacerations of the scalp.

PREMIER OF ONTARIO TENDERS RESIGNATION

TORONTO, Dec. 15—(AP)—G. Howard Ferguson, ten years premier of Ontario, handed his resignation to Lieutenant-Governor W. D. Ross today.

Retirement as head of the Ontario government follows his recent acceptance of the post of high commissioner for Canada in London. He will be succeeded by Hon. George S. Henry, present minister of highways.

Partial Paralysis [illegible]oincare's Illness

[illegible]riends Report Former President of France as in Serious Condition

PARIS, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The condition of former President Poincare, who is ill at his home here, was described tonight by some of his friends as "serious" and even critical. According to one report he had been stricken with paralysis.

Because of the patient's advanced age—he was born in 1860— his life of hard and indefatiguable work and the severe operation which he underwent in 1929, it was felt that almost any ailment must be regarded with apprehension.

The fact that a consultation of several doctors was called for late this evening also was unfavorably interpreted.

Georges Leygues, minister of the interior and a lifelong friend of Poincare, told newspaper men this evening after talking with Madame Poincare: "His condition is very serious indeed."

ASKS RECEIVERSHIP FOR F. E. KINGSTON & CO., BROKERS

HARTFORD, Dec. 15.—(AP)—By direction of State Bank Commissioner Lester E. Shippee, application was filed in superior court late today asking appointment of a receiver for the brokerage house of F. E. Kingston & Co.

The action was filed by Assistant Attorney General John H. King, and asked appointment of the Phoenix Bank and Trust Co., of Hartford, as receiver. The company was one of the largest brokerage firms in the state, with branches in all of the principal cities of Connecticut, and in New York.

Company officials late today would make no comment on the action.

In the complaint, the bank commissioner stated that "after an exhaustive examination of F. E. Kingston & Co., the firm was found to be technically solvent, but a large proportion of its assets are in a frozen condition. The firm has no liquid working capital with which to meet its current obligations and it is therefore unsafe for it to continue."

The action followed extensive examination of the firm's condition, conducted Saturday and Sunday by 15 examiners from the state banking department.

U. S. RECEIVES $123,989,450 FROM FOREIGN GOVTS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—(AP)—The treasurer today received $122,989,450 from 11 foreign governments as payment on their funded indebtedness to the United States.

Of the total, $30,854,052 was in payment of principal and $92,135,398 for interest. All payments were in cash.

Interest payments received were from Belgium, $1,625,000; Estonia $150,000; Finland, $129,985; France, $19,325,000; Great Britain, $66,390,000; Hungary, $28,304; Italy, $1,260,625; Latvia $50,000; Lithuania $93,528, and Poland $3,082,555.

Those making payments on the principal included Czechoslovakia, $1,500,-000; Finland $55,000; Great Britain $28,000,000; Hungary $1,755, and Poland $1,287,297.

Of the principal received, $28,995,117 was on account of the obligations originally acquired for cash advanced under the authority of the liberty bond acts. All such cash payments of principal must be applied to debt retirement. The amount was applied to treasury certificates maturing today.

The remaining $93,994,33 is available to meet current government expenditures and was included in President Hoover's budget message to congress.

DEFENSE TESTIMONY FOR MAJOR CHARLES A. SHEPARD

KANSAS CITY, Kans., Dec. 15—(AP)—Some of the prosecution's own witnesses were turned to the defense of Major Charles A. Shepard today in his trial for the alleged poison murder of his wife, and testified it was possible Mrs. Shepard died from medicine prescribed by another army medical officer.

When court adjourned for the day the records contained testimony that in Mrs. Shepard's fatal illness at Fort Riley, Kans., in June, 1929, a solution of the poison which the government contends caused death was used as a mouth wash at the direction of Major M. A. Rose, a dentist.

INTERNATIONAL SUGAR CONFERENCE A FAILURE

BRUSSELS, Dec. 15—(AP)—The international sugar conference, called in an effort to stabilize the industry over the world and save it from the ills of overproduction, ended in failure today.

Thomas L. Chadbourne, head of the Cuban-American sugar commission and and prime mover in the conference, blamed the "exorbitant and unjustified demands" of the German delegation, and adjournment was taken when the Germans persisted in their refusal to sign an agreement for reduction of exportation which the other great sugar-exporting nations had accepted.

COLD WINDS, RAIN AND SNOW IN SOUTHERN STATES

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 15—(AP)—Biting winds from the north tonight brought chilling rains and some snow to most of Dixie, extending as far south as the northern sections of Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana.

Freezing temperatures were predicted by government forecasters in northwestern Florida.

Atlanta was prepared for the first snowfall of the winter. A low of 32 has been predicted here tomorrow.

COUNT FELIX VON LUCKNER INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Dec. 15—(AP)—A peacetime hazard proved the undoing today of Count Felix Von Luckner, who came through the World war unscathed. He was seriously injured in an automobile accident near Waukegan.

The machine which he rode with his secretary and two friends skidded on the snow covered highway north of here and overturned. The German "sea devil" suffered a fractured right collar bone and several broken ribs

SENATE VOTES $1,085,529,303 TREASURY-POSTOFFICE BILL

Adds to the House Bill $1,190,380 For Pay Increases to Government Employes, $750,000 For Northern Trans-Continental Air Mail Route, $345,000 For International Air Mail and $35,000 For Coast Guard Station at Green Bay, Wis.—Bill Now Goes Back to the House For Agreement to Amendments—House Rejects Motion to Suspend Rules to Pass $30,000,000 Drought Relief Measure

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—(AP)—The first of the government's annual supply measures—the treasury-postoffice appropriation bill—was passed today by the senate.

The bill as aproved by the senate carried $1,085,529,303. It now goes back to the house for agreement to amendments.

The senate added $1,190,380 for pay increases to government employes; $750,000 for a new northern trans-continental air mail route; $345,000 for extending the international air mail and $35,000 for a coast guard station on Green Bay, Wisconsin.

In addition, the senate amended the bill to provide for salary increases to government employes.

HOUSE HOLDS FOR $30,000,000 DROUGHT RELIEF PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Holding their own lines rigid, the house democrats separated enough republican stragglers from the majority today to beat back an attempt by administration leaders to put an unaltered $80,000,000 drought relief program through that branch in preference to the senate's $60,000,000 fund.

By 205 to 159, the move to suspend rules and pass the house measure was defeated. It would have required a two-thirds majority of those voting to secure passage.

The dispute was the most spectacular of this session in the house. Led by Representative Garner of Texas, the democrats lost only one vote—Black of New York—to the republicans while 16 republicans and the lone farmer-labor—Kvale of Minnesota—jointed them. Seventy-one either failed to vote or were paired.

Although blocked in their attempt to prevent a vote on the senate's $60,-000,000 proposal, the republicans plan to seek action again under a more liberal procedure later in the week.

The house agricultural committee now proposes to consider the senate proposal with a view to attempting to eliminate the provision for loans for food and clothing to which the administration objects.

Debate in the house was limited under the procedure by which the measure was brought up, but the brevity appeared to add zest to the vigor with which republican and democrat matched words for and against the proposal.

Sixteen republicans voted against suspending the rule. They were: Browne, Cooper, Hull, Kading, Nelson, and Schneider of Wisconsin; Campbell of Iowa; Christgau of Minnesota; Craddock and Finley of Kentucky; Garber of Oklahoma; Garber and Lankford, and Shaffer, of Virginia; Lambertson of Kansas; Leavitt of Montana.

Representative Purnell of Indiana led the republican drive against the senate measure, saying he opposed "buying food for human beings," rather than the amount of money authorized.

"If we buy food for the farmers, there is no reason why we should not buy for every unemployed man in the United States," he said.

Referring to Purnell's remarks, Garner said:

"We are to be congratulated upon one thing and that is that the spokesman for the republican side has conceded that $60,000,000 will be included in the bill. I think we have made some progress over the condition last week."

The Texan said he could increase the surtax on individual incomes of over $100,000 net income, 5 per cent and get $108,000,000.

"Every man and woman in this country," he said, "who has an income in excess of $100,000 ought to be willing, at a time like this, to contribute something to help the poor."

Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the republican leader, said the Red Cross and other relief agencies were capable of taking care of the food wants of the farmers, while congress would be expected to make equal provisions for unemployed in industrial areas should the senate proposal be accepted.

SENATE DEBATES HOOVER'S EMERGENCY RELIEF PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—President Hoover's emergency relief program was defended and challenged in the senate today in an outburst of debate following a revolt against the conference agreement on the emergency $116,000,000 construction appropriation.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, came to the defense of the president with an appeal for non-partisan consideration of emergency measures. He quoted Red Cross and unemployment commission officials in declaring the Hoover policies adequate to meet the situation.

Senator LaFollette, republican, Wisconsin, challenged the adequacy of this program; read telegrams from labor officials in more than a score of cities to support his contention, and finally called for a separate congressional study of the situation and a direct appropriation to meet distress if necessary.

While Watson was denied any breakdown in the promise of the leaders of the two parties for co-operation on emergency bills, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, encouraged opposition in his party early in the day when he announced willingness, in the interest of speed, to give up an amendment to the $116,-000,000 appropriation taking away from the president the right to use the money as he saw fit.

Senators Dill, of Washington, and McKellar, of Tennessee, both democrats, announced they would not yield on this point. Senator Couzens, republican, Michigan, entered a protest against the proposal of the conferees to eliminate his amendment requiring that local labor be employed.

Senator Borah, republican, of Idaho, appealed to the objectors not to bind the senate and house conferees, despite their "unauthorized" tentative agreement, with a plea of "for God's sake let's get something done to help feed the people who are hungry."

CAPONE ATTORNEYS WIN CONTINUANCE OF HEARING

CHICAGO, Dec. 15—(AP)—What had been anticipated as a red letter day in the contest between law enforcement agencies and "public enemies" turned out to be just another day of continuances.

"Scarface Al" Capone, the gang leader who heads the list of "enemies," failed to appear in federal court where charges of contempt were being pressed against him, but his attorneys were given until January 10 to show cause why he should not be cited and the preliminary hearing was continued to Jan. 19.

Ralph Capone, older but less widely known brother of the "big fellow", had his trial on vagrancy charges in municipal court continued to Jan. 21.

A third "enemy," William J. "Three-Fingered Jack" White, in circuit court on charges of killing a policeman, was told his trial would not be held until Jan. 12.

Joseph "Pepe" Genaro, whose reputation as a bomb specialist gave him a place on the gangster list, was given a continuance until Friday on a vagrancy charge while the state's attorney, on order from Municipal Judge John Lyle, further investigated his record.

HOME OF MAGISTRATE DAMAGED BY EXPLOSIVES

DANVILLE, Va., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Police maintained roving patrols in the outer sections of Schoolfield tonight to supplement the more centrally located military patrols as a guard against further dynamiting of the dwellings of non-union workers.

Explosives early this morning damaged the home of Magistrate R. S. Fitts, police justice at Schoolfield, who has tried a number of cases since the strike began. The explosive, believed by police to have been a stick of dynamite, was set off under the floor of the front porch near the door. The blast demolished the framework of the entrance, knocked a hole three feet wide in the floor and scattered pieces of timber and glass over the living room.

No one was hurt.

PROVIDENCE MAN MISSING SINCE SINKING OF BOAT

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Federal and state investigations into the burning and sinking last night of the excursion boat Eureka II were ordered today as authorities sought to establish definitely a list of dead, missing and rescued persons.

Three were known to be dead and three were reported missing. Various checks of the survivors generally listed 135, with 114 identified. Others left rescue boats without giving their names to checkers at the various docks. The exact number aboard was not known as no passenger list was kept.

The three persons reported missing, and not located tonight, were Frank J. Keefe, of Providence, R. I.; J. S. Haig, of Pomona, Calif., and Mrs. Mary Heller, of Milwaukee.

NEW ENGLAND IN GRIP OF SEASON'S COLDEST SPELL

BOSTON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—New England tonight was in the frozen grip of the season's coldest spell. Temperatures hovering below the freezing mark throughout the day, dropped steadily as night arrived and continued toward the zero mark at midnight.

Boston's official temperature at midnight was 8 degrees above zero, a drop of eight degrees since 8 o'clock. Portland reported an official reading of 10 above at midnight, while at Worcester the mercury was at 7 above.

The coldest place to report at 8 o'clock was Northfield, Vt., where it was only 2 above. Sub-zero temperatures were expected there before morning.

New Haven was the "warmest" place recorded at midnight, thermometers reading 16 above there. Providence was three degrees colder.

FOUR FED. POWER COMMISSION APPOINTMENTS CONFIRMED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Four of President Hoover's five appointments to the new federal power commission were approved today by the senate interstate commerce commission, but votes against two of them indicated opposition would be offered on the floor.

The committee approved the nominations of George Otis Smith, of Maine, chairman; Ralph B. Williams of Washington; Marcel Garsaud, of Louisiana, and Claude L. Draper, of Wyoming. Both Smith and Garsaud met opposition.

Action on the nomination of Frank R. McNinch, of North Carolina, was postponed until tomorrow to await the arrival in Washington of the newly-appointed senator of that state, Cameron Morrison.

BRITISH GOVT. DEFEATED IN THE HOUSE OF LORDS

LONDON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The government was defeated in the house of lords tonight by a vote of 87 to 14 on a conservative motion by Lord Hailsham.

No political consequences are expected. The government frequently is out-voted in the house of lords, but is overthrown only in commons.

Lord Hailsham's motion would prolong the dyestuffs import regulation act until the end of 1931, since the labor government is permitting the present import duty to expire Jan. 15

SEVERAL HUNDRED PERSONS RECEIVE ARTICLES OF CLOTHING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 15.—Several hundred needy adults and children of poor families crowded into the town hall tonight to receive garments and toys which were collected for that purpose by the town selectmen. First Selectman Albert L. French was assisted in the distribution work by Mrs. Bessie Picknell, Mrs. Fred N. Flagg, Mrs. Frank L. Ford, Mrs. Charles Maass, Mrs. John E. Stoughton and Heliodore Trudeau. Articles given out included scores of pairs of shoes, overshoes and rubbers, over 100 dresses and nearly the same number of coats for men and women, 100 miscellaneous articles of wearing apparel, some 200 toys and various odds and ends, all of which found ready hands to receive them. The tremendous task of collecting, sorting and distributing these Christmas donations has all been accomplished with the generous cooperation of the public and does not represent the expenditure of a single penny.

New M. D. Native Son

Dr. Eras Rafferty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Rafferty of 262 Church street and a graduate of the Jefferson Medical college in Philadelphia, Pa., today inaugurated a general practice in offices in the Professional building on North street. The young M. D. is a graduate of Windham high school, class of 1920, and of Brown university, 1924. He received his degree from Jefferson in 1928 and then served a 27 months' rotating service interneship, combining both medical and surgical training in the Jefferson Medical college hospital. This was followed by special work at the same college. On Dec. 2 he was notified of his having successfully passed the examinations of the Connecticut state medical examining board. Dr. Rafferty has the best wishes of a wide circle of friends for a most successful career in his chosen profession.

Provision to carry out a resolution to have West Main street patrolled as adopted some two years ago while the late William E. Jackson was chairman of the police committee is made in a re-assignment of the patrolmen for the month of December. The new assignments, announced by Chief Thomas F. Grady, are: Lower Main street, William Hurley; Jackson street, Pierre Marrotte; center Main, Arthur Hurley; upper Main, Albert Montie; West Main street, Grant Bombria; Pleasant street, Leo Piche; day duty, Roderick Lariviere; day duty, F. R. Laramie; day relief duty, Ralph Burchnall; night relief duty, John Killourey.

Pot Begins Boiling at P. O.

Like rising mercury in a thermometer, the Christmas rush is gradually but surely getting underway at the postoffice and this morning over 75 extra sacks of parcel post matter were added to extra mail received Sunday for delivery during the day. The postoffice authorities are ready for the rush, which is expected to begin in earnest about Thursday, according to Postmaster Frank M. Smith. Substitute carriers and clerks and automobile trucks stand ready to be called in. Today was the last for mailing in time to insure delivery in Europe. Much of this foreign mail went out through the local postoffice last week, most of it in the form of money orders or registered matter.

The custom of an exchange of gifts between the members of Francis S. Long Woman's Relief corps, No. 28, will give way this year at the annual Christmas party next Wednesday evening to the contribution of each member of a gift which will be given to some needy child of the town.

GENEROUS BUSINESS MEN ANXIOUS TO HELP NEEDY

Samuel Kuslansky has made a generous offer to each of the first 50 needy families who will apply at his store on Main street Dec. 23. This offer applies to needy families only. By reason of so much unemployment, Mr. Kuslansky believes that there are several families who will be short of provisions for Christmas day. There are no strings attached to this offer and any representative of such needy family who will call at the store will receive one peck of potatoes, one peck of apples, two loaves of bread and two pounds of sugar.

Joseph Paradiso also promises to do his bit to relieve the pinch of hard times by giving free haircuts to those who are receiving aid from the town and who will call at his shop on Mondays. In order to be entitled to this service the applicant must bring a note from one of the selectmen, showing that he is receiving town aid.

Postmaster Anders Jacobsen has installed a receptacle in the lobby of the Stafford Springs postoffice for Christmas cards, in anticipation of the holiday rush which is already beginning to make itself manifest.

There was a big rush at the office of Collector Charles P. Hodgson, Monday, the last day to pay the personal tax of $2 without a penalty. Those who have not now paid this tax will be obliged to pay an extra dollar.

Mrs. Francis Lloyd, of Thompsonville, was a recent visitor with her mother, Mrs. Nettie Comins.

Italo Fontanella, of Westerly, spent the week-end with his mother, Mrs. Amalia Fontanella.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Edson and Mrs. Ella Edson, of West Haven, were week-end visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Edson.

Home From California

Miss Margaret Fitzpatrick, who has been spending several months in California, has returned to her home on West Main street.

Mrs. J. Allen Fitts, of Rochdale, Mass., is the guest of her brother-in-lwa and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Howard.

The snow storm Sunday afternoon made motor travel very hazardous in this section. The hills on East Main street and West Main street were particularly dangerous places, and the corner near the West Stafford Congregational church proved very treacherous for a number of autoists. One car, after skidding near this corner, overturned, throwing the occupants out. Police officers were stationed at dangerous points on the highways and in some cases re-routed traffic, in order to prevent accidents. There were one or two narrow escapes caused by skidding on the River road. Late in the afternoon the borough road gang got busy and sanded some of the most dangerous hills. The snow quickly disappeared when the sun came out Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Carlier and family and Miss Isabelle Dobson, of Stafford Hollow, spent Sunday in Springfield, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Geno Lusa.

Miss June Adams has returned to her home in Stafford Hollow and is recovering, following an operation for appendicitis performed at the Johnson Memorial hospital several days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Howard spent Sunday as guests of relatives in Rochdale, Mass.

John Andrelsky, of Ware, Mass., visited his mother, Mrs. Catherine Andrelsky, of Corcoran avenue, Monday.

Miss Florence Taylor spent the week-end as the guest of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. Arthur Taylor, in Springfield.

Jack Rumbelow, who is employed in Hartford, has returned after spending a few days at his home on Maple street.

Mrs. Charles Dailey has returned to her home on East Main street, after spending a week with relatives in Camden, N. J.

FRANKLIN

WINDHAM HOSPITAL DRIVE GOES OVER HALF-MILLON DOLLAR GOAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 14.—The half-million-dollar building fund for the new Windham Community hospital went over the top by $310 with approximately $25,000 more expected from tentative subscriptions, according to the concluding reports of the 15-day campaign waged in Willimantic and its hospital area as made tonight. The announcement brought forth a jubilant uproar from some 300 workers of the hospiatl district gathered for the final report meeting and dinner.

There were 13 memorials amounting to $51,950 and including $22,200 from corporations announced in the report. The surrounding towns came through tonight with $21,042, making a total of $118,095 which these towns have contributed toward the fund.

Several special announcements were made including one which indirectly was responsible for the fund going over the top, that being an increase by Dr. J. Arthur Girouard of his memorial from $1,800 to $2,400. Again the women's teams in Willimantic led the men, maintaining a leadership established since the campaign began.

Many Memorial Gifts

The memorials announced tonight were as follows: Team No. 10, William B. Sweeney, captain, $1,200, by the faculty and pupils of the Natchaug grammar school for utility room No. 220 in memory of the late Principal James L. Harroun; team No. 13, Mrs. Helen B. Cummings and Mrs. H. C. Murray, co-captains, $2,500, by Annie, Kenneth, James, Marion Hillhouse and Eleanor Hillhouse Crowell, for a bed in the flexible room in memory of James W. Hillhouse; the North Windham committee, Ellsworth E. Weeks, chairman, $1,500, from Myra H. Lyon and her daughter, Delia Lyon Norris, in memory of their husband and father, Dwight E. Lyon; South Windham, Rev. Joseph F. Cobb, chairman, $12,000, from Anna P. Smith, for a lobby in memory of Guilford Smith. This memorial was received by cablegram by H. S. Lathrop. The Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company employes, $2,400, for a room in the nurses' department; the Polish people of Willimantic, $2,000, in memory of Brig. Gen. Polaski. St. Joseph's hospital, Inc., board of directors, $12,000, as a memorial in recognition of St. Joseph's church, which organized the hospital in 1907 and gave the use of the building, in memory of Mother Superiors M. Tharsialla, M. Alphonsa and M. Geraldine, first, second and third superintendents of the hospital, respectively, and all of the sisters of charity who have given gratis services to the hospital. This amount is to be transferred from the general funds of St. Joseph's hospital to the building fund of the new hospital, and will be applied to the reception room. William J. McAneeny of the Hudson-Essex Co., summer resident of North Windham, $10,000, in memory of Susan Peck McAneeny. The Willimantic Rotary club, $1,500, for a ward bed in memory of its past president, James P. Bath and his wife, Jennie Bath. Memorials announced through the corporations committee, William P. Jordan, chairman, were American Thread Co., $10,000; Rockville-Willimantic Lighting Co., $5,000; Windham National Bank and Willimantic Trust Co., joint memorial, $6,000, and the Windham Silk Co., $1,200.

Other Contributions

A number of special and interesting announcements were made, among them th efollowing: Donation of $50 from the United Ukrainian society, $150 from Obwebtuck, No. 16, Odd Fellows; $100, from Polish Naturalization club; $300, from the Willimantic Woman's club; $105, from the employes of the Willimantic Silk Co.; $25, from A. C. Tyler auxiliary, No. 14, U. S. W. V.; $120, from the Ladies' Aid society of tfhe First Baptist church, and $25 from the Loyalty Night class of the Baptist church; five subscriptions for $87 from Franklin and three subscriptions of $75 from Colchester in the total of Team No. 20.

More Subscriptions In Sight

The Hebron committee, which was organized only last Friday, reporting $915 tonight, announced that more subscriptions are forthcoming, and the Columbia committee also stated that more work was to be done. The Andover committee reported a special gift of $30 from the Ladies' Benevolent society of the Andover Congregational church. The number of subscriptions in tonight's report of the town of Coventry refers to the $6,000 memorial announced last week from that town. It was stated that Eastford, which has made an excellent showing, is just recovering from a similar drive for the Day Kimball hospital. At Liberty Hill $60 was given by the Men's club of that community and Mansfield reported more subscriptions on the way. The Ladies' Aid society of the Congregational church, Windham Center, gave $100. The Willimantic Exchange club gave $150, Charles W. Hill, chairman of the men's teams for Willimantic, announced an anonymous gift of $1,000 and a special gift of $100 from Radiant chapter, O. E. S.

The Jewish people of Willimantic through individuals and companies gave a memorial of $4,800.

Speeches Of Congratulation

James E. Fullerton, general chairman of the campaign, who was toastmaster for the evening, called for remarks from Charles W. Hill, Willimantic Men's division chairman; Mrs. C. C. Case, local women's division chairman; Prof. Richard E. Dodge of Mansfield, George F. Taylor, chairman of the memorial committee; William P. Jordan, chairman of the corporations committee; Attorney E. Frank Bugbee, Mayor Walter R. King, John F. Carr, president of St. Joseph's Hospital, Inc., Rev. Henry E. Quinn, pastor of St. Joseph's parish, and Charles D. Folsom of New York, director of the campaign.

Mr. Carr, who was perceptibly effected by the success of the drive was profuse in his thanks to all the workers and contributors, especially those in the surrounding towns, to whom he said Willimantic owes a tremendous debt of gratitude. Rev. Fr. Quinn congratulated the citizens of the city and the allied towns on the success of the drive against tremendous odds. In the final remarks Director Folsom said that several thousand dollars additional, estimated at $25,000, would be received within the next few weeks. Further reports are to be made at the hospital campaign headquarters in the chamber of commerce rooms until the end of this week and after that to H. C. Lathrop, treasurer, at the Windham National bank. At his suggestion the workers arose in a rising vote of thanks to General Chairman Fullerton and later gave three cheers to Mr. Folsom and the entire committee.

COLCHESTER

SUM OF $800 COLLECTED TOWARD ZIONIST MOVEMENT

A mass meeting of the local Zionist district was held Sunday evening at Talmud Torah hall. The meeting was opened by Leon Broder, chairman of the allied campaign. It being the first evening of the festival of Chanukah, the program opened with the lighting of the candles by Arthur Falk, assisted by Rabbi Abraham S. Lopin, principal of the Hebrew school. This was followed by a program arranged by Miss Sara B. Cutler as follows: Poem entitled, "Mother," recited by Ida Golberg; Song of Palestine, by the Meizler trio; humorous poem, by Bella Golberg and an exhibition dance, by Misses Anna Broder, Thelma Goldberg, Lillie Strick, Annie Alpert and Beatrice Berman. Dr. Louis Goldberg of Boston, director of the Zionist regional union of Connecticut and Rhode Island, delivered a forceful address, followed by Solomon Frankel of New York city, who was one of the organizers of the Jewish legion for Palestine during the World war and who has recently returned from Palestine. Abraham Goldstein, well known orator of Hartford, made an urgent appeal for the allied campaign and $800 was collected at the meeting. Among the larger donations were: P. Cutler, $100; Leon Broder, $100; I. Cohen, $50; Harry Levine, $50; Daniel Goldberg, $50; Abraham Jaffe, $25, and Colchester Hadassah chapter, $50.

A benefit performance of "Lighthouse Nan" is to be given in the beautifully remodelled old town hall. The play is a comedy staged by a group of players from Hebron. This play was given to a crowded house in Hebron some time ago and made a great hit. The proceeds of this performance will go to help defray expenses anticipated in connection with entertaining visitors expected at the Christmas cantata to be given by the tri-county C. E. societies in Colchester, Sunday, Dec. 28th. The social committee of the local Young People's C. E. society, Mrs. John Watrous, chairman, has charge of all arrangements for the evening's entertainment.

At the Sunday evening meeting of the Young People's C. E. society, a most interesting and well-attended session was in charge of Mrs. Frederick Kopp. A duet by Mrs. George Boson and Mrs. A. L. Stebbins gave much pleasure.

Masonic Memorial

Services for departed Masonic brethren eld in conjunction with the regular morning services at the Congregational church were in charge of the pastor, Rev. H. Herbert Tompkins, with Mr. Bonnell, pastor of the First Baptist church and Deacon Lucius Brown assisting. The theme was "Immortal Memories." The music arranged by the organist, Miss Janet Pendleton, was unusually effective and worshipful. A quartet, Edwin Stebbins, whose baritone voice was at its best, William Seyms, William Gerhart and Dr. A. L. Stebbins sang a beautiful anthem. A good sized group of Masons attended the service.

COLUMBIA

A Christmas tree and entertainment for the children of the Grange will be held Wednesday evening at the town hall.

A rehearsal of the cantata, "The Holy Child," was held at the Columbia church Sunday afternoon. The next rehearsal will be held in Colchester church next Sunday afternoon and the cantata will be presented Sunday evening Dec. 28, at Colchester, by singers representing the Tri-County C. E. union, from the six churches comprising the union, Westchester, Colchester, Hebron, Gilead, Marlboro and Columbia.

Next Sunday morning there will be a special Christmas service at the church with music by the choir. In place of the regular sermon the pastor, Rev. Asa Mellinger, will give a dramatic reading, "The Candle of God," based on the Shepherd's story as recorded in Luke. During the Sunday school session there will be a concert by the children, with a white gift offering. Everyone is being asked to bring donations of clothing, food, money, or toys which will be turned over to the school nurse, Miss Margaret Denehy, for distribution to those most needing help.

Sunday evening a Christmas play, "Let There Be Light," will be presented by a cast of 12 local people, under the direction of Rev. A. W. Mellinger, as follows: Father Ambrose, Hubert Collins; Azariah, Rev. Asa Mellinger; Nellie, Gladys Rice; David, Jasper Woodward; waits, Margaret Hutchins, Adella Badge, Ahlene Badge, Margaret Badge, Frederick Hunt, Carleton Hutchins, David Hunt and Westcott Rice.

FUNERAL

William H. Kneeland

William H. Kneeland, a former resident of Columbia, died Friday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Frank Shekleton of Hartford. The funeral was held in Hartford Monday afternoon and burial was in Columbia cemetery. Mr. Kneeland lived for many years on a farm on Pine street, until age and infirmities made it necessary for him and Mrs. Kneeland to give up their home here and go to Hartford. Mrs. Kneeland died a few years ago. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Shekleton, five granddaughters and a grandson.

Slater-Cady

Miss Viola Cady of Willimantic and Herman Slater of Columbia were married Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. Slater's sister, Mrs. Percy Segar, of Willimantic. Rev. Asa Mellinger of the Columbia church officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Slater left later on a wedding trip and on their return will reside in Willimantic. Both are employed by the American Thread Co.

Callers Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hutchins on Chestnut Hill, were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Darling of Pomfret and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Stanley and daughter, Jean, of Andover.

A light snow that fell during the early afternoon Sunday made traveling very slippery, as many found to their cost in putting on their brakes without due care, cars skidding completely around in the road in many cases. A slight accident at the corner Sunday afternoon occurred when a car passing through the Green, applied its brakes too suddenly, skidding into a car coming up the hill, both cars turning completely around. No one was injured, although both cars were slightly damaged.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

There's magic in the falling snow;
It makes a world we do not know.
—Jerry Muskrat.

Stumpy, the three-legged son of Jerry Muskrat, had grown accustomed to the Smiling Pool with a roof on it. You know it was frozen over so it really did have a roof of ice. He liked it. At first he had thought he never would or could like it, but he soon found that it was rather nice after all. To begin with there was no such thing as unpleasant weather. No matter how rough Brother North Wind might howl and bluster over the Green Meadows down there in the Smiling Pool all was peaceful and quiet. No matter how storms might rage above there was no change down there. Yes, it was very nice. Stumpy had to admit it.

He never will forget the first snow he ever saw. It happened that one morning not long after the Smiling Pool was frozen over Stumpy went out as usual for his breakfast. He was sure that he was no earlier than usual, yet when he came out into the Smiling Pool it was still quite dark. There was hardly any light coming down through the roof of ice as was usually the case.

"This is queer," thought Stumpy. "Perhaps it is a cloudy day and jolly, bright, round Mr. Sun has his face hidden. I believe I'll have a look and find out. Not that it makes any particular difference down here; I just want to know."

So Stumpy swam to that place in the Laughing Brook where Jack Frost had not succeeded in freezing it over. Even before he was quite there he knew that Mr. Sun was shining after all. He could see the light coming down through the water. When he reached the open water and put his head out he found that jolly, bright, round Mr. Sun was shining, and shining his brightest. In fact, it seemed to Stumpy that never had he seen such brightness. It fairly hurt his eyes. As he slowly, wonderingly turned his head millions of sparkles flashed and glittered and made him blink.

"The roof on the Smiling Pool wasn't a dream but this must be. Yes, sir, this certainly must be a dream." He closed his eyes tight and kept them closed for a minute or two. Then he opened them and as before millions of little sparkles flashed and twinkled. Moreover the whole Great World had changed! You see to Stumpy what he could see from the Smiling Pool and the Laughing Brook made up the whole Great World. And now this was all white. Yes, sir, it was all white. Do you wonder that Stumpy didn't know what to make of it?

He swam to a tussock, on which he was accustomed to climb out and sit every day. It was covered with something white. Stumpy hesitated for some time. Finally he put his one front paw out and touched this white substance. It was cold and soft, but it seemed harmless. He ventured to climb out and sit on that tussock. From here he could see farther and better than from the water and again he blinked. Nothing looked familiar. Yesterday when he had sat here the Smiling Pool, covered with ice, had looked almost black. Now it was pure white. Had it not been for the smooth rounded banks he couldn't have told where the Smiling Pool was. Even the Big Rock was white. Over to one side was a smooth white mound. It puzzled him for some time. Then it came to him what it must be.

"It's the roof of our house!" he exclaimed.

"Of course. What else could it be?" said a voice right behind him. He turned quickly to find Jerry Muskrat grinning up at him.

"It's the roof of our house," he exclaimed

"What is it? What has happened?" demanded Stumpy.

"It is snow; that is all," replied Jerry, climbing out beside Stumpy.

"And what is snow?" asked Stumpy.

"Rain," replied Jerry. "It is rain that Jack Frost has changed to what you see. By the time it reached the ground each little rain-drop had been changed to a flake of snow, and Jack Frost did it."

"It seems to me that Jack Frost does a lot of strange and rather wonderful things," said Stumpy, thoughtfully.

DANIELSON

MANY PAYING EXTRA DOLLAR ON PERSONAL TAX

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 15.—There continued to be quite a bit of business around the offices of the selectmen this morning as Personal Tax Collector Arthur A. Dean received belated payments from persons who are now paying the new and higher price of $3.00 each to settle this particular account with the town. Some of those who came to pay did a little arguing about the advance in price, but the low rate ceased to rule on Saturday, because the last day one ordinarily could settle on for $2.00 happened to be Sunday. Arguments availed nothing however, as the one and only price at the present time is $3.00. A little later it is going to be stepped up to $10, and that's a whole lot of money to use in paying a bill that nominally is but $2.00.

Approximately 250 personal tax accounts remain unpaid. Receipts up to mid-afternoon for this day were right around $150. Total receipts from personal tax collections in this town up to the close of business Saturday night were $7100. This year's collection of this tax sets a new high record for Killingly.

Has Accident In Pomfret

John Morin, resident here, was ordered by a state officer to appear in court in Pomfret Tuesday following an accident in which the truck Morin was operating was in a jam with a coupe operated by Albert V. Reeves of Cambridge, Mass., near Pomfret school at 9:45 this morning. Morin, who works for a local laundry, was turning into Pomfret school from the state highway when the Reeves car, bound toward Putnam, crashed into the truck. It will be charged against Morin in court that he made a left turn without giving a signal that he was going to do so just as the Reeves car was about to pass. The Reeves car was damaged to the extent of about $200, and the truck considerably bang-up. There were no personal injuries.

Has Auto Robe

Chief John McFarland was in possession of a nice, warm-looking automobile robe this afternoon, a souvenir that he picked up in the street in the central part of the business section. The chief expressed his belief that it must have blown off the radiator of some car that it had been in use to protect against freezing.

Grass Fire Calls Out Dept.

There was a very considerable amount of tooting on the fire sirens shortly after 9 o'clock this morning, and it turned out to be all over a grass fire, an unusual occurrence for this time of year. The fire, of uncertain origin, was in the rear of property owned by Floyd Sweet on North Main street and was endangering properties in the immediate vicinity. The firemen had hurried away on a "33" call when almost immediately thereafter Box 36 rang in. That box is at the corner of North Main and North streets, a short distance from where the fire was burning. It appeared afterwards that whoever pulled the box did not hear the other call that preceded it, but the downtown public was left with the impression that some very dangerous fire was getting underway up at the northerly end of the borough. The firemen were back at quarters within a few minutes after going out.

"Give Danielson's business men a fair break." That's a line of comment frequently heard in these days preceding Christmas. It has to do with trading at home. It is in the interest of community co-operation and well being. It's the fair and friendly thing to do. Merchants here have made careful preparation to serve the Christmas trade. Their places of business are easy of access. They have mighty fine lines of goods, reasonably priced. The business men spend generously of their own money here. They aid, out of their funds, many community enterprises. They pay town and borough taxes. They ask only that their own town's people at least visit their stores and inspect their stocks before going out of town to trade. They ask this firm in the belief that one can go farther and fare worse, and pay transportation costs for the privilege of doing so.

Danielson's holiday shoppers who go out of town constitute considerable of a regiment. It is possible they are doing themselves an injustice by not shopping about here before going elsewhere.

Fournier's market, formerly the National Cash market, closed this week while undergoing renovation. Re-opening date Sat. Dec. 20. Watch the paper for our specials.—adv.

This afternoon fourteen little boys and girls who attend a private kindergarten here were guests of little Marjorie Urquhart at the home of her parents, Lieut. and Mrs. Rose V. Urquhart, on Hawkins street, for the observance of her fifth birthday. Refreshments were served and games were played, the little people having a most delightful time.

After having been a patient at the Day Kimball hospital for three weeks receiving treatment for illness, John F. Lewis was brought to his home on Reynolds street today. This afternoon it was reported that Mr. Lewis has shown some improvement over what his condition was a fortnight ago.

Reading of how dangerous road conditions became on the Willimantic-Stafford road and other highways running out of Willimantic, it was a surprise to many here this morning that this territory entirely and fortunately escaped such traveling hazards. There was neither snow nor rain here during Sunday afternoon or evening, only the threat of a storm.

This week will bring to people who watch for such things the first glimpse of New York automobile registration plates for 1931. Use of the new plates of that state is permitted from today, Dec. 15, and as a great many New York cars go through Danielson the new numbers may be looked for in a day or two. In Connecticut use of the new plates will not be permitted until Dec. 31.

Recent publicity appears to have checked unauthorized canvassing rackets for money for Christmas relief work in Danielson. No such person to person soliciting is being done by any local organization. Strangers and boys found doing anything of the sort should be immediately reported to the police, as they so desire.

Next Sunday will be Christmas Sunday at the Westfield Congregational church and there will be special Christmas music and sermons. The morning service is to be at 10:30. At 5:30 a pageant, The Adoration of the Kings and Shepherds, will be presented by the church school under the direction of Mrs. Irving W. Davis.

This week Danielson is due to take on the colorful appearance that comes of the use of Christmas greens and vari-colored electric lights at many of the homes in the borough. The practice has grown surprisingly during the past five years, and at night along different streets in the borough there are many pretty sights to be seen. Decorative greens are plentiful and the colored lights are being offered this year at lower prices than ever before, making them available to a larger number of people.

Nightly revival services are being held this week at the Nazarene church on Academy street. These services, commenced Sunday evening, are being conducted by Rev. Carroll Lamphere of Wollaston, Mass., a well known evangelist. The series of services will be concluded Friday evening. Members of the Nazarene church are inviting all interested to attend.

Be sure to insure where you are sure. See adv. of the National Board Fire Underwriters, page 9 in this paper. Reeves Insurance agency. —adv.

Tuesday will be the last "night off" for store forces in Danielson until Christmas, for the stores begin keeping open Wednesday evening to accommodate the holiday shoppers who cannot go to the stores during the day.

Mrs. John Barber of Prospect street will have the members of the Ladies' Prayer league at her home for a meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Tuesday afternoon members of the Fortnightly club are to meet with Mrs. Harry E. Back at the home on Main street.

This evening members of the Girls' Friendly society of St. Alban's church met at the parish house. This afternoon there were rehearsals of the Christmas plays to be presented at this church.

The fund for buying Christmas dinners for needy persons here is building up gradually. Receptacles for the money generous people care to give may be found in various stores about town.

This is the last week of the first term of the school year in Killingly. Having been in session for sixteen weeks since September, the schools will close Friday for the holiday recess, which will extend to Dec. 29.

Some skating was being done this afternoon on small bodies of water near Danielson, but the rivers and lakes are unsafe as yet for this sport in this territory.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Paterson and family motored Sunday to Cherry Valley, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Adelard Garripis went to Providence Saturday.

Tourtellotte quintet scored a 22 to 24 victory over Plainfield high Friday evening in one of the hardest fought games seen here in years. It required two overtime periods to decide the contest. Wade Chubbuck, Tourtellotte center, won the game with a basket at the end of the last overtime period, after the teams had battled without scoring through the first five-minute extra session. The score was tied practically throughout the game. The first quarter ended 6 to 6 and it was 12 to 12 at the half. Plainfield forged ahead to a 20-15 lead at the end of the third quarter, but when Lane, its star center, went out of the contest because of four personal fouls, Tourtellotte came back and tied the score 22-22 at the end of the regulation playing time. The girls' team beat Plainfield's girls, 36 to 17 in a preliminary contest.

Mrs. William Prince has returned home, after spending the past three weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Frank Pucko, of Pittsfield.

A whist party is to be held in St. Joseph's parish hall under the direction of the girls' garde Ste. Therese.

MOOSUP

Mr. and Mrs. William Bailey were Providence visitors Saturday.

Election was held at the December meeting of Rebecca chapter, No. 27, O. E. S., Friday evening. Elected were: Worthy matron, Mrs. Sophia Cooper; worthy patron, Floyd Main; associate matron, Mrs. Annie B. Knox; associate patron, Kermit Dixon; secretary, Mrs. Mildred E. Daggett; treasurer, Mrs. Gladys M. Brewster; conductress, Mrs. Emma A. Appley; associate conductress, Mrs. Edna Main. After the business meeting there was a social hour, during which a Christmas tree yielded gifts for all. Refreshments were served later.

Was Norwich Car

A car which was found by some boys behind a clump of bushes on Parent Hill and reported to the police barracks in Danielson, proved to be the property of a Norwich young man, which was stolen from Willimantic Friday evening and abandoned later, evidently after serving its purpose.

Henry Marchesseault was elected treasurer of The Aldrich Public Library association, in place of Lewis A. Hoar, who has moved to Warren, at a meeting held at the library last week.

ONLY KING MAY USE 'ROYAL MICROPHONE'

LONDON—(AP)—Only King George may use the famous "royal microphone," which recently had its tenth inscription engraved upon it.

The new inscription reads simply "November 12, 1930"—the date of the opening of the Indian round table conference, when the king's opening speech was broadcast.

The dates are engraved on a silver casting below the gold coat of arms and cipher. They represent important moments in recent British history, for the king broadcasts only on great occasions.

INSURANCE ADJUSTERS START AN INVESTIGATION OF SHEPHERD FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 15.— An investigation to determine the cause of the fire destroying the Shepherd house in South Woodstock Sunday afternoon has been started by insurance authorities. The blaze proved to be one of the most disastrous experienced in the rural community in several years. Joseph Gobin, Jr., owner of the property, said this morning that he is at a loss to explain the possible origin of the fire. Upon his return from church services in Putnam Sunday morning, Gobin said he started a fire in the fire place located in the southeast corner of the house. The fire, he said, died down after a few hours and he permitted it to go unnoticed inasmuch as the embers were screened into the fire box. While he was engaged in sorting over a stock of potatoes stored in the cellar, Gobin said a neighbor telephoned him and inquired of his wife, "Is your house on fire?"

Before he could reach the kitchen, Mrs. Gobin frantically informed him that the whole upper portion of the structure was in flames. Fanned with prevailing winds the fire gained headway before any assistance could be recruited. Firemen at Putnam were unable to respond to a call for help because of the ruling preventing apparatus being dispatched outside city limits. Had not the regulation been in force, an engine company would have been of little service because of the distance of the house from Shepherd's pond, the nearest body of water.

The Shepherd house, which was purchased by Gobin early this year, was erected by Mrs. John Shepherd, widow of the well known throat specialist. It was constructed entirely of wood and contained 22 rooms, making it one of the largest residences in the town.

The mad crackle of the raging flames could be heard a great distance about the countryside and served to attract hundreds to the scene who made no effort to combat the progress of the blaze but devoted their efforts to the saving of household belongings of Mr. and Mrs. Gobin which were only partially covered by insurance.

JEWETT CITY

VIADUCT WAS LIGHTED DURING MONDAY EVENING

Monday evening when the white way lights were turned on, the new viaduct illuminating system was lighted for the first time. The arch lamps as the lanterns curve with the bridge rail, produce a very attractive effect. Each rail is handled by a separate circuit so that at 10 p. m. the south lights may be doused, while the string over the side walk will be on all night.

Plan to Aid Needy Families

Believing that under present business depression, the Baptist church can be of practical service to the community, it was voted at the close of the prayer meeting last Wednesday evening to send out baskets of food to worthy families. This is not intended to interfere with the regular work of The King's Daughters and other organizations nor to replace it, but as an emergency measure. All who wish to have a part in this were asked to bring their gifts to the vestry and place them on tables in the kitchen, either Sunday, Dec. 21st or Monday forenoon, Dec. 22nd, from ten to twelve. Anyone wishing to give money may hand it either to Rev. E. E. Scates, pastor; Earl M. Palmer, superintendent of the Sunday school or E. M. Gray, treasurer. This will be used in purchasing supplies.

Any kind of staple food is desirable, potatoes, onions, turnips, carrots, cereals, tea, coffee, lard, butter, flour, apples, etc.

The smallest as well as the largest gift will be acceptable and it was pointed out that, with all working together, much good may be done in the name of Him who said, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these My brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

The Crusaders will have a Christmas meeting in the Baptist vestry Wednesday afternoon after school. There will be a story about how children in Porto Rico celebrate Christmas.

Mrs. John Conboy is home after two month's treatment at the Norwich State hospital.

During the cold afternoon Sunday, with the chill of threatened snow in the air, a local man whom business called on a long ride through the outlying districts, upon returning, told of the real comfort he received along the route from the sight of the farmers' wood-piles. They were to be seen towering above the door yard block, a small mountain all sawed and split ready to be piled in the near-by shed. In the old farm days, the hired man was expected to come up from the field just in time to put in ten minutes at the block before he sat down to dinner. These great heaps of wood, before the farm house door, are the product of a few minutes now and then with the saw and axe, never as the result of many steady days of labor. Coming along to one house the passer-by, seeing no wood pile, asked the farmer, as he was seen standing in the door of the empty shed, "Where is your wood pile?" "Wood?" said the owner of the fine farm, "we burn coal and have steam heat!"

Sent Owl From Norwich

This week's Items of Interest issued by Dr. John B. May, director, division of ornithology, of the Massachusetts department of agriculture, contains the following note: A dead Saw-whet Owl, evidently struck by an auto, was picked up in Norwich, Conn., November 26 and sent to this office for identification. We are always glad to help in such cases and all specimens which arrive in good condition are passed on to the Boston Society of Natural History for their collection, but please send such specimens by special delivery, for there is no refrigeration on most mail cars.

PUTNAM

LIONEL DUGAS BURIED WITH SCOUT HONORS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 15.—Boy Scouts of St. Mary's church accorded the honor of a soldier's burial this morning to Lionel Dugas, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Dugas of Milton street, who died Saturday at the Backus hospital in Norwich, following a brief illness. Gathering at the home at 9 o'clock, the various troops of kahki-clad youngsters, under the direction of Scoutmasters Edward Donovan and John Simonzi, marched ahead of the funeral cortege to the strains of a funeral dirge played by the Boy Scouts band of 60 pieces. With the arrival of the procession at the church, the scouts filed into the edifice to assist at the solemn high mass of requiem, celebrated by Rev. U. O. Bellerose and largely attended by many friends and classmates of the boy. Rev. Fr. Bellerose was assisted at the mass by Rev. Joseph Normand as deacon, and Rev. Joseph D. Casey as sub-deacon. A special service of music was rendered by the 9 o'clock choir under the direction of Miss Rose Metras, church organist.

After the mass the Boy Scouts formed in marching order and escorted the procession to St. Mary's cemetery, where burial took place. A complement of eight Boy Scouts acting as honorary pall bearers marched beside the hearse as it proceeded to the cemetery. The committal service was in charge of Rev. Fr. Bellerose.

As the body of their departed comrade was being lowered into the grave, the scouts stood at attention while two buglers, Alphonse Cartier and Alvin Gagne, sounded Taps.

The bearers were Joseph McDonald, Normand Bonneville, Robert Mullan, Edward Joyal, Ralph Donnelly and Gerald Gaucher. Among the great many floral pieces were several from the students of grade 7, St. Mary's school, which he attended; from the Boy Scouts band, and from the members of troop 6.

The funeral service was most impressive and showed the esteem in which the boy was held by his fellow associates. Since his admittance to the enrollment of troop 6, directed by Scoutmaster Simonzi, the boy had shown a great love for the work. He was an apt student and was quick to master the requirements of a tenderfoot, the first rank in scouting. During the brief period in which he was associated with the corps of boys, young Dugas evidenced a desire to be useful in other channels of scout work. His aptitude and unusual devotion to his scout duties, combined with his musical talent, won the recognition of scout leaders and subsequently earned for him a post in the scout band. He is the first boy to be taken from the ranks by death since the Boy Scout troops were organized by Rev. Fr. Casey, nearly three years ago.

Judge Newell Jennings of Bristol will preside over the civil and special criminal sessions of the December term of superior court that will convene in this city Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Among the cases listed for trial is that of the state against Lewis A. Hoar, former treasurer of the Moosup Trust company, who will be arraigned on a charge of violation of the state banking laws. Hoar was arrested in Warren, Rhode Island, a week ago and after waiving extradition was presented before Judge Jennings on charges preferred by State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford. He pleaded not guilty and was released under heavy bonds for appearance in court Tuesday. Attorney Irving H. Miron of this city has been retained by the former banker to defend him in the action brought by the state bank commission.

ABINGTON PASTOR ACCEPTS CALL TO DUDLEY CHURCH

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 15.—Rev. George B. Hawkes, pastor for the past 4 years of the Congregational church in Abington today received a call from the Congregational society of Dudley, Mass., to become pastor of the denomination's church in that town. Rev. Mr. Hawkes said tonight that he will accept the invitation and will probably assume his new duties on or about January 1st. In going to Dudley, the Abington minister will succeed the late Rev. John McLaren, whose death occurred in September.

Rev. Mr. Hawkes, who is a native of Fairhaven, Mass., came to Abington in 1926, taking over the pastorate of the little Abington church which is 179 years old. During the brief tenure of his laboring in that community, Rev. Mr. Hawkes has become widely known and is held in high esteem by the people of the town who regret his departure to the new field to which he has been called.

Mr. Hawkes is a graduate of Colorado college and was ordained to the ministry following his graduation from the Hartford Theological seminary. Before he came to Connecticut, Rev. Mr. Hawkes held pastorates in Nebraska and Dakota. He has served as pastor of churches in the western part of this state and came to Abington from East Windsor. Mr. Hawkes married Miss Edith Barber, daughter of the late Rev. C. H. Barber, who for a number of years was pastor of the Westfield Congregational church in Danielson. They have three children.

Judge M. H. Geissler and Deputy Judge A. Macdonald, Jr., officials of the city court, were in Hartford today attending a meeting of the judges of the municipal courts of Connecticut which was called for the purpose of discussing problems confronting the courts in disposition of juvenile cases.

Friends of Captain Michael Hannifan, well known Putnam all around athlete and former Putnam high school grid star, will be delighted to learn of his speedy recovery being made at St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester, where he recently underwent an operation. Relatives expressed hope today that Hannifan would be able to leave the institution sometime this week.

Monday went on record as being the coldest day of the winter season, the mercury having failed to rise above the 20 degree mark. Tonight happy youngsters were playing and skating on ice several inches thick that covered all ponds in this vicinity.

Orders for the purchase of new street signs have been placed with the firm awarded the contract by the city council for supplying the city with new street name plates.

WAUREGAN

At the recent church supper, roast pork, mashed potato, vegetables and squash pie were served by a committee, Mrs. F. T. Johnson, chairman; Mrs. W. T. Burns, Mrs. Charles Benham, Mrs. Henry Leach. The sale of work was in charge of Mrs. E. E. Avery, Miss Dorothy Atwood, Mrs. W. Williams, Mrs. Gertrude Tracy and Mrs. Arthur Milligan. Mrs. A. J. Atwood was general chairman and Mrs. Addison Tracy, Mrs. Robert Bethel and Mrs. Kenneth Filkins were in charge of the serving. Assisting were Misses Mabel L'Heureux, Louis Milligan, Eleanor Warrender, Helen Carpenter, Nina Williams, Marjorie Filkins, Helen Burns and Caroline Williams. After the supper an entertainment was given which was opened by Vic and His Boys' orchestra from Plainfield. Readings by Mrs. Myra Frink, Brooklyn; a vaudeville act, "From Soup to Nuts," by Earl Leach and David Williams; and a skit, "The Golden Rule and No Gossip Bridge Club," by Addison Tracy, Arthur Mott, Jehu Downes and Robert Bethel, concluded the program. Many visitors were present from Central Village, Plainfield and Brooklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Milner, of Westerly, R. I., were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Arthur Atwood and attended church Sunday morning.

Much sympathy is being expressed in the death of Francis Russell, for several years a faithful janitor in the local school.

The Every-Member canvass for annaul funds for the Congregational church was held on Sunday afternoon. With the return of reports the treasurer announces encouraging response from all members of the parish.

DEFENDANT TAKES STAND IN HIS OWN BEHALF IN DAMAGE SUIT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 15.—When Washington county superior court with Associate Justice Jeremiah E. O'Connell of Providence on the bench adjourned on Monday at 4:15 p. m., Clem Alstrom, of New York, chauffeur for the defendant, Edwin H. Tompkins, of Narragansett, R. I., and New York, continued on the stand as the plaintiff's witness and will be on the witness stand again this (Tuesday) morning. The suit is to collect damages for injuries sustained when an automobile driven by Alstrom overturned on the Tower Hill road near the Allentown Social club about 11:15 p. m., on July 28, 1930, and Hannah Sullivan, Greta Smith, Cecelia Smith and James McMillan, the plaintiffs, received injuries which confined them to the South County hospital, Wakefield, R. I., for about two weeks. The plaintiffs were employes in the household of Rush Sturges, of Providence and Narragansett, and were represented by Attorney Corrigan, and the defendant, Tompkins, by Attorney Flynn, of Providence.

Allan B. McCoy, secretary to Clerk George R. Wellington of the Rhode Island state board of public roads, was the first witness on the stand Monday morning for the plaintiffs and testified upon examination that Chauffeur Clem Alstrom, of New York, employed by Edwin H. Tompkins, who had a summer place on Elm court, Narragansett, R. I., next to the summer home of Rush Sturges, according to Rhode Island law had not filed any certificate of financial responsibility, either before or after July 28, 1930.

Corp. Florence Joseph Harvey, in command of the Wickford barracks of the state police, on the night of the auto accident and who went with Trooper Robert B. Butler to investigate and took Hannah Sullivan to the South County hospital, testified that it was not until 4 a. m., July 29, that Chauffeur Alstrom was found in an auto with a District of Columbia plate after the auto driven by him had been smashed up in the Tower Hill accident.

Corporal Harvey testified that the Packard cabriolet driven by Alstrom had skidded a distance of 22 feet on the Tower Hill road and then overturned partly on the road surface and partly on the shoulder on the right side of the highway about two miles from Wickford towards Wakefield, R. I. As the time was so remote from the time of the accident until he was apprehended, Corporal Harvey was not allowed to testify as to the sobriety of the auto driver.

Trooper Robert B. Butler of the Wickford barracks also corroborated the testimony of Corporal Harvey.

Previous to the taking of the testimony of the first witness, Judge O'Connell had Deputy Court Clerk Mrs. Edna H. Treat called the list of newly summoned jurymen and of the 36 names on the list drawn 32 responded to their names when called.

The petit jurymen responding to their names were as follows:

South Kingstown—Leroy V. Bell, auto dealer; Harris H. Bucklin, assistant treasurer (excused); Ralph W. Gavitt, laborer; Harry L. Harvey, truck driver; Stanley E. Jones, foreman; Arthur N. Peckham, farmer; Luke Pucella, grocer; George W. Tourjee, farmer.

North Kingstown—Prescott Arnold, mill employe; George W. Baker, bus driver; Charles E. Tisdale, foreman (excused); Frank E. Vaughn, farmer; George E. Weigel, carpenter; Albert H. Wellen, painter; Marshall Young, contractor.

Westerly—H. Russell Burdick, photographer; Edward J. Butler, reporter; E. Howard Clark, merchant (excused); Charles F. Hammond, advertiser; Samuel V. Maggs, gardener; Louis L. Matthews, draftsman; Harry Maude, painter; Louis F. Taillon, weaver; Edward J. Whalen, barber.

Hopkinton—Frank G. Booth, oil dealer; Byron A. Saunders, caretaker; John T. Siswick, manufacturer; George A. Watson, grocer.

Richmond—Reynolds L. Card, farmer; David H. Hoxie, mill employe.

Exeter—George H. Barber, farmer; Ernest L. Tisdale, carpenter.

Charlestown—Henry S. Brightman, contractor; Robert Browning, Jr., farmer.

Narragansett—Fred J. Coggeshall, carpenter; Joseph E. McCue, plumber (excused).

At the noon hour Judge O'Connell excused these newly-qualified jurymen to report again this (Tuesday) morning at 10:45 o'clock.

WESTERLY MAN DRAWS FINE IN STONINGTON COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 15.—John Wucik, residing on John street, Westerly, was before Judge William A. Wilcox on Monday morning in special session of Stonington town court. He was arraigned on complaint of Prosecutor Henry P. Hammacher, of Mystic, charging a breach of the peace. The law infraction occurred in Mystic at the Odd Fellow dance hall when, following an alleged argument with Ralph Wheeler, Jr., Wucik struck him across his mouth with such force as to loosen his teeth. He was arrested by Mystic Officer William H. Noyes and lodged in the lockup.

He was found guilty by Judge Wilcox and sentenced to pay a fine of $5 and costs, which were $23.73, on which arrangements were made for payment and he was discharged.

PROPERTY OWNERS OBJECT TO PEARL ST. IMPROVEMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 15.—The Westerly highway commission held a hearing in the council chambers in the town hall Monday night on their programme for improvement of Pearl street. There were 35 interested parties present, including 23 property owners. The street with a right angle turn leads from Pierce street to High street and the present roadway is 20 feet wide. The distance from piazza to piazza on opposite sides of the street is 40 feet. Contemplated improvements call for a street 20 feet wide with five-foot sidewalks on either side, leaving a five-foot property frontage.

There were several objectors, the most insistent being Louis G. Ferrgallo of 4 Pearl street at the corner of Pierce and Pearl streets. Although he does not at the present time have a stonewall, he was insistent that the town put in a stonewall for him and a sidewalk in return for his property. He even said that "he would shoot them in the legs" if they did not meet with his demands. The highway authorities will have a survey made and the property stubbed out so that property owners can see just where the new lines for the street will go and, following another hearing, work on the improvement will begin in the early spring.

REWARD OF $2,500 FOR MURDERER OF SEN. BURDICK

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 15.—Mrs. Gertrude Burdick, widow of Senator Charles Burdick, of Charlestown, has offered a reward of $2,500 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the party or parties involved in the murder of her husband. The town of Charlestown has already offered $500 reward, so that the present total is $3,000, and information is to be given the state police of the Hope Valley barracks.

Brush Fire

A brush and grass fire gave Pawcatuck firemen a three-quarter hour battle on the Highlands in Clarkville Monday night. An alarm was sounded from Box 41, Clarkville, at 6:40 o'clock. Members of the Pawcatuck fire company with motor apparatus and Fire Chief Joseph Purtill responded. Wind drove the flames toward the house of Edward H. Weall on Pawcatuck avenue. Hose from the Brewster tank was used and the fire was put out. The recall was sounded at 7:15 o'clock.

St. Patrick's Players Score

People are still speaking of the success of the play, when Columbus hall was filled Friday evening at the three act comedy, "All a Mistake," by W. C. Parker, presented by the St. Patrick's Players of Mystic. The entertainment was given for the benefit of St. Patrick's parish and many compliments were pay George R. McKenna, who directed the play, and made the affair such a financial success. The characters were: Lieut. George Richmond, the captain's nephew, John Ferguson; Nellie Richmond, George's wife, Elizabeth Eckstein; Nellie Huntington, a friend, Katherine Eckstein; Nellie McIntyre, a servant, Marion Hanley; Capt. Obadiah Skinner, a retired sea captain; Joseph Belair; Cornelia Nellis Skinner, Obadiah's sister, Pearl Kinney; Ferdinand Lighthead, a neighbor, Leo Amero; Richard Hamilton, a country gentleman, Clarence Donath. Maurice McGuinness of Westerly gave song specialties between the acts and was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Daniel Devine. The play committee consisted of Mrs. James F. Hanley, chairman; Mrs. Napoleon Goyette, Mrs. William Gleason, Miss Mary Inderdohnen; stage manager, Everett F. Wilson.

The December meeting of the B. Y. P. U. of Old Mystic Baptist church will be held this (Tuesday) evening with Mrs. Emily B. Holmes. This will also be the annual meeting.

The Christmas exercises at Mystic Oral school will be held Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Herman Eldredge of Mystic visited Mr. and Mrs. Perry H. Eldredge of Old Mystic, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Bailey of Providence and Mrs. H. M. Fitch of Mystic spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Gurdon C. Allyn.

Attended Thompson Funeral

Dr. and Mrs. Chester R. Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Chapman, Mrs. Martha Burrows, Mrs. Lena Parlow, and Mrs. Willard W. Keigwin were in New London, Monday afternoon to attend the funeral services of Morris Thompson, drowned last week when he fell from his fishing boat off Point Judith. It is thought now that Mr. Thompson was struck by one of the irons in the nets on which he was working, as there was a deep gash in his temple, when his body was located Friday night. A correction should be made in the statement that Mr. Thompson was a nephew of John W. Chapman and Dr. Chapman of Mystic. He was a nephew of Mrs. John W. Chapman.

A meeting of the newly formed Parent-Teacher association of Old Mystic grammar school will be held Thursday evening in the school house. At this time, the committees will be appointed and such other matters of business attended to as need to be.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wilcox with their children of Oneco, spent Sunday with thei rparents in Quiambaug and Mystic, respectively.

The Christmas tree and exercises of St. Patrick's church are to be held in Columbus hall, Sunday evening at 9 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hallern of New London, visited Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Pollard and family, Sunday.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of the Union Baptist church was held in the vestry, Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Julia B. Coates. The minutes of the annual and special business meetings were read by the secretary, Mrs. Elmer C. Hall. Her annual report was as follows: "The past year has been a prosperous one; regular suppers have been held in the vestry during the year and have been fairly well attended. We have been enabled to give $450 toward the church expenses, have also helped in the purchase of a piano for our beginners' department of the Sunday school." Mrs. Hall is also treasurer and her report was as follows: Balance on hand Dec. 16, $261.44. Cash from suppers $369.52; sale of fancy work $92; sale of cook books $9; total $722.66. Disbursements: Christmas gifts $15; cash paid church treasurer $450; toward the piano $20; miscellaneous $2; total $487. Balance $235.66. During the meeting it was voted to give the usual Christmas gifts and give the church treasurer $200 for church expenses. The following officers were re-elected: President, Mrs. Julia B. Coates; first vice-president, Mrs. John W. Phillips; second vice-president, Missh Harriet Fish; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Elmer C. Hall.

Funeral of Infant Daughter

Funeral services for Florence Marie Storey, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Storey of Ledyard, were held at the funeral home on East Main street, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Homer E. Moore, pastor of Old Mystic Methodist Episcopal church conducted the services. The child was born December 28, 1929, the daughter of Henry J. and Ruth Marie Bogue Storey and died December 13, 1930.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Williams and children, Allan, Raymond, Russell and Marjorie, of Old Mystic, were guests Sunday of Mrs. Williams' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Chesebro of Mystic.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Meyer entertained Rev. and Mrs. William G. Fagan and son William Jr., at dinner Sunday.

Elmer Wilcox, Jesse Wilcox, Mr. and Mrs. Moses Wilcox, George Wilcox, Mrs. Oliver Denison, Mrs. Henry P. Chesebro, Mrs. Lucy Brown, Mrs. Jennie Clark, and Mrs. Carrie Wilcox, of Quiambaug and Mystic attended the committal services for Morris Thompson at Elm Grove cemetery, Mystic, Monday afternoon.

CUBA'S TROUBLES

Economic conditions have unquestionably had their effect in producing the situation which prevails in Cuba today. Other reasons have contributed support, and because of the nearness of the island republic and the interest therein in various ways the United States must keep a close watch on developments.

Demonstrations against the Machado government have persisted. Steps taken during the summer appeared to overcome them, but recently they have broken out afresh, with the result that the president has been forced to suspend constitutional guarantees for a period of 60 days.

President Machado seems to be the object of attack. That he is a strong man and has done much for Cuba is apparent. He was elected in 1924 and at that time he let it be understood that he was a one-term man. Evidently that was the way he felt when he gave expression to such a view, but as time went on he apparently changed his mind. Whether he was unable to accomplish what was needed and what he wanted to do for Cuba in his four years, or whether he was encouraged by others who saw the value of keeping such a person at the helm of the island government, when the time came for a new election he was a candidate and he is credited with having the constitution changed so that the term of office would be for six rather than four years. He was reelected with little opposition but his opponents credit that to the control which he exercised. With a certain opposition fanned by the economic conditions, the serious condition of the sugar market, agitators against his regime have stirred up much trouble.

This government has no control over Cuba and does not undertake to tell it what it must or must not do. Under the Platt amendment, however, this country can intervene in Cuba if it is necessary to maintain a government capable of protecting life, property and individual liberty and for discharging the obligations with respect to Cuba imposed by the treaty which closed the war with Spain.

This country does not desire to intervene in Cuba. It has been obliged to do so enough already. It has hoped that it would be able to meet the situation without any move on our part and that hope has by no means been abandoned.

HIDDEN WEALTH

How determined some people are that they will protect their money against loss and yet how careless they are in the method they employ is well illustrated by the case of a New Haven woman. The administrator of her estate is reported to have found securities and cash hidden in most unusual places in her apartment, some of the cash being concealed behind wall paper.

Evidently the object of this woman was to put it where burglars could not find it. Except for a thorough search, it is conceivable that much of value would never have been located, for it doesn't appear that she had given any inkling as to where her wealth had been put. She had probably put it where thieves never located any of it, but right where it could have easily gone up in smoke had a fire occurred. What she was doing was, in fact, similar to what a Philadelphia woman had done. She had hidden her money about the house, apparently as a measure of protection. She had not anticipated a fire, but a fire broke out this week. Seeking to save her hidden money, she rushed about the blazing home and suffered some burns before she was gotten out. Money under a mattress was secured, but money under a rug was destroyed, and she might have lost her life but for the efforts of the firemen.

These are by no means isolated instances of persons doing this very thing with large as well as small amounts of money. It is not only uneconomic but a dangerous practice. If the fact becomes known that money and securities are hidden about a house in such a manner it may easily become the center of interest for those who are willing to resort to any method in order to get it. Repeated are the instances where such hoarded wealth has prompted murderous assaults, and yet in spite of them there continue to come to light more cases where valuables are guarded in the same way, even though there are other and safe methods of throwing protection around hard earned and much treasured possessions.

Personal experience is a valuable guide but there is much that can be learned from the experience of others, and it is a great misfortune that more do not recognize it and save themselves endless worry and fear.

STREET WASTEBASKETS

Knowing that there was need for baskets or cans into which the public could throw such litter as might otherwise find a resting place in the streets or gutters, New York has been having a contest to decide on the style of such receptacles. While it was a sanitary move it was also felt that there should be some thought given to the esthetic side of the matter. So a committee was appointed to conduct a contest and agree upon a design.

All this went off according to schedule, litter baskets were decided upon and, while they were of a character to accomplish the desired object, consideration was also given appearances. It was a case of good looks as well as utility. Evidently there has been sufficient experiences with those efforts where cans used for such a purpose had been covered with advertising matter as a means of meeting the purchase price, to prevent a resort to that policy in this instance.

But now that New York has gotten its litter baskets, attractive in design and contributing to the beautification of the streets, are the people going to make the expected use of them, or are they going to regard them as objects for assault and soon produce dilapidated conditions which will make them eyesores?

The idea of placing cans or boxes at certain points along the streets to receive the refuse is not a new one. It has been tried out with varying results. It was found that there were those who recognized the purpose and deposited their papers, bags, tobacco cans, boxes and the like therein, instead of tossing them into the street. Not so with others. They were not to be told what they must do. They displayed a defiant attitude. They didn't even throw their stuff in the direction of the cans but totally ignored them and insisted upon making the streets the common garbage can. Still others considered it proper to see how much defacement could be administered to the receptacles without destroying them.

New York has responded to a worth-while urge to provide wastebaskets for the streets and it is due for some experience of its own in making people use them. It is a good deal like getting the horse to drink after leading him to the water.

THIN ICE DROWNINGS

It is not to be supposed that parents send their children at this time of the year to play on thin ice, but it is a time when they should realize that warnings against that very indulgence on the part of their children are necessary if many untimely deaths are to be avoided.

Hartford has already contributed one to the list of drownings following the experience of a venturesome youngster on thin ice. A second case of similar nature was narrowly averted. It is unfortunate that such cases are necessary to get attention directed to the danger from taking a chance on the ice following a sudden cold spell but such seems to be the case. It happens every winter when freezing weather comes and again when it is departing.

Children like nothing better than to slide on ice and even to run benders with the ice snapping and cracking under them. They may do this with little risk where the water is shallow but when it comes to taking those chances on ponds or rivers the situation is immediately fraught with grave danger. It is one of the places where they ought not to be, where their youthful judgment may not be sufficient to make them understand the peril but where the exercise of proper parental responsibility should be so exercised as to keep them out of harm's way.

Drownings of this character must be numbered among the needless deaths, of which there are too many every year. Such cases are likewise a menace to others who rush to give aid and stand a chance of being drowned themselves. Skating is one of the delightful winter sports but there should be no thought of venturing on ice until it is known that it is of sufficient thickness to be safe.

ALWAYS READY TO GO

When an officer of the coast guard recently deplored the fact that there was a tendency these days to consider the coast guard as simply an organization engaged in the enforcement of prohibition, he was mindful of the fact that the organization continues to render an invaluable service to shipping. It is a service that continues the year around, a service that is subject to call at any time whether it is good weather or bad.

What it has done in the past year is set forth in the annual report showing that it figured in the saving of 6,004 lives at sea, responded to the call for aid in 5,960 cases and in 5,241 of those instances it either aided the vessels or was instrumental in rescuing crew or passengers. When it is realized that the vessels aided carried more than 29,000 passengers, it can be appreciated what a relief it must have been to those persons to know that there was a coast guard and that it was on its job and provided the necessary help.

The coast guard is called upon to take large risks in most cases. It is sought during severe storms and bad conditions on the water, conditions which have invariably been the cause of trouble on the ships seeking assistance. But whether it is during a balmy summer day or in the dead of winter, the call of a ship in distress is intended for the coast guard, or relayed to it, and it is not disregarded. It has established a record for courage and accomplishment that is enviable. It has rendered services that range from guarding steamship lanes against icebergs to the blowing up of derelicts which are a menace to navigation. If a ship becomes disabled, goes on a reef, springs a leak, goes ashore in a storm or becomes involved in a collision, the coast guard is ready to render necessary emergency service, and the history of this important service maintained by the government shows that it meets requirements.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15— Senator Bingham regards it as nothing short of tragic, that when he was working hard not to have the federal government "bring up Connecticut babies" as he had expressed it on the floor of the senate somebody should report him as working in favor of the very clause of the maternity bill which he was trying to have eliminated.

Senator Bingham was a very strong defender of the attitude of President Hoover last week, when the president was under fire of the democratic—insurgent combination to discredit his every act.

Floor Leader Tilson came out in absolute defense of the president and condemned congress for its attitude on several measures which he deems deplorable and against the best interests of the country. The colonel, as member of the committee on committees, is still hoping he can get Connecticut's new member of the house, Mr. Goss of Waterbury safely landed on the military affairs committee. Mr. Goss succeeds the late Representative Glynn in congress, and Mr. Tilson hopes to see him succeed Mr. Glynn on that important committee on military affairs, of which Glynn was an influential member. The assignments of newly elected members of the house is not yet completed.

Except the senators, practically all the members of the Connecticut delegation will go home for the ten day or more recess which is customary at Christmas, and which is still expected to take place, even though congress is in such turmoil and disagreement that no predictions, even as to routine work, can be made with safety.

Senator and Mrs. Walcott, occupying the private residence of President Hoover, on a four years' lease, will spend the holidays here, having with them relatives or friends.

Senator and Mrs. Bingham will keep open house at their big apartment, having with them over the holidays members of their family.

Col. Tilson will go home to spend Christmas with Mrs. Tilson and his son, now a Yale student, and his two daughters. After the holidays, Mrs. Tilson will join the colonel here where they have an apartment at the Mayflower, the same as last year.

Representative Goss will go to Waterbury for the holidays with his family. Mrs. Goss is to come to Washington, January first, for the remainder of the social season. They, too, are at the Mayflower.

Representative Freeman will join Mrs. Freeman at their New London home, both returning after the holidays.

Congressman and Mrs. Fenn are established for the winter in an apartment up in the residential district.

Representative Merritt will join his family for the holidays at their Connecticut home.

It is a new Hoover we find down at the white house these days, in more ways than one. First, at the semi-weekly press conferences we find a president who "has mellowed up quite a bit," as they say down east, whether speaking of apples, or men and their manners.

He smiles more frequently; he frowns more readily; he chats more, and has lost much of that "standoffishness" which at first seemed to hold us at bay.

Next, we find that instead of always apparently accepting an existing situation placidly, Mr. Hoover is now ready to strike out with both fists; we find his Quaker reserve covers a real he-man temper. In fact Mr. Hoover is proving himself a fighter when cornered.

We first learned this when he nominated Mr. Doak as secretary of labor in the fact of determined opposition from a powerful branch of labor; we now find it daily in his battle with democratic and insurgent senators who pester the life out of him, and assail him and his methods from the floor of the senate. Mr. Hoover is no longer a quiet Quaker; he strikes back. Many Washington folk are hoping he will put a little card on his desk bearing the inscription "Lest we forget," in case some of his antagonists walk in to give him advice.

Mr. Hoover has given himself more elbow room by having the two beautiful silk flags which formerly stood with their standards almost touching his chair, moved to a place of honor in the big bay window just back of him, where they show to fine advantage.

For many a year I have sat in the press gallery, and during that time have watched scenes of sorrow, but never have I seen such genuine and widespread evidence of affection and emotion, as were shown when the announcement of the death of Senator Overman of North Carolina was made. His friend and colleague of 25 years standing, Senator Simmons of North Carolina rose and told of his death; then began to read a resolution of regret. As he went on his voice grew weaker, a long pause followed, then with tears streaming from his eyes, Mr. Simmons was heard to murmur, "I cannot finish it," and a page quickly stepped to his side, took the resolution to the desk and it was read by the clerk of the senate.

Was Senator Simmons the only man present whose eyes were moist or whose tears overflowed? He was not. Many a senator classed by the public as "hard-boiled" made no attempt to conceal his grief; many a senator whose political crust is hard as steel, was seen with tears coursing down his cheeks. For Senator Overman was beloved by them all, regardless of political affiliation.

You see Mr. Overman was a "gentleman of the old school." He never appeared on the floor of the senate except in a black frock coat; he never failed in kindly, friendly courtesy, no matter under what provocation. His service in congress for nearly 30 years had been ever marked with bright gold stars of integrity and good faith. His friendliness, courtesy and never failing kindness were inbred. And that every senator loved him, was shown plainly by their tense silence, bowed heads and welling tears, when the announcement of his death was read.

They say that orders for Boston baked beans and brown bread are coming in fast ever since that noon, not long ago, when Secretary of the Navy Adams was caught by a camera man, loading his tray down at the navy department cafeteria. Mr. Adams not only stands loyally by the old Bay state, but by its famous B. B. B. and B. B. as well. With the beans he took along a chocolate ice cream, showing that the secretary of the navy, like most men in political high life, have a "sweet tooth" when it comes to topping off luncheon. A roll and a glass of milk completed his collection, then the secretary pushed his tray along the little track with which all cafeterias are equipped, paid the cashier something like 40 cents, and found a place at a table, just as did hundreds of employes in the department.

I am told it is the proper thing, since that day, to march along with a tray and pick up what has gained the name of an "Adams lunch" down a the navy lunch room.

But out at the great mansion that is the Adamses winter home, the secretary from a beautiful mahogany table, and is served by deft butlers, while from the walls of the stately room masterpiece portraits of his distinguished ancestors look down on him with full approval. For those ancestors were not the type who would tolerate a snob. I fancy they would be equally proud of the secretary, whether as a formal aristocrat or as the democratic self-server.

G. W. FULLER, MASTER DIVER OF NORWICH, COMMANDED FAMOUS TREASURE QUEST

The romantic expedition which left Norwich under the superintendency of George W. Fuller of this city to raise $5,000,000 in treasure from the hulk of the Spanish warship Don Pedro de Alcantara, is thus described in the files of The Bulletin. The story is now pertinent because it was Mr. Fuller who attempted the salvage of the steamer Metis, wrecked in 1872 close by the scene of last week's marine fatalities off the Watch Hill-Point Judith coast:

From The Bulletin of May 13, 1871:

In 1814 the Spanish colonies of South America were, almost without exception, in revolution. Fiercely opposed to the accession of Joseph Bonaparte to the throne of Spain and ardently favoring the return of ancient dynasty, the two years' regency of the miserable Ferdinand VII had again weakened their inherent longing for republicanism and self government, and under Bolivar, O'Higgins and others of the patriot leaders one by one, they had declared their allegiance to the mother country annulled.

The home government, finding the force of Spanish troops in the country unequal to the preservation of the Spanish rule, at length resolved upon a mighty blow which should crush the new-born republics and forever subjugate them to the dominion of Spain. With this intention a fleet of 100 sail, consisting of 33 war vessels and 66 transports loaded with men and munitions of war, was equipped and sailed with sealed orders from Cadiz on the 14th day of February, 1815.

Millions in Doubloons.

The San Pedro de Alcantara, a 74-gun ship and the flagship of the squadron, bore the admiral and the commander of the expedition, General Morillo, and also the paymaster of the forces with specie to the amount of $3,000,000 in doubloons and half doubloons. It was the supposed intention of the expedition to enter the Rio de la Plata and pass thence through Peru, Ecuador and Venezuela on a conquering march, but on reaching the Canary islands, where the orders were opened, it was found that Venezuela was first the objective, and thither the course was laid.

The fleet anchored at Puerto Santo on the coast of Campana on the 15th of June, and a portion of the force was landed; but, being defeated in several battles, the troops were re-embarked. The fleet then sailed for Cumana bay, near the Gulf of Cariaco, at the mouth of the Manzanares, where it anchored: the San Pedro de Alcantara lying three and a half miles from the island of Coche. The troops were again landed, on the island of Margarita, but again meeting with heavy reverses, General Morillo decided to abandon the expedition and sail for home.

As a representative of Spain he issued a proclamation inviting all royalists who wished to return to the eastern continent to take quarters on the flagship. Hundreds accepted, and for two weeks the launches of the entire squadron plied constantly between the shore and the San Pedro bearing to her rich freights of private and public treasure.

Uncounted Jewels Also.

The convents and churches were despoiled of their stores of precious metals and rare jewels—and these there were in profusion, for the people of Magdala and the neighboring mainland derived their wealth mainly from the pearl fisheries of the coast, and the prolific mines of the interior—till on the eve of departure the value of many millions of dollars had been added to the already precious cargo of the San Pedro de Alcantara.

But on the morning of the day before that on which the expedition was to sail, its numbers decimated by sickness and battle and its leaders despairing of accomplishing their object, a fire broke out in the spirit room of the flagship. Feeding on the most inflammable of material, it spread with such rapidity that no extraneous aid could be rendered, the guns being loaded and the other vessels consequently fearing to approach.

In the hurry and confusion of the moment it was neglected to flood the after magazine, and while all were battling with the flames it exploded, tearing the ship's stern completely off and hurling over 1,000 souls into eternity. The San Pedro sank immediately in 60 feet of water. General Morillo, who was at Margarita at the time, forced a loan of $200,000 from the inhabitants, and with the remainder of his squadron returned to Spain.

Holds Kingdom's Ransom.

Since then the San Pedro de Alcantara has lain undisturbed. For nearly 60 years the ransom of a kingdom has rusted among her sunken bones beneath the blue waters of the Caribbean sea, an "unsunned heap," to have solaced the heart of Mammon withal. A ghastly treasure value it has been, presided over by a thousand fleshless, grinning keepers, hitherto inviolate and intact.

The whole amount of treasure on board the San Pedro has been variously estimated. The late Venezuelan minister stated while here that it could not be less than five millions of dollars, which government records and documents on file in Madrid, Spain, and in Caracas, Venezuela, fully verify.

A large portion of this was in bullion and plate, persons who witnessed the shipment of the treasure saying that they saw great quantities thrust into chests by the soldiers and broken down with the butts of their muskets. Also within two years the crew of a small Spanish fishing vessel hooked and drew up a crown studded with diamonds, which was afterward sold in New York for $20,000.

There have been several expeditions sent to the San Pedro, all of which have met with profitable returns by the collection of the loose dollars blown from the vessel and scattered around her wreck. The Spanish government having abandoned her, the Venezuelans, attaining independence in 1821, immediately bestowed the right of search upon Pedro Obrigon, a native banker, who had tendered liberal pecuniary aid to the revolutionists. By him the right was let at different times to various companies, with the exaction of a royalty of 25 per cent.

Many Attempts at Salvage.

The first contract was made with a French company, but the apparatus used by them being wholly inefficient, by continued misfortune the superintendent, the only practical man of the party, became insane and the company withdrew. In 1842 Obrigon again contracted with a Boston, Mass., company.

They being provided with submarine armor of an inferior kind, and being almost exclusively confined in operation to the diving bell, only secured property to the value of about $40,000, among which were five brass cannon. Being unable to effect an entrance on the wreck, the enterprise was finally abandoned.

In 1852, the proprietary right having reverted to the Venezuelan government by the death of Obrigon, a privilege was granted to Capt. N. Tower, of Cohasset, Mass., who succeeded in gathering $14,000 in a brief stay of three months. This was collected in the rudest manner, men descending in a bell and scooping up the sand with a common hand scoop, when the dollars were washed out in a sieve.

In 1866 the contract was granted to Capt. Charles Scandella of New York, who transferred it to the Neptune Submarine company, of that city. The brig Queen of the South and the necessary apparatus were purchased and fitted for the speedy prosecution of the work, but the time allowed for its commencement being limited, it was at length necessarily abandoned.

Two California miners next purchased the privilege of raising the vessel and cargo, but owing to their lack of capital the contract expired by limitation of time before work was actually commenced. This was the last attempt until the present.

Less Than $300,000 Recovered.

From the result of these parties it is concluded that less than $300,000 has been recovered from the wreck of the San Pedro, and this amount entirely in silver, not a single gold piece having been removed. The bulk of the specie, it is believed, was stowed forward of the magazine, and by the explosion was of course driven forward into the hold, which, forward of the mizzen mast, remains intact.

This supposition is confirmed by divers who have dug among the rubbish near the foremast, where lumps of dollars were found, and by the fact that the spirit room, just forward of the magazine, is a common place of deposit for specie in ships of war.

Such briefly is the history of the wreck of the San Pedro de Alcantara and the comparatively fruitless expedition to recover her almost fabulous stores of wealth.

A few months since, through the influence of Captain Scandella, the privilege was placed at the disposal of the American Submarine company, of New York. It was accepted, and a contract, dated the 17th of December, 1870, made, providing the payment of a royalty of 7 per cent to the Venezuelan government, the commencement of work within eight months from date, and a period of six years in which to complete it.

Buys Norwich Diver Out

The company, organized with a capital of $500,000, immediately commenced the vigorous preparation of an expedition. General A. E. Burnside was elected president, William M. Bailey vice president and agent, Henry Waterman treasurer and secretary, George W. Fuller superintendent, and W. Maxwell Greene financial agent.

Negotiations had been previously opened with George W. Fuller of this city, the most experienced submarine diver in this country, to the end of inducing him to accept the superintendency and management of the expedition. They were finally consummated by the purchase of Mr. Fuller's large wrecking interests and contracts throughout the United States, and his appointment as superintendent of the company, which assumes them with its other extensive works. Mr. Fuller was placed in charge of the expedition and its equipment at once entered upon.

Refitted In Norwich

The brig Nellie Gay was purchased and on the 30th day of March brought to this port to be refitted. This has been thoroughly and efficiently done and she lies at the wharf as taut and rakish a craft as any that ever gladdened piratical hearts. She is an hermaphrodite, measuring 200 tons, built in Maine, and four years old.

Since her arrival here new standing and running gear has been rigged, her hull thoroughly overhauled, and every arrangement for comfort and convenience added. Below deck are ample accommodations for the crew in a large forecastle, opening from which is the cook's galley and the steward's pantry, with which a passage through the hold connects the store rooms aft.

Aft of the main hatch a heavy bulk head has been built dividing the hold from the stern of the ship where the treasure will be stored, and where the magazine containing two tons of powder is situated. From this a companion ladder rises to the forward cabin which is all above deck. In it are 12 berths for the mates, divers, and tenders, and their mates, and the mess room. It is a light, airy apartment, and with the after cabin corresponding rather with that of a yacht than of a merchantman or wrecking vessel. The after cabin is provided with four state rooms for the captain, the superintendent, the financial agent of the company and the customs officer of the Venezuelan government.

The officers of the brig are Captain Charles Scandella, Mates James Higgins and Joseph Manier, who attend only to the ordinary sailing of the vessel. Of the party on board there are five divers, three tenders, and two engineers with their two mates.

The party arriving in Cumana bay about the middle of July will at once commence operations, anchoring over the wreck and living on board. A large steam launch with an engine of 10 horse power will furnish the necessary means of transit to and from the shore, and the use of condensers and tubes for sinking wells in the immediate vicinity of the coast will obviate the necessity of journeys of 30 miles into the interior—a toilsome annoyance to which previous expeditions have been subjected.

Use Processes Patented By Norwich Man

In the submarine researches three processes, patented by Mr. Fuller, will be employed: the fact of the deck of frigate being 30 feet above the bottom and of there being little or no current where she lies —the water clear and operations feasible at all seasons of the year—greatly favoring their use. By them the hull forward will be torn to pieces and raised, while a dredging machine is in operation astern for the gathering of scattered coin. The third of Mr. Fuller's inventions, which is to obviate a great difficulty experienced by divers is the submarine lantern which will be used in the exploration of the interior of the hull.

The vessel was constructed in so costly a manner, the bolts composed of pure copper and the stanchions of the finest redwood, that the value of material removed from her even if no gold be found, will, it is expected, exceed the expense of the expedition. Seven stationary engines, built under Mr. Fuller's personal superintendence, will be constantly employed in hoisting, working the air pumps, etc.

The brig sails well armed, carrying two four-pound cannon and an armed chest for protection from land and sea pirates. The crew, five in number, are shipped for 18 months.

From the present condition of the sunken ship, as ascertained by actual survey, there is satisfactory evidence that all operations hitherto have been made in the sand and mud, and that for the want of proper machinery and apparatus no successful attempt has ever been made to explore her interior.

Fuller Goes By Steamer

Today the officers of the company will inspect the vessel, and this afternoon she will be towed to New London. Thence she sails for Providence to receive her stores, and thence to New York to clear. From that port she sails for Cumana bay, stopping en route at La Guayra to receive the fiscal agent of the Venezuelan government. Mr. Fuller does not accompany the expedition, but sails by steamer within a few weeks, joining it in Cumana bay.

After months of exploratory work it was discovered that the explosion which had sunk the Don Pedro had likewise blown the treasure broadcast over the bay. "A small number of loose coins remained in the wreck, into which they had fallen, but the millions covered the bottom for an area of an acre around the stern," The Bulletin of Jan. 25, 1872, reports. "Some idea of the power of the explosion may be formed from the fact that the sternpost of the vessel with 25 feet of keel attached was stripped of all its frames, timbers, transom and planking and hurled through the air 200 feet from the wreck, where it was recently discovered with the rudder braces, copper bolts, sheathing, etc., still attached to it and silver dollars still embedded in the worm-eaten wood, while cannons weighing six tons were found at a distance of 300 feet so embedded in the coral bottom by the force of the fall that only a few feet of their muzzles were visible."

The brig Nellie Gay, on which Mr. Fuller made the voyage, did not bring back barrels of money, but the divers did find sample coins which on their return were exhibited in this city.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—Charles J. Thompson of Defiance, Ohio, is one of the several republican victims of what he terms "the political upset in Ohio."

Thompson is, and will be up to March 4 next, representative in congress from the fifth Ohio district which embraces seven counties including Paulding. He has represented that district nearly 12 years; and the fact that he will surrender it, unwillingly, to a democrat next year, is a serious matter to Thompson.

That aspect of the Ohio "upset" has been a matter of correspondence between Thompson and Don Gorrell, chairman of the republican central committee of Paulding county.

The representative saw fit to put Gorrell's communication in the Congressional Record. Thompson had attributed the party downfall in Ohio to the business depression.

Has Different View

Gorrell wrote him differently. "It may have played a small part, but the depression was not the main cause,' the county leader said.

"The principles that underlie the prohibition movement are repulsive to the majority of voters of this United States as was shown in Ohio by the defeat of Cooper, McCulloch and yourself, all of whom favored the present order of things."

Gorrell, in his letter was full of direful party forebodings.

"I will support Senator Fess as I did the other candidates because I am a republican and a friend, but he will be the next to fall," he lamented to Thompson.

Favors Beer

"There is only one chance to stave off defeat of the whole republican party at next election and that is to give the people a 4 per cent beer . . which I believe cannot and will not be done . . . .," Gorrell added.

"I have painted the picture as it really is. . . . The time for fooling the people is past."

If a solution is not found quickly the chairman added, "then the people will lead the way."

Just why Thompson put all this on the Congressional Record wall, he did not say.

Not all ousted republicans feel so gloomy. Take Korrell of Oregon. Despite his defeat for re-election, he was so pleased with his campaign addresses that he put them in the Record as soon as congress opened; about 23 columns of them.

YOUR HEALTH

Habits

By JOHN WILLIAM SHUMAN, M. D
Los Angeles
From Gorgas Memorial Institute

A habit is a constant practice, a frequent repetition of an act. "It is a cable, in which a strand is woven each day until it becomes so strong it cannot be broken." Habits may be clean or objectionable, minor or major in offense.

Parents are markedly distressed at hair-twirling, nail-biting, nose-picking and thumb-sucking of their offsprings. Later when these same children change their infantile for more grown-up habits, for example, chewing, clearing the throat, fiddling with a chain, charm, coin, mustache, or whatnot, they are tolerated in a measure by others.

These and many other kindred habits are expressions of nervousness, sometimes called bashfulness. The overconscious speaker makes odd gestures and the bashful maiden will twist her handkerchief endeavoring to give vent to thoughts. Trying to stop these habits by nagging and whipping only makes the habituate worse.

The sense of shame drives many children to practice these habits in secret. Lower animal life is not free from erotic behavior. Note the scratching cat and dog, even though they have no fleas; the stump-and-post-sucking, also called the "cribbing"-horse; and the feather-plucking fowl. Nature has endowed the cud-chewing animals a pleasant habit.

Those that decry the use of tobacco should know that the small amount of evil the moderate user of tobacco suffers is greatly offset by the improved sense of well-being derived therefrom.

Folks should know that much concerning habits has to do with an inherited weakness for the same; that few are cured; and many are changed.

BOY SCOUTS SEND LETTER TO MASONS ASKING HELP

A letter went out Monday from the Norwich Boy Scout headquarters asking that masons volunteer to help the scouts build their fireplace. The scouts are anxious to get the fireplace up this week if possible that they may use the building the week following Christmas. A postal card was also sent out again to the carpenters of Norwich asking that more of them volunteer in helping the scouts put up the roof of the cabin.

According to the local scout headquarters, another huge load of hemlock slabs were secured near North Stonington and delivered to the cabin site through the courtesy of the Edward Chappell Co. Two small buildings donated by the city gas and electric department were also hoisted on the truck on a second trip and hauled out to camp. According to the scout executive, these buildings will be used for outhouses and tool and equipment sheds. A stove given by the county home will be placed in one of the outhouses immediately that workers may keep warm and that food carried out to the workers may also be kept from freezing.

Today (Tuesday) it is hoped that a number of men will volunteer to get the roof on the cabin. If the roof and fireplace can be built this week, the scouts will be able practically to finish the work themselves.

SUES FOR $1,000 CHARGING MALICIOUS PROSECUTION

Suit for $1,000 damages has been brought in the common pleas court against Eddie Nowack of this city by Wladyslaw Marek of Plain Hill, Norwich, on the ground of malicious prosecution in that Marek had Nowack arrested on Sept. 30, 1930 on the charge of stealing chickens. The arrest was at night, the complaint states, Marek was taken to police headquarters in the patrol wagon, was locked up overnight with common criminals and in vile surroundings, but when the case was presented in court he was discharged from custody.

Nowack claims that Marek falsely spoke against him the words: "He is a thief. He stole my chickens." The plaintiff claims he lost a night's work because of the arrest and accusation, he was disgraced and his reputation was greatly damaged.

FARM BUREAU MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN STARTS IN COUNTY

The annual membership campaign of the New London County Farm bureau was launched Monday evening at a campaign supper held at Grange hall, Norwich Town. The campaign will be conducted today (Tuesday) and Wednesday. Town chairmen and others to the number of 65 were present at the campaign supper which was served by Norwich grange, No. 172, P. of H. A roast lamb menu was served.

Campaign talks were given by Miss Marjorie Brewster of Griswold, A. W. Lillibridge of Norwich, Arthur Beebe of East Lyme, W. W. Service of Preston and President F. M. Abell of Lebanon. Several of the speakers told of the business transacted at the recent convention of the American Farm Bureau federation at Boston.

Campaign instructions to the workers were given by County Agent Walter T. Clark. With relation to the farm bureau the following statement was issued Monday evening:

The New London County Farm bureau is affiliated with the Connecticut Farm Bureau federation which in turn is federated with thirty-four other states in the union to make up the American Farm Bureau federation, an organization composed of 325,000 farmers. This great organization is at all times looking out for the interest of the American farmer.

Of course, the Connecticut State Farm Bureau federation is not as large as some of the state federations, in the great agricultural states, and does not have the set-up and equipment to do many things which other federations are able to do. However, our state federation is at all times looking out for the interests of its farmers.

During the tariff hearings in Washington officials of the state federation made many trips to the national capital and constantly kept in touch with developments. It cooperated with other states in getting a higher tariff on dairy and poultry products, as well as tobacco and potatoes.

It must be realized that without conserted effort by farmer organizations, like this, very little would be done for the farmer. Therefore the more members we have back of the state and national federation the louder agriculture will speak to the people of this county.

That the American farm home may rest on a foundation of permanent prosperity, the farm bureau organization was created, a vast machine built, innumerable activities developed. Unification of this tremendous effort is secured through a basic platform of ten planks. The American Farm Bureau federation pledges to American agriculture:

Intelligent production— The farm bureau supports activities designed toward development of a system of intelligent, efficient and economic production, realizing that the prosperity of the farm rests on a foundation of sound production practices.

Control of markets—That the prosperity of agriculture may be insured, the farm bureau seeks to place in the hands of the agricultural producers the control of the sale of farm products.

Equality for agriculture — The standard of living of the people of the United States is based on a definite economic plan. The farm bureau seeks to extend to farm people the full benefits of this American plan.

Parity in purchasing power — The farm bureau seeks all necessary adjustments of the agricultural industry with other industrial groups, to the end that the farm dollar be worth 100 cents in exchange for the products of these other groups.

Community development—The farm bureau supports the development of schools, roads, rural electrification, churches, social conditions, availability of health agencies— all factors contributing to the make-up of an ideal community environment.

Public representation — That the agricultural industry be fairly considered in determination of public policy, the farm bureau definitely seeks appointment on all important public boards and commissions of farmer-minded men and women.

A national agricultural policy —The farm bureau stands for a national agricultural policy based on a free, independent farm people as contrasted with the peasant agricultural systems of Europe and Asia.

Enlarged markets— The farm bureau seeks both through marketing activities and through research to create new and enlarged markets for the products of American agriculture.

Full reward for individual effort— The farm bureau stands for that economic system which protects private ownership of property, and provides a just reward for individual effort. It stands for public protection through regulation. It opposes communism.

A representative organization— The farm bureau provides an organization, community, county, state and national, to supply the facilities for group action in building a permanent, prosperous, free, independent American agriculture.

The committee appointed to head the campaign is F. M. Abell, Lebanon, general chairman; Mrs. Marion Hall, Preston Plains; Arthur Beebe, Niantic; Miss Margery Brewster, Griswold; Joseph Clark, Ledyard; W. W. Service, Preston, and C. P. Bushnell, Norwich.

The committee voted to conduct the campaign in a similar manner as last year. The county will be divided into three sections with a chairman over each section, who appoints a town chairman for each of the towns in that section.

The chairman of the first section is F. M. Abell of Lebanon, who has appointed the following town chairmen: Bozrah, Frank Lathrop; Colchester Benjamin Neleber; Franklin, Albert Beckwith; Lisbon, F. L. Kanahan; Lebanon, W. F. Clark; Norwich, C. P. Bushnell; Sprague, George LaCroix, Sr.

The chairman of the second section is Arthur Beebe of Niantic, who has appointed as town chairmen: East Lyme, W. L. Gadbois; Groton, Christopher Chrissos; Lyme, William Sisson; Montville, Donald MacDonald; Old Lyme, R. L. Stanhope; Salem, Roland Allyn; New London and Waterford, D. R. Dimmock.

The chairman of the third district is Mrs. Marion Hall of Preston Plains who has appointed the following town chairmen: Griswold and Voluntown, Miss Margery Brewster; Ledyard, Joseph Clark; North Stonington, Irving Maine; Preston, John Hollowell; Stonington, Clark Barnes.

The campaign last year was the most successful ever held by the bureau, resulting in 396 paid up memberships for 1930.

It is anticipated that the membership for 1931 will be at least equal to that of 1930.

DIES SUDDENLY IN BATHROOM AT HOME

Mrs. Fannie Laura Brown Lamb, 60, widow of Fred Lamb, was found dead in the bathroom of her home, No. 9 Maple street, Monday morning about 3 o'clock. Death is attributed to an attack of acute indigestion. A week ago Sunday, her mother, Mrs. William Austin Brown, died at the same address and was buried last Tuesday.

Members of the family missed Mrs. Lamb but it was thought that she had gone to her brother's room to talk to him.

It was understood Monday night that no report of the sudden death had been made to Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve, but Dr. Gildersleeve was to conduct an investigation today (Tuesday).

Mrs. Lamb was the daughter of Austin and Margaret Dunham Brown and was born in the Falls section of the city February 6, 1870. She attended the local schools and later spent several years with an aunt at Hyde park, Mass. In Norwich, in 1911, she was united in marriage with Fred Lamb, who died six years later.

Surviving Mrs. Lamb are her brother, Walter E. Brown, and several nieces and nephews. During the illness of her mother which extended over a period of seven years, Mrs. Lamb tenderly cared for her and was almost constantly at her bed side. Mrs. Lamb's many warm friends extend heartfelt sympathy to the surviving members of the family.

During the illness of Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Frank Estey of Hyde Park, Mass., came to Norwich to assist Mrs. Lamb in caring for her. Within a few hours of Mrs. Brown's death, Mrs. Estey suffered a paralytic stroke and has since been unconscious.

STORRS COLLEGE WILL HAVE 23-BELL CARILLON

A carillon of bells, twenty-three in number, will be installed in the Storrs church by Connecticut Agricultural college by authorization of the board of trustees for the use of certain funds from the Dunham fund. Plans for the installation of the bells are nearly completed and it is expected that they will be in ringing order by the time of the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the college next June.

The heaviest note of the carillon will weigh 2,800 pounds. The total weight of the bells will be 13,270 pounds, according to the contract. The bells will be hung in a fixed position and will probably be connected with a keyboard and with a clockwork mechanism which causes a hammer to strike the outside of the bells.

In obtaining information regarding the carillon, Dr. McCracken consulted the United States bureau of standards; the Curtis Institute of Music, Mrs. Edward Bok, wife of the builder of the singing tower in Florida, personally interviewing Dr. McCracken; Professor E. W. Murphy of the University of Wisconsin, and the Riverbank laboratories at Geneva, Illinois.

UNCONTESTED DIVORCES ON SUPERIOR COURT LIST

Littlefield vs. Hazel H. Littlefield, Ernest H. J. Kreth vs. Anna Morrone Kreth, Sylvester Fox vs. Julia Machuba Fox.

(For trial after short calendar.)— William W. Bassett vs. Mary E. Bassett.

SAYS TARIFF BILL RAISES WIDE PROTEST

Professor Henry W. Lawrence of Connecticut college continued his series of current events lectures Monday evening at the Wauregan hotel before the current events department of the Woman's City club.

In the early part of his lecture he spoke of the troubles which are vexing other countries, Spain, Cuba, Great Britain and Germany, which brought him to a discussion of the Young plan and some of the objections which the Germans are raising in connection with reparations and the possibility of making the specified payments.

Germany is claiming, he said, that she must have co-operation in having the markets of the world more open to her if she is to pay reparations, but markets in other countries are shut in by tariff walls. The Hawley-Smoot tariff bill is raising protest and retaliation against the United States all around the world.

Professor Lawrence also spoke of Muscle Shoals, which one political prognosticator has said may be a big factor in 1932 and he commented upon the difference between republicans and democrats, saying that the republican usually belongs to the same party as the president of the United States, but the democrat does not. If one were to try to recognize the parties by distinguishing principles he would be likely to come to the conclusion that they were twins.

He mentioned having written to the two Connecticut senators about the United States and the world court, receiving a courteous but non-committal reply from the senior senator, but from the junior senator a reply in which he said that the United States entry into the world court seemed to him a logical and simple step, but he thought the question would be a close one in the senate.

WESTERLY BUSINESS BLOCK DAMAGED BY FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 16—Fire of undetermined origin caused several thousand dollars damage to the wooden business block on West Broad street adjoining the People's Mission here about 1 o'clock this morning. In addition much damage was caused by smoke and by the huge amount of water that was directed into the building by Pawcatuck firemen who responded to an alarm rung in from box 46, West Broad street, at Pawcatuck river bridge. The building is of two stories in the rear and of one story, fronting the street. It was a dwelling house at one time.

The building is occupied on the ground floor by the stores of Dominick Nigrelli and the restaurant of Fontana and McBride and on the second story, which is in the rear section of the structure, by the barber shop of Frank LaPierre and Helene's Beauty shop.

The blaze, which appeared to be in the second story of the rear end, was combatted with four lines of hose laid from nearby hydrants, one of which was carried up onto the roof of a single story building and directed onto the blaze. oFr a time the adjoining building of the People's Mission was threatened.

In the space formerly occupied by the Riddle Bakery, was a large stock of toys, which were contributed by Westerly residents and others to be presented to children who would not otherwise have received such gifts at the holiday season. These toys, along with household effects in the People's Mission, were removed from the buildings by the firemen at the height of the fire, but were later returned when the blaze was gotten under control about 1:30 o'clock.

IS CHOSEN TO SING IN SCHOOL CONCERT

Miss Mary P. Peckham, who attends Lesley school at Cambridge, Mass., and is a member of the glee club of that school, is one of a chosen few who are to sing at a Christmas concert to be held Wednesday afternoon at the Commander hotel. Miss Peckham is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Peckham of the East Side section.

CHICKEN INCREASE OVER 400,000 ON STATE'S FARMS

Chicken were one kind of livestock that increased on Connecticut farms between 1920 to 1930, according to the farm census figures of Jan. 1, 1930, the increase being more than 400,000. Other kinds of livestock, however, were in diminishing numbers in the ten year period.

By the 1920 census there was a count of 1,120,393 chickens which had grown to 1,547,525 by the census ten years later. Horses dropped from 38,125 to 20,639, indicating the increased use of motor vehicles for farm work and for family transportation and the same substitution of motors for draught animals was shown in the decrease in number of mules from 869 to 515.

Dairying and cattle raising were also shown at a declining figure for the cattle count made 112,622 in 1920 census but 157,464 in 1930, while milk cows decreased from 112,622 to 92,840. The census of hogs showed a very large decrease in the ten year period as they were 61,071 counted in the 1920 census but only 16,742 in 1930.

Nolle on $5 Payment

In the police court Monday morning, at the recomendation of City Attorney Charles W. Caldy, the case against Joseph Toczko of No. 27 Howard street, New London, was nolled on payment of $5. He was charged with failure to grant the right of way. He was arested Saturday night after a machine he was driving was involved in an accident near St. Mary's cemetery.

Youths Charged With Theft

Charged with theft, Michael Stevens, 21, was given a 30 day jail sentence and fined $75 and costs in the city court Monday morning. John Twomey, 19, also charged with theft, drew a fine of $10 and costs and was given a suspended jail sentence. Both reside on High street and was arrested late Saturday afternoon, the charge being theft of cigarettes valued at $50 from the truck of Jacob Zimmerman when it was on Summit street.

Knows "See-Bottom" Boat Captain

Herbert W. Lucas of the Central building, who has spent a number of winters at Miami and other points in Florida, is well acquainted with Capt. Clarence Styles of the Eureka II, one of the glass buttom boats which caught on fire Sunday off Miami, with loss of several lives from the more than 130 persons on board.

Charles H. Coe of Washington, D. C., one of the rescued passengers, is a friend of Mr. Lucas.

Direct telephone service between Chilean and Brazilian subscribers soon will be feasible through a concession granted the International Radio company of Brazil.

REAL WINTER COLD MAKES ICE FOR SKATING

The cold snap of Monday, which sent the mercury in the thermometers down to 12 above zero at 11 o'clock in the evening, according to the record of some thermometers, was received with joy by the younger element of the city, for it covered the ponds with ice to a thickness that gave them skating without danger, it was reported. A number of boys and girls were seen Monday evening, toting their skates through the central district on their way to their favorite skating places.

Several days ago the ponds hereabouts were frozen over to a thickness of several inches and many were seen trying out their skates for the first time of the season. However, the weather moderated after the short cold spell and the ice disappeared.

EARLY MAILING ADVICE ACCEPTED BY PUBLIC

That many residents here have heeded the warning of the government postal officials to mail their Christmas packages early was seen at the local postoffice Monday evening. At one time in the early evening just before the stamp and packages windows were closed at 8 o'clock there were more than a dozen persons in line waiting. It has been noticed that there has been an increase in the amount of mail packages being received here. As a general rule the heavy rush of Christmas mailing does not commence until three or four days before the holiday.

Will Shut Down For Inventory

The Crescent Firearms Co. shop in the Industrial building on Falls avenue is to shut down at the end of the week for inventory. It is announced that the shop will re-open on Jan. 5, 1931.

Christmas Tree at Court House

A prettily decorated Christmas tree, with strings of tinsel and electric lights, was set up Monday afternoon in the corridor at the court house by Superintendent Joseph J. Fields.

MANY CALLS FOR TOYS COME TO BOY SCOUTS

Scouts again answered many calls from different parts of the city Monday collecting toys. The total number which has been collected exceeds by any amount ever previously collected. Anyone having toys to give to the poor kiddies should call Boy Scout headquarters.

Christmas Tree at Town Clerk's

Town Clerk Harold S. Burt's office at the court house is given the Christmas atmosphere by a small Christmas tree which has been set up in one of the windows with electric lights to illuminate it.

Christmas Lights Turned On

The strings of Christmas lights along the streets and on the Christmas tree in Franklin square were turned on for the first time Monday evening at 6 o'clock.

There are about 9,500 feet of stringers and over 5,000 light bulbs, which is about 1,000 more lights and about 3,500 feet more stringers than were used last year.

DETROIT CATCHER PLAYS AGAINST SHYMA QUINTET THIS EVENING

TONIGHT'S LINEUPS

Shymas	Southbridge
Dugas or Wilk, lf	lf, Holden or Desautel
Yerrington or Finn, rf	rf, Christian
Coleman, c	c, Adamich
Capt. Pingree, rg	rg, Perry or Ragan
Lemieux or Adams, lg	lg, Pesetti

When the Shymas take the floor at Parish hall, Taftville, tonight, they will stack up against one of the fastest basketball teams in Massachusetts, in the Southbridge aggregation. These two teams clashed at Southbridge Saturday night and the home team was the victor by the score of 28 to 20, so that the Shymas will be in there tonight in an endeavor to even the count.

The Southbridge boys have one of the fastest clubs to appear in this section during the past few seasons, and feel sure that they will again take the measure of the local team. The first game of the series between these two teams was one of the fastest games in Southbridge this season and if the game this evening is as fast as that one the fans of this section can not afford to stay away. The Shymas knowing that they are meeting stiff opposition have strengthened their lineup by securing Ray Yerrington, former N. F. A. captain and now playing with Springfield college, at forward, and Stanley Finn, who is in town on furlough from Uncle Sam's navy, where he has been performing with the U. S. Whitney. Rabbit Gauthier will not appear in the game owing to sickness.

One of the outstanding features of the contest will be the appearance of Desautel in the lineup of the Southbridge team. Resautel is well known in baseball circles and is also a first class court man, having put in considerable time in both sports. The past season Desautel was on the Detroit American league team playing in the backstop position.

The big game will be preceded by a whist party, that taking the place of a preliminary. Enos Eccleston will do the refereeing.

NORTH AND SOUTH CHARITY GAME IS PROPOSED

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(AP)—Hard on the heels of the latest football festivals on behalf of charity, came a suggestion today for a final game in the series, of which four already have been staged here, for the benefit of the unemployed. The idea seemed to be that a combination of northern college stars would meet a similar team from the south in one of the big New York ball parks Dec. 27, but several complications set in.

Difficulty in rounding up players and lining up a field for the game hampered the initial discussions, which were instituted by the New York chapter of the Knights of Columbus in conjunction with the American Legion and the mayor's committee for relief of the unemployed. For the northern lineup, players from Fordham, New York university, Holy Cross, Boston college, Dartmouth, Marquette, Pittsburgh and Penn State were sought. The southern eleven, to be chosen by "Stumpy" Thomason, former Georgia Tech backfield star, was sought from players of Kentucky, Florida, Tennessee, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Tulane and Alabama Poly.

In the meantime, auditors for the Salvation Army and the citizens' committee checked figures on receipts and attendance at Saturday's colorful Army-Navy spectacle without reaching definite conclusions. Until an official statement is made tomorrow, the preliminary estimates of a $600,000 "gate" and a crowd of 70,000 remained unchanged.

Until the figures are checked, it seemed likely tonight that New York's effort on behalf of the unemployed, through the medium of four football games, would net charity approximately $832,000.

The first match of the series, between the freshmen of New York university, netted about $50,000. Receipts for the Colgate-New York university match December 6 were officially tabulated at $73,467. In addition to the estimated $600,000 gate Saturday, the Notre Dame All-Stars and the New York Giants professional eleven drew $115,000 at the Polo Grounds yesterday.

HARVARD CREW TO ROW AGAINST SIX COLLEGES

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 15—(AP)—The Harvard varsity crew will compete against six of the eight other eastern colleges fostering rowing next spring, all away from the Charles river, according to the schedule announced today by the Crimson's committee on the regulation of athletic sports. This coming season, the second under Head Coach Charlie Whiteside, will be the first one in many years that Harvard has not staged a regatta on its home stream.

The varsity schedule calls for the following regattas:

May 16, Navy and Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; 23, Cornell, M. I. T., and Syracuse, at Ithaca, N. Y.

June 19, Yale at New London.

The Harvard junior varsity crew will compete in the same regattas and the third varsity boat will participate in the American Henley at Philadelphia on May 30.

FIVE GAMES IN TODAY'S INTRA-MURAL BASKETBALL

The second afternoon of play in the intra-mural basketball league at the Academy will be held this afternoon, starting at 1:45. There will be ten games again today, the same number as on the opening day last Thursday only today the other two conferences will swing into action. These are the six Pacific Coast teams and the four Western teams.

Although this is the first year this league has been conducted there is much interest and no doubt today's contests will be played before a large gathering who will witness some good exhibitions of the sport.

PUTNAM HAS EASY TIME BEATING JEWETT CITY

Putnam had an easy time Sunday afternoon when they beat Jewett City 4-0 in an Eastern Connecticut league game.

Putnam won the toss and chose to kick with the wind. The game was only a minute old when Fenton again broke into the scoring column when he crashed one past Coughlin. Putnam at this stage of the game was continually banging away at the Jewett City goal and scored their second goal when Wall dribbled through the defense to score a pretty goal. This ended the scoring for the half.

On the start of the second half Jewett City made some nice break-aways but were continually being checked by the splendid work of the Putnam defense.

The Putnam front rank were playing a nice passing game. Fenton again scored with a nice shot from about 25 yards out which the goalie thought was going over the bar but landed in the upper corner.

Wall, Putnam center-forward, again scored when he headed a pretty one in that the goal-tender could not hold.

J. Correia and Austin played a nice game for Putnam while A. Bainfield featured for the losers.

The line-ups:

Putnam	Jewett City
Yates, goal	goal, R. Coughlin
T. Correia, rfb	rfb, MacDonald
Scunjio, lfb	lfb, Gaudette
C. Correia, rhb	rhb, Bartlette
L. Mellor, chb,	chb, Perry
L. Maye, lhb	lhb, Skzolos
Austin, or	or, Miller
Fenton, ir	ir, E. Cantara
Wall, cf	cf, Jarvis
J. Correia, il	il, O. Cantara
Winslaw, ol	ol, A. Bainfield

Referee, Bradshaw, Jewett City.

Linesmen, Putnam, Costa; Jewett City, Vachon.

Goals scored by Wall, 2; by Fenton, 2.

Time, 45 min. halves.

MUDDY RUEL IS SOLD OUTRIGHT TO RED SOX

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—(AP)—Muddy Ruel, once an iron man among American league catchers, has been sold to the Boston Red Sox by the Nationals.

Clark Griffith, president of the Washington team, announced the transaction today. The transfer was outright on a cash basis, he said, but he declined to disclose the amount involved.

For eight consecutive seasons beginning with 1921, when he was with the Red Sox, Ruel was behind the bat in more than 100 games a season. In 1924, he worked in 149 games, just five short of a full season's schedule, and was credited with being a powerful help to the Senators in winning their first American league pennant.

For his entire big league career, Muddy has hit the ball for an average of .282. His highest season's average was .316 in 1923. In the world series of 1924, he hit safely only twice. These blows came in the seventh game, one of them in the 12th inning, and it started a rally that defeated the Giants.

Ruel started his big league career with the St. Louis Browns who farmed him out in 1916 and 1917 to Memphis of the Southern association. The New York Yankees acquired him from that club in 1917 and after a year in the army, he became their first string catcher in 1919 and 1920.

In the latter year he was sold to the Red Sox and in 1922, the Washington club bought him from Boston.

COLUMBIA FIVE VOLUNTEERS FOR CHARITY GAME

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(AP)—The Columbia basketball team, champions of the Eastern Intercollegiate league last season, will offer the services of the squad for a charity game against any prominent eastern five, it was learned today.

The committee on unemployment, headed by Mayor James J. Walker, probably will choose Columbia's opponent. If no unscheduled five is selected, Columbia's contest with Fordham, set for Feb. 28, probably will be shifted from a school gymnasium to Madison Square Garden and the gate receipts turned over to the committee.

FORDHAM TARS ATHLETE HAS APPENDIX OPERATION

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(AP)—Adam Elcewicz, of Cambridge, Mass., all-around Fordham university athlete, was operated upon today for acute appendicitis. Authorities at Fordham hospital announced he was resting comfortable tonight. Elcewicz was stricken suddenly in classes today and was taken to the hospital for an immediate operation.

He has been a star on the university football team for three years and is captain-elect of the baseball team.

BASEBALL FOOTBALL BASKETBALL BOXING

FOOTBALL TOO EXPENSIVE

The announcement that Kentucky Wesleyan is to abandon football because it is too expensive causes us football fans in the north to wonder just what's the matter with Kentucky. Apparently down in old Kaintuck the fans don't turn out for the football like they do up in New England. Up here in the north, especially among the larger colleges, football practically carries the expenses of the entire athletic program. Take Yale for instance. At Yale the revenue from football is enough to make up the deficit in other sports and still leave a balance that has built athletic fields and golf courses for the college. The same holds true of many of the large colleges throughout the country. It must be admitted that football is the leading sport in college athletic programs. This is due largely to the fact that the football season is at the time of year when there is the least competition from other outdoor sports. There is no baseball and the northern golfing season is practically over when the football season is at its height. It's a man's game and there's that element of personal contact that always holds the interest of the crowds.

NOT TO PRESENT STRIBLING WITH TITLE

The National Boxing association which vies with the New York boxing commission in the control of boxing in America has decided that W. L. Stribling, the boxing boy from Georgia, must fight at least one real bout before they will adorn his brow with the glittering crown of the heavyweight title. The association recommends that Max Schmeling, who groaned his way to the title, be stripped of that same title because he failed to defend it within six months and it be presented to Stribling provided the Georgia boy will win from the next ranking heavyweight below Schmeling. They first declared that the winner of the Stribling-Tuffy Griffiths bout would be recognized by this body as the champion but later reconsidered their decision. Pa Stribling is on his way to New York to deposit his $2500 bond to back up a challenge to Schmeling. How this will be received is not certain and whether Madison Square Garden will consider staging a bout with Stribling as a participant is equally as uncertain for they lost plenty of money on the Stribling-Sharkey fiasco in Florida. But the majority will favor the recommendation that Schmeling be stripped of his title for the German boy got it by more or less of a fluke and has steadfastly refused to defend it. As for Stribling being given the title, that is a different matter

AMER. BASKETBALL LOOP IS TO BREAK UP

CHICAGO, Dec. 15—(AP)—The Tribune says the American professional basketball league will disband after this week's schedule has been played. Lack of profitable crowds was given as the reason.

George Halas, one of the principal stockholders in the Bruins, the Chicago representative in the circuit, has refused to comment on reports that the league would break up, but the Tribune says none of the Bruin players are now under contract.

Reports that the league would be disbanded started when the Cleveland Rosenblums, 1929-30 champions, relinquished their franchise 10 days ago because of lack of patronage. The Tribune says that Fort Wayne, Ind., also is about to withdraw. Other members of the league are Toledo, Rochester, N. Y.; Paterson, N. J., and Brooklyn.

PLAINFIELD PROS TO PLAY HOUSE OF DAVID QUINTET

The Plainfield Pros have postponed the game with the Philadelphia Colored Giants and have scheduled the famous House of David team in their stead for this coming Thursday evening. The House of David happens to be in New England on their tour of the country and it will be their only appearance here this season so Manager Salisbury has signed them to give the fans a novel attraction. Those who have seen the House of David baseball team know that the bearded wonders are good athletes and that if they play basketball as well as they do baseball there will be a good game on Thursday night up in Plainfield.

WHAT—NO BENEFIT GAME?

As yet no one in Norwich has come forward with the proposal of staging any kind of a benefit athletic contest for the benefit of the unemployed in Norwich.

DELTAS AND ST. MARY'S TEAMS WIN GAMES IN CHURCH LEAGUE

The third season of the Southern New London County Church league got underway last evening at the Y. M. C. A. with the Phi Delta Nu and the St. Mary's Choir Boys of Willimantic winning their contests. The Deltas took the measure of the Sons of Pericles ,formerly the Gamma club, two-time champions, 18 to 12, while the Choir Boys won from the Baltic Methodists 21 to 19 in a torrid encounter.

In the first game of the evening the Phi Delta Nu boys were never in danger and piled up points early in the game holding a 14 to 5 lead at the end of the first half. The Sons of Pericles who are minus a number of the stars that carried them to the top of the league during the past two seasons had a tough night of it and couldn't get going until the latter part of the game. Dierman and Stavrou were the high scorers for the evening, the former scoring eight points and the latter seven points for their respective teams.

The second game was one where the interest ran high and it was not until the final whistle that the winner was decided. The game was clean and hard fought with the lead changing hands several times during the battle.

The league looks much faster this year than last and the teams will be considerably stronger as the league has voted to do away with the rules barring Academy and Y. M. C. A. players. The scores of last night's games:

AMERICAN COLLEGES PUT MUCH LESS EMPHASIS ON SPORTS THAN ENGLISH

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 15—(AP)—The contention that Harvard and American colleges in general have remained farther from over emphasis in sports than the English universities was made in the annual report of the Crimson's committee on the regulation of athletic sports to President A. Lawrence Lowell, it became known today.

The report, which reviewed Harvard's sports activities for 1929, showed in comparative figures the stress laid upon post season and international competitions by English collegians.

"There are many," the report stated, "whose idealistic conception of college athletics is a purely intra-mural program with possibly one final game. The example most quoted (and incorrectly quoted) is England where there is supposed to be only one important game each year in a sport between Oxford and Cambridge.

"The only trouble about this is that it is not true. A letter from a representative of 'Field' in London contained statistics relating to British college sports which will seem amazing to many college men in this country not only to the number of contests engaged in but also to the length of some of the season's and the number of 'post season' contests.

"In cricket," according to the Harvard committee's London correspondent, "the average number of games the Oxford and Cambridge teams engage in, in addition to the final game, is fourteen. The cross-country teams of these famous English universities each have a schedule of a dozen contests, their association football teams each play 20 games a season, the rugby teams play 28 games, the hockey teams each play 25 games, the lacrosse and tennis teams engage in 15 games each and the swimming teams have schedules calling for a dozen meets. British rowing," according to the committee's informant, "is so strenuous that rowing men take up practically no other sport at the university."

"My informant," the report said, "further states that after the Oxford-Cambridge rugby game last fall, the stars of the teams went out for international honors, and although the Oxford-Cambridge game was played before Christmas in 1929, the players on the combined team were playing all through the winter of 1930 against teams from France, Ireland, Wales and Scotland.

"And while we are up worrying about our excessive stadia and bowls let us breathe a little easier when we learn from the same source that in idealistic England the spectator capacity at Tinchenham, where many college rugby games are played, is more than 100,000, almost twice as large as the Harvard stadium and on more than a few occasions this structure has been filled for college games.

"There are also intercollegiate championships in England. At the 11th annual boxing championship of the universities' union which lasted three days last November (1929) were representatives from Egypt, Scotland, Ireland and England. Nor are these contests confined to colleges. They are international football contests for boys, where the outstanding stars are collected into teams to represent England, Scotland and Wales.

"There is no question that for a time our sports were too serious but when the number of men graduating from Harvard with honors has increased from eight to 37 per cent in the last 12 years, no one can accuse the athletic department of interfering with the classroom because of its intercollegiate program."

STRIBLING MUST FIGHT TO GET HEAVY TITLE

CHICAGO, Dec. 15—(AP)—W. L. (Young) Stribling must fight for the world heavyweight championship after all—which is okay with the Striblings, according to "Pa" Stribling, father-manager of the Georgian.

Before Stribling's bout with Tuffy Griffiths in the stadium last Friday night it was announced that the National Boxing association, of which General John V. Clinnin, chairman of the Illinois state athletic commission, is president, would recommend that Max Schmeling of Germany, be replaced by the winner as title holder.

General Clinnin today pointed out that at least two things must be done before the N. B. A. recognizes Stribling. First that the body vote to oust Schmeling for failure to defend the title within six months of winning it. Second, that Stribling defeat the next ranking contender.

Before he left for New York tonight, Pa Stribling said he would deposit a check for $2,500 with the New York state athletic commission, to back up a challenge to Schmeling for a title match in New York any time such an event could be arranged.

CHRISTNER KAYOES PANKA IN THE SIXTH ROUND

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 15—(AP)—K. O. Christner, 199, Akron, Ohio, proved conclusively to George Panka, 192, the meaning of his initials by knocking out the Pittsburgher in the sixth round of a 10-round bout tonight. The match featured a card which was put on for the benefit of Pittsburgh's unemployed.

Mickey Cohen, 120 1-4, Cleveland, bowed to Jimmy Thomas, 119 1-2, Pittsburgh Negro, in six rounds.

Sammy O'Dell, 139 1-2, Akron, Negro, won a technical knockout over Johnny Smackey, 139 1-2, Canonsburg, in the fourth round of a six round match.

FRIEDMAN GETS JUDGE'S VERDICT OVER O'KELLY

BOSTON, Dec. 15—(AP)—Though he apparently outpointed Con O'Kelly, Irish heavyweight in nine of the ten rounds, Al Friedman, Boston Hebrew battler, lost the decision here tonight when the two judges over-ruled Referee Johnny Martin.

Several times during the battle, which appeared one sided at every stage, O'Kelly was on the verge of a knockout from Friedman's terrific body punches. O'Kelly weighed 191, a pound more than Friedman.

EASTERN PROS ON WAY TO PACIFIC TOURNAMENTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(AP)—Eastern professional golfers will head west in a body Dec. 28 to take part in the Los Angeles open tournament beginning Jan. 9. Johnny Farrell, former open champion, the brothers, Joe and Mike Turnesa, and Tommy Kerrigan, of Siwanoy, head the eastern delegation.

Noank Vs. Bantams

On Wednesday night, on the Baltic gym surface, the fast Noank Whirlwinds basketball team will play the Baltic Bantams in what is expected to be a fast game. The Bantams will line up the following: Churron and Deschamp, forwards; Passmore, center; Depot and Blanchette, guards; Bondean and Andrews, subs.

GREENLEAF DEFEATS WOODS IN BILLIARD GAME

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(AP)— Back in form again, Ralph Greenleaf, defending title-holder, brushed aside Arthur Woods of New York today and remained in the running for the world's pocket billiards championship.

Greenleaf trounced Woods, 125 to 24, in 18 innings this afternoon and advanced to a tie with Onofrio Lauri of New York, for second place in the tournament standings. Each has won four games in five starts. Erwin Rudolph of Chicago heads the parade with four successive victories.

The result of the Greenleaf-Woods match never was in doubt. The champion took a long lead with a run of 39 in the second inning and added 27 in the fifth inning to lead, 66-0. He added 13 more in the 12th inning before Woods counted and finally ran out the game with an unfinished cluster of 26.

Greenleaf showed clearly that he had regained his form after a temporary let-down against Frank Taberski Saturday night when he suffered his lone defeat.

In the first game today, Pasqualle Natalie of Chicago scored his first triumph in five starts, defeating Thomas Boatman of Portland, Ore., 125 to 93 in 44 innings, the longest match of the tournament. Natalie's victory put him in seventh place with Boatman eighth.

Tonight Rudolph and Lauri were matched in a crucial game involving the lead.

The schedule for tomorrow will bring together Natalie and Bennie Allen of Kansas City in the first game; Boatman and Taberski in the second, and Rudolph and Woods in the evening encounter.

KENTUCKY WESLEYAN TO DROP FOOTBALL AS SPORT

WINCHESTER, Ky., Dec. 15—(AP)—Kentucky Wesleyan college has dropped football as an intercollegiate sport, claiming it is too costly and "tends to create in the college an atmosphere not in harmony with the higher ideals of scholarship and character."

The change of athletic policy was announced today by Dr. C. M. Dannelly, president. He said the action had the unanimous recommendation of the faculty and had been voted by the board of managers. Dr. Dannelly said Walter Van Winkle will be retained as coach of the basketball team and other sports which the school will continue to play in intercollegiate competition. He said a program of required physical education for all students will be inaugurated.

The action of the board of managers was taken secretly last week.

Dr. Dannelly said football has "proved too costly, it has become a sport for entertainment of the public rather than for development of students or for promotion of so-called 'college spirit'; it prevents this college from giving proper attention to physical training of all of its students and tends to create in the college an atmosphere not in harmony with the higher ideals of scholarship and character."

Kentucky Wesleyan won two games during the 1930 football season, lost four and tied three. The school is a member of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic association. One of its losses this year was a 47 to 7 defeat by Army at West Point.

PRINCETON URGES EARLIER PRACTICE IN FOOTBALL

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 15—(AP)—Continuing its advocacy of the abolition of intersectional games and of the agreement with Yale, which prohibits practice before September 15, the Daily Princetonian, student newspaper, today editorially recommended "an abbreviated schedule of later season games with natural rivals."

The editorial says, in part:

"Yale pleads for a discarding of pretense. Its team must either be first rate or else admit a change of viewpoint and wilfully take a back seat. As long ago as early October we made the same plea in regard to the hollow shame and empty gesture of deferred practice. It has failed miserably of its purpose; and because early season games on the next two years' schedule are already arranged, the 15th of September ruling must go and one pretense at least be removed. When the mortgaged future has elapsed, we earnestly recommend an abbreviated schedule of later season games with natural rivals."

PHILLIES RELEASE TWO PLAYERS TO BALTIMORE

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 15— (AP) — Tripp Sigman, outfielder, and Harry Smythe, pitcher, have been released outright by the Philadelphia Nationals to the Baltimore International league club, it was announced at the Phillies' office today.

Both players joined the Phillies during the 1929 season. Late last season they were sent to Baltimore on option.

Foreman And Cuthbert Draw

LONDON, Dec. 15—(AP)—Al Foreman of Montreal retained his British lightweight championship tonight by holding Johnny Cuthbert to a draw in 15 rounds. Cuthbert, British featherweight title-holder, weighed 130 1-4; Foreman 131 1-4.

Fay Wins on Foul

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 15—(AP)—Al Fay, Pittsburgh, won on a foul from Babe Hunt, Ponca City, Okla., in the final round of a ten-round heavyweight bout here tonight.

S. N. E. GAMES AT PLAINFIELD TONIGHT

Tonight's Schedule.

7.30 New London Tel. vs. Westerly.
8.00 Stafford Springs vs. Putnam.
9.30 Plainfield vs New London Boys' Club.
10.00 Danielson vs. Jewett City.

The four games in the Southern New England basketball league scheduled above provide one of the fastest combinations of games ever played in this league which is functioning every Tuesday evening at the Plainfield Community house. Two games on the schedule loom as features. These are the Plainfield-New London Boys' club tilt and the Danielson-Jewett City encounter. Danielson is leading the league and has not suffered a defeat in five starts but tonight encounters the Jewett City team which is starting to strike its stride. If Jewett City can defeat the Danielson team it will create a tie for the lead between Danielson and Willimantic, the Thread City boys who are idle this week having won five of their six games.

Plainfield, the third place team in the league, expects a stiff battle from the New London Boys' club who by winning can take fourth place if Stafford loses. Plainfield by a victory can land in a first place triple tie provided the Jewett City club can turn back Danielson. The standing in the league would not be materially changed in the other two games although close games are anticipated.

TAFTVILLE WINS RIFLE MATCH AGAINST STONINGTON

The rifle teams of the Taftville American Legion and Stonington met Monday evening in a Mohegan Rifle league match at the Norwich armory, with the former winning easily by a score of 876 to 721. The high score piled up by the Taftville team was attributed to the fact that the first five men shot at least 165 or better. N. Benoit of Taftville contributed high score of 185. The results:

Kichline Resigns at Ursinus

COLLEGEVILLE, Pa., Dec. 15—(AP)—The resignation of Ronald C. Kichline as football coach at Ursinus college was announced today. At the same time it was said the athletic council and the college board of directors hoped to persuade Kichline to withdraw the resignation. Kichline, who has held the post for seven years, gave no reason for resigning.

BAER IS COLORFUL BOXING CHARACTER

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(AP)—Max Baer, a couple hundred pounds of punch and confidence, comes into Madison Square Garden Friday night to justify, if possible, the extravagant praises sung in the young California heavyweight's behalf since he headed east.

Baer, hailed as another Dempsey by his enthusiastic admirers, will make his Garden debut in a 10 round bout against Ernie Schaaf, clever Boston heavyweight. Schaaf, only a youngster himself, has been loitering on the fringe of heavyweight importance for the past two years, has twice defeated Tommy Loughran and holds a decision over Johnny Risko.

In his campaigning on the west coast, Baer has won 24 of his 27 professional bouts by knockouts. He lost one decision. Aside from his rough, aggressive ring style, Baer has intrigued the local experts with his extensive wardrobe, an expensive car and liveried chauffeur, and his willingness to elaborate at all times upon his own fighting ability.

Ramey Beats Halaiko

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 15—(AP)—Wesley Ramey, Chicago lightweight, won a ten round decision over Steve Halaiko of Auburn, tonight. Ramey fought an aggressive battle most of the way to win the decision of the judges.

Johnny Freeman, Rochester heavyweight, knocked out Dominick Angelo, also of Rochester, in the fifth round of the six round semi-final.

Rudolph Wins Fifth Game

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(AP)—Erwin Rudolph, of Chicago, continued his spectacular march through the field in the pocket billiards championship tournament tonight, defeating Onofrio Lauri of New York, 125 to 124 in 21 innings. It was Rudolph's fifth straight victory without a defeat.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Dec. 15—(AP)—Australian and Argentine reports of adverse crop conditions, together with 1,621,000 bushels United States wheat visible supply decrease, tended to lift wheat today. Corn acted oversold, and rose sharply at the last, responsive to brisk demand from previous speculative sellers spurred on by wintry weather and prospective curtailment of receipts.

Wheat closed irregular, from a shade net decline to 1 1-8c gain; corn 1 3-8a1 7-8c up; oats at 3-4a1 1-4c advance, and provisions from a 2c setback to a rise of 1c.

NET CHANGES IN MARKET ON THE DOWNSIDE IN ACTIVE SESSION

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The decline in leading industrial and utility stocks was checked today, but the weakness of rail, copper, oil and specialty shares put the balance of net changes on the downside.

Cotton and sugar futures, as well as bonds, were weak. Corn, however, rallied and wheat quotations firmed partly in sympathy with Winnipeg.

Trading on the stock exchange was active, sales for the day totaling 3,440,170 shares, the largest volume in a month.

Net gains of a point in U. S. Steel, American Can, American Telephone, General Electric, Johns Manville, Union Carbide, Consolidated Gas and Westinghouse, all of which touched new minimums in morning selling, measured the stubborn resistance offered by the stocks to which the market looks for leadership. The performance of the coppers and rails in the late trading, however, was far less impressive. Anaconda Copper, American Smelting, Cerro De Pasco, Kennecott and Calumet and Arizona lost 1 to more than 3 in a drive that appeared to come from the bear quarter.

Petroleum shares, under the leadership of the Standard Oils, were soft. Standards of New Jersey and New York, among others, gave ground freely and virtually every member of the group touched a new low.

Announcement that a $20,000,000 syndicate had been formed to support Trans-America brought substantial covering in that stock, which rallied more than 2 points after opening unchanged on a sale of 12,000 shares. There was particular weakness in a few specialties, notably Abraham & Strauss, off 17 points, and Burns Brothers "A," which added 10 points to last week's drop of 28. New York City tractions were strong in response to an unverified report that a tentative plan for the long delayed transit unification had been agreed upon.

The government's quarterly financial operations, including income tax payments and the treasury financing, together with dividend and interest payments, involved a monetary turnover of between $1,700,000,000 and $2,000,000,000.

Firmness of demand loans at 2 1-2 per cent, today's renewal figure, was believed to be temporary and was largely ascribed to recent withdrawals by local banks seeking to strengthen their cash positions. Time money was slightly higher, but little importance was attached to this because of the small demand.

Some cautious encouragement was derived from week-end trade reviews. Two or three private commentators reported the presence of indications that the depression was scraping bottom and that the way had opened for increasing activity in certain directions.

It was the fifth successive day of the decline in cotton; active covering and buying orders from the trade moved the market up from the lows at which the spot month was quoted as low as 9.22 cents a pound. Quotations were, of course, the lowest in 15 years.

Failure of the Brussels Sugar conference to reach an agreement unsettled the New York market sharply and futures closed 9 to 11 points lower. The January option touched 1.21 cents.

Foreign exchange sagged. The revolt in Spain sent the peseta about one-fifth of a cent lower, but losses in other European rates were nominal.

Strength of corn, which was up 1 3-8 to 1 3-4 cents a bushel at the close, reflected small contract deliveries, smaller receipts and unfavorable weather. Wheat was unchanged to a cent higher.

WALL STREET BRIEFS

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—North American Car Corp. has received orders for 50 automatic refrigerator cars it is developing. Construction work already has been started in the corporation's shops.

The daily gold statement of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York showed imports of $978,000 from Colombia. There were no exports.

William J. McAneeny, president and general manager of Hudson Motorcar Co., said that with 5,700 men added to the Hudson-Essex employment total, the number of wage earners at the plant now amounts to 9,244 compared with 3,500 a month ago. He said more men are being added week by week, all of them former employes who have been notified to return to work.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The rank and file of curb shares bored further into new low price strata today, although a few shares, mostly utilities, were well supported and closed firm. Transfers aggregated 770,200 shares, the largest since Nov. 11.

Electric Bond & Share was traded in huge volume, but held to a trading range of a couple of points, and closed at 39 5-8, a net gain of 5-8 of a point. American Gas fluctuated between a gain and a loss of 2 points, and closed unchanged. American Super Power finished 1-8 of a point higher. Central Public Service "A" gained 1-2. United Light "A," Niagara Hudson and Associated Gas "A" sagged fractionally to new lows, however. Utility shares dropping 1 to 3 to new minimum prices included American & Foreign Power warrants, Electric Power & Light warrants, Insull Utility Investment and Duke Power.

The petroleum issues were under persistent pressure. Cities Service, which was ex-dividend, sold as low as 15 3-8, a new low, but closed at 15 3-4, off only 1-8. Standard of Indiana broke 2 1-2 points to a new bottom, and closed off 1 3-4, net. Gulf dropped 3 and regained 2. Vacuum declined nearly 3. In the coppers, Newmont lost more than 3. Copper Range 2, and Noranda a fraction, all penetrating new minimum levels. Natural gas issues also sagged. Oklahoma Natural Gas 6 1-2 per cent preferred appeared on the tape for the first time in months, trading at 49 1-2, off 22 7-8. Bad breaks in these inactive shares, for which there is little market, have been frequent.

In the industrials and specialties, Deere closed 3-4 of a point higher and Merritt, Chapman & Scott, and Glen Alden Coal gained about 2 points in a few transactions. The major trend, however, was downward. Anglo-Chilean Nitrate dropped 3 1-2 points to a new low at 8 1-2. American Cyanamid B sagged a fraction to a new bottom. Transcontinental Air Transport sagged a fraction, and Aviation Corp. of the Americas declined 2, to the lowest yet. Driver Harris dropped 5 points. Among lightly traded issues, Federal Mogul changed hands at 8, off 6 1-2. In the chain stores, Walgreen, David Pender and Daniel Reeves lost 1 to 2 points, all reaching new bottom prices.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—United States government obligations and the loans of New York traction companies rallied briskly in the bond market today in the most active session in two months.

Domestic corporate obligations were irregularly lower with losses somewhat smaller than last week. A handful of obligations reversed their recent trend but the preponderance of changes remained on the downside.

Pronounced softness developed in South American issues, where the dips in some instances carried government issues below the level reached on the decline several months ago, when hysterical liquidation was influenced by revolution, and other political disturbances. The market was attributed to the nervousness among American investors influenced by the Spanish political situation and the attention called to the economic picture in Bolivia by the arrival here of a commission seeking to adjust interest payments on $60,000,000 in loans.

Bolivian governments dropped 1 to 3 points, all to new lows for the year. Argentine governments sagged and pressure against Chilean obligations forced a half dozen loans of the government down from 1 1-2 to 2 points. There was mild selling in Colombian, Uruguayan and Peruvian issues and Brazilian 6 1-2s and several municipals joined the decline.

Standard European governments maintained a fairly steady tone, and changes were fractional. Industrial and municipal bonds were heavy.
